Guerrillas free convicts

Tupamaro guerrillas in Uruguay pulled off another sensational jail break Wednesday, freeing 15 of their comrades and 10 common criminals from the Punta Carretas penitentiary.

They bored a 200-foot tunnel linking the prison's hospital to the city sewer system and then left behind explosive booby traps to slow pursuers.

It was the third major jail break engineered by the leftists Tupamaros in less than a year.

Last September, 111 prisoners including 106 Tupamaros fled from the same penitentiary through a 120-foot tunnel.

IRS helps with returns

With only five days left before the filing deadline, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) assigned thousands of agents Wednesday to help taxpayers fill out their 1972 federal income tax returns.

Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters said its service to taxpayers is being launched because of widespread evidence of fraudulent practices by a significant number of commercial tax preparers.

A crackdown in recent weeks has found that 1,800 preparers of 3,200 investigated made fraudulent returns.

Black chosen for FCC

Benjamin L. Hooks, a Memphis lawyer and preacher, will be nominated as the first black on the seven-member Federal Communications Commission (FCC) President Nixon announced Wednesday.

Hooks will succeed Texas Democrat Robert T. Bartley, a member of the commission since 1952, who plans to retire when his term ends June 30.

U.S. may renew talks

The White House hinted broadly Wednesday that the United States is pursuing private channels in an effort to break the Vietnam peace talks logjam.

But presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler would divulge no specifics on the possible secret maneuvering as he repeated that President Nixon hopes to continue with the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Indochina.

Doctor says LBJ OK

A doctor said former President Lyndon B. Johnson was "feeling great" after he returned to Texas Wednesday to recuperate from a major heart attack. One physician indicated Johnson may be able to resume much of his normally active life.

Army Col. Robert L. North, who has treated Johnson in the past and who now is his attending physician, told a news conference in San Antonio that Johnson was "in very good condition."

N.Viet support affirmed

Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in Moscow reaffirmed Wednesday Kremlin support for North Vietnam and assured Hanoi's ambassador to Moscow that it will continue to supply the Vietnamese war effort with "assistance and support."

A report from the Soviet government news agency Tass said North Vietnamese Ambassador Vo Thuk Dong conferred with Brezhnev on "questions concerning Soviet-Vietnamese cooperation."

Cambodian hits N.Viet drive

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Cambodian government is worried about the enemy offensive in neighboring South Vietnam, Premier Son Ngoc Thanh said Wednesday.

In an interview, the Cambodian premier declared that the drive by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong involved grave risks for the entire world even though his government believes the enemy objectives may be more political than military. "It is a risk — perhaps not of World War III — but of a possible glimmering of a third world war," Son Ngoc Thanh said.

The premier spent little time on the conflict in South Vietnam, however. His immediate concern is the Cambodian political situation.

Thanh, who served briefly as premier of Cambodia during the Japanese occupation during World War II, said he had agreed to serve president Lon Nol last month after most of the country's politicians had turned down the offer of the job. His reasoning is that Lon Nol "wants the republic."

The republican regime has been the main plank of Thanh's political program since he returned two years ago from more than two decades of exile following the overthrow of the former head of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk. Thanh persuaded Sihanouk to declare Cambodian independence in 1945 but Sihanouk soon drove him into exile.

Thanh said he found a draft constitution giving Lon Nol wide powers to be acceptable. He stressed that he would not be a candidate either in the presidential elections tentatively fixed for June 4 or for elections to be held later for the National Assembly.

There is some doubt whether the constitutional draft would permit Thanh to run for the presidency even if he had a mind to oppose Lon Nol.

According to his official biographer, Thanh was born 64 years ago in Tra Vinh Province in what is now South Vietnam and his mother bore a Vietnamese name. The draft's Article 25 requires that the president must be of Cambodian nationality at birth, be a child of Cambodian parents and have a Cambodian-born wife.

Thanh noted that while the constitution put no limit on the number of parties that could contest elections, Lon Nol is known to want only two parties — Democrats and his own Republicans.

"I'm in the middle," Thanh declared. "I am working with Marshal Lon Nol to help the country."

Thanh, who enjoys wide-spread support among Cambodian intellectuals for his unwavering anticolonial and antimarxist stand, is expected to play a major role behind the scenes before the elections.

It is in the background that Thanh excelled in the past. His long association with the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency during his years in exile have invested him an aura of mystery that does nothing to dispel.

Despite the admiring now professes for Lon Nol, many observers are convinced it will be a question of time before Thanh and the strong-willed marshal, who shows an inclination to allow authority to be questioned.

Thanh is not allowing his present office to cloud his simple style of living. It is one of his sources of strength among students and intellectuals, open to contemptuous of the crop of high living politicians who are alleged to have wealth acquired through corruption.

Thanh still lives in a down villa lent to him by the government. Pictures walls look as if they were from travel posters.

Thanh still bears traces of his exile years. During an interview he repeatedly of piastres, Vietnamese currency instead of Cambodian riel. Another souvenir of the days, when he had a head, are body gear with automatic rifles in their arms who everywhere in his infested garden.

ON COMMON MARKET

Laborites seek vote

LONDON (AP) — Despite the defection of seven of its leaders, the divided Labor party demanded Thursday a national referendum on British entry into the European Common Market.

It was the question of a referendum that brought about the resignations from the party leadership of those favoring the Common Market. They were led by Roy Jenkins, the deputy party leader.

An angry meeting of Labor legislators endorsed the party leadership's policy switch in favor of a referendum 129-96. Fifty-eight Laborites either abstained or did not attend the session.

While antimarket left-wingers hailed the result as a triumph, another advocate of British entry into Europe quit the party leadership, the seventh in 48 hours.

He was the Laborite spokesman on Scottish affairs, Dickson Mabon, who stormed out of the meeting, accusing party leader Harold Wilson of "abdication of leadership."

Mabon's departure and that of six other pro-Europeans led by Jenkins underlined the deep split the Common Market and referendum issue has inflicted on the Labor party.

At the closed-door session of the parliamentary Labor party, Jenkins and his supporters accused their colleagues of damaging party credibility by their somersaults over Europe.

Under Wilson's leadership, Labor has moved from support for entry while in office to rejection of market membership on the terms negotiated by the Conservative government.

Antimarket members have been pressing hard for an official party commitment to a referendum in the belief that a majority in Britain would reject entry even if it were approved by Parliament.

Left-wingers are now expected to step up their campaign to guide Labor toward opposition to the market in principle, a fear voiced by Jenkins when he resigned.

The first test of Labor's new position will come early next week when Parliament votes on an amendment by Conservative antimarket rebels, which also calls for a referendum.

With Jenkins and his lieutenants now free to

MINORITY STATUS HIT

At-large plan defended

By DANIEL DEVER
State News Staff Writer

Harold Buckner, chairman of ASMSU, Wednesday defended the plan of eliminating the minority status of the 10 Academic Council student representatives - at - large after the discussion of the at - large issue at Tuesday's council meeting.

