Dems equalize delegation

By RANDY GARTON
State News Staff Writer

During an unexpected development, the Michigan delegation to the Democratic National convention will be almost 50 per cent female, Democratic party leaders said Tuesday.

"I bet it will be damn close to 50 per cent," Michigan Democratic State Central Committee Deputy Chairman Robert Bell said. "Anything under 40 per cent and you'll have trouble with the national committee at the national convention."

The recommendation that women make up half the delegation was made by the Committee on the Status of Women, a special group appointed by State Central Committee Chairman James M. McNeely.

McNeely said Wednesday that less than 20 per cent of the 1968 Michigan Democratic delegation to the national convention was women and that underrepresentation of women is still a serious problem.

Under new Democratic convention guidelines, state delegations must insure "appropriate" representation of women, young people and minority groups. Though the new guidelines do not specifically say that the states must meet certain quotas, pressure for proportional representation of these groups is strong.

Since women constitute 53 per cent of the population of the population of the United States, the Status of Women Committee based its recommendations on this proportion.

McNeely said the committee recommendations would be considered at the Feb. 19 meeting of the rules committee. The proposal must also go through the reform committee of the party.

Most party leaders, though, believe that a significant increase in the number of female delegates is certain.

"I can't believe they would exclude women," rules committee Cochairman Nancy Waters said.

Ms. Waters said that numerous challenges to the various state delegations are expected at the national convention. These challenges will be based in large part, she said, upon a delegation's compliance with the new convention guidelines.

Compliance with the guidelines is an important factor in a candidate's image at the convention, she said. For example, if a candidate's delegates are challenged because there are no women, young people or minority representatives, it could hurt his or her chances of winning the nomination.

The presidential candidates, therefore, have the option of rejecting their committed state delegations if this situation occurs.

vandalism of vending machines have resulted in losses of about $6,700 - over $1,000 more than damages during a similar period one year ago.

Ronald Whitsitt, plant manager of Coca Cola, said his company had not kept an account of the amount of money it had lost through vandalism and thefts, though he said losses had been considerable.

Company representatives had not considered removing the machines, Whitsitt said, adding, "We really haven't wrestled with that yet."

Ronald Brown, division general manager of ARA Food Services, agreed, indicating that additional security measures had been taken in cooperation with the Dept. of Public Safety.

These security actions include the use of re-enforced steel locks on many vending machines, according to Capt. Adam J. Zutaut of the Dept. of Public Safety.

The most effective method of theft prevention would be student policing of the machines, Whitsitt said.

"If students recognized this as a service and policed the machines themselves," instances of vandalism and theft might decrease, he said.

Some machines have been removed temporarily from high theft areas or relocated in heavily traveled portions of buildings, Herron said. If the machines are returned to their original locations, "there is usually very little trouble," he explained.

Other precautionary measures have been taken, Herron said, but he refused to discuss specific actions, adding only that "we're doing everything we can."

Nonstudents generally are responsible for vandalism and thefts from the machines, though "students always get blamed," he said.

The vending machines were brought to campus through University contracts with vending companies, Underwood said, adding that "the University would not be eager to take over the operation" if companies should choose to remove their machines.

NIXON REQUESTS TREATY

U.S., Soviets approach nuclear arms race halt

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said Wednesday a U.S. - Soviet accord is developing on the outlines of a historic agreement that would curb the nuclear arms race for the first time.

"I can report that a consensus is developing on certain essential elements which would provide a basis for further movement toward an agreement that accommodates concerns expressed by each side," Nixon said in his State of the World message.

Administration sources said they expect

the first phase of such an agreement to be announced when Nixon visits Moscow in May.

Nixon indicated he wants a treaty placing firm limits on both U.S. and Soviet antimissile defense systems, and an interim agreement freezing certain offensive weapons, such as intercontinental ballistic missiles, while U.S. and Soviet diplomats negotiate further on how far an offensive curb should go.

Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's No. 1 foreign policy assistant, said the President's report should not be construed as abandonment of the U.S. aim to get as comprehensive an agreement as possible.

The presidential adviser gave this reply when asked whether the report indicates the first - step SALT agreement would cover only land based missiles and ABMS with underwater missiles to be dealt with in a subsequent phase.

"Achieving initial agreements to limit both offensive and defensive strategic programs will be a major step in constraining the strategic - arms race without compromising the security of either side," Nixon said.

"On the other hand, if negotiations are protracted while the Soviets continue offensive - missile deployment and development of new systems, the United States has no choice but to proceed with major new strategic programs."

Taking account of the overall U.S. - Soviet strategic - weapons balance, Nixon said, "There will be no disadvantage for the United States in an interim freeze of certain systems."

But the President underscored the urgency of reaching an agreement as he noted what he called "disturbing developments" in which the Russians have been racing ahead with a missile buildup during the more than two years of Strategic Arms Limitation (SALT) Talks.

"We are approaching a crucial turning point in our strategic - arms programs," Nixon said. "Under no circumstances will I permit the further erosion of the strategic balance with the U.S.S.R."

At the end of 1971, Nixon said, the Russians had 1,520 land - based intercontinental ballistic missiles compared with this country's 1,054.

The Russians have 500 submarine - launched missiles, only 156 fewer than the United States and closing fast, he said.

"At this time last year it appeared the Soviets might have slowed and perhaps ceased the deployment of land - based strategic missiles," Nixon said. "It was hoped that this was an indication of self restraint. It was not. Since that time the overall Soviet strategic program has continued to move ahead."

He said that nearly 100 new ICBM silos are being constructed in the Soviet Union, some for "large modern missiles... which, because of their warhead size and potential accuracy, could directly threaten our land-based ICBMs."

These missiles would, when operations, boost the Soviet ICBM total to over 1,600. Nixon also said that Russia now has in operation or under construction more modern missile - firing submarines than this country's 41.

