A winter term MSU graduate and former student leader announced Tuesday that she is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the board of trustees.

Donna O'Donnohue, Harbert graduate in political science, is seeking one of the seats on the board now held by Frank Hartman, D-Flint, and Clair White, D-Bay City, whose terms expire in December.

If nominated and elected, Ms. O'Donnohue, 23, would probably be the youngest person to sit on a college or university governing board in Michigan.

Ms. O'Donnohue said she has sent letters announcing her intention to run to key Democratic leaders around the state. She has also discussed her candidacy with James McNeeley, state Democratic party chairman.

McNeeley previously announced that he would oppose the renomination of White. White has refused to say whether he will seek a second term on the MSU board. Hartman said in January he would run again.

Ms. O'Donnohue said she believes opportunities in higher education should be expanded.

"Higher education no longer belongs to the fortunate few. The opportunities offered by higher education should, and must, be extended to persons of all elthnic, social and economic backgrounds," she said.

Council discusses joint appointments

By S.A. SMITH State News Staff Writer

The Academic Council zipped through a lengthy agenda Tuesday to approve six items of business, engaging in extended discussion only over the proposed policy on joint appointments of nontenured faculty.

The council focused most of its attention on the question of joint appointments during the 90-minute meeting.

The proposal, a simplified substitute to the original joint appointment plan which came to the council in February from the tenure committee, consists of a one-page Multiple Appointment Memorandum currently available.

Wilbur B. Brookover, chairman of the committee, told the council that the policy stems out of some cases the tenure committee has heard in the past few years involving misunderstandings between the two or more departments concerned in a joint appointment of a faculty member.

The proposed memorandum provides for an indication of which unit assumes the responsibility and final decision for annual salary increase, promotion, tenure determination and eligibility for leave. Currently many joint appointment agreements are verbal negotiations or settled in letters.

A statement accompanying a copy of the memorandum was amended by the council so that the recommendation of the tenure committee read: "The Multiple Appointment Memorandum already available be used in all joint appointments from now on."

A provision that at the start of a final probationary appointment the secondary department(s) must agree to abide by the tenure decision made by the primary department was deleted as a result of a motion by Frederic B.

Dutton, dean of Lyman Briggs College. After some debate on the precise form of the memorandum, the council approved a motion to send it back to the tenure committee for revisions. Interested persons were told to contact the committee.

The council also approved two revisions to the Bylaws for Academic Governance which were proposed by John H. Reinoehl, chairman of the Academic Governance Committee.

The first bylaw revision will allow instructors to vote in internal matters and be admitted to the Academic

The second provides that replacements of student members of the standing committees be chosen from the original appointing body rather than the Student Committee on Committees.

Both amendments must be approved by the Academic Senate before becoming an official part of the Bylaws.

Council heard a report from Gordon E. Guyer, chairman of the steering committee, on the Academic Council tape policy.

The council also approved a recommendation for an expanded military Education Advisory Committee with two friendly amendments.

The amendments permit any student (as opposed to an undergraduate student) enrolled in ROTC porgrams to be seated on the committee. The second revision adds to the recommendation a statement of the committee's responsibility in its capacity as advisory to the assistant provost, with responsibility for programs in military education.

another 2,000 acres of land holdings should be taken on the University's current holdings and what the policy should be for future land acquisition.

"There is a question if the University should take property and then hold it if it isn't used. There are two or three spots where we have had complaints from residents. All we can do is post the land against trespassing and then ask the local police or sheriff to enforce the no trespassing law."

Land held by public colleges is not on the tax rolls and the University pays no taxes on its 14,000 acres of land held in 22 parcels.

off the tax rolls when we can't use it for anything," Breslin said.

To date, the ad hoc committee only reviewed the status of land holdings. Breslin said, in the future, it hopes to draft a policy which will specify what type of land the University will accept as gifts. The dollar value of the MSU land holdings, calculated at the date the land was given to MSU, now totals $8.2 million. Bobby J. Ballard, University insurance and investments manager, said the value of the land is considerably higher today because some of the land acquisition values date back to 1855. The Saginaw land mentioned by Breslin is a 135 - acre tract which the ad hoc committee recommended that the University investigate for any possible uses and then consider selling. Not all of the land held by MSU can be sold, Breslin said, because many deeds have reverter clauses that stipulate that the land return to the original owner if MSU should decide to dispose of it.