"There are some misconceptions of the plan among some members of the Academic Council that need clearing up," Buckner said.

"The fact is, most members of the council do not know very much about the plan," he added.

He said the plan which he initiated to and was passed by the University Student Affairs Committee, would do a great deal more than just open the election to all students.

The plan calls for the amendment of the Bylaws for Academic Governance to make the following changes:

- The stipulation under the existing bylaws that require the at - large seats be filled by at least six nonwhites and at least five women would be eliminated.

- The Student Committee on Nominations would be restructured into the Student Committee on Elections. The minority status of members on this committee would also be eliminated.

- A judicial process for appealing the election would be developed by the Committee on Academic Governance.

- Two seats would be reserved on the standing committees of the Academic Council for representatives - at - large, with at least one seat reserved for a nonwhite and one reserved for a woman.

- All council standing committees, with the exception of Faculty Affairs and Faculty Compensation, would choose their chairmen within the first two meetings of the academic year.

"A lot of the controversy over the whole thing would be cleared up if it (the plan) could be put before the Academic Council," Buckner said.

"Some people take this as just an ax to grind on my part. But if you will check the records you will find that I was opposed to the minority requirement from the very beginning, because it cannot work," he added.

Buckner said that the problem in conducting such a minority election is in determining who is a minority student.

"I am not opposed to minority students electing their own representatives if it can be done fairly. But I don't think it can," Buckner said last week during a hearing of a subcommittee on the Committee on Academic Governance.

Apollo 16 crew simulates liftoff

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) - The astronauts rehearsed blastoff and earth orbital maneuvers Wednesday as the countdown proceeded smoothly toward Sunday's beginning of the Apollo 16 moon mission.

Civil authorities prepared for the massive traffic jam expected to be caused by the launch.

Astronauts John W. Young, Charles M. Duke Jr. and Thomas K. Mattingly II boarded the command ship simulator to run through activities from the time the booster rocket leaves the pad until they fire out of earth orbit and head for the moon.

Young and Duke also practiced their descent to the moon in the lunar module trainer and Mattingly worked on lunar orbit exercises in the command ship simulator.

Lt. Ben Brady of the Florida Highway Patrol estimated that a million visitors would be crammed into the area when the Saturn 5 booster rocket lifts off at 12:54 p.m.

Four days before the launch to the moon, house trailers and campers already were swarming into the area, scouting for vantage points along roads and causeways.

Highway patrol and county law enforcement officers met with Fire Dept. and Civil Defense representatives to work out plans for handling the heavy traffic load.

China team begins tour

TROIT (AP) - A 14-member table tennis team from China arrived in Detroit Wednesday with the goal of friendship first, competition second on a week tour of this country.

Twenty members of the U.S. Table Tennis Assn. and which visited Red last year stood in line and applauded vigorously as Chinese stepped out of a plane at Detroit Metropolitan Airport. In company with Chinese from, the visiting squad returned the applause of the American hosts.

The arrival of the Chinese squad from Ottawa after a 10-day tour of Canada was low-key, with no bands or flags marking the occasion. There were 20 minutes of speeches by representatives of the two teams and by John Scali, an administrative assistant to President Nixon.

The shyness which marked the initial moments of the visit disappeared quickly on a 30-minute ride into Detroit on a crowded bus in which American and Chinese players, together with UN officials and newsmen, exchanged a word now and then despite the language barrier.

For the most part, the Chinese visitors were reserved in their brief exchanges with reporters and appeared to have stereotyped answers for some questions.

Two attractive members of the Chinese - Shi Ping-lin, 22, a school administrative employee in China, and Cheng Huai-ying, 16, a student - were asking what they most wanted to see in the United States.

They replied: "Whatever our hosts want to show us. They have arranged it."

Four others on the Chinese team gave virtually the same answer.

Wendy Hicks, 19, Santa Barbara, Calif., and Cheng Minchih, 26, overcame the language barrier fairly well. During the crowded bus ride.

"We have been able to teach each other a few little words, and I think each of us knows a little of what the other is trying to say," Ms. Hicks said.

Noting that the attractive Chinese girl sitting beside her wore no makeup, Wendy commented "her complexion is so fair, she doesn't need any."

"I think Cheng picked up a few words of English while she was touring Canada, and she and I are both convinced this visit of the Chinese team will do much to thaw relations between our countries."

The airport ceremony marked the beginning of the two-week tour of the United States by the Chinese team, including a visit to Washington. Scali discounted reports that the trip would include a impromptu table tennis match at the White House on Monday or Tuesday with President Nixon as one of the players.

"There have been no discussions along those lines, and I can assure you of that," the presidential assistant said.

The sun shone brightly as the Chinese squad's chartered plane, with U.S. and Chinese flags painted on its nose, landed at the airport where about 100 newsmen and photographers waited under heavy police security.

Graham B. Steenhoven, president of the U.S. Table Tennis Assn., flew to Ottawa and accompanied the Chinese team to Detroit.

Chuang Tse-tung, leader of the Chinese delegation, was its only speaker at the airport.

There were virtually no spectators at the secluded spot at the airport where the plane arrived, there were no pickets at the airport, and no pickets were in sight when the teams arrived at a heavily guarded downtown Detroit hotel where the Chinese team will stay. The Chinese squad's arrival time and site had been kept secret.

The Chinese go on to Ann Arbor, Mich., Friday; Williamsburg, Va., Sunday; Washington, D.C., Monday and Tuesday, New York, April 19 - 21; Memphis, Tenn., April 22; and Los Angeles on April 24.

Arbitration bill awaits approval by Milliken

By RANDY GARTON
State News Staff Writer

A bill extending Michigan's compulsory arbitration law for another year cleared the state Senate Wednesday when it concurred by a 6-vote margin with a compromise plan. The bill approved the bill today.

The bill, which now goes to Gov. Milliken, compels teachers' unions, firemen's unions, and other public employees to reach agreement with municipal governments on contract disputes, to submit to compulsory arbitration. Backers of the bill claim that the law, passed in 1969, contributed to a decrease in wages and firemen's strikes.

Under the proposed law, striking parties would be required to submit their dispute to a final offer to arbitration panel. The panel, then, would choose sections from both sides. Both the municipality and the union would then be compelled to accept the arbitration panel's decision.

This, the most controversial section of the bill, would not go into effect until 1973.

In other capital business, a spokesman for the attorney general's office dismissed as "moot" a complaint filed against the secretary of state Monday, claiming that no provisions existed for write-in ballots in the May 16 presidential primary.

"The general election statutes require that provisions for write-ins be made," Russell Searl, assistant in charge of the state affairs division said in reply. "And the law is applicable to the primary and it is being enforced."

claimed that no provision for write-in candidates existed within the present primary bill. Sallade asked the court of appeals to compel the secretary of state's office to act on the alleged omission.

But members of the elections office said Wednesday that provisions for write-ins already exist. "We gave him (the attorney general) a copy of the Washtenaw County ballot," staff aide Howard McCowan said. "And there is space for a write-in."

