Antibusing riders delay Nixon's decision on bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said Thursday he will announce a decision today on the $21.3-billion higher education bill and it is "a very close call" whether he will sign or veto it because its antibusing provisions are "so vague and so ambiguous."

The President told a news conference in his oval office that the educational provisions of the bill are recommendations of his administration and "are very much in the public interest."

But he said the antibusing section tacked on by Congress "totally fails to deal with this highly volatile issue."

The bill, which Nixon must act on by today, is the work of two years of congressional deliberation. It authorizes a wide range of student aid and college subsidy programs which Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Elliot L. Richardson has called

"truly a landmark in the history of higher education."

Its busing provisions would delay for 18 months any federal district court order requiring busing of school children for desegregation until appeals have been exhausted.

Nixon has proposed legislation to make busing a limited, last-resort remedy for segregated schools and to call for a one-year moratorium on massive court-ordered busing.

Nixon cited a Detroit busing order issued June 14 as an example of the problem he sees in the proposed higher education act. He said the attorney general has told him that "it is highly doubtful" that this new busing order case, which Nixon described as "perhaps the most flagrant example" of what he finds wrong with busing.

The Detroit decision requires desegregation in suburbs of the Detroit area. Nixon said the order "completely rejects the neighborhood school concept. It requires massive busing among 53 different school districts, including the busing of kindergarten children, up to an hour-and-a-half a day."

He said it puts the objective of some kind of racial balance above that of superior education or quality education.

In his view, the President said, "we face very serious problems this fall unless the Congress moves on the moratorium legislation, clear-cut and soon and before the school year begins."

But he said he saw little hope if he were to veto the bill of getting a separate moratorium busing bill through and the higher education bill he wants without busing.

The chief executive said he wanted to talk to another senator before reaching the final decision, which he expected would be made Thursday night and announced today.

IRA, British reach cease-fire accord

LONDON (AP) — Militants of the Irish Republican Army and the British government have agreed on a cease-fire in Northern Ireland after three years of bitter conflict that has cost 375 lives.

But the promise of peace in the province was immediately clouded by rumblings of discontent among leaders of the Protestant majority, suspicious of IRA motives.

There were these developments on Thursday in the three-way struggle involving the ultranationalist Provisional wing of the IRA under Roman Catholic leadership, the British government and the Protestant community:

In Dublin the Provisionals announced: "The IRA will suspend offensive operations as from midnight, Monday, June 26, 1972, provided that a public reciprocal response is forthcoming from the armed forces of the British crown."

In London the minister for Northern Ireland, William Whitelaw, told the House of Commons: "If offensive operations by the IRA in Northern Ireland cease on Monday night, Her Majesty's forces will obviously reciprocate."

In Dublin a second IRA statement said the movement took Whitelaw's response "as an acceptance of a bilateral suspension of offensive operations" to begin midnight Monday.

In Belfast and elsewhere Protestant groups displayed uneasiness, some asserting that the British and IRA had secretly negotiated a deal. The extreme right-wing Vanguard Movement, for instance, warned it would not "sit back and allow these things to happen" if Whitelaw accepts IRA peace terms.

Figures on arrests conflict

By NANCY PARSONS
State News Staff Writer

Figures released to the University subcommittee on the war by the Dept. of Public Safety concerning the number of persons arrested during the week of demonstrations last month conflict with the records filed with the 54th District Court.

Richard Bernitt, director of the Dept. of Public Safety, told the subcommittee Wednesday that 50 persons were arrested during the demonstrations on Grand River Avenue and 18 were associated with MSU. He added that one arrest was made by the campus police.

However, these figures contradict 54th District Court records which indicate that 74 persons were arrested during the demonstrations May 9, 10 and 11. Further investigation by the State News revealed that 30 of those persons were MSU students.

"I have not heard of those figures and to the best of my knowledge only 50 persons were arrested," Bernitt said.

Bernitt added that it was not common practice for him to be informed when MSU students were arrested by outside police agencies and that he was certain only one arrest of an MSU student was made by the campus police.

Bernitt presented his statistics as requested by the subcommittee when he was outlining the role of the campus police during the protests and answering questions on police practices at the subcommittee's Wednesday meeting.

Bernitt said that the statistics concerning the arrests made indicated that "people with perfectly legitimate goals are constantly being used by other people for illegal ends."

To illustrate his point, Bernitt said of all the crimes committed on campus during a given year, 55 per cent are perpetrated by persons not associated with the University and 92 per cent of the victims are associated with MSU.

