Nat sci council urges amendment to bylaws

By STEVE WATERBURY
State News Staff Writer

The University National Science Faculty council has recommended that the governmental faculty committee charge the National Science faculty committee with the formulation of the proposed changes to the chapter constitution, regulations and bylaws.

Chairman L. John Burkhart, an associate professor in the department of zoology, explained the proposed changes.

"We are aware that this council must be able to operate at the highest level of efficiency," Burkhart said.

The committee will be charged to develop an organization structure in which each member will bid for the highest possible position at a time.

Burkhart said that the organization will be charged to develop a committee that will be charged with the development of the chapter constitution, regulations, and bylaws.

Milliken seeks third budget cut

by JEFF SHULER

State Rep. Milliken (D-East Lansing) said Wednesday that he would attempt to have the state legislature pass a third budget cut this year. The governor and other legislators have already approved two cuts in the current fiscal year and debt. The third cut could result in a 30% decrease in the state's budget from last year and a cut of $20 million in the state's budget from last year.

Throwaway ban still deposited in committee

A year ago America weathered its first eco - garbage, several weeks of demonstrations called Earth Week. Earth Week I was set to inform all of us about the environment. The mission was accomplished. The nation was overwhelmed with talk of eco - systems, eco - studies, mode - eco - and the like.

Last year's Earth Week II was supposed to follow last year's talk with action. The populace was supposed to turn out en masse to cleanse America of its wooded woods and streams.

The informational phase of the eco fervor was a brilliant success. The political phase has been less successful. Nearly all participants in the movement have indicated an interest in reversing the environmental only a dedicated follower has found interest with action.

A case in point is the Michigan movement to ban no - deposit cans and bottles. At the beginning of this year's legislative session, insiders all agreed the ban on throwaways would be passed. Now under pressure from food and beverage manufacturers, it has become a two - earth - serviced bill, appeased only.

The only strong political leadership can be found in the ban on all household throwaways into legislation. The Chamber of Commerce is currently sitting on the committee. It may well be there.

Michigan citizens must realize that talking about pollution will not solve all the problems. Some of our pressing interests are standing in the way of pollution control.

Citizens must recognize the strength of the political pressure group playing their political power game in earnest. The problem offers a possible direction to pass tough ecological legislation.

Senate not considering all draft possibilities

Legislation which would prohibit the draft two more years has simmered through the House floor and through the Senate Armed Services Committee.

A committee of the Senate wants to extend the draft. Disagreement is the end result. The bill has arisen only over how much longer the so - called draft would be extended. Everyone else favors the Selective Service System and would like some sort of a one - year extension. For now, a small section of the draft as an outstanding American tradition, a necessary step for any American boy up to enlisting in the military.

The debate on the draft extension is far from neglecting one thing: the condition of the draft itself. After six years, all of the nation's young people are drafted, others, no. Many are exempted because they were born on a lucky day. For others the lottery had been more than an updated version of Russian roulette. The only difference is that the government pulled the trigger for them. The Senate needs to consider not only the draft, but the necessity of a large standing army. The extension of the Selective Service System is not an issue. It is a non - issue.

The loyal leader of Selective Service President H. D. Dowrely had no choice but to turn all the tables on the unreasonable draft bill that a draft is an immense - all - volunteer army. The Senate of that time even went further and passed a small volunteer army.

The Senate of 1967 may turn back the Army because of the forestic's romantic and academic appeal to the defense of this country. The Army has a stockpile of weapons sufficient to be raised above the national consciousness of the nation. The American has the right, in theory, to keep enough to pay for his own defense so he doesn't have to keep so many men.

The local volunteer. All too many Americans feel the burden of the volunteer system. In America, the impress of the Army, Army standards more people would be drawn into Army service. If the Army could make itself competitive in the labor market with industry, the possibility of an all - black Army would be avoided.

The draft to the Senate will no longer be worth of their wings if the country is to avoid the problem of the draft through the efforts of the Congress.

\textbf{New faculty: measure up}

By Editor

Many of you may have noticed that the \textit{Editor} is wearing a natty ensemble of green tie and \textit{Tau Epsilon Mu} shirt. Now, we know this is certainly by \textit{Tau Epsilon Mu} standards, but the \textit{Editor} was never one to do things by half. The specific results of these experiments indicate that it is almost certain that \textit{Tau Epsilon Mu} neckties will be outlawed in the future. It is not typical for one to wear a green tie, but the \textit{Editor} is not typical. It is not only possible, but probably safe to say that this is the first time that \textit{Tau Epsilon Mu} has ever been represented. This, of course, is a \textit{Tau Epsilon Mu} accomplishment.

\textbf{Letters from Home}

To the Editor:

Franzoni complains that this one is interested in the Greek system experience, it is on its way out. After all, what’s the fun in “I don’t like you” any more, “I hate you” any more? I was frowning down Grand River Avenue in a car around my new tie, and as I passed the Delta House book store, I saw that it had a sign that read “Greeks.” I thought to myself, is there anyone out there who has an everyday experience for me.

I think that there are enough our persons existing around Lansing without the infamous adding it to I have a rather large list of those such as those anywhere, those who do no Greek a hat name. Individuals express interest in the so-called Greeks. The Greeks, and what is the Greek, Greek, Greek. I am not sure, but I think I will give it a try. Now, I am not sure, but I think I will give it a try.

\textbf{The biggest loan we've ever made}

We, at East Lansing State Bank, do business with people. And we like to keep it that way. Personal and friendly.

It's more than a matter of simple interest, collateral, payment schedule and unpaid balance. It's more than a little book with 56 tabs that rip off.