Searl said he would ask the court not to issue a show-cause order in the case, because present state law already covers the points mentioned in the complaint.

"We've got other things to do," he said, "and I'd like to forget about this and get on with other business."

V.P. selection list: a public document

Last June Milton B. Dickerson resigned as vice president for student affairs. Though many segments of the academic community called for a rapid selection of a successor, it was not until February 25 that President Wharton finally finished appointing a search and selection committee of faculty and students to sift through the plethora of potential candidates.

Seven weeks later the selection panel had narrowed the list of potential candidates to 14 names. The individuals in question had now assumed the status of concrete nominees — the time of hesitancy and hearsay had passed. Yet the names of the individuals — one of whom will become MSU's next vice president for student affairs — remained shrouded in secrecy.

Wednesday the State News obtained a copy of the nominations list and verified it with official sources. That document appears on the front page of today's newspaper.

Reaction

Many members of the University administration reacted heatedly on learning that the State News had and was going to publish the list. They cited several reasons for withholding the information from the public "in the best interests of the University." Such a disclosure might place undue pressure on those individuals named, they asserted, or jeopardize the positions of those potential candidates now at other institutions. Further, many good candidates might withdraw if the list was made public.

These concerns are very real ones, but the State News, as a student newspaper, also had to consider its duty to its readership. In weighing the question of whether or not to publish the list, the people's right to know had to be considered along with the possible effects on

"If a trust has ultimately been violated by the unauthorized release of this list, it is a trust based on stealth. . . . once the nominating process nears its conclusion, the student body has a legitimate right to know. . . ."

the candidates.

It remains to be seen what impact the disclosure will have on those individuals named on the list. In some cases, the inclusion of an individual's name on the list of potential candidates may serve to enhance his prestige, rather than endanger his current position. It is also questionable how interested any individual really is in the position if he is willing to withdraw his name from consideration once his candidacy is made public.

Trust

If a trust has ultimately been violated by the unauthorized release of the list, it was a trust based on stealth. A rationale can be made for restricting the early stages of the search and selection process. However, once the nominating process nears its conclusion, the student body has a legitimate right to know who is being considered for an administrative post that will have a marked impact on their life at MSU.

One very disturbing possibility, potentially far more harmful than the disclosure of the list itself, looms as a reaction to disclosure: that Dr. Wharton will dissolve the selection committee and name a designate of his own, as is his privilege. However, it would be extremely unfortunate for President Wharton, who has long espoused that all segments of the University community should be included in the decision-making process, to betray this commitment by a rash act of retaliation.

Whatever the case, the State News publication of the nominee list will undoubtedly be blamed for all that may eventually go wrong with the vice presidential selection. The powers — that is, be would not need such a scapegoat, however, if they were more concerned with real feedback from students and faculty rather than maintaining secrecy at any cost.

Support Chapin: attend school meet

Last month an otherwise mundane meeting of the East Lansing School Board became a scene reminiscent of the Boxer Rebellion. Hoards of outraged parents streamed into the East Lansing High School auditorium to shout down a busing resolution sponsored by board member Richard E. Chapin. His proposal was tabled.

Contrary to assertions of the collective crowd mind, the Chapin resolution is basically "innocuous." It simply calls upon the legislature not to act on any antibusing legislation. There is a real danger that such action, welded in the heat of emotion, could seriously hamstring sincere efforts by local school boards to find alternatives to segregation.

The Chapin resolution needs your support. Tonight the school board will bring the controversial matter up for reconsideration. It is essential that the voice of reason be heard alongside that McCabesque paranoia.

Attend the school board meeting at the East Lansing High School, 509 Burcham Drive, at 7:30 p.m.

AP NEWS ANALYSIS

Hanoi: a third major offensive

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

The North Vietnamese general offensive promises to be the third decisive encounter of the Vietnam War.

The previous two had momentous impact on the course of the conflict. The first was the Viet Cong winter-spring offensive of late 1964 and early 1965. That one crumbled the Saigon army and brought American ground troops into the war.

The second was the Tet offensive of 1968. That one saw Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces unexpectedly rise from the jungles and swamps and attack military camps and population centers throughout the country. The dramatic upsurge of fighting called into question the official allied assessments of progress. Ultimately, the American withdrawal of combat forces began and Vietnamization became American policy.

The targets of this third general offensive seemed to surprise some observers, although the offensive itself was expected. But viewed in the context of the decade-long war, the crash of Hanoi's armored columns across the demilitarized zone and the powerful infantry thrusts against the weakest of Saigon's divisions were as predictable as the monsoon rains that annually wash across the paddyfields and mountains.

Since the victory over the French at the battle of Dien Bien Phu in 1954, the North has had the capacity to sweep across the DMZ. It was this Korea-like threat that persuaded American military advisers to build a conventional South Vietnamese army.

But until 10 days ago this threat never materialized. Why did Hanoi move that way now, changing at least for now, the very character of the war?

The earlier patterns of the conflict are clearer now. The North Vietnamese leadership initially hoped to take over the South in the general elections provided for under the Geneva conventions that ended the war against the French.

When President Ngo Dinh Diem said no to the elections, Hanoi encouraged partisans in the south to organize an insurgency along the lines that Ho Chi Minh instituted in his successful campaign to oust the French from Indochina. By 1964, the Viet Cong guerrillas were ready to move.

Late that year, mobile guerrilla battalions were destroying at least one Saigon battalion a week, and by early 1965 the military situation was so serious that only American troop intervention could prevent a defeat.

When the Americans came in, so did the North Vietnamese. But Hanoi's forces only sparred with the Americans, choosing the battle sites, usually in remote mountain regions where the terrain favored them, and quickly backing off when casualties rose in bloody battles.

It was not until late in 1967 that Hanoi's military leader, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, had figured out allied weaknesses. He had drawn American forces into the mountains and jungles, leaving South Vietnamese forces in the rear.

Giap sent his troops around the Americans and through the lines of the South Vietnamese, greatly assisted by whole village populations on the outskirts of Saigon and other cities. They had been won over to the Communist cause by Viet Cong cadre.

The resulting Tet offensive raised questions about the whole American war policy. President Lyndon B. Johnson decided not to run for a second term, American bombing of North Vietnam was stopped, peace talks opened in Paris and the U.S. withdrawal began.

The policy of Vietnamization was introduced in an attempt to shore up the weak South Vietnamese army. The most modern American military hardware was pumped into an ever-increasing military force under Saigon's control.

Vietnamization looked like a good idea. Now it is being tested in combat. The stakes are crucial for the future of Vietnam, and the military situation seems much more similar to the cliff-hanging days of 1965 than in Tet 1968.

In 1965 there were only American advisers and no ground troops. Civilian morale had been crushed by a series of coups d'etat. At Tet more than half a million American troops were in Vietnam. Quick deployment of these troops saved a score of Vietnamese cities from being overrun.