Bill readied on dollar's devaluation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration moved through the final stages Wednesday of readying its dollar devaluation bill for Congress along with a report on key trade negotiations.

The bill seeks permission to raise the official price of gold from its present $35 an ounce to $38 an ounce, representing an 8.57 per cent devaluation against gold. Actually, the depreciation in foreign exchange markets would be 7.89 per cent.

The legislation carries out a pledge by President Nixon to seek a dollar-devaluing increase in the price of gold as part of a deal which led to the international monetary agreement reached last December at the Smithsonian Institution.

The Treasury Dept. held up sending the measure to Congress when it convened Jan. 18 because the administration had been unable to wrap up the trade concessions with the European Common Market, Japan and Canada.

The request to raise the price of gold has always hinged on assurances from the nation's major trading partners that some trade barriers to American exports would be lifted, Treasury officials said.

The new set of exchange rates hammered out at the Smithsonian meeting actually carries a de facto devaluation of the dollar, anyway, and sending the bill to Congress represents a formality in putting the finishing touches on that agreement.

As the Treasury worked on the details of the measure, a high Treasury source disclosed that the United States will not stand for foreign businesses deliberately lowering the price of their products shipped to the United States to offset the impact of the new currency agreement.

The high Treasury source said United States will charge foreign businesses with violations of U.S. dumping laws if they try to lower prices artificially to offset the currency agreement.

SPITE VANDALISM

Vendors to remain in campus buildings

Days of hunger which attack students' meals and between classes often satisfied by food or drink obtained from one of the 1,000 vending machines campus.

Despite past predictions that the machines might be removed as a response to vandalism, University officials and company representatives now indicate such action is unlikely.

"We do not anticipate taking these machines out, but if it comes to the point where they're not profitable, it's always a possibility," Robert F. Herron, manager of stores, said.

Companies operating the vending machines have not suggested that they be removed, Robert C. Underwood, manager of residence halls, said, but he did say that "the companies aren't in a hurry to supply some local thief with his food."

bt ceiling hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Tuesday approved a $20 - billion, month raise in the national debt ceiling, sharply trimmed from President Nixon's request.

By a vote of 248 - 147 was accompanied by warnings that the administration will have trouble getting the national borrowing authority it will need unless Nixon proposes due-raising tax reforms in the time.

The bill now goes to the Senate, which is expected to act before the mounting pieces of the present $430 billion ceiling in early March.

It was allowed to happen, Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur D. D. Ark., told the House, the amount would be unable to pay its debt and refinance debts coming due.

Some students found violating housing rule

By LINDA WERFELMAN
State News Staff Writer

An undetermined number of students are living off campus in violation of the student housing policy and will be required to return to residence halls or University-supervised housing.

Letters were sent last week by the Dean of Students Office last week to about 275 students, suggesting that they might be in violation of the policy and requesting that they clarify their status with the Dean of Students Office within one week.

"About 200 students have responded in one way or another," Edwin K. Reuling, area director of off-campus housing, said Wednesday. Nearly 165 of the cases have been resolved, and "well over 90 per cent" of the students involved have demonstrated that they are not in violation of the policy, he added.

The remaining 10 per cent who are violating the policy have failed to meet the condition of enrollment which specifies residences which are acceptable for freshmen and sophomore students, Reuling said.

The revised student housing policy, which became effective fall term, requires freshmen to live in residence halls unless they are "married students, students who will be 20 years of age by the last official day of registration fall term of the current academic year, veterans with one or more years of active service, students living with parents or legal guardian or students taking six or less credits during the term in question."

Similar exceptions apply to sophomores, who are required to live in residence halls or in University-supervised housing.

Icebox repairs rare in Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Once a Soviet citizen gets his own refrigerator he's in real trouble if it breaks down, Pravda reported recently.

The paper said its investigation showed approximately 11,000 refrigerator owners in the Ukraine on waiting lists for repairs. It added that the situation in the Ukraine is not rare.

The Communist party organ looked into the repair problem after it receives several letters of complaint.

"I called in a mechanic and he established the source of the failure and never appeared again," wrote one irate refrigerator owner.

One letter writer said he sent his guarantee documents to the plant three times in an effort to get its refrigerator fixed and each time the documents were returned to him.

Area workshops are supposed to fix refrigerators under the guarantee, but they have no spare parts. A shortage of repair parts plagues many branches of the Soviet consumer industry.

Pravda investigators said the ministry in charge of guaranteed repairs in the Ukraine reported an "extremely unsatisfactory supply of spare parts" and cited the thousands of families waiting for repairs.

A repair service for one popular brand of refrigerators showed Pravda its recent orders for spare parts, such as in October when it ordered 140 sets of spare parts and received 20, some damaged.

Pravda went to the plant and ran into the familiar buck - passing routine that emerges when authorities try to get to the root of failures in the Soviet Union.

The plant said repair shops were supplying false figures about the number of spare parts needed and not sending damaged parts back to the plant as required in the contract. Repair shops said the reason they weren't sending the damaged parts back was because the railways wouldn't accept the shipments.

The railways said the repair shops don't pack the shipments properly. It seems needed containers are not available, so Pravda suggested the industry look into providing proper containers.

Scientist revives organisms

A Russian scientist has revived microscopic organisms that had lain dormant for 250 million years in a piece of potassium ore, a Soviet magazine reported Wednesday in Moscow.

The experiment was disclosed in this month's issue of the English-language monthly, Soviet Union. Excerpts from the article were distributed by the news agency Tass.

Tass said the experiment, conducted by Geochemist N. Chudinov, proves "the ability of organisms to remain in a state of anobiosis, or deep lethargy, and, under certain conditions to return to active life."

Pay hike need OK

The Pay Board said Wednesday in Washington it will require advance clearance of all presently scheduled future pay raises that exceed 7 per cent a year for units of more than 1,000 employees.

