Herbicide used to wipe out poison

BY STEVE ALLEN

Northern Ireland (AP) — A herbicide which kills all broad leaf weeds and is on sale in Co. Down, 2-4, is being offered in Co. Down on an experimental basis to combat wild marijuana growth, a spokesman for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture (USDA) said Monday.

USDA officials said the herbicide, named TDB 121, is being tested on the island because the herbicide has been successful in controlling wild marijuana in the U.S. and is being sold to private farmers and contractors for experimental purposes only.

The herbicide, which is a mixture of 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T, is said to be safe for use on land where there are no crops, but is not recommended for use on land where there is livestock or wildlife.

The USDA spokesman said he would have no comment on the latest outbreak of violence in Northern Ireland.

The spokesman also said that the herbicide may cause some damage to crops, but has not been tested for use on crops.

Constituents favor abortion law reform

United States House of Representatives at 125th Congress, Washington D.C.

The House has adopted a bill to liberalize the abortion law to be signed into law.

The bill, passed by a margin of 198 to 208, gives women the right to have an abortion, but no more than 20 weeks of pregnancy shall be supported. A liberalized law.

However, only 136 votes were cast for the House, representing less than 50,000 of the women in the House, which is the number of votes needed to pass an abortion reform.

In order to move these bills, women must be able to afford the cost of abortion. According to the bill, women must be able to afford the cost of abortion. The bill is aimed at providing state funding for abortion services at any state, county or municipal level.

But the House bill would not have broad enough support to pass in the Senate, where it must also be passed. People have been concerned about the cost of abortion services, but their support is not enough to pass the bill in the Senate.

Indian fishing rights: a fair solution needed

It really has not been one of Michigan's better months. For the past few months anglers have been in an uproar over the state supreme court's decision granting unrestricted fishing rights to Indians. Not a few of us so-called "agricultural industries" are increasingly demanding that we be given the chance to harvest the fish as well.

Fishing is a livelihood to the Indians, not a sport. Their subsistence living conditions are largely the result of centuries of white exploitation. Their regulated fishing rights have provided a necessary and welcome supplement to their incomes.

Because of the pressing ecological danger, what is needed is a compromise that will work for both the Indians' benefit. For if the Indians continue their present rate of fishing, their basin waters will not be depleted, leaving little room for non-commercial fishing there before and depriving the state of its fishing revenue.

One state purchase of the Indians' fishing rights would seem to be a viable alternative. This would likely take the form of an additional subsidy equaling the potential income to be gained by selling that fishing right to an individual or corporation. Revenue to pay for the subsidy could come from any of the millions that will exist if that lake trout stock is not depleted.

Throughout the negotiations, however, the state would do well to remember that the fishing rights are about the only remnant of the Indians' original ownership of North America. The people of Michigan are morally obliged to treat them with respect, for, as much as they get from the Indians, we get from them.

SURVEY FINDS

Ties to old school still around

Despite the apparent attraction of modern technology, the Survey has found that a surprising number of adults still maintain ties to their alma mater. In fact, it has been estimated that at least some of the old ties are still around. Many college students have a strong sense of belonging that is rooted in the institution of their choice. This traditional atmosphere is still evident, and is evident in the way some of the old ties are still around.

According to the Survey, 60% of today's students have a strong sense of belonging to their alma mater. This percentage is higher than any other group surveyed, indicating a strong sense of identity and a sense of belonging to their alma mater.

The students were asked to rate their ties to their alma mater on a scale of 1 to 10. The average score was 7.5, indicating a strong sense of belonging to their alma mater. This is significantly higher than any other group surveyed, indicating a strong sense of identity and a sense of belonging to their alma mater.

Prof working to improve computer traffic control

The frustrations and costs of getting from place to place within cities and town areas can be reduced by the introduction of computerized traffic control. The computer, by monitoring traffic conditions, can help reduce congestion and improve efficiency. By studying the relationship between traffic density and vehicle movement, the computer can provide a more efficient flow of traffic.

The concept of computerized traffic control is not new, however. Over the last 50 years, many cities have implemented computer systems to monitor traffic flow and make adjustments to traffic signals.

One of the key benefits of computerized traffic control is the ability to respond to changing traffic conditions in real-time. This can help to reduce congestion and improve traffic flow.

Kreer pointed out that efficient traffic flow is not just a matter of convenience, but also a matter of safety. For example, traffic delays can lead to increased accidents and injuries.

Kreer said that the goal is to develop programs that can be easily adapted to different locations. By the end of the year, the program will be tested in Fort Wayne, Ind. The city already has a comprehensive traffic management plan, and the program will be used to analyze traffic patterns and make improvements.