Today, the few American ground troops are busy protecting their own perimeters. There was no American backbone the strength of the Vietnamese defense line at the DMZ in the current drive.

In the South, American troops lost half a dozen serious encounters in the past had held the rubber plantation district of Loc Ninh. The Vietnamese lost it quickly last week.

In the past 10 days, the North Vietnamese seem to have rolled back much of the defense line. The American troops had won from the jungle in the later years of the war and handed over to the South Vietnamese when they departed.

Hanoi has always played its military cards close to its chest. But short of serious miscalculation, which seems unlikely when reading through the history of the war, Gen. Giap and his advisers must be convinced that the current mighty effort will bring satisfactory results.

What is the maximum they must be hoping for? Probably the total collapse of the Saigon armies and the capitulation of the capital of Saigon to Communist troops. But the North Vietnamese would settle for much less than that.

The results of the Tet offensive have been much misunderstood because many observers based the analyses on the body count. Certainly many thousands of Viet Cong were killed and the insurgents seriously threatened. But the offensive did lead to the American withdrawal.

Now the North Vietnamese have found another weakness. They are deploying massive forces with a virtual certainty that American troops will not be thrown into battle. The Saigon army already has been severely bloodied, and this can hardly improve the morale of the many relatives who watch the fighting from the city's doubtful security.

POINT OF VIEW

Support $1 pot campaign

By ALLEN CLOBRIDGE
for Coalition for Human Survival

The power to alter injustice is something most of us seek and fall to attain. The frustration that follows most marches and rallies when nothing happens afterward has led more and more people out of political involvement, so that now disillusionment and cynical disengagement greet every new venture into the political realm. But if the students at MSU and the residents of East Lansing have little impact on the national scene or on state government, what the recent city election has demonstrated is that it is possible for local political involvement to have a real impact. With the support of the Coalition for Human Survival, a slate of nonestablishment candidates was elected to the city council, and since the city council election the peripheral route has been blocked, some of the stigma attached to homosexuality has been alleviated, and a new optimism and faith in city government which represents all of us has begun to come alive.

There is an issue which concerns almost all of us and which we can do something about: that is the process of legalizing pot. Until some communities take the initiative to challenge state and federal legislators with progressive law-making, pot will remain too dangerous a political issue to be dealt with in a rational manner.

First, what we can do: On April 25 a public hearing will be held by the City of East Lansing on the question of reducing all penalties dealing with marijuana to a maximum of $1. Your active participation in these proceedings is vital.

Should the ordinance be passed, a national precedent will be set, after the model of Berkeley, which will do much to sway the minds of the public. When people see that the more progressive communities are moving to legalize pot, they will no longer continue to adhere to the fatalistic belief that grass can never be legalized. When it is seen that some politicians aren't afraid of making a courageous move at the risk of great controversy, others will speak out and give support to their elected representatives as well. We have the power to express our will through our local councilmen. But when we do so, the eyes of many others will be upon us and the repercussions could be nationwide.

As for the substance of the issue itself, the arguments in favor of legalizing pot are so obvious and well known, that only the most incontrovertible need to be enumerated. In the first place, pleasure is not immoral, much less illegal, and marijuana affords a pleasant, nonaggressive, relatively lucid and safe high. Almost none of these qualities can be attached to the drunken state which accompanies the excessive imbibement of alcohol. Most of tens of thousands of traffic deaths each year stem from drunken driving, yet alcohol is legal. It is not a question of legalizing another menace, but rather one of making available a safer, nonintoxicating, noninebriating substitute for alcohol. Despite evasive attempts to lay some kind of illness to the door of pot, even the President's Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse could find no evidence of physical damage occurring with use.

As any medical student, who has dissected the corpse of an alcoholic, can testify, liquor literally eats away the liver, the kidneys, and even portions of the brain. Pot simply cannot wreak this kind of havoc within the human body. What kind of logic, then, could possibly justify the legalization of the more dangerous substance and the outlawing of the less dangerous. In fact, the only danger of grass comes from the society itself which has promoted an illogical and repressive attitude and fear against it. The issue is not pot with most people, it's long hair, radical politics, protest movements and kids "no one understands." We should now expose these irrational and irrelevant issues for what they are by asserting the conviction that the government acts justly when prompted not by the people's fears, but by their own will and their own best interests.

The Coalition for Human Survival is sponsoring a rally in favor of the ordinance on Sunday afternoon, April 23, between Wells and Erickson halls. There will be a free rock concert, and performed by local theater groups. Start by coming to the rally, and then come to the hearings on April 25. With your participation and support we may be able to put this whole thing together.

Costs of city services rising

By BILL WHITING
State News Staff Writer

Students will probably be joining East Lansing residents in protesting the increased costs of municipal services which are presented in budget recommendations to the city council Monday.

The $7 million budget proposed by City Manager John M. Patriarche points to increased costs in a number of city services in requesting higher rates for water, sewage, and parking rates. Many of the increases are attributed to student costs, including voter registration, pollution control, and street improvements.

Among the increased rates proposed are:

A hike in minimum parking meter charges from a penny to 25 cents to make the parking system self-sufficient.

A 25 per cent hike in sewage rates to provide additional funds for phosphate removal to comply with guidelines published by the Water Resources Commission.

A 20 per cent rise in water rates to meet commitments made by a new treatment facility to be put into operation in 1973.

Though the basic tax rate is not slated for any raise, local taxpayers will nonetheless be paying more because of increases in property evaluations. A public hearing on the recommendations is slated for May 2, with a May 16 deadline for passage.

Patriarche also estimated an increase in revenue sharing to help pay for the added costs in registering new voters, a heavier work load in district court, attorney costs, and membership fees.

Attorney costs have increased because of the increased work and because of increased ordinance work," Patriarche said. "The drafting of the new CATV ordinance and the new housing ordinance have taken considerable time and therefore are costly."

Membership fees were increased in response to funds allocated for local bus routes.

A breakdown of the General Fund Budget, up 6.6 per cent from last year, shows that 63.6 per cent is allocated for salaries, 27 per cent for operating expenses, and 9.4 per cent for capital improvements.

Included in Patriarche's recommendations are allocations for a bike path system, improvements at the intersection of Michigan Avenue and Harrison Road, and a study of an overpass on Harrison Road.

Significant in their deletion from the budget are plans for peripheral route continuation, a pedestrian overpass on Grand River Avenue, and $22,000 slated for central business district beautification.

Patriarche said he deleted the peripheral route from the budget because of a city council request to restudy the city's Comprehensive Plan, including the route. He said the study will probably take at least a year.

"If monies are received, I believe they should first go to the Police Dept. for three additional patrolmen to provide additional patrol time," he said. "This cost is estimated at $11,100 per man."

Patriarche explained Police Chief Charles F. Pegg feels other activities are interfering with patrol duties and that the additional manpower will allow for more patrolling.