However, the board stopped short of trimming back automatically all deferred raises over 7 per cent, as had been urged publicly by some business members of the board.

Once fully effective, the new regulation will require that all pay raises of over 7 per cent a year for units of more than 1,000 employees by reported to the board 60 days in advance, along with reasons why they should not be trimmed back.

Interest boost seen

The chairman of the Federal Reserve Board Wednesday in Washington pledged that economic recovery will not be allowed to falter for want of money or credit. And he said short-term interest rates probably will rise, perhaps while long-term rates are falling.

Arthur Burns told the congressional Joint Economic Committee the Nixon administration's projected deficit of close to $40 billion for fiscal 1972 "gives me some pause," and added:

"To maintain the public confidence that is so vital to the achievement of faster economic expansion, I consider it crucial to make tangible progress toward a more balanced fiscal position in the 1973 budget and beyond."

Seale appeals conviction

A lawyer for Black Panther leader Bobby G. Seale declared Wednesday in Chicago at an appeals hearing that Judge Julius J. Hoffman was responsible for Seale's stormy conduct during the Chicago conspiracy trial.

Seale and the other defendants are appealing convictions stemming from the time of the 1968 Democratic National Convention. The two-day hearing began Tuesday.

Navy decision criticised

A decision by the secretary of the Navy not to allow two girls to attend the U.S. Naval Academy was greeted Wednesday by a chorus of complaint from advocates of increased rights for women.

"President Nixon as commander-in-chief can open up military academies to women with his magic wand," said Roxey Bolton of Florida, a former vice president of the National Organization for Women - NOW.

Navy Secretary John H. Chafee announced Tuesday that two girls nominated to Annapolis would not be admitted because federal law prohibits women from combat sea duty and the Navy needs graduates of its service academy for the fleet.

Strike legislation denounced

House Democratic leaders denounced the House Rules Committee Wednesday in Washington for exercising its extraordinary power to bring antidock strike legislation to the House floor.

"I'll think a long time," Majority Leader Hale Boggs, D-La., declared angrily, "before I vote to bypass any legislative committee."

Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., said the procedures adopted by the Rules Committee to make possible a House vote on the Senate-passed bill to end the West Coast dock strike were "over my objections and against my desires."

Judiciary tables request for hearing in Piton case

By KRISTEN KELCH
State News Staff Writer

A request filed for a hearing with the Student-Faculty Judiciary Jan. 17, charging Frank H. Blackington, director of the Honors College with censorship, was tabled Monday night.

The request was tabled until a conference committee, consisting of representatives from the University Student Advisory Committee and ASMSU, meet to clarify Article 6 of the Academic Freedom Report.

Section 6.3.2 of the report states that full freedom of content and editorial policy is guaranteed to all publications sponsored by the University. However, Section 6.3.4 states that "responsibility for all content, finance, distribution and staffing shall lie with the sponsoring agency, group or organization."

The request was filed last month by Dennis Pace, Detroit senior, editor of the Piton; David Kirkpatrick, East Lansing senior, design editor; Kirby Milton, Pittsford N.Y. senior, photographer; and Clayton Hardiman, Grand Rapids sophomore and author of one of the stories.

The request states that while Blackington did not put any restrictions on the content or wording during the eight months the magazine was being compiled, he could not authorize the content as an Honors College publication.

Charles Massoglia, counselor for the staff, said, "Blackington locked the 3,500 copies of the cover and the title page in his basement at home Christmas eve."

Blackington claimed that the "unusable portion" of the Piton was locked up in his basement because "it was felt that Eustace Hall did not have adequate security."

The request stated that in a letter dated Dec. 29, Blackington told Pace "The publication and distribution of these materials under sponsorship of the Honors College would not be in the best interest of the University or the Honors College."

As designated in the Academic Freedom Report, Blackington was informed of the request by the judiciary and was given 10 days to make a response. Following the clarification of Article 6, by the conference committee, the judiciary will take action after reviewing the request and response. It may decide to accept the request, accept only part of it, or reject the request entirely. If the request is rejected, there will be no hearing.

Ruth Renaud, director of judicial programs, said Tuesday that the conference committee hopes to meet sometime this week.

Union leaders halt legislative meeting

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Conservative leaders of AFL-CIO construction unions are cancelling their big annual legislative conference this year - reportedly to avoid giving a national political platform to liberal Democratic presidential candidates they frown on.

The only official reason given by the executive council of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Dept., representing more than three million workers in 17 unions, was that the cancellation was part of a "reorganization" of department affairs.

But informed sources said the construction union leaders meeting here didn't want to be in the position of having to invite as speakers such Democratic presidential candidates as Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota or black New York congresswoman Shirley Chisholm.

The four-day national legislative conference, usually held in Washington in March, has in the past drawn as speakers presidents, cabinet members, House and Senate leaders and other major political figures.

Pay limit petition stalls

By RAY ANDERSON
State News Staff Writer

A one-woman attempt to limit Michigan's legislator's salaries by amending the state constitution is doomed unless she can obtain 300,000 more petition signatures to place the issue on November's ballot.

Ms. James Lee Beckett of Grand Rapids said she has only 23,000 signatures, and needs greater public support if her amendment is to pass.

The mother of five began her campaign last summer after Michigan lawmakers voted themselves a 13 per cent pay increase. Their $17,000 base rate makes them among the most well-paid legislators in the nation.

Ms. Beckett's proposed constitutional amendment would establish the base pay at $15,000 but allow the constitutionally formed State Officer's Compensation Commission to recommend higher salary levels and expenses. Any proposed increases would ultimately go to the voters for final approval, the petition recommends.

"I would really like grass roots support to prove that people can rise up and say they've had enough," Ms. Beckett said.

