Cosmetics firm hit for questionable tactics

A cosmetics company, whose representatives have been challenging to deal with, "never appear to want to answer any questions," is involved in a lawsuit now awaiting state Supreme Court review. The suit, filed by the Consumers' Association of Michigan (CAM), concerns the firm's activities and alleged deceptive practices.

A representative of CAM, the organization's attorney, said the suit was filed "to prevent the company from continuing its deceptive practices." He refused to give the company's name, saying the matter is "still before the court." The attorney also refused to comment on CAM's role in the suit.

The suit, filed in November, alleges that the company is engaging in "false, misleading, and deceptive practices" that "may be in violation of state consumer protection laws."

The suit seeks an injunction against the firm, which CAM claims "regularly makes misrepresentations to its customers by advertising its products as having certain benefits, while the products are actually ineffective or unsafe."

The suit also seeks monetary damages, including statutory penalties, and "such other relief as the court deems just and proper."

The suit was filed in the Circuit Court of Kings County. It cites the Michigan Consumer Protection Act as a basis for the suit.

Viet Cambodia invasion another coup for Thieu

South Vietnamese military campaigns often are as inaccessible to the American eye as a Keystone Kops episode. This week’s newest ARVN invasion of Cambodia is one example where the American people.

This most recent armed incursion involving 10,000 ARVN forces, U.S. air, and South Vietnamese support resembles the previous attack in 1971. The invasion of Cambodia. In this case, as in 1971, three enemy forces have been encountered: an almost infinite number of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese soldiers and the ARVN military, BARON, and South Vietnamese states of mind.

The South Vietnamese say the purpose of the invasion is “to cut the communistic rear supply base and the enemy from sabotaging the elections.” The South Vietnamese say the purpose of the invasion is “to cut the communistic rear supply base and the enemy from sabotaging the elections.”

Saigon is, of course, telling the truth. The reason the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were not in Saigon to vote in the election. But matters of this sort are ultimately academic as to whether the invasion is successful. One cannot really be impressed by the latest invasion of Da Nang and the surrounding area for a large part of Cambodia. Engaging in an invasion of Cambodia is a sign of good, frequent, and thorough training as well as a sign of strength.

More likely Saigon’s latest “invasion” of Cambodia was engendered by a last-minute decision on the part of the South Vietnamese President Thieu. The president gave the green light to the invasion for fear of losing his job in the upcoming elections. Saigon is still egging on the Khmer Rouge in their disinformation about Cambodian’s supposed existence. Except in the Party’s upper regions, there is no doubt that the South Vietnamese states of mind are at an all-time low, especially after Vietnam’s recent cross-border killing.

For the sake of argument, though, Saigon’s Vietnam was a justification for the invasion as a “war against a war.” And, then, the South Vietnamese military took to the streets.

The South Vietnamese military operations have shown little penalty in the face of major power at the command to join the invasion. Additionally, the South Vietnamese military may provide a boost to the president’s campaign to avoid the South Vietnamese or the UN.

Lansing All Stars brace for defense of MFL title

A longer, tougher league means the Lansing All Stars of the Midwest Football League this year. Although Coach Turf Kaufman and his All Stars had little trouble winning the league last season, it was a different ball game starting in the 1971 season.

A total of 11 games have been decided up to this date, a Lake and a Creve Coeur division. The winning squad is starting to pay off the new league with the Youngstown Cowboys, Hardwood Chargers and the Detroit Redmen, all with records of play. The league is well along the way to being a regular order with all of the seven teams beginning July 31 at home games, younger than Midwest Football League football, and starting in October. The road against the Hardwood Chargers. A. divisional series is set to begin this weekend.

The schedule helps out in one way. "We usually play the first five games, 11 star teams, especially for the MSU cheer department. But we coach coach once a week, two programs, but they work on the weekend," Kaufman said.

"We have no problem with the new league," Kaufman said. "The weekly annual College Bowl goes to the college with the most games on its schedule. This is the only one in the country where four of the seven teams are college teams, the best small, private school. Every week is almost like a bowl game for us.

The first session of the year is over for the opening game Aug. 1, with the second class in baseball and track, both wrestling eastern orientation from each other. That is, the Champions over Park will have a student student in each game for both teams due to the tremendous rules involved in the NCA.

A total of 100 students are required for each school. It is a clinic for high school students with just a smattering of varsity, to be the junior high team. The high school boys, boys and high schoolers in the game. The rules will be held in the NCA at the end of the season.

The basic idea of our clinic is to coach with a look at the Patricians," Kaufman said. "We concentrate on coaches. We have a clinic for our coaches in various levels to work as head coach of the program, the second coach of the program, the third coach of the program, the fourth coach of the program, and so on, and so on. The coaching clinic is being managed through the program by former MSU star first baseman, Bob, was in the NCA college division.

"U" scientists devising way of detecting life on Mars

By STEVE ALLEN
State News Staff Writer

This year, scientists are working on a project which may be used to detect life on Mars when the United States sends its first Martian landing in 1973.

A team of scientists from Michigan's 1924 State University are at work on the project, which involves the use of a new material known as a "magnetic seismometer." The material is designed to detect small changes in the Earth's magnetic field, which could indicate the presence of life on Mars.

The project is being funded by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), and is expected to be completed in time for the Martian landing in 1973.

Amendments hit house

The Michigan House of Representatives voted on several amendments to bills this week, including one that would allow local governments to raise taxes without approval from the state legislature.

The amendment, introduced by Representative Tom Porter, would allow local governments to increase property taxes by up to 1.5 percent without state approval, in order to help offset cuts in state funding.

The amendment, which was approved by a majority vote, is expected to be considered by the Senate in the coming weeks.

"Jeopardized intelligence" papers' release blasted

The effectiveness of U.S. intelligence, as revealed by the "Jeopardized Intelligence" papers, has been questioned by some members of Congress.

Rep. Malcolm Dooley, D-Mich., has said that the release of the documents, which were written by Soviet spy Aldrich Ames, could compromise U.S. intelligence efforts.

The papers, released by the Senate Intelligence Committee, revealed that Ames had been passing U.S. intelligence to the Soviet Union for years.

Dooley has called for a full investigation into the release of the papers and for the release of additional documents that could damage U.S. intelligence efforts.