However, other needs were also seen in the Building and Housing Dept. for additional inspectors. He indicated a minimum of four inspectors and one secretary would be needed if the city council moves ahead with a new housing ordinance providing for annual licensing of all rental units. He added that additional office space would have to be rented for the expanded facilities, freeing city hall space for use by the city clerk in handling elections.

Though no recommendations were made to install extended computerized processing in city departments, Patriarche said he planned to make a study of its use in improving operations and making more usable data readily available. Recommendations will be forthcoming after that study, he said.

Plans to conclude land acquisition for an Abbott Road park are also included.

The budget proposals, divided into eight funds, will be funded primarily through taxes, which account for 30 per cent of the city's income. State shared revenues, however, account for the second highest income with 22.4 per cent.

Though not himself on the exchange, Jeffares has been on a guest speaking tour of Michigan this week, which included engagements at Western Michigan University, Wayne State, and the University of Michigan.

Expelled student files suit to re-enter school

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI) — A Grand Ledge High School senior who was expelled from school for circulating an underground newspaper has asked the district court here to let him back into school.

Michael Faull, 18, has filed suit against the Grand Ledge School District asking readmittance to the school. A hearing has been scheduled for 9:30 a.m. today on his request for a temporary restraining order. Faull was expelled from school March 13 for leading in front of the school Feb. 24 and handing out copies of Joint Issue, an underground newspaper which circulates in the Lansing-East Lansing area.

Faull also asks for a total $50,000 damages from the school district. He contends his expulsion violates the First, Fifth, Ninth and 14th Amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

Hunger, monsoons plague Bengalis

By NANCY PARSONS
State News Staff Writer

The war for the independence of Bangladesh is over. But the tiny country now faces two more enemies which threaten its survival: starvation and the approaching monsoon season.

John Podulka, Glenview, Ill., sophomore, recently spent a week in Bangladesh as part of a group of 70 Americans who were touring the country for the Emergency Relief Fund, a money-raising organization aiding Bangladesh.

"It was an effort to get people to feel the problems over there first-hand, not just through newspaper account, and to relate what we saw to people in this country who can help," Podulka said.

The primary concern of finding the needed food and the means for transporting it to the starving population is at a near critical level in the northwest region of Dinajpur, Podulka said.

"We borrowed a jeep from the UN and went travelling around the countryside. The land grew progressively dryer as we went along and there was nothing, absolutely nothing, growing," Podulka said.

"Usually this time of year they have vegetable and some rice crops growing but these crops should have been planted last December, when the people were refugees in India. Now it's just dry, hard, untillable land," Podulka said.

Podulka explained that because of the war with Pakistan, the people of Bangladesh lost the harvest of two crops of rice and one crop of vegetables.

"They had to flee in April last year when they should have been harvesting the previous December's crop. That was all lost. Then when the monsoons came last June, they weren't around to plant their rice crops. And now when they should be harvesting yet another crop, well, there's just nothing there," Podulka said.

Relief groups estimate that 1,900 tons of food are needed each week just to feed the nearly 2 1/2 million people in Dinajpur. That allows less than two pounds per person a week for subsistence. "Actually, they're receiving less than one-third that amount," Podulka said.

One of the people touring the country with Podulka was a nutritionist. She estimated that 90 percent of the children in the Dinajpur area showed signs of malnutrition. Rashers, sores and bulging stomachs due to protein deficiency were a common sight.

"We saw a woman in one of the villages holding a small child who we thought looked about two years old," Podulka said. "When we asked the mother, she said the baby was really seven years old."

The approaching monsoon season with about three months of nearly constant rain is the second worry for the Bengalis, a great many of whom do not have adequate housing for protection against the weather.

"We asked the people in the villages what they were going to do when the monsoons came," Podulka said. "They said either they would try to make it as best they could or else they would go someplace better."

"The problem is, there is no better place," Podulka added.

Generally, when people decide to go someplace else to live, Podulka said, it usually means that they want to go to Dacca, the major city in Bangladesh.

"Dacca's all full up because that's where the poor people go," Podulka said. "The human condition is miserable. You walk through it and there's nothing you can do. It's terribly, terribly disturbing."

Podulka said the people are trying to rebuild the homes that were destroyed in the war but, because it takes one month for an entire village to erect just one clay shelter with a thatched roof, there will not be sufficient housing for the people in time for the monsoon weather.

A secondary concern in Bangladesh is the rebuilding and refurbishing of the schools that were looted and burned in the war. Nearly all of the textbooks were burned by the army and the scientific equipment was burned or stolen. "It's a long-range need as soon as they can get the people educated, they will have the resources right in their own country to solve these other problems," Podulka said.

"The time we spent over there was not nearly enough time to find out everything," Podulka said. "We could have spent a month on there but their problems are immediate. They must find a solution now."

Contributions may be mailed to the Emergency Relief Fund, Box 1770, Washington D.C.

Jobs Placement Future Employment Bureau

The following employers will be interviewing from April 13 - April 28. June and August graduates of all degree levels are eligible to interview unless otherwise indicated.

Students interested in an organization should sign up Monday in the Placement

Bureau or at least two school days in advance of the interviewing date.

Additional information is available in the Placement Bureau bulletin posted each week in the Placement Bureau and in most departments. This bulletin lists specific majors requested by the interviewing organizations.

Students are advised to interview with employers even though they have not completed their military service. Many employers have indicated an interest in interviewing the student before and after his duty with the Armed Forces.

Bike path plan revealed

By KAREN ZURAWSKI
State News Staff Writer

A skeleton bicycle path system for the East Lansing area to accommodate the "bike boom" was publicly presented this week.

The plan, which would provide for more than 30 miles of bike paths if the entire program were implemented, is the work of the East Lansing Planning Dept.

For nearly six months, the planning department studied route alternatives based on a bike rider survey and examined path design and possible financing.

Three goals of the study were to minimize auto-bike conflicts allowing for safer right-of-way for both, to identify and serve cyclists needs and to encourage the use of the bike.

The system is divided according to priority, and construction of the paths would depend on this ordering. The plan would cost more than $250,000.

First priority routes serve the central business district where most of the riders live, according to the report. Totaling 20.1 miles, they provide access to shopping areas and MSU and link all developed parks and all but one of the area schools.

The planning dept. urges in the report that construction of these first-priority routes begin immediately, if the East Lansing Planning Commission and City Council approve.

Second-priority paths branch out into partially developed areas of the city and would require the construction of new sidewalks.

Third priority is given to bike paths which would lead to recreational areas or parks. These would not be part of the directional system.

The directional system contains the routes needed by a cyclist to get from one point to another such as home to work. The recreational system would be more for enjoyment riding.

Fourth priority is given to cooperative paths which could be constructed to link East Lansing and other nearby governmental units.

Among the 11 first-priority routes are bike paths along Grand River, Michigan, Harrison and MAC avenues and Hagadorn and Abbott roads.

Beginning at the eastern limits of the city, a bike path extends along Grand River Avenue to bring the rider out to near Coolidge Road. The route also splits to go down Michigan ending at Frandor Shopping Center.