Her objections go beyond the flat salary and include fringe benefits which some sources estimate would put the lawmakers beyond $26,000 in yearly salary and benefits. Each legislator is permitted a $2,750 expense account, which is to cover their living expenses while attending sessions. They are also provided with a fully-paid life insurance program, family health insurance, free prescription program, retirement benefits and an additional expense account for performing legislative duties.

In the House, representatives must obtain the speaker's approval for any expense incurred in the pursuit of legislative business, such as hearings. The speaker is responsible for approving representatives' mail bill, though one secretary implied that privileges are unlimited and require little more than a stamp approval.

Ms. Beckett's plan would affect fringe benefits due to a ruling recently made by attorney general at the request of the State Officer's Compensation Commission.

The ruling stated that the commission is only responsible for salaries and expense accounts. It permits legislators to determine their own benefits in what Rep. Brown, R-Okemos, described as "a blank check to feed the public trough."

D-Day for Disruption fizzles in Ulster

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — D-Day for Disruption, the bid of Roman Catholic civil rights leaders to paralyze this province with 24 hours of civic chaos, collapsed in confusion and indifference.

Thousands of Roman Catholics ignored appeals to participate. The Catholic-based Civil Rights Assn. had called for massive protests against the government's policy of internment, aimed at neutralizing the Irish Republican Army.

While shops, factories and schools the association had hoped would be closed were open as usual, roaming bands of youths clashed with police in several mainly Catholic towns, including Derry and Coalisland.

West Belfast, British troops returned fire at a guerrilla who opened up when they were removing a street car, army headquarters said. The troops saw their assailant as a 14-year-old boy was admitted to the main city hospital with bullet wounds.

Representatives of Northern Ireland's Protestant majority met in Belfast to launch their own rallies on a basis of "no surrender" to IRA.

The Civil Rights Assn. intended that its D-Day would bring the province, where 240 people have died in 2½ years of sectarian violence, to a near halt, jamming telephone lines and blocking roads as well as shutting factories.

But in Belfast, there was virtually no disruption apart from the strikebound deepsea docks. The only outward evidence of protest was a march through the city center by 500 school children chanting, "Free the internees!"

In Londonderry, where a majority of the population is Catholic, some shops and factories closed but not enough to cause disruption. A civil rights meeting in the strongly Republican Creggan Estate was canceled when no one turned up.

The association's Michael Havard said the day had turned into "a disaster of confusion."

The focal point of Londonderry's protest was a 24-hour hunger strike at Free Derry Corner in the Bogside Catholic enclave by six opposition legislators of the pro-Catholic Social Democratic party.

Thousands signed an anti-internment petition.

Newry, near the North's border with the republic and scene of a huge civil rights protest march Sunday, was the main center of violence.

Nixon cites peace successes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon told the nation Wednesday he scored "breakthroughs toward peace in a changing world" by arranging his Peking and Moscow summits and by rebuilding allied alliances.

The chief executive also injected himself into the swirling debate over alternatives to his Vietnam policy by cautioning presidential candidates in a nationwide radio broadcast to avoid statements which "might give the enemy an incentive to prolong the war until after the election."

He indicated in his 94,000-word foreign policy report to Congress that agreement with the Soviet Union is near on a pact to curb the superpower nuclear missile race.

But in the report Nixon said progress in search for "a stable structure of world peace" was tempered by several sharp disappointments and the India-Pakistan War.

He solicited election-year public support for his policies, telling his radio audience that "this breakthrough year has shown... we can make peace a reality in the generation ahead."

The double-barreled assessment of world affairs came less than two weeks before Nixon is to arrive in China on a "journey for peace" which he said "might help avert a disastrous catastrophe later."

"We do not expect instant solutions to deep-seated differences, but the visit is a beginning," he said of his Feb. 21 though 28 talks with Chinese leaders.

The State of the World reports came three months before his visit to Moscow. "I will go to that meeting in May," he said in the speech broadcast from his Oval Office, "with no naive illusions but with some reasonable expectations."

The Third Annual Foreign Policy Report to Congress stressed he is seeking a solution in Vietnam, but made no mention of his Vietnam critics. He did, however, confront them in his radio address.

Nixon said he was not complaining about the vigorous criticism and does not "question the patriotism or the sincerity of those who disagree with my policies to bring peace."

But he said "only the President can negotiate an end to the war." And in a statement which appeared aimed at Democratic presidential candidates Edmund S. Muskie and George McGovern.

Nixon added: "A candidate should make any criticism he believes would contribute to bringing an honorable peace. But I would hope that anyone seeking the presidency would examine his statements carefully to be sure that nothing he said might give the enemy an incentive to prolong the war until after the election."

Nixon began his radio address by citing a series of "breakthroughs toward peace" which he said resulted from his reshaped foreign policies. "These are great changes," he said. "They have brought the world closer to a stable peace. They did not happen by accident."

He made the same claim in his report to Congress, saying "We know where we are going. We are moving with history, and moving history ourselves."

RACIAL SLURS' CRITICIZED

Harty's formal apology urged

By BECKIE HANES
State News Staff Writer

ASMSU chairman Harold Buckner has demanded that vice president Kevin Harty formally apologize to the student body for comments made regarding "niggers."

The statement was made by a board meeting last night after a vote to bring a breakfast program.

Believe black students should receive an appropriate sum to execute their programs. I don't believe in giving niggers, black or white, a cent," Harty said at the meeting.

Harty said the statement was made when a board member accused him of not voting for a breakfast program because it would involve allotting money to "niggers."

Near the end of ASMSU's Monday night meeting, the Office of Black Affairs (OBA)

made a motion to add a section to their department with $2,500 to support a breakfast program for Lansing community children.

The motion failed with Harty voting against it.

Buckner's letter to Harty said, "I was especially upset that as a member of the student governing body, that you would regress to the use of antiquated racial slurs, even for examples."

