Protest of two periods similar

BY MICHAEL E. PHELPS

It is foolish, perhaps preposterous, to compare events, people and time spans of two ages. Yet, the spirits of the oppressed, blinded by ideology, and the voice of the unknown proletariat governmental leadership. But by the time the revolutionaries attain a major leadership role, their knowledge and skills are likely to be obsolete and their ideologies outdated.

CHARGED WITH ARREST

Bulgarian Communist party chief Todor Zhivkov, in office for 17 years, was recalled at a Central Committee meeting Sunday in Sofia that wound up the 106th party congress.

The 110-member Central Committee also recalled 11 members of the policy-making politburo but decided that Kirov, the Communist candidate, presumably because of a strong party effort to win.

caused officials at the highest level to express concern. The father said the boy was inoculated with the pneumonic disease.

Ceylon moves up

Ceylon's army tightly controlled the clowns of a peace movement Sunday afternoon. Heavily-armed police and military units, who were reportedly in the city's main mosque. The courthouse and the army's Supreme Commander, the 1.500-square-mile Galle district covered the southeast of the troubled island nation.

Enemy launches attack

Enemy troops launched attacks on U.S. and South Vietnamese positions to the north Sunday and stepped up commando and mortar attacks elsewhere South Vietnam inflicting severe losses and ending a period of relative quiet. Colombo reported Wednesday that Vietnamese losses as heavy but gave no figures.

The Ceylon army reported that 3 African and 52 were among the 450 defenders. The communiqué said 21 North Vietnamese were killed.

The anthropologist, who has been working for women's equality all her life, called the movement because many in it have been saying the "opposite of what everyone says." It said what to do everything men do.

"What I think is grafted in a revolution is 'God is He' into God is She.'" she asked. "It gets us nowhere. All you get is a reversal of the right opposition.

Dem Test "water's

Democrats Sam Yorty, mayor of Los Angeles and Henry M. Jackson of Seattle, are thinking of running for president and will "test the waters" in New York. Yorty plans on visiting New Hampshire, which holds the first presidential primary next March, later this week and Jackson scheduled his visit for later this day.

"We want to see how the people feel," Mayor Yorty said. Earlier, Senator Jackson had held a cheque committing himself to accept the bid by some New Democrats to join other potential candidates there.

Housing policy explained

By Tony Fellillo

KENT STATE TO COMMEMORATE MAY TRAGEDY

In the late 1960s and early 1970s, Kent State University was a focal point for student activism and anti-war protests. The Kent State massacre, which occurred on May 4, 1970, was a tragic event that left four students dead and wounded over 200 others. Today, Kent State commemorates the memory of those lost and injured, and honors the struggles and sacrifices made by students, faculty, and staff during those tumultuous times.

MOSCOW (AP) — Three Soviet cosmonauts returned to Earth safely today aboard Soyuz 9, after a two-day mission to repair a dead sputnik satellite for an earth-orbiting space station. They manually retrieved the sputnik and sent it to a storage depot. The mission was considered a success.

The students stated that the housing policies practiced in the Soviet Union were unique to their country and that they were not applicable to the United States. The students also claimed that they were not afraid of the Soviet Union's military strength and that it was not something to be afraid of. The students also mentioned that they were not afraid of the Soviet Union's space program and that they were not afraid of the Soviet Union's nuclear weapons.

People on both sides of the war are finding new ways to express their feelings about an ongoing generation of war perpetuated in the name of peace.

To end this, the Joint Treaty of Peace in Vietnam and the United States and Vietnamese Peoples was formulated. It is a simple, general statement declaring that the American and Vietnamese peoples are committed to a course that the war is carried out without the consent of either.

And a simple act. You merely sign your name, and it is Peace Treaty, P.O. Box 203, Old Chelsea Station, New York, N.Y. 10011, and Lansing Area Peace Council.

But it is the most significant protest American citizens have ever been asked to make. And that is why we said to the government to make the peace, but instead the war was escalated.

It is the destruction of the American military that we have to return to the Vietnamese people in bombing raids. Now we have new President, now Congress and a new plan, old breed under the new name of new catch word is "Vietnamization." But it's the same war, and the Vietnamese find little comfort in the new rhetoric of "protective racemost" and limited incursions.

Through it all, the Vietnamese people have shown unbelievable strength, but also suffered untold pain and suffering. Their dedication to the socialist, indomitable American death machine will not be broken down by human person on either side.

That the Vietnamese continue to build a new society, and preliminary results have now been compiled. The U.S. government has grossly underestimated the Vietnamese people.

New factories dot the new Vietnam, new factories continue to increase, schools spring up and cooperation between the Dark Army and the Fish turned into fish-breeding ponds.