Cyclists would ride on paths both on the sidewalk and in the street. Such variations are used throughout the system, depending on the traffic flow, street construction and pedestrian flow near the proposed path.

For instance, on streets traveled by less than 750 cars a day and with low speed limits, it was determined that bikes could share the street with cars. Only signs would be posted to inform people of the bicycle usage of the street.

In other cases, lane striping to distinguish a bike lane from a car lane, or new paths are planned.

The sidewalk bike path is the most common type of path suggested by the planning department. Though the new path construction is the most desirable procedure, they note it is also the most expensive.

Curb ramps are to be added to the sidewalks in new construction, and to be used whenever curbs are repaired or replaced at intersections.

The bike path along Hagadorn Road begins at Grand River Avenue and extends to Saginaw Street making use of sidewalk paths because of the heavy traffic flow.

Abbott Road, "the most heavily used bicycle entrance to MSU, in East Lansing" would become a three-lane instead of a four-lane street between Grand River Avenue and Albert Street. Both lanes of parking would be removed to accommodate the bike paths between Albert Street and Burcham Drive. North of Burcham Drive the paths would become the sidewalk type and extend to Saginaw Street. The Harrison Road bike path would service Spartan Village and link it with three schools and a park.

MAC Ave., located "through one of the heaviest concentrations of bicycle users in the city" would not have paths on the street or sidewalk because of the heavy traffic and pedestrian flows. Instead, the two alleys on either side of the street are recommended by the planning department as possible bike routes.

Financing for the bike system would come from the Capital Improvements Budget and property assessments to property owners. These assessments would normally be charged to property owners for new sidewalks and alley improvements regardless of their bicycle use.

Federal money is also available, and if Gov. Milliken's transportation package were passed by the Michigan Senate, state funds would also be available.

If the bicycle plan is approved by the planning commission and city council, the planning department recommends that all further road building and realignment should take bicycles into consideration. For instance, sidewalks would have to be expanded from the usual five feet to seven feet.

Bicycle route

Plans are approved by city council, Abbott Road will be one of the eleven first priority streets designated for the construction of bicycle paths. This will be a section of proposed 30 mile extensive bicycle route system throughout East Lansing.

PROGRAM DISCUSSED

Bicycle signups rise

BOB NOVOSAD
News Staff Writer

Dept. of Public Safety is still issuing about 150 bicycle permits but feels that the registration influx for this term is just about

Robert W. Bissell, manager for the Dept. of Public Safety, said the bicycle registration for spring term "is still as heavy as last fall we fell short of just about every far, the department issued over 11,714 permits for the 1972 school year. That represents more than the number of that were registered the previous year, when 5,163 permits were issued.

Bissell is responsible for many facets of the bicycle registration process. He orders the permits, helps design them, orders the bicycle registration cards and coordinates the bike signup programs each fall term in the residence hall complexes.

Bissell said that the Dept. of Public Safety has not initiated any extensive bicycle impounding programs this term and more than likely does not plan on starting any such program in the future. He feels the expenses involved in such a program are prohibitive.

"The $3 charged to a student for the recovery of his impounded bike doesn't even come close to the costs involved in the entire operation," Bissell said. He said that time and effort required to do a proper impounding job and the compensation allotted to the crew that actually recovers the bike are a few of the reasons against a large-scale impounding operation.

The money collected from the 50-cent registration fee and the impoundment charges are channeled into the miscellaneous general fund expenditures of the University. During the period of July 1, 1972 to Feb. 29, 1972, $6,014.60 was collected from bicycle owners and directed into the fund.

Impounded bicycles that are never claimed are sold at a general university bike auction at the beginning of each term. The spring term bike auction, held April 6-7 at the Salvage Yards, resulted in 132 bicycles sold to students either for immediate use or for the spare parts.

"We didn't quite have the turnout we had expected," said Fred

Kletke, Salvage Yard supervisor, "but we still sold all the bikes and everything went well."

The money collected from the bicycle auction is also channeled into the general fund expenditure budget of the University.

Capt. Adam J. Zutaut of the Dept. of Public Safety urges all bicycle owners to register their bikes and to protect them with a tempered steel chain lock around the frame and wheel of the bike.

"We would appreciate the cooperation of all students, faculty and staff members in reporting any person that appears to be attempting to steal bikes," Zutaut said.

Trackmen visit Purdue

By GARY KORRECK
State News Sports Writer

MSU trackmen spent last week battling the wind and cold, but Saturday the competition will be even stiffer as Fran Dittich's squad travels to Lafayette, Ind. to square off against Purdue.

"I don't know if we'll be ready or not," Dittich said, "This weather has been miserable and we haven't gotten much work in. I just hope we'll be prepared."

This is the same Dittich who wryly supposed the Spartans might win the Big Ten indoor crown, just a few days before they rolled over everyone to take it.

Still, his conservatism can be supported. While the Spartans have had favorable weather to practice in this week, it will give them only four days to prepare. Purdue, on the other hand, had already run against competition this spring, having hosted an indoor invitational and appearing at the Arkansas and Kentucky Relays.

"Purdue's a coming team," Dittich said earlier in the season, "They're going to be tough." His words were evidenced in the Big Ten indoor meet when Purdue climbed from its second division finish of last year to a close third.

The big guns for Purdue in the indoor finale were Jeff Bolin and Galen Hackler. Bolin, just a sophomore, nipped MSU's Del Gregory in the long jump and Hackler won the two-mile.

It was the second time Bolin had beaten Gregory this season. The first time was in the Spartan Relays when Bolin went 24-0 to set a new Relay record. The last time, Bolin got Gregory by an inch.

Hackler will probably shift to the three-mile outdoors where he will be challenged by MSU's Rob Cool.

A pair of top-rated freshmen will go at it again when the Spartans' Marshall Dill vies with Purdue sprinter Larry Burton in the 100 and 220. Dill beat Burton indoors during a record setting effort in the Spartan Relay 300.

Besides Dill, the Spartans have two-time Big Ten 100 champ Herb Washington and LaRue Butcher available for the sprints.

Purdue could even the score in the pole vault, though. Top man, Ron Gillespie, is consistently over 15 feet.

The shotput competition may be closer as MSU sends Marv Roberts against Purdue's Ralph Perretta. Perretta edged out Roberts for fourth place in the Big Ten indoor meet. Both will probably go in the discus as well.

Even without much practice MSU appears to have enough horses to win. Ace miler Ken Popejoy, undefeated this season, will face the Boilemaker's Terry Priebe, but the latter's times have been considerably slower.

The same goes for the 660 where Spartan Bob Casselman will probably run against Purdue's Jim Patrick. Casselman whipped Patrick indoors.

The hurdles could be interesting. MSU offers indoor low hurdle champ John Morrison, along with Rich Jacques and Dave Martin, who appears fully recovered from a winter season injury. The Boilemakers are strong here, too, with Alex DiMarzio, third in the indoor highs, Jerome Belin and Dan Morgan.