Among the three parcels of land which the committee recommended that MSU either sell or exchange is a 5,759 - acre piece called the Dunbar Approximately 129 prisoners convicted of possession of marijuana under the old state statute may be freed by a Michigan Supreme Court decision within the next few days.

Panel's role clarified

By ANITA PYZIK State News Staff Writer

President Wharton clarified the role of the women's advisory committee in his first meeting with the group Tuesday in the International Center.

He urged the group to concentrate on coming up with guidelines and recommendations on broad issues concerning women at MSU instead of becoming involved in individual

"I don't encourage the investigation of individual cases unless they are hard evidence studies - I don't want a second antidiscrimination committee," he said.

Wharton assured the 17 - member committee that he was aware of salary discrepancies between equally qualified men and women faculty members and said steps were being taken to make the necessary salary adjustments.

"By July 1, when salary increases go into effect, there will be time for individual adjustments. The salary inequities for women will get top priority of budget allocations but it will be difficult to find money before the next fiscal year," he said.

Mary Sharp, asst. director of EOP present at the meeting, suggested raising the level at which women are employed in the University.

"There should be an upgrading of titles because salaries fall within prescribed ranges, which isn't sex discrimination," she said.

Wharton reminded the group that one of their major intents was to come up with the most effective permanent advisory structure on the status of women at MSU and added that the permanency of the steering committee was up to the group.

He encouraged interaction with Robert Perrin, vice president of University relations, and the staff of the Office of Equal Opportunity Programs (EOP) so the group could "keep a definite course of direction." EOP has been conducting a review of women's salaries and promotional activities in comparison to men in the same rank and discipline.

The steering committee will meet with the large women's groups on campus at 9 a.m. April 11 in 104B Wells Hall after their regular meeting at 7:30 a.m. on that day in the International Center.

Breakup of HEW: really an answer?

mostly Democrats, have the main obstacle blocking introduced bills in both houses of Congress to create a separate cabinet - level department of health. The move represents the first major attempt to break up the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

HEW has long had a reputation for being the most unwieldy structure in the nation's capital. Many an HEW administrator has felt his hands tied by the department's immense bureaucracy. Some have claimed that many worthwhile programs have failed simply because of HEW's vastness.

Carving a department of health out of HEW obviously would eliminate some structural

Legal haze

The jury in the Harrisburg 7 conspiracy trial is groping blindly through a sea of legal haze. After almost a week of deliberations the panel remains deadlocked despite the rereading of trial transcripts and additional charges from the bench.

The problem is not that the 12 members of the jury are not up to their task, but rather that exceptionally wanting.

the very least the laws in question are functionally unworkable.

A group of 100 congressmen, problems if enacted. However health care reform in this country right now is not the mammoth size of HEW. What is missing is a commitment to push for better health care.

The nation's health care system can stand a great deal of improvement. New forms of health insurance are needed. Some means must be found to fight the continuing rise in health care costs to prevent a situation from developing where only the wealthy are healthy. Something must be done about the relatively high infant mortality rate in America. Much health oriented research should be done.

These reforms are not being blocked so much by the vastness of HEW, but by the minuteness of the efforts of Congress and the Nixon administration to implement them. The 100 congressmen could better promote change in the nation's health care system not by creating a new department but by more fully utilizing the resources at hand. HEW's size can kill a program only if this nation's leaders choose to look the other way.

Size itself is not a problem. the legal machinery in question is Multinational conglomerates such as ITT manage to operate efficiently (in their own misdirected way of course, but efficiently nonetheless) in spite of the size of their payroll. Instead of attacking HEW's size, One thing, however, is clear Congress would do much better from the Harrisburg 7 trial - at to vitalize its substance. This nation needs a commitment to health, much more than a department of health.

Primary results: everyone loses

WASHINGTON - One of the hardest things the American people have to do for the next four months is interpret the results of the Democratic presidential primaries. The only thing that you can be sure of is that they don't appear to be what you think they are.

This seems to be what is going on every time you turn on the TV set:

"Sen. Edmund Muskie won the Lethargy State primary today by 35 per cent. This was considered by most political observers here as a defeat for the Muskie forces because they had predicted that their man would win by at least 41.5 per cent.