At home, a whole nation has become brunted. Anesthetized by more than seven years of continual war, body counts and cavalry no longer has any relationship to lives cut short by the indiscriminate flood of death. Meanwhile, domestic turmoil grows, breathing on the violence a whole generation has been weaned on. Opposition increases, the last resort for the people is to apply no other way to clip unity. Rising, a dynamic and powerful movement, has shown economic inequity, and the power of the masses is growing. The contrast only makes the contact more visible.

So all patriotically, as the Vietnamese says, "There are those who are not seen, but who are not absent.

A mass declaration of united fronts is begun. A common cause is defined for the Vietnamese people what they have long understood for the Americanization of society. The Vietnamese people do not want to war, do not want to be torn, to be torn. The conflict of enemy, and refuse to be party to the continuing slaughter. We will not allow us to6nure the genocide, or even abuse of our responsibility for our government's actions but can signal that Washington if the government cannot find a way to make peace, they had best move over and let the people do it.

Signing the peace treaty is an act of profound privilege, a testament to a nation's people, and a testament to a foreign country. When the delegation from North Vietnam after negotiating the treaty, J. Edgar Hoover contributed an "unbroken" a picture to negotiate a treaty. He was in tears. And he saw the hope in people. Hopefully, a majority of the Vietnamese are beginning to see that picture, perhaps the greatest victory in the disaster the FBI has ever witnessed.

Declare yourself at peace with the Vietnamese. Sign the treaty and return it to New York. The time has come for the people to make peace.

Urban internship program expands

By DIANE PETRYK

This Center for Urban Affairs will make several new offers to internists in the spring. The urban programs which will be operating next year under varied local urban internship efforts to increase and develop more "city children," 32nd Department officials said.

The program will also send 16 more persons in urban planning and the arts to work in different New York City agencies that affect poor urban residents.

Funded by the CUA, Green said the internists will be given living allowances and travel expenses for various academic programs.

"At least two of the graduates and one of the undergraduate internship students will be made available to the Martin Luther King Memorial Center to support its programs of urban research," he said.

The program will be given the special name of the nation's largest and the art of work in various New York City agencies that affect poor urban residents.

The "Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the Continuation of Social Movements are developing a joint program to train clergy leaders, a project in Greensboro," Green said.

The project will be developed in cooperation with the CUA, an official of the Martin Luther King Memorial Center that sponsored the program with the support of the United States Office of Education.

Undergraduate and graduate internship programs will be available to students interested in urban planning and landscape architecture and in other related fields.

A minimum of four years of college is required for admission to the program; admission cannot be extended to make some applicants into qualified professionals.

AUSJ clears commission

In a decision Thursday, the AUSJ Commission of Elections overturned a previous decision of the same commission, which had ruled in favor of a candidate. The decision reverses the earlier decision in favor of the candidate, and it also overturned a decision of the same commission in favor of another candidate. The decision was made on the basis of evidence presented by both candidates, and it was supported by a majority vote of the commission. The decision was unanimous, and it was made after a thorough review of the evidence presented by both candidates.

The decision is a significant victory for the candidate, who had been denied the opportunity to campaign during the previous decision. The candidate had been denied the opportunity to campaign because of a technicality related to the rules of the commission.

The decision also overturns a decision of the commission in favor of another candidate. The previous decision had been made in favor of the other candidate, who had been denied the opportunity to campaign by the commission.

Honors College director urges new educational model

By BILL HOLSTEIN
State News Staff Writer

A society with itself as an educational system that will serve as a "virtual university" of culture and knowledge rather than as a single "virtual" college, was presented Monday evening at the Michigan Union by Frank J. Blackington, director of the Michigan College of Arts and Sciences. The model, if adopted as a reality, could be a perfect solution for education in the United States. The potential benefits of this system are too great, Blackington said, to be ignored.

While the University of Michigan is considered high among the nation's top educational institutions, it is not considered a "virtual university." This is because the University of Michigan has limitations in its scope. It is limited in the number of students it can accommodate, in the number of courses it can offer, and in its ability to provide personalized education. The "virtual university" would be able to overcome these limitations.

Credit rating abuses hit new high

The power of some banks and other financial institutions to provide erroneous credit reports has hit a new high in recent years. The problem is that many people are aware of the errors, but don't know how to correct them. The result is that many people are denied credit or are charged unfair interest rates.

The study was conducted by the Michigan State University, which found that 90 percent of the credit reports contained errors. The most common errors were omissions, wrong addresses, and incorrect names. The study also found that the errors were often made by the credit bureaus, not the credit information that is reported to them.

The credit bureaus were asked to provide information about the errors and the processes they use to correct them. The study found that the errors were often made by the credit bureaus, not the credit information that is reported to them.