Belin will contest Gregory in the triple jump but Gregory has beaten him before.

"It would be an interesting meet," Dittich said, "I think we can win, but we're going to have a rough time doing it."

Akers set to open?

MSU golf enthusiasts may be able to test their swings on the Forest Akers nine-hole east course beginning this Saturday morning providing that the early spring-like weather continues.

The west course, an 18-hole par 71 layout is due to open sometime next week, also depending upon the weather.

Assistant manager Forest Anderson said Wednesday that the chances for opening the east course Saturday are "good."

"The only thing that could change this would be if we had a lot of rain," Anderson commented. "However, a short rainfall could do us good."

The first tee-time Saturday will be 8 a.m. but no reservations are being taken for the par 35 course.

Forest Akers golf courses are located on the corner of Mt. Hope and Harrison roads just off campus.

The long west course occupies 140 acres and was opened in 1958 while the easier east course, which opened in 1967, spreads out over half of a 160-acre area, the remaining acreage being used for a future additional nine holes.

MSU's course was the site of two Big Ten championships, in 1960 and 1968. In the earlier tournament, current Masters champ Jack Nicklaus participated as a member of the Ohio State team.

The west course is also the site of the annual Spartan Invitational, one of the most important tournaments in the Midwest. MSU was the winner of the tourney last season.

House salutes Mike Robinson

The State House, Senate and Gov. Milliken Wednesday heaped praise on MSU basketball player Mike Robinson, in a joint resolution for his "amazing accomplishments" as a first year member of the MSU varsity basketball team.

The sophomore, who captured the Big Ten basketball scoring crown with a 27.1 point per game average, was presented the resolution on the house floor by Rep. Jim Brown, R-Okemos.

The 5 foot 11 inch guard scored 594 points in his first varsity season which placed him number 3 in the all time single year scoring record book.

The resolution, sponsored by Brown, said in part that Robinson "is considered a small man by modern basketball standards, but his ability to leap and fake, his speed and deceptive quickness and his keen scoring eye make him one small guy who can play a big man's game and play it amazingly well."

In a short talk with newsmen later, Robinson said, that he would like to continue his efforts at MSU, though he added he might consider a move to a professional league if the price was right. But a degree and two more successful seasons with the Spartans were foremost on his mind.

SACKMANN, CARROW

Players aid batsmen

By CRAIG REMSBURG
State News Sports Writer

Jerry Sackmann and Rick Carrow were a couple of pleasant surprises for MSU baseball Coach Danny Litwhiler Tuesday, as the Spartan batsmen bombed Albion twice, 12-3 and 11-1.

In the case of Carrow, it was more of a shock.

Slightly more than a week ago it was discovered that Carrow had contacted mononucleosis, a disease that usually sidelines anyone, especially athletes, for a long time. Bateman John Rhode is out for the season with mono, for an example.

But shortly after little 8-year-old Mark Zahorsky, representing Walnut Street School, had thrown out the first ball to Spartan catcher Bailey Oliver Tuesday, Carrow trotted out to second base to help start off the 1978 MSU home season. Surprise, surprise!

"I got a call from Dr. Feurig a couple of days before the Albion game saying that he wanted to examine Carrow again," Litwhiler said. "The Doc then wrote me a letter Monday night saying that they had gotten at the bug in its early stage and that Carrow was ready to see some action.

"So, I just decided to play him, although only a little bit since he is not 100 per cent yet."

Carrow ended up starting both contests. The East Lansing product collected three walks and an infield hit in five innings in the first game and a bunt single in the nitecap. Not bad for a guy who has had mono.

Sackmann, on the other hand, went 3-for-5 in the twinbill, including a leadoff homer in the second inning of the first game. The ball disappeared over the 377 sign in left-center.

"I hit a fastball and I had a good idea that it was out as soon as it left my bat," Sackmann commented. "It's my first homer for State and it feels pretty good."

The 5-11, 175 pound outfielder is a transfer student from DuPage Junior College in Chicago and he is seeing regular duty in this his first year with the Spartans. Sackmann hit .269 in the Hurricane Tournament in Florida, with two doubles, a triple and 11 RBI's in his batting totals.

The next games for the Spartans will be at home

will be the opponent to open up the Big Ten season for the MSU team which is defeated conference champion. Game time is 2 p.m. for doubleheader.

Purdue will meet batsmen at John Koba at 1 p.m. Saturday, also twinbill.

Fantasticks' provides simple escape

Fantasticks' — The many's current on — is practically a musical theater. It is playing its 12th year in New York, which is a record — a miracle, and it has immense popularity in the community and theaters throughout the country. And why not? Fantasticks' is a bit of fluff — a — is both a crowd and a money — universal themes, given them some pleasant songs to sing, and proceeded to make ever — so — slight waves. Thus, in an aura of fantasy, reality, and comedy, we have a romance between a beautiful boy and girl, the amusing meddling of their fathers, and the carryings — on of two unemployed actors, and a narrator.

"The Fantasticks" is full of "messages" about growing — up love, and trust, which are already digested for us and neatly served by our cardboard characters. This, however, does not detract from the show's worth, since the effort does not warrant nor demand any great intellectual commitment, and should never be approached as one would, say, Satre's "Being and Nothingness."

"The Fantasticks" provides a simple, entertaining, and enjoyable escape, but one which is real enough to keep ourselves in some kind of perspective, especially in these times of ultraviolet films.

The Company's production, which is certainly not the definitive one, does however come at a most fortunate time and is welcome. The lack of professionalism works in a show of this sort, and at times has an endearing quality.

The first act is far

TV veteran will star in 'Company' opening

"Company," a Broadway musical comedy will be presented at 8:15 tonight in the MSU Auditorium.

The musical, part of the Lecture — Concert series, received the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award as best musical and won six Tony awards including best musical.

Heading the cast of 14 will be TV star Allen Case as the young bachelor, Robert and actress Wilson as the thrice — married sophisticate, Joanne.

"Company" examines the quandry of the single male constantly pressured by his married friends to join them in what they consider marital bliss.

The musical is the final presentation in the 1971 — 1972 Broadway series. Tickets are available in advance at the Union ticket office.

superior to the second, where directors Stan Gill and Dee Dee Deigan let the corniness of "The Fantasticks" bog them down, but the action does move well.

Ellen Carmer, as the girl proved to me a disappointment. Although possessing a very small but pretty singing voice, she never projected it well, and was stilted in her movements. She was hardly the delightfully charming female her role required. Ms. Carmer's squeaking little girl speech and outfit did not suit the character, for by attempting to be too cute, was hardly cute at all. Only so much can be attributed to opening night jitters, and I do not think Ms. Carmer was directed well.

The others in the cast happily fared much better. I particularly liked Ron Ausbury as the Boy, who looked the part and acted and sang most satisfactorily. Daniel Pipp and Perry Freelon were both fine as the actors, and Owen Anderson as the Narrator, Stan Gill and Jack Ebling as the fathers, and Sanday Mansfield all proved most competent.