"Runner-up in Lethargy State was Sen. Hubert Humphrey with 18.4 per cent of the vote. Humphrey announced he had actually won the race because the polls had given him only 15 per cent. 'If it hadn't been for what happened in Chicago in 1968, Humphrey said, 'I would have got 65 per cent of the vote.' He added. '1 very satisfied with the showing and fact that so many people are behind me.'

"Sen. George McGovern got 9 cent of the vote, which he said wa 'moral' victory for him, the moral victory he has won since New Hampshire primary. He treporters that Muskie and Humph had failed to sustain any drive Lethargy State, and he suggested t both drop out of the race.

pressed for time, can't do most of the problems and I start to panic. Once it starts it usually continues to fruition! Does that say anything about me and my attitude towards sex? I don't know of anyone else who experiences such things under these circumstances. The above letter was not signed and there was no direct way of knowing the sex of the author. However, the likelihood is very strong that this was written by a man. A very small percentage of men will experience orgasm under a variety of nonsexual, stressful situations. This is most common among young adolescent men, is also seen in men in their early 20s, but is rare boyond that. Severe anxiety or fright, strenuous physical activity that increases muscle tension such as chinning, taking an examination under pressure, and (count yourself lucky) reciting in class can produce orgasms. Spontaneous orgasms under stressful situations such as exams do not seem to occur in women although some women have reported frequent spontaneous orgasms while withdrawing from drugs. Men also report this.

The phenomenon does not say anything about you or your attitude toward sex. It says more about the upon certain neurologic impulses that is forced to draw on reserves in the Letters may be addressed to Dr. Werner can also be triggered by a vareity of other circumstances. A slightly simplistic but possibly accurate explanation is that the excitement of the exam or other stressful situation causes a spill over of neurologic messages into adjoining circuits which results in a free explosion of the sexual apparatus. Unfortunately, such gratuitous orgasms are not associated with enjoyment, coming at the inconvenient time that they do. Some people are so gifted (I can't think of another word) that they can produce orgasms spontaneously simply through voluntary mental effort and fantasy. Women show a somewhat greater proclivity toward this rare talent than

I was recently visiting a friends who lives with a food freak. While readin g one of her roommate's magazines, Iran across some statements that said that meat produces by-products during digestion and cause anxiety. A sample quote is enclosed: "The large intestine secretes uric acid which produces a fermentation that putrifies the body... nature of orgasm, which is dependent Since minerals neutralize acid, the body vegetarian would alleviate anxiety! Whenever I start reading stuff that tells me that my body is becoming putrified, my brain addled and my eyes weakened by everyday run-of-the-mill sorts of activities, I get a little skeptical. I had a hard time making any sense of the longer excerpt you sent me from your friend's friend, the food freak. However, there is little doubt that the average American diet contains more meat than it needs to, and certainly much more in the way of saturated fat then could possibly be healthy. It is also true that one can get large amounts of protein from vegetable sources and being a vegetarian is not incompatible how he explained this, he said with good health. It is also not a surprise, 'I didn't even know I guarantee of the same.

Elitists sparse in China

By ROBERT BAO State News Staff Writer

How can a country blaze the international trail in scientific advance without cultivating an elitist core of specialists?

In a pluralistic society, the question is rhetorical, but in the People's Republic of China, it is a dilemma that has embroiled the masses in orgies of intellectual soul - searching.

Nobel Laureate C.N. Yang said in a lecture Monday that the overwhelming spirit of egalitarianism sanctified by Mao through the Cultural Revolution remains the foremost obstacle to forward leaps in science.

"There is a basic contradiction," he observed. "For the time being, Chinese officials have opted to preserve the egalitarian momentum of the Cultural Revolution.'

Basing his judgment on hard - working, but not numerous visits to Chinese universities and research centers, as well as extensive talks with Premier Chou En-lai and other leaders, Yang predicted:

"In the long run, we can expect some unexpected turns in policy. China is manufacturing a lot of computers that require specialized people."

Yang's trip to China was prompted by news that his father had become seriously ill in Shanghai. He called his return, after a 26-year absence, an "unforgettable experience."

'Godfather': captivating

One of my only regrets concerning "The Godfather" is that the movie ended. Easily, I could still be sitting in the theater fully entertained by director Francis Ford Coppola and actors Marlon Brando, Al Pacino, and a talented crew of others too numerous to mention here. They all knew how to capture an audience and bind them solidly to their seats.

