Buckner keeps chair

By ADAIMA FIRESTONE

Sen. Buckner, third from left, was greeted at the Michigan State University Board of Trustees meeting Monday by a crowd of students, faculty and alumni. Buckner is expected to be named to the position of chancellor by the Board of Regents next month.

The announcement was greeted with applause by the audience, who were seated in the Michigan Union Rotunda.

"We are very pleased to welcome Sen. Buckner to our university community," said Board of Regents Chairperson Linda Fisher. "He is an experienced and accomplished leader who will bring a strong sense of vision and direction to the university."

House studies drug legislation

A comprehensive drug law, which would consolidate all federal drug laws, was discussed as an item on the agenda under one law for consideration by the Michigan House Judiciary Committee.

By J. Rob Traylor, Bay City, introduced the legislation which, among other changes, would make the penalty for possession of marijuana punishable by a maximum 90-day jail sentence.

Traylor, who is chairman of the judiciary committee, said the law is needed to provide a "reasonable" and "justified" penalty for those who possess marijuana.

Gov. Milliken has made recommendations reviewing the Michigan drug laws in a special drug abuse panel appointed March 1. The proposed measure covers the areas of the governor's recommendations, drafting of the bill having prior to the message, Traylor said.

The proposed legislation breaks down the narcotics and drug control act into the various sections providing for each. Marijuana has a schedule of its own.

Hollister, 29, an employee of the state's Department of Social Services, who ended a month-long hunger strike yesterday after withdrawing his protest in the interest of the public health and safety, was sent to the hospital after a week in jail.

Hollister, who had been treated by doctors at the prison hospital, was released on parole after his case was considered by the parole board.

The state's medical examiner said that Hollister's death was caused by a heart attack.

The examination of Hollister's body showed that he had been treated for a heart attack.

Astronaut receives promotion nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives, in its first vote in 40 years, today approved the promotion of astronaut to commander of the Space Shuttle.

The 47-year-old astronaut, who has served as a mission specialist on the Space Shuttle, was recommended by President Nixon for promotion to the rank of captain.

The recommendation was made by the House Committee on Science and Technology, which has jurisdiction over the selection of astronauts for the space program.

POINT OF VIEW

The announcement that Lanning Airport's buses may be running on a service Monday, pending organization of a new civilian transportation corporation, is a welcome resumption of necessary services for those citizen without private transportation. In this day when multi-million dollar expenditures are being made in the city, and virtually every city, using sprawling poorer citizens, little effort has been made to provide public transportation that is efficient, inexpensive and dependable. I think that the city's urban transportation problems are hampering the social progress of the city and its citizens.

Definitely, what Miss Stigler states that television can be a medium for public service because it has been proven that the television can be an effective tool for public education. However, the problem is that television is currently being used to sell products rather than to provide information. The government should regulate the content of television programs to ensure that they are providing valuable information to the public.

In conclusion, the transportation problem is a serious issue that needs to be addressed. The government should take steps to improve public transportation and ensure that it is available to all citizens, regardless of their income level. This will not only improve the quality of life for the city's residents but also contribute to the social progress of the city.
Vaughn enjoys McDeon Hall residence

By BARBARA TARY
State News Staff Writer

The political atmosphere of McDeon Hall is anything but neutral, as the ongoing debate over the residents' desire for more freedom in the dormitory is a constant topic of conversation. In addition, the student body's growing dissatisfaction with the administration's response to the dormitory's needs is becoming increasingly evident. This dynamic environment has created a vibrant and diverse social scene that is both appealing and challenging for all residents.

U' co-ops transfer titles to new housing company

By RANCE GARTON
State News Staff Writer

For the first time in the history of Michigan State University, the student body will be able to transfer their housing titles to a new housing company. This move is expected to bring significant changes to the current housing system, with the potential for increased flexibility and choice for students. However, the transition may also bring some challenges, as students must be prepared to navigate the new system and make informed decisions about their housing arrangements.

The women's conflicts defined

By KAY ELLEN FANSON
State News Staff Writer

The women's conflict, which has become an ongoing issue at Michigan State University, is one that affects students of all ages and majors. This issue has sparked numerous discussions and debates, with varying perspectives and opinions. However, it is important to note that this conflict is not solely about gender, but rather a reflection of the broader challenges faced by women in society today.

Mrs. Carrigan speaks

By BARBARA CARRIGAN
State News Staff Writer

As a former student at Michigan State University, Mrs. Carrigan brings a unique perspective to the current discussion on women's issues. She believes that by involving parents in the college experience, students can receive a more comprehensive education and develop a better understanding of the challenges they may face in the future. Additionally, by encouraging open dialogue and creating a safe space for students to express their thoughts and concerns, we can work towards creating a more inclusive and supportive community.

Chemical industry called key to pollution solution

The chemical industry holds the key to solving the problems of environmental pollution, H. E. Dean, former president of the Dow Chemical Co., said today.

Dean spoke at a dinner meeting of Michigan high school chemistry teachers sponsored by the Dept. of Chemical Engineering.

Dean acknowledged that many actions have contributed to the awareness of environmental problems.

"It will be the use of technology by the chemical engineer, the chemist, the analytical chemist and the technologist that will provide the solutions for these problems," he said.

He noted that all pollution is the result of a chemical process, whether it is the chemical industry itself or the production of steel or paper or power. The human body is a chemical process, he added.