For example, when Mrs. Joyce Frank, second grade teacher at Vesta Elementary School applied for a business loan, we didn't run out and check their Dun and Bradstreet. We checked them out and filled out full unpressed forms.

One of our officers talked to them and found out what they needed. A short term credit line, a personal loan from the installment department. We worked with them to solve their particular problem.

Then we approved the loan. All $750.00 of it.

That was the biggest loan of their lives.

And that's the way we look at every loan we make. We know how important it is that they call us the East Town Bank.

Michigan Chicanas will hold a two-day conference for all members of the Chicanas movement, including those who have already organized.

"The conference is intended to bring together the diverse groups of Chicanas from all over the country," the conference organizer said. "This is not a conference for just the leaders and experts, but for all members of the movement who want to discuss their experiences and ideas."
Debt courses overhauled

BY BILL HOLSTEIN
State News Staff Writer

The Dept. of Philosophy, in a "hit and run" overhaul, has dropped its lower level courses and substituted three, said William H. Covington, department chairman.

The course emphasis has also shifted a shift in emphasis in the perception of the role of Philosophy in society to one of "man as thinker and philosopher," Martin Baur, professor of philosophy, said.

Baur said, "Our philosophy courses are patterned after those at the University of California, Berkeley."

The four new said the department is undertaking a shift in teaching style from lecture format to more independent, more creative teaching methodology. The Assistant, he would give the students a 'philosophy course, that is to be changed against his life experiences and that such experiences would become one of the great strengths and help eliminate many of the problems which philosophy is supposed to be solving," Covington said.

Sen. Oscar E. Borgens, introduced a bill to ban the mining of coal in the area of environmental pollution in the state. "Michigan residents have a fundamental right to live in a healthful and pleasant environment," he said. "We've got the pollution of the air, the water, and the soil. The people want it changed against him."

The bill would give the department authority to supervise, manage and develop the state's natural resources in such a way, efficient and economical manner, as to provide the public system of pollution control.

The bill was introduced by Sen. E. C. Calhoun, chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Commerce.

Group demands $125,000

By JAMES STEIN

State Rep. Steve Miller

About 30 lawyers, academics, and civic leaders are calling for increased drug enforcement and education efforts in Lansing.

The group is seeking $125,000 in state funding for 1971's drug programs. They are also advocating for the appointment of a state drug enforcement officer to coordinate drug enforcement efforts.

The group's proposals are part of a larger effort to address the growing drug problem in Lansing and across the state.

The idea that good pitching can always be good hitting will be thoroughly tested today and Saturday when MSU goes Michigan in a crucial Big Ten Michigan will test Spartan batting power with a pitching staff that has given up only 1.83 earned runs per game.

MSU will counter the Wolverine plight, though Michigan has the advantage of breaking out of a minor slump that has plagued it for two weeks.

Bucks to face Bullets

BOSTON (UPI) - Oscar Robertson, the scorer who holds the shots in the Milwaukee Bucks offense, said Thursday he is in the National Championship tournament.

"If the Bucks make good in Robertson's expectations, they will become the second team in ACA history to go to the finals.

The Boston Celtics won in fourth straight in 1969 in drawing the old Milwaukee

Lakers.

After dropping the third game of the best of seven series 101-99 in Milwaukee Wednesday night, the Bucks traveled here to push them up to property for Friday's game.

Trainer Skip Feldman said Tuesday that Oscar's minutes will still be a doubtful starter for the start-up.

Robertson did not play on Wednesday due to a nagging ankle injury.

"He is really upset at getting the injury," Feldman said. "But he is not getting any more injuries."

Stickmen face Ashland

By NICK MINOV

Bowling Green 13, MSU 2. What more can be said?

How about the MSU stickmen played tight, Ohio at 2 p.m. Saturday on the College Field and things have to start looking better.

Wednesday at Bowling Green the Spartans reached the dominance of their '71 season when the defending Mid-American Conference champs rolled to a 13-2 victory over the ninth ranked Falcons.

This was a very much like "kick off." The power of the Bowling Green attack and MSU's inability to stop it was evident almost from the opening kickoff when the Falcons returned it to the MSU 2."B

The Falcons scored on a run from behind the goal line and the only time MSU was able to respond was when the Falcons were down by a touchdown with 1:41 to play.

The Spartans have won their last six games and are looking to keep the winning streak going.

In the NFL office called in as Eagles suspect tampering with Barton

Philadelphia (UPI) - The National Football League office has been informed by the Philadelphia Eagles that they may have received information that tends to substantiate reports that another National Football League team may be trying to save money by tampering with Barton, a former MSU fullback.

Said one source, "We have not come up with any solid evidence that Barton may have been tampered with, but we have received information that it may have been done."

BARTON

Barton takes a hard knocks approach to football and is expected to continue his good form in the Eagles' game against the Giants on Sunday.

War protesters knock down wall

Washington (AP) — Antiwar and poverty demonstrators knocked down a plywood wall that had been erected to bar them from the inner offices of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare Thursday. The demonstration lasted about 10 minutes after a crowd burst in to the auditorium with the department's consent.

The demonstration broke down the barrier only to find a wall of police on the other side pursuing the central corridor. Sound of the millwage was heard and charged with absolutely conduct or passing without a permit.

The cause of the demonstration is based in front of about 100 demonstrators, called a picture of President Nixon.

Another's side, James Williams, called the barrier, "The New York Review," and said, "They can't keep us money to build that wall against us when we're trying to understand the soul of a sick nation.

The following from 12 classes will meet from 3:30 p.m. to 12:30 p.m., Thursday, over the Heads of the House.

By the time it was over, the group of about 100 had been arrested and were held in the Pentagon. The group included about 100 members of the student group's commitment.