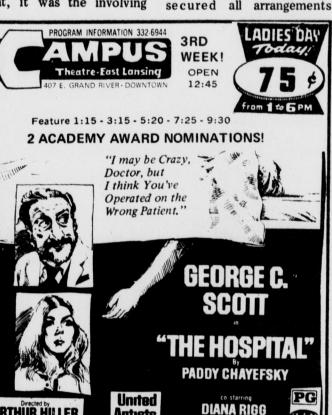

From the opening invocation of the godfather, Don Vito Corleone, to the symbolic closing of the study door, the motion picture was totally absorbing — a Hollywood work of excellence.

Based on the popular novel by Mario Puzo, "The Godfather" was an expose on the Mafia and their dealings. But more than that, it was the involving whether business or social and no one, not son, daughter, wife, nor brother spoke against him.

Together with four other families, the Corleones controlled all of New York City's gambling and prostitution activities and more importantly, Don Corleone controlled the lives of men with the mere mention of a word. Life and death were sold cheaply. With the refusal of a

$1,000,000 narcotics deal, the Corleones and the other families found themselves in the middle of a gang war that ultimately changed the entire structure of all five families and the organization itself. The centralizing force of the motion picture was Michael Corleone, expertly played by Al Pacino. Michael enters the film as a young war hero returning to his father's home during his sister's spectacular wedding party. He seems apart from the dealings of the family but yet he is a son, a Corleone, and blood is the thickest tie. Unavoidably he becomes caught up in the affairs of the family and very subtly he begins to change. First, his hair, then his dress, then his style of speech, next his gaze until hoped he wouldn't be - the godfather. It is a beautiful portrayl of a man sucked into the vacuum of organized crime.

Al Pacino, whose film credits include "Panic in Needle Park," was one of the fine discoveries in the film. As an actor he had subtle control of his person with great charismatic appeal. He almost upstages Brando, but the master is not easily moved from his pedestal. Brando radiates casualness and professionalism. It was a sheer pleasure to watch him move across the screen, to gesture with his hands and to gruffly deliver his lines.

I never realized so vividly the moral implications of one man holding the lives of others firmly in his hands until "The Godfather." To the men of power it was never a question of right or wrong, but rather the end itself - the business of the family.

As an entertaining film "The Godfather" was tremendous, but as a social mirror it was terribly disturbing. One has to face the obvious reality that corruption and deceit were nothing more than business since when? "The Godfather" dealt lightly with the early strains of narcotics importation. It was a helpless position to sit in the theater and see the roots of an evil that would one day rot the heart of our cities.

As a film, "The Godfather" was a tribute to the motion pictures of the '30s and '40s in its sheer length, in its subplots, in its various entanglements, and in its all - encompassing treatment of love, hate, violence, tenderness and the basic emotions.

One element of the industry that is not usually brought to light is the role of the casting director. In this film, the casting director played an important and creative part. The use of Lenny Montana, a world heavyweight wrestler, as Luca Brasi the ruthless assassin, and the use of Sterling Haydin as the corrupt cop McCluskey was

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Commission on introduction of penicillin in the early 1950s. Venereal Disease said Tuesday the government's stepped-up campaign against gonorrhea and syphilis is not enough to control what it called an epidemic striking 2.5 million Americans each year.

After a year of study, the advisory panel of 16 physicians and one osteopath recommended federal spending of $296 million over the next five years for VD control.

Specifically, it proposed a 19 - point program including VD instruction down to the seventh grade in public and private schools, more research and research for vaccines, and restored VD courses in the curriculum of medical schools.

In the fiscal year starting July 1, the commission urged that federal spending be boosted to $46.1 million compared with the $31 million President Nixon has requested.

But Dr. Merlin K. DuVal, asst. secretary for health and scientific affairs in the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare said the administration request represents a 250 per cent increase over two years and questioned whether more money could be spent effectively

Noting a historic rise in gonorrhea and a 10 - year high in reported infectious syphilis cases, the commission blamed the outbreak on public and medical complacency following the

Stickmen face Wolverines

Juggling act

By THOM GATES State News Sports Writer

The MSU lacrosse team will take the field against a tough Michigan squad in hopes of gaining its third straight victory of the year. The contest will be held in Spartan Stadium, starting at 3:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Michigan, unlike MSU, is a club team. Last year the Wolverines won the club division championship and are favored to repeat again this year.