Joke misfires, friend shoots rubber reptile

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) — David Hutchinson walked into a tavern and as a joke tossed an imitation snake at a buddy. But the friend became so frightened that he pulled a gun and started shooting at the fake snake. One of the bullets hit Hutchinson's right arm and entered his chest.

for political ment on the city, and county level were during task force made by members the sixth district's Caucus at their night meeting in the Edgewood United Church. Chairwomen of the various task forces are: Hattie Hazlett, political education task force, Vicki Nelberg, health, education and social service task force, Sharon Nay, women's rights legislation task force, Necla Sharkey, lobbying task force, Sherry Hall, candidates task force and Ella Jean Gratkowski, membership and publicity task force.

The political education task force plans to enlist some members of the group as deputy registrars to aid in current voter registration drives.

The women's rights legislation task force is concerned with keeping the caucus informed on a legislative basis. They plan to send a representative from the group to testify at the extended equal rights amendment hearings Tuesday in Lansing.

A letter has been sent to Mayor Gerald Graves of Lansing by the candidates task force offering the services of group members willing to be appointed to state and city boards.

The candidates task force will endorse candidates after they have researched their stand on certain issues. The membership and publicity task force is compiling a list of biographical data on all women in the group to assist the candidates committee in recommending women for various board positions.

The lobbying workshop will draw up a platform for the group in the coming weeks, based on the National Women's Political Caucus platform and will add items of special interest to this area.

The health, education and social service task force has not held an organizational meeting.

"contingency" fund withheld from 1971-72 state aid payments.

"In light of the extremely tight fiscal situation that presently exists, I hope that the introduction of this resolution will not create false hopes or raise any local district's expectations," Bursley said.

"I merely wish to guarantee that, should the financial picture confronting the state permit, education will be the top — priority consideration in allocating any funds that may be available in this fiscal year," he said.

WILLIAM N. HETTINGER, DIRECTOR OF THE State Dept. of Administration said Wednesday there was a "compelling need" for a new state Capitol.

Hettinger, whose department handles physical facilities and space allocation for the state, added that the present capitol building should be maintained as a historical monument.

Hettinger also voiced opposition to a proposal to change the director of capitol expansion from the west to the south.

VP candidate list revealed

Walter Johnson, professor of administration and higher education and chairman of the special evaluation committee, strongly criticized the State News when he learned of the intention to publish the list.

"Publishing the names of those individuals under consideration for the position of vice president for student affairs would cast an ominous cloud over the evaluation committee's entire proceedings. Not only does it jeopardize the job security of those people who are from other institutions, but also it places the evaluation committee as suspect and could seriously undermine the principle of student and faculty involvement in the governance of Michigan State University," Johnson said.

"Such publication is totally irresponsible and will besmirch the good name of Michigan State University," Johnson said.

Various members of the vice presidential evaluation committee contacted recently all refused to comment on the selection process or progress. All members contacted cited their secrecy vow, which was not directly violated in the attainment of the list by the State News. Official sources verified the list Wednesday.

Informed sources Wednesday said that they believed three of the six or seven names now being evaluated by the committee to be from on-campus. The committee has another meeting scheduled for today.

In a related development, the State News learned Wednesday that six or seven serious candidates are now being evaluated by the search and selection committee for a new athletic director.

Of the candidates for athletic director, two are black. Two of the candidates are relatively young. The majority of the candidates for athletic director are from outside the University. The committee had started with a list of about 50 nominees.

The athletic director committee also is expected to report to Wharton by May 1. Two athletes appointed by Wharton to the committee began sitting with it this week.

Examination for Beard approved

An identical vote blocked a motion by Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., that Flanigan alone be called.

Finally, a 9-4 vote defeated a compromise proposal by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., that Flanigan be asked to testify in a closed session.

Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., said the committee's votes will jeopardize Kleindienst's chances for Senate confirmation. "There is no way we can get the truth until Flanigan testifies," Tunney said.

Ervin has said that he is prepared to do all he can to block the confirmation unless Flanigan is heard. He argued that executive privilege protects only communications within the executive department and does not cover exchanges between presidential aides and third parties on matters of public concern, such as antitrust actions.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said he expects the matter of Flanigan's testimony to come up in the committee again before the agreed-upon April 20 cutoff of the hearings.

The unanimous committee vote for another examination of Ms. Beard traced to the disclosure that a physician who examined her earlier is under investigation for possible fraud in connection with Medicare fees. This physician, Dr. Lewis M. Radetsky, is an osteopath with a specialty in cardiology.

Kennedy said the new examinations are to be made in Denver by Drs. Ray Pryor and Joseph Snyder.

While Ms. Beard was being questioned two weeks ago on her hospital bed Radetsky cut short the hearings after she suffered what he said was an attack of angina pectoris, sometimes a symptom of a heart attack.

Kennedy said Tuesday that while the U.S. attorney's office in Denver was investigating Medicare claims by Radetsky, the doctor was advising the committee on Ms. Beard's ability to testify before the committee.

Much of her testimony has been contradicted by later witnesses.

Voter signup posts set

(Continued from page one) employees trained Tuesday to act as deputy registrars. Ms. LaDuke said that six of the eight women at Tuesday's training session were upset with the extra task.

"There were a bunch of women who were really mad and upset. I was appalled. They felt they had been roped into it. In my situation, I had been asked and I said I didn't mind a bit," Ms. LaDuke said.

Reportedly, of the three Union staff members who were supposed to attend Tuesday's meeting, one refused to attend and another harassed Ms. Colizzi, the city clerk.

"They had no business going in there and picking on the city clerk. They should have told their bosses they didn't want to do it. They talked like they have no choice in what they do and like their bosses had a whip over their back. They were taking it out on the wrong person," Ms. LaDuke said.

"I more or less volunteered and I'm glad to do it. This kind of service should be given gladly and not forced," she added.

Keesler responded to questions about the complaints by saying: "I don't think it makes a hell of a lot of difference if they are typing letters or registering people. There is no overtime and they are getting paid their regular pay."

"Beside, I've been given the impression that students have already registered by other means and we're not talking about very many students," he said.

In making the announcement Wednesday, Breslin had said, "We are pleased to cooperate in this effort to facilitate voter registration for students and other on-campus personnel."

Incidents dangerous

The Dept. of Public Safety provides free storage space for student-owned weapons to permit students to use them off-campus for hunting or other activities.

Despite rumors that at least one of the incidents may have had racial connotations, investigations by members of the Dept. of Public Safety and the dean of students office have indicated that race was not involved.

The campus police have discovered no information which would indicate that the incidents were related.

Capt. Adam J. Zutaut, of the Public Safety Dept. said.

North agreed that connections were unlikely because similar incidents have occurred in the past at all residence hall complexes.

"There is no pattern at all to the activity," he continued. "I have no explanation for what kinds of motivations make people do these things."