"As chairman and a fellow board member, I strongly suggest that an apology is in order, both to the entire academic community in general and to the black student members in particular."

"I would urge the apology again, not for the expression of your personal beliefs, to which you are entitled, but for the excessively inflammatory manner in which they were presented by a person in your position," the letter concludes.

Buckner said Wednesday an apology in the State News would be appropriate action for Harty to take. Harty did submit a statement to the State News Wednesday.

"There are other ways Kevin could get his point across,"

Buckner said Wednesday. ASMSU office received a number of telephone calls Wednesday, Buckner said. The callers were "very distressed" over Harty's statement, he said.

Harty emphasized Wednesday that the statement was not distorted by the State News. He said he would not retract the statement but regretted that reaction was so unfavorable.

"I was only trying to say that I don't believe in the term 'niggers,'" Harty said. "The statement was not made to defame or be derogatory," he added.

Harty said he would make no formal apology to ASMSU board members.

The motion failed with Harty voting against it.

Buckner's letter to Harty said, "I was especially upset that as a member of the student governing body, that you would regress to the use of antiquated racial slurs, even for examples."

"As chairman and a fellow board member, I strongly suggest that an apology is in order, both to the entire academic community in general and to the black student members in particular."

"I would urge the apology again, not for the expression of your personal beliefs, to which you are entitled, but for the excessively inflammatory manner in which they were presented by a person in your position," the letter concludes.

Buckner said Wednesday an apology in the State News would be appropriate action for Harty to take. Harty did submit a statement to the State News Wednesday.

"There are other ways Kevin could get his point across,"

Buckner said Wednesday. ASMSU office received a number of telephone calls Wednesday, Buckner said. The callers were "very distressed" over Harty's statement, he said.

Harty emphasized Wednesday that the statement was not distorted by the State News. He said he would not retract the statement but regretted that reaction was so unfavorable.

"I was only trying to say that I don't believe in the term 'niggers,'" Harty said. "The statement was not made to defame or be derogatory," he added.

Harty said he would make no formal apology to ASMSU board members.

ASMSU chairman Harold Buckner has demanded that vice president Kevin Harty formally apologize to the student body for comments made regarding "niggers."

The statement was made by a board meeting last night after a vote to bring a breakfast program.

Believe black students should receive an appropriate sum to execute their programs. I don't believe in giving niggers, black or white, a cent," Harty said at the meeting.

Harty said the statement was made when a board member accused him of not voting for a breakfast program because it would involve allotting money to "niggers."

Near the end of ASMSU's Monday night meeting, the Office of Black Affairs (OBA)

made a motion to add a section to their department with $2,500 to support a breakfast program for Lansing community children.

The motion failed with Harty voting against it.

ASMSU accused by OBA of cutting off vital project

By BECKIE HANES
State News Staff Writer

The Office of Black Affairs has accused ASMSU of cutting off one of their most important projects by failing to fund a breakfast program at ASMSU's Monday meeting.

ASMSU Chairman, Harold Buckner, said Wednesday that OBA can bring a similar motion up again at another board meeting. If it were brought up, the motion would go to agenda committee. After being brought out of agenda committee at a later date, it would require two-thirds vote from the entire board to pass.

The major reason the motion was defeated was because the board did not feel the breakfast program was directly connected with MSU students, Buckner said.

ASMSU has insured the hunger which may stagnate young minds from achieving academic success while delivering a blow to general educational institutions in the area and MSU, the letter concludes.

A spokesman for OBA said the motion may be brought up at the next ASMSU meeting depending on the order of business.

Agriculture Dept. certifies Lums' steins

By BOB NOVOSAD
State News Staff Writer

Inspectors from the Michigan Dept. of Agriculture have certified that Lums of East Lansing is correctly advertising the weight of their beer steins and to insure that the glasses and pitchers used at Lums were capable of holding the amount of beer as advertised on the menu. The experiment, involving 10 - ounce steins, 16 - ounce schooners, and a half - gallon pitcher, showed that the measures of beer were correctly represented on the menu. However, the inspectors did not determine if that amount of beer was actually being sold to a customer.

Edward Heffron, asst. chief of the Food Inspection Division, said that his department received a consumer complaint alleging that Lums' menu falsely represented the amount of beer that was actually served to a customer. The complaint was proven false by the inspection. If a complaint were proven true, an establishment could be fined a maximum of $100 and 90 days in jail or both. The Weights and Measures Act has made such an offense a misdemeanor. Under the law, the word "measure" can be used to refer to the size of the glass. Ed Rouillard, the manager of Lums, said that the head of beer on a draft or pitcher of beer often will account for the few ounces of beer that seem to be missing. He said he advises his employees to pour one and one-half inch heads on all pitchers. Rouillard said that the menu which advertises a half - gallon pitcher does not specify that the customer will be sold that amount. He said the pitcher will contain about 55 ounces of beer, and the one and a half inch head accounts for the other nine ounces as measured in a half - gallon. He emphasized that if the pitcher were filled right to the top without a head, it would in fact hold 64 ounces.

Clyde Cottom, supervisor of the Weights and Measures Division of the Dept. of Agriculture, said that "it is a normal practice to serve a draft beer with a head." He pointed out that foam is a quality factor, and a beer would be flat without it.

"As long as a business serves a reasonable size head along with the prescribed measure on the menu, it is a legal size drink," Cottom said.

A story in the State News on Jan. 26, reported that Lums crossed out the words "12 ounces" on all of their menus which had previously described the amount of draft beer in a stein. Lums apparently crossed out the specification because an experiment with a measuring cup performed by a reporter showed that the steins contained only eight ounces of beer. Lums has ordered new menus without measurement descriptions. Rouillard said the main reason for this action is that there would be fewer questions for employees to answer.