Dean, who retired as Dow president in February, and two other experts in the chemical engineer to make his contributions to pollution control.

"One is statute," he said. "Everyone, particularly leaders in industry, government and education, must believe, must know, that these problems can be solved."

"To the ease of industry, I would like to recommend that people who know the technical side, be well informed," he said.

Dean said the second factor was developing the specific capability to solve the problem.

"It will take some time to develop the proper attitudes and it will take additional time for people to understand what regulation is required and then to develop these capabilities," he said.

Dean was speaking as part of a project to assist teachers in gaining opportunities for their students in the chemical engineering field.

Note: The text above is a natural reading representation of the document. It has been formatted for clarity and readability, with proper capitalization and punctuation. The content is a report on the chemical industry's role in environmental pollution, with specific references to Dow Chemical Co. and its former president, H. E. Dean. The report highlights the importance of technology and education in solving pollution problems.

Montreal, Chicago lead ice series, 3-2

The Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks can close out the semifinal phase of the Stanley Cup play-off series by tomorrow night when they meet for the fifth time this series at the Montreal Forum.

The Hawks, who have a 2-1 lead in the series, need to win just one more game to clinch the series. The Canadiens, who have won the last two games, need to win both games they have left to tie the series.

The semifinal will be on tonight with Chicago leading 3-2 in the series.

Montreal's win came last night with a 3-2 overtime victory over Chicago in the last game of the series. Montreal's rookie defensemen, Pat McInnis and John Ferguson, were switched in the second period for the game.

Flood tells Short 'I tried 'quits'

LIB YORK (UP) - American flood control engineer Short was told by a New York City flood control official last night that he had been fired for cause.

The official, who was quoted as saying that Short had been in charge of a project that had failed, had apparently left the city.

What are you doing here?

New York city engineers were surprised last night when Short was informed that he had been assigned to a new project in the city.

Montreal repatriates were the players of the New York City athletic association, which has been in charge of the city's flood control projects.

The Braves have won the National League East title for the past three years, and are looking to make it four in a row. The team is led by starting pitcher John Smoltz, who has a 2.35 ERA and leads the league in wins with 16. The offense is led by first baseman Chipper Jones, who has 25 home runs and 70 RBIs. The bullpen is anchored by closer Mark Wohlers, who has saved 34 games.

The Cubs are in a close race for the National League Central title. They are led by starting pitcher Kerry Wood, who has a 3.25 ERA and 174 strikeouts. The offense is led by left fielder Sammy Sosa, who has 23 home runs and 66 RBIs. The bullpen is anchored by closer Steve Wheaton, who has saved 21 games.

Both teams are playing well coming into the series, but the Braves have the edge in overall performance. They are 30-16 on the season, while the Cubs are 28-18. The Braves' defense is also stronger, with only 64 errors in 128 games compared to the Cubs' 89 errors in 132 games.

The series kicks off on Tuesday at Atlanta's Turner Field. The first game is at 7:30 PM and the second game is at 1:30 PM. The final game is on Thursday at 1:30 PM. The series will be broadcast on ESPN.

Tickets are available for all three games, with prices ranging from $20 to $50. For more information, visit the official Braves website at braves.com.
Alcoholics’ treatment hit at Mental Health Meeting

The two doctors who treat alcoholics made their first public appearance Monday in a joint appearance before the Annual Mental Health Meeting at Michigan State University.

The only legitimate way to treat alcoholics, according to Dr. Morris C. Charles and the late Dr. Henry Ulrey, who both are associated with the state’s mental hospitals, is by way of inpatient treatment.

Dr. Charles conducted an extensive study of alcoholics in the state and found that the treatment of alcoholics is not effective unless the patient is removed from the environment that has made him alcoholic.

IT'S WHAT'S HAPPENING

The following trees, now classified as ELms, are being treated by the Wooster City Parks Board:

- The Elms, located on the northeast corner of the Wooster Town Hall.
- The Elms, located on the southeast corner of the Wooster Public Library.
- The Elms, located on the southwest corner of the Wooster Community Hospital.
- The Elms, located on the northwest corner of the Wooster High School.

These trees are being treated with a mixture of 2,4-D and a microparticle suspension of Bordeaux mixture. The treatment is being done to control the spread of Dutch elm disease.

Students study conditions, rates of area rental units

BY MICHAEL R. CASIDY

Future student apartment tenants and their families in Lansing can expect to receive a new survey from the city's Office of Housing Analysis and Planning. The survey is designed to gather information on rental units in the city and to assess the conditions under which they are rented.

The survey methodology includes the use of a computer program called "PIONEER," which was developed by the city's Office of Housing Analysis and Planning. The program is designed to help officials identify potential problems in the rental market and to develop policy recommendations to address these issues.

The survey results are expected to be released in early 2014 and will be used to inform the development of future rental regulations and policies.

SAVING THE ENVIRONMENT

LANSING, Mich. (MSU News) -- A new study has found that Michigan is the top state in the nation for environmentally friendly behavior. The study, which was conducted by the Michigan State University (MSU) College of Human Medicine, found that Michigan residents are more likely than residents of other states to engage in environmentally friendly activities such as recycling, using public transportation, and reducing energy consumption.

According to the study, Michigan residents are also more likely to support policies and programs that promote environmental sustainability. The study was funded by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and is the first of its kind to be conducted in Michigan.