The 1972 Michigan Club lost several starters from last years squad but returns All - Midwest players Skip Flanagan and Don Holman on attack along with Carl Burns. Other All - Midwest picks returning are outstanding midfield man Dick Dean and defenseman Dave Fischer.

The Spartans have 16 men returning with some lacrosse experience behind them, something which has never been the case before.

The stickmen's midfield corps is led by Val Washington, an honorable mention on the All - Midwest team last season, and Jim Walters, fourth leading scorer on last year's On defense, the Spartans will have four - year veteran Mike Moody at one spot, while two first - year men Don Schulz and Merl Truman fill the other places.

Freshman goalie Ron Hebert has performed well in the net so far this season. His 45 saves against Oberlin was a key factor in the Spartans 10 - 9 victory. The Spartans are seeking their first victory over the Wolves in two years. The stickmen defeated Michigan ten straight times as a club squad but since attaining varsity status they have dropped four straight to the Wolverines.

"Being a club sport, Michigan has no eligibility rules," coach Ted Swoboda commented, "therefore grad students that have played out their normal four eligibility can still play on Michigan's

Because of this fact Michigan has several experienced players. The Wolves also have several outstanding men from other schools that attend for graduate work.

This makes the Spartans' job of upsetting the Wolverines a much rougher task. Also this is part of the reason that MSU has not defeated U - M since becoming a varsity sport.

Michigan, which lost its opening game of the season to Bowling Green by a 6 - 5 score, are slight favorites.

"The team is in good shape and has a good attitude," Coach Swoboda stated. "We hope that we can win the Bagattaway trophy this year. That is the award that goes to the team that scores the most goals between the two of us and we have never won it since its origin."

NEW YORK (UPI) -Living up to his own standards could be the hardest task of all for Ken Dryden when the big goaltender leads the Montreal Canadiens against the New York Rangers Wednesday night in the opening game of their Stanley Cup playoff series.

When the Canadiens finally broke through to beat New York, 6 - 5, in Sunday's final game of the season, Dryden was sitting in the press box to rest up for the playoffs.

"The Rangers have given us trouble all season," said the anything less almost 24 - year - old law student. certainly will mean "We really haven't played elimination in the very first well against them at all. Before Sunday's game, the only other game we really were in was a 3 - 3 tie.

Dryden admitted he was tired after playing 62 games, and a week before the season ended his frustration reached a point where he accused his teammates of being mentally and physically lazy.

"But that is no reflection at all on our expectations in the Stanley Cup playoffs. I don't think any of our players would be satisfied with anything less than winning it all.

The search continues for an athletic director Michigan State. And that's about all anyone knows anyone will go out on a limb to say. The clandestin process surrounding the search and selection proced has left many people wondering who, what, when, when and why in regards to a new AD.

"We're going about the selection about as rapidly as we can," MSU faculty representative to the Big Ten John Fuzak said Monday. "People don't realize that we didn't have any advance notice about finding an athletic director - we didn't get started until January. When you're looking for a dean of a college or someone of the nature you might have up to a year's notice. It's a different situation here. I'd have to say we're makin good progress if you consider the circumstances."

The circumstances Fuzak talked about was the stroke suffered by former MSU athletic director Clarence "Biggie" Munn on Oct. 7, 1971. Munn wa placed in the intensive care unit of Lansing's Sparron Hospital. Though the 63-year-old Munn has show improvement under therapy, he remains paralyzed or the right side and has a substantial speech impairment.

The University's board of trustees took action regards to Munn's condition, first extending his leaved absence for health reasons to Aug. 31, 1972; grantin him a one-year terminal leave of absence beginning Sen 1, 1972, with his retirement set for Sept. 1, 1973.

J. Burt Smith, the assistant director to Munn, w named acting AD until a successor could be nominated But Smith's interim job has progressed from weeks months as the athletic council, alias search and selection committee, gropes for names of prospective candidate

"We are at a point where we are about to sta interviewing," Fuzak said. "We shut off nomination March 24 and we're trying to put together a final list would like to have only about six names on the final is but that's one man's opinion."