AUSJ takes no action on panel election appeal

No action has been taken on the recently filed appeal on the Lyman Briggs College Student Advisory Committee elections, Kenneth Marvin, asst. director of judicial programs, said Wednesday. The All University Student Judiciary (AUSJ) met Tuesday night but were not able to conduct any business due to the lack of a quorum.

The appeal was formally filed Jan. 24 with AUSJ, by Ira Robin, Northbrook, Ill. junior, and is meant to test the legality of several Lyman Briggs College election procedures fall term.

A PROGRAM TO UPGRADE EMERGENCY MEDICAL services in Michigan is now underway, the governor's office said Wednesday.

Under the program, 71 ambulances have been or will be provided to 37 emergency centers around the state. A special communications system has also been developed and special emergency technician training centers have been established at Detroit, Ann Arbor, Lansing, Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids, Escanaba and Harrison.

Though the program will include urban areas, the focus of the program will be on outstate rural centers the governor's office said.

Harrison said, "rather than the needs of the individual awaiting justice."

A commission spokesman said that complete implementation of the proposal should be accomplished in five years. Quick legislative action is necessary, he said.

County will give loans to veterans

Veterans residing in Ingham County will be eligible for a four-month interest-free loan for the remainder of the year, according to a resolution passed Tuesday by the Ingham County

The resolution, which was passed unanimously, will allow veterans to receive a loan of up to $200 for a period of four months, with a provision for extension for another two months. The monies will be available through the county Commissioner David Buhl, R-16th District said the intent of the resolution was to set up a revolving fund to give veterans some relief in handling their debts. He explained that the monies would be especially useful for those who have transferred to the veterans Loan Fund for this purpose for only six months, the commission voted to extend the duration of the fund until the end of the year on an amendment offered by commissioner Gordon L.

"Before I have generally voted against all veterans issues because this country has consistently refused to face reality with respect to the war in Vietnam," she said.

- Starting a leadership program in the community to establish youth groups, aimed particularly at older young people. He said that leaders will probably be paid about $10 per week in getting the program started.

"We should take a cold, look at how we use this money and how we use it in the future," he said. "We're opening the door to this type of action for the future."

Buhl pointed out, however, that the program was administered through the Cooperative Extension Office and not a private agency.

David Hollister, District 1, also countered the assumption this is a new cross — one that I have been pursuing and trying for the last 10 years."

Hollister said the program was needed to establish the county's credibility in the eyes of minority groups. He charged that most programs have been designed to meet the needs of white, Anglo-Saxon middle-class young people in the past. He pointed out that this program would be only part of a $3 million grant which only amounts to 35 cents per person in the county.

"We have got to make committment," he said. "don't it will be a slap in the of the minority community

AN AVCO EMBASSY RELEASE

No Viet talks seen: Chou

PARIS (AP) — Two French members of parliament who recently visited Red China said Wednesday Premier Chou En-lai told them Vietnam would not be on the agenda for President Nixon's visit.

In separate interviews, Jean de Broglie, Gaullist president of the Foreign Affairs Commission of the National Assembly, and Deputy Didier Julia said Chou told them:

China would not talk "over the heads of smaller nations," and that "this is an affair between the Vietnamese and the American which does not concern us. We will not intervene."

Broglie said Chou also told his parliamentary mission that China would refuse to take part in an international agreement guaranteeing the postwar frontiers of Vietnam.

Broglie quoted Chou as saying such international agreements were "a sort of trap and that, in consequence, China could not be counted upon to participate in this sort of guarantee."

Interviewed on French national radio, De Broglie said Chou "told us very precisely that if, by chance, China was asked to take part in a sort of collective international guarantee for the frontiers of Vietnam, China would refuse."

He also echoed Julia in saying Chou indicated that the Vietnam question was "not on his agenda" for the Nixon's visit, adding that China would not talk "over the heads" of smaller nations.

Chou cited the 1954 Geneva agreement in Indochina as having "misled everyone" and having been rendered useless within a year by the United States — not a signatory — creating a new situation in Indochina.

"No one protested at the time and in consequence, an international guarantee which already existed showed itself to be completely useless," he quoted Chou as saying.

"It was a precise statement indicating to us the extremely prudent conduct of a nation desirous in all circumstances of not appearing as a superpower, and which wants to practice the doctrine of the national independence of all nations, great and small," De Broglie declared.

Julia said a Chinese official told the group that Marshal Lin Biao has been "eliminated politically" and that former President Liu Chao-chi is working in a commune in northern China.

Drive planned by Red Cross for blood bank

The Farm House fraternity, in conjunction with the Lansing Regional Red Cross Blood Program will have their annual volunteer blood drive next week in the lower lounge of Shaw Hall. Those wishing to participate may do so between 2 and 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Friday.

A spokesman for the drive, Dennis R. Arkens, Menominee senior, said that the blood will be used mainly for hemophiliacs. Last year, the drive received about 730 pints of blood. This year, the goal is 1,000 pints. Arkens said that anyone between the ages of 18 and 65 may donate blood. The process takes about 45 minutes.

Julia reported Wou Fan-wou, head of the European department in the Chinese Foreign Ministry asked that had become of the two former leaders. He reported the following conversation.

"Has Lin Biao disappeared?" Wou: "First he was eliminated." "Where is he? They speak of a plane being shot down. Was he shot by a firing squad?"

Wou: "No, it was a political elimination. Never in China do we mix political errors with persons."

"And Liu Chao-chi?" Wou: "he is in the north, in a people's commune, where he is returning to true doctrine leading from experience."

The mission had a 2½-hour talk with Premier Chou.

Chou also was said to be concerned about a proposed European security conference grouping the Soviet bloc and Western powers.

He said: "Either the Russians will come out on top and will be the guarantors of your independence, or there will be an East-West detente and Soviet troops will move to the northern frontier of China."