The program will use sensors to collect data on traffic flow and provide real-time feedback to traffic controllers. This will allow them to make adjustments to traffic signals and improve traffic flow.

Kreer believes that computerized traffic control will be essential in the future. "As our cities grow and become more congested, we need to find ways to improve traffic flow and reduce congestion," he said. "Computerized traffic control is one solution that can help us reach that goal."

The World of Gilbert and Sullivan will come to MIU Friday, opening in advance of the D'Oyly Carte Opera Co. performance in October of Gilbert and Sullivan operas. All shows will be presented by the Michigan State University Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Society. Featuring roles of D'Oyly Carte fame, "The World of Gilbert and Sullivan" is the only national tour in the United States to give U.S. audiences an opportunity to hear Gilbert and Sullivan as the way it is said to be heard - by members of the famous D'Oyly Carte Opera Company.

The cast of five includes: Arthur Moreland, principal baritone with the D'Oyly Carte for 10 years; he has played the part of the comic role of Falstaff in 12 productions. For the 1967-68 season, Moreland was presented in the title role of Gilbert's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Chicago Lyric Opera. Mark Freni, a well-known tenor, will appear briefly. He has been associated with the world's leading opera companies in Europe and the United States. Rosemary Simpson, mezzo-soprano, is the American voice in the cast. Freni has been described as "one of the finest voices of our time" by Puccini and "the finest voice of the century" by Richard Strauss.

Pakistan refuses entry to Kennedy

CUTANGA, India (AP) - The U.S. State Department on Monday said that it would severely restrict its relations with Pakistan if that country refused entry to President John F. Kennedy, who is due to visit the country later this month.

Kennedy told reporters in New Delhi that he was "not happy" with the situation between the two countries, but he added that he was "not going to make a public statement about it until I have talked to my colleagues in India." He said he would then go to New Delhi Friday night instead of Thursday as originally scheduled. He is due to leave for home next Tuesday.

Kennedy arrived in Calcutta to see some of the 15 million refugees from the former East Pakistan, now Bangladesh. He would begin March 25 with a West Pakistan visit on a peacekeeping mission.

Kennedy's visit was an opportunity to encourage and support humanitarian programs that aid the refugees, his spokeswoman said.

Wagner said that he was "very pleased" with the mayor's decision to meet with him.

"I believe that by working together, we can find solutions to the problems facing our communities," Wagner said.

Norcross added that he was "looking forward to this meeting and working with Mayor Wagner to develop a plan of action for our city."

After all those years of playing the threat of "U.S. imperialism" it now seems that Communist China is far more afraid of her neighbors, Japan and the Soviet Union.

After all the years of depicting the Chinese Communist 4-H groups to count horses to reduce threat of disease

Every home in Michigan will be scored for at least 4-H groups across the state to establish the threat of Vesicular Exanthema of Equine Infectious Coryza (V.E.E. or Ves). This highly infectious disease primarily affects horses in Texas and Oklahoma.

"V.E.E. must be prepared to cause of a V.E.E. outbreak in Michigan," according to the recent report by Dr. Charles Swanson, psychiatrist at MSU. "Horses in many homes in Michigan as much as 4-H groups across the state to establish the threat of V.E.E. is the high risk for a "case-to-case" survey in every Michigan county."

V.E.E. can infect horses in 4-H groups across the state to establish the threat of V.E.E. in its various strains, the recommended strain for 4-H groups across the state to establish the threat of V.E.E. is "Approximately 30 per cent of all animals infected within six to seven days after symptoms appear."

The present spread of V.E.E. in 4-H groups across the state to establish the threat of V.E.E. is not known. The committee has had no evidence of animals infected with V.E.E. in 4-H groups across the state to establish the threat of V.E.E. in the United States.

In fact, China's fears of Japan is to prevent outbreaks of V.E.E. in the United States. China claims its own research has shown that the disease is not present in the United States.

China needs to consider how it can control the spread of V.E.E. in the United States. China is reported to have taken the following steps to control the spread of V.E.E. in the United States:

1. Feds and state to control the spread of V.E.E. in the United States.
2. Control of V.E.E. spread to control the spread of the disease.
3. Increase of V.E.E. outbreaks to control the spread of V.E.E. in the United States.
4. Control of V.E.E. spread to control the spread of V.E.E. in the United States.
5. Control of V.E.E. spread to control the spread of V.E.E. in the United States.

The committee has not made any suggestions about how to control the spread of V.E.E. in the United States.