The selection procedure started with input taken from experience students, faculty, coaches and players. Anyone and pt into the everyone was free to nominate someone for the post, and sity tennis many people put their own names in for consideration bac, as "We tapped a lot of different sources in trying to locate the right person for the directorship here," Fuzak said spring ca "We went out and talked to people throughout the word people who know the athletic kie compensation of the post, and said spring ca spring ca "We went out and talked to people throughout the word people who know the athletic kie compensation of the post, and said spring ca spring capable who know the athletic kie compensation of the post, and said spring capable who know the athletic kie compensation of the post, and said spring capable who know the athletic kie compensation of the post, and said spring capable who know the athletic kie compensation of the post, as the post of the p and business worlds, and asked for names. The people robac h nominated didn't necessarily have an interest in the job arning let we just wanted to get a solid start and a base to wor dit in additional control of the from.'

The interviewing will be quite time consuming tads. possibly the longest single task in the process. Fuzak said in their ar that the committee would like to furnish the school with r, the S an athletic director by May 1, but admitted that it would be a slim possibility. He went on to say that MSU might inst the lil be without a permanent athletic director by as late a antic Coast September 1.

But the search continues. One day within the next five an 0-8 mar months as announcement will be made that MSU has a We feel new athletic director. And when that day comes, it will re from t culminate a lot of hard work by a lot of people at MSU That's about all you can say about this cloak-and-dage affair of choosing an athletic director.

Putting aside the many "no comment" comments an "in general terms" statements, I have received, the search for an athletic director is moving along slowly and quietly. But it is moving along - I guess. I think.

Last season, the MSU baseball team compiled a 36 10 record, captured the Big Ten crown, had three players sign professional contracts and featured a pitcher who hurled a no-hitter.

That's a pretty tough act to follow. But Coach Danny Litwhiler is optimistic that his 1972 squad, comprised of some old and some new faces, will come up with the artillery needed to shoot down all other challengers for the conference championship.

Familiar faces missing from the State lineup this year include All-American and College Player of the Year Rob Ellis, Gary Boyce, Phil Rashhead, Kirk Maas, Larry Rettenmund and Dave Liesman, all vital ingredients in the success of the team last season.

Ellis signed a pro contract with the Milwaukee Brewers; Boyce put his name down on a Texas Ranger contract and Liesman came to terms with the Chicago White Sox. Maas (the no-hit hurler), Rashhead and Rettenmund all graduated.

Wildlife. The third piece recommended for sale is a 94 - acre eagle farm in Clinton County.

The committee recommended that MSU review about 2,000 acres of its holdings to determine the value to the University and the legal complications which might be involved if a decision was made to sell or convert the land.

The committee suggested that MSU review several parcels for possible use and then consider giving the land back to the donor, including: about 30 acres in Charlevoix; 1,400 acres in Iosca County; a 42 - acre Mancelona Farm in Antrim County, and seven - tenths of an acre in Leland in

Leelanau County. Among the land which is being reviewed for possible sale is: the 97 - acre Graham Experiment Station in Kent County outside of Grand Rapids; Pewabic Pottery, a four - tenth acre piece in downtown Detroit valued at $67,000 at one point; the 135 - acre Saginaw tract, and 300 - acre Van Hoosen Farm in Oakland County valued at $1 million. The committee recommended that the University retain some of its holdings for its contributions to education and research programs, all 5,163 acres of main campus valued at least at $5.8 million, 447 acres of Muck Experimental Farm in Laingsburg, the 617 - acre Hidden Lake Gardens in Leelanau County, and the 664 - acre Kellogg Biological Station, the 601 - acre Kellogg farm and bird sanctuary and the 597 - acre Kellogg forest, all in Kalamazoo County. Other land to be retained by MSU includes: the 810 acre Lake City Experiment Station in Missaukee County, the 80 - acre Nichols Experimental Farm in Allegan County, the 779 acre Russ Forest in Cass County, the South Haven Experiment Station in Van Buren County and the 1,266 - acre Upper Peninsula Station in Chatam in Alger County.

Ms. O'Donnohue praised MSU's efforts to provide education to the economically and educationally disadvantaged and said these efforts must be "strengthened and broadened."

"Broader enrollment has also necessitated the development of support programs for those who enter the University with an educational disadvantage. We must continue at every step from admission to graduation to strive for the success of these students,"

As president of the Women's Inter-resident Council (now combined with the Men's Halls Assn. as the Residence Hall Assn.), Ms. O'Donnohue worked with the University administration to eliminate curfews for women students.