Aging in America

Haak, professor emeritus of Social Science, spoke to a group of about 25 at the Union last night as part of a series of seminars on "Aging in America." Haak is chairman of the Lansing Human Relations Committee on Retirement Roles and Activities.

Students found violating rule

(from page one) violations involve students who claim they must live in off-campus housing for health or financial reasons and who probably could have received exceptions to the housing policy had they requested them before moving to unsupervised housing, Reuling said.

Students who have signed leases with owners of their present living units will be required to break them, he said, adding that "some managers and owners recognize the rules and cooperate more than we could expect them to; others are just the opposite."

Students have said that their landlords require them to pay rent unless they can sublease their apartments or houses, but "whether in fact that happens, I don't know; I guess it does," Reuling said.

Reuling indicated that students who fail to explain their alleged violations or who continue to disregard University policy may receive hold cards to prevent them from completing registration for spring term.

About 75 students who received letters last week had failed to respond to similar letters sent fall term.

The students were told to move to approved housing by the end of fall term, but no other action was taken against them because of the shortage of living space in residence halls and approved living units, Reuling said. He added that there is room for those students now. Students may appeal applications of the policy to the Student-Faculty Judiciary or within the Dean of Student's Office, but no such appeals have been made in the past, Reuling said.

Language exams scheduled for Monday

Language placement examinations in French, Spanish, and Latin will be offered at 7 p.m. Monday in 207 Services Bldg.

The tests at this time, students should call the testing office at 35-8270 ext. 58) before Monday. The tests will be also during spring term registration.

Students have at least one year of foreign language study in high school and plan to study that same language at MSU must take placement test before enrolling in the language course.

"Perhaps the most beautiful movie in history" — THE NEW YORKER

"Exquisite is the only first word that surges in my mind as an appropriate description of this exceptional film. Its color is absolutely gorgeous. The use of music and, equally eloquent, of silences and sounds is beyond verbal description. The performances are perfect, that is the only word."

— Bosley Crowther, N.Y. Times

Prof bills sexuality class as X-rated Sesame Street

Psychology 290, "Human Sexuality," has been arousing various questions pertaining to the contents and prerequisites for the course, Andrew Barclay, associate professor of psychology, said. The course, designed more like an X-rated Sesame Street program, will be an "interesting, novel kind of use of television," Barclay said, incorporating discussions and TV programming.

The TV class will meet three hours a week and in contrast to the listing in the academic handbook, there will be no extra time arranged by the professor.

Because the programming will include demonstrations of anatomy, physiology and sexual intercourse, the course will be open only to students of sophomore level or higher, insuring that students are at least 18 years of age. Also touched upon will be women's liberation, society and how it affects human sexuality and self-concepts of sexuality.

The course is set up like Sesame Street or Electric Company, television programs, involving ten-minute sections of information during the 50 minute class period. Barclay hopes that the class will present an honest picture of human sexuality. To promote a more relaxed atmosphere, Barclay is attempting to have the course graded on the credit - no credit system. If the course is successful in the spring, the idea may be continued fall term.

A COED was assaulted at 8:40 p.m. Tuesday near the south side of the Auditorium when a man allegedly struck her in the head with a club-like weapon and knocked her to the ground. The coed described the man to police as black, six foot three, about 20, with a slim build.

TWO MICROPHONES WERE stolen from second floor rooms in the Student Services Building sometime between 5 p.m. last Friday and 8 a.m. Tuesday. Police estimated their value at $101.73 and said neither room showed signs of forced entry.

TWO FIRE EXTINGUISHERS with an estimated value of $35.38 were reported stolen about 1:08 p.m. Monday from the Auditorium. Police said they have no suspects.

A COED FROM Mason Hall told police she saw a man windowpeaking about 11:15 p.m. Tuesday on the north side of Abbott Hall. Police searched the area but were unable to locate the man.

A TOOL CASE with a complete set of tools and a circuit tester were reported stolen from a room in the Life Science Building. Police estimated the loss at $390 and said the theft occurred Jan. 20.

$70 IN CURRECNY was stolen from a coed's purse between 9:30 and 10 p.m. Monday from a room in Snyder Hall. Police said the purse was in a desk in an unlocked room at the time of the theft.

Ciolek sees wrestling in a philosophical light

A few days ago I happened to be talking with several wrestlers in the training room at the Men's IM and proceeded to have an interesting discussion with Big Ten wrestling Champion Dave Ciolek.

I've always characterized Dave as an easy-going, likeable chap, but after talking with him, I realized that his personality is more than what would appear. And, after listening to his attitudes on sports and life in general, I was left with the undeniable impression that Dave Ciolek is unique.

Ciolek may be considered a late bloomer. He didn't get into wrestling until his junior year at Lansing Sexton High. At this time most wrestlers have about five years of experience behind them. But Ciolek really didn't fare badly, winning 15 matches against 8 defeats. In his senior year he inconsistencies of our society and the problem presented when people fail to understand each other.

"Dave has an opinion on everything," team mate Tom Milkovich said. "He tries to figure out and analyze everything and sometimes gets himself into trouble when attempting to figure out an opponent."

Ciolek was quick to say that he is still interested in sports, although he's become more diversified in his views. He added that sports enabled him access to college and, had he not gone to college, he may not have realized that sports is only a smaller scope of the world around him.

He now considers sports more of an art than anything else and maintains that athletes are performers providing entertainment for spectators. He said he can have fun wrestling as he realizes that people come for the purpose of being entertained.

Following his brief prep wrestling stint, Ciolek was recruited by such wrestling powers as Oklahoma, Iowa State, Ohio University and all the Michigan schools.

Last season, in his sophomore year, Ciolek blossomed into one of the country's outstanding wrestlers. He won the Big Ten 190-pound title by a string of impressive scores and then captured fourth place laurels in the national championships.

But Ciolek doesn't plan on making a career in sports. He said that sports can be used as a means to some more purposeful end and offered an analogy.

"When you got to buy a new car, you can still use your old car to get there," he said. "Sports can be used as a pivot to reach other goals."

"I'd like to emphasize that sports can be the link between freaks and conservatives," he said. "I feel that being a jock, I can draw the two worlds closer, of course I believe anybody can do that, but sports figures get publicity and have influence."

Dave lists his personal goals as winning the Big Ten title, the NCAA championship and then competing in the Olympics. By achieving these goals Ciolek said he hopes to show people there is more than idol worship connected to sports.

"People should be receptive to other people's needs as well as to their own," he said. "By competing in the Olympics I hope to gain influence and get involved in some position to change the attitudes of people in our society."

That sounds like a big order to fill, but Dave's philosophic nature lends itself to idealism and his sincere concern for society's ills has to be stated by him. Maybe that's why he aspires to be a communications major.

While MSU wrestling Coach Grady Peninger indicated that Ciolek's idealistic attitudes may, at times, hamper his performance, he was quick to add he didn't believe there was a wrestler in the U.S. who could beat Ciolek when Dave wanted to win.

"He underestimates himself when he doesn't know how good he is," Peninger said.

State News Sports Writer

MSU's swimming team will be enjoying the home pool advantage for its final three dual meets of the season and if the Spartan tankers hope to finish the dual meet season on a winning note, they will first have to defeat Ohio State's Buckeyes Saturday afternoon in a 2 p.m. meet in the Men's IM pool.

All indications point to an extremely close meet between the Spartans and Bucks, though MSU swimming coach Dick Fetters believes that his squad may be a slight underdog.

Ohio State comes into East Lansing with an overall dual meet record of 6-1, which includes two victories and a loss in Big Ten competition.

Indiana defeated the Buckeyes 85-38 earlier this season, the same score by which the Hoosiers beat the Spartans last weekend.

However, OSU defeated Wisconsin 73-50, while the Spartans were beaten quite handily by the Badgers. The other Buckeye conference triumph came over Purdue.

Ohio State's strong diving team will present quite a test for the Spartan divers. Seniors Tom Smith and Steve Skilken and freshman Tim Moore are the three top OSU divers who will challenge Coach John Narcy's crew.

Senior Reed Slevin of Pittsburgh is the most versatile of the Buckeye swimmers. Slevin's best event is the 100-freestyle and his top Spartan opposition there will be freshman Bill Hall, who took second in the Indiana meet.

Spartan Ken Winfield will face Slevin in the 50-freestyle, while Alan Dilley and Paul Fetters in the 200-backstroke and Dilley and Jeff Lanini in the 200-individual medley will make Slevin's other events tough.

Jim Beahren helps OSU out in the freestyle sprints, and the Buckeyes are weak in the distance freestyles.

Buckeye senior George Schmidt swims the IM, and will have to face MSU's Winfield in the 200-butterfly, where the Spartan junior has lowered his time now to 1:55.60, which he swam at Indiana last weekend. Winfield also holds the best Spartan time this season in the 50-freestyle.

Slevin leads the Buckeye undermanned backstroke and Big Ten breaststroke. Lanini faces Ohio's Grunau.

The MSU-OSU meet will come in the Big Ten meet between the Spartans and Buckeyes, two of the four teams to be conference honors favorites Indiana and MSU March 2, 3, and 4 at MSU.

'S' tankers return home

Spartan Relays may fill Jenison

By GARY KORRECK
State News Sports Writer

The Michigan State Relays promises competition in more areas than one Saturday.

With quality performers in every event, including many Olympic hopefuls, the prospects of obtaining a good seat from which to view the action poses a challenge.

According to MSU track coaches Fran Dittich and Jim Gibbard, the crowd for last Saturday's dual meet with Northwestern was "at least as large, if not larger than the one in Ann Arbor for the Michigan Relays."

"We'd like to get a good crowd for this thing Saturday," commented Gibbard. "We've got a super team and this meet will show everyone, including ourselves, just what we can do."

The meet is scheduled to last a full day, and for two bucks and an ID, a student, staff or faculty member can see the entire program, or view single sessions, one beginning at 12:30 and another starting at 7:30, for a dollar each.

The first event, the long jump prelims, begins at 12:30 p.m., followed by the finals and the triple jump prelims and finals.

Included in the afternoon session are preliminary and semi-final competition in the 60-yard dash and the 300, 600 and 100-yard runs.

The 7:30 evening session begins with the two-mile and closes with the university mile relay at 9:50.

Altogether, it amounts to about nine hours of stiff competition or, in economic terms, roughly 21 cents an hour; not a bad price for a combination NCAA and Olympic preview.

For the general public, or MSU people who forget their ID's, the price will be $2 for the night show, three bucks in all.

While tickets will be sold at the door, the best chance of getting a good seat would be to get them today or Friday at the Jenison ticket office.

Order a Frostline kit
We'll throw in a free lift ticket.

The money you save on Frostline's easy-to-assemble outdoor equipment kits can mean a couple extra lift tickets at your favorite ski area this winter, whether it's Killington, or Lubbock.

Like the Parasol Jacket ($28.50). Nylon and goose down make it one of the lightest, warmest coats on the slopes. And the matching Warm-up Pants ($21.50). A full-length two-way zipper lets you put them on or take them off without removing skis or boots. For days that aren't so cold, either the Down Vest ($11.00) or Down Sweater ($16.00). Nylon and goose down give them a few ounces weight many degrees of warmth.

All Frostline kits are pre-cut and pre-labeled. Assembly is so simple even your roommate could put one together. All you have to add is a home sewing machine. Frostline kits made in America... by everybody.

Order direct or send a postcard for a free color catalogue of everything from pants to nickel-plated grommets to Frostline/Dept. CNI/Boulder, Colorado.