In response to questions submitted to him by the subcommittee before he appeared, Bernitt said that the department has no paid informants and does not maintain any records on antiwar groups unless illegal actions are performed by individuals who are a part of the group.

"There are no departmental records of antiwar groups but that doesn't mean an individual officer doesn't have a memory and or makes a note of it," Bernitt said.

Bernitt told the subcommittee that it was his decision to use University buses to transport State Police and the cost of the operation was $2,374.

"This decision is based on a long standing agreement between the University and area cities to lend assistance when needed," Bernitt said. "Furthermore, similar decisions have been made to transport demonstrators back to campus from marches into Lansing."

Several members of the subcommittee raised the question of the State Police legal right to come onto campus.

Warren Day, director of the Ministries for Higher Education and chairman of the East Lansing subcommittee, said that it was a general belief of the demonstrators that the area surrounding Beaumont Tower would be a sanctuary from the police. Day said that Eldon Nonnamaker, vice president for student affairs, had confirmed the rumor.

Chitra Smith, associate professor in James Madison College and member of the subcommittee, said that legally the State Police have the right to go to any place in the entire state that they feel they are needed.

When contacted Thursday Nonnamaker said that there must have been a misunderstanding of terms because there is no safe place on campus for protesters.

"Beaumont Tower is designated as the least disruptive place on campus for demonstrations but that does not make it a sanctuary. There are no

Panel ends study of 'U' war policy

By NANCY PARSONS

The University subcommittee of the fact-finding body on MSU and East Lansing policies relating to the Indochina war completed its investigative stage Wednesday. It will begin formulating its recommendations late next week.

The subcommittee has held five lengthy meetings to prepare questions on the preliminary material submitted by various University departments and to interview at greater length several representatives from those departments.

Invited to answer the questions of the 11-man committee were Milton Muelder, vice president for research development and member of the committee, Herman King, asst. provost, Julius Hoffman of the Military Education Advisory Committee, Steven Terry, asst. vice president for finance, Ralph Smuckler, dean of International Studies and Programs, John Shingleton, director of the Placement Bureau, and Richard Bernitt, director of the Dept. of Public Safety.

Charles Poizel, Canton, Ohio junior and chairman of the subcommittee, expressed surprise and gratitude at the "excellent cooperation we've received from all of the departments in the University."

Supreme Court bars separate school areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Thursday disallowed the split-off of new school districts when the effect is to slow racial desegregation by creating a "refuge for white students."

Justice Potter Stewart's 5-4 opinion, overturning a separate system for Emporia, Va., appears to reassure federal judges that district lines are secondary to the much larger goal of dismantling racially separate schools. The four Nixon administration appointees, Burger, Powell and Justices Harry A. Blackmun and William H. Rehnquist, dissented in one of the few instances when the court was not unanimous about school desegregation.

The court stressed that even though Emporia had become a politically independent city, its separation from the rest of Greensville County would make the outlying rural schools at least 72 per cent black.

Moreover, Stewart said, the remaining whites in the county schools might be inclined to flee to private academies and the departure of the city's students, leadership and financial support might have an adverse psychological effect on the rural blacks.

Burger said for the four dissenters "it is quite true that the racial ratios of the two school systems would differ, but the elimination of such disparities is not the mission of desegregation."

The court was unanimous, however, in prohibiting a split of the Halifax County, N.C., system to give Scotland Neck a separate district in which whites would be in the majority. Burger said the situation was different in that the remaining schools would be overwhelmingly black and that "the movement toward creation of a separate school system in Scotland Neck was prompted solely by the likelihood of desegregation in the county."

The court also ruled, 6-2, that unions may set up internal campaign funds to aid presidential and congressional candidates and decide how the money is to be used.

The 1947 Taft-Hartley Act and other federal corruption laws require only that the political funds be segregated from other union money and that the members are not forced into making contributions, said Justice

Dem delegates clash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats got a small taste Thursday of the problems awaiting them at their national convention at Miami Beach over challenges to the makeup of state delegations.

A meeting of the convention rules committee was temporarily blocked from taking any votes by objections from members who had been named to the committee but were denied a seat because their delegations are not equally balanced by sex.

The issue was brushed under the rug for the moment by Chairman Rep. James G. O'Hara of Michigan but it threatens to erupt in earnest whenever the committee votes.

O'Hara sidestepped an immediate confrontation with the 13 challenges delegations by agreeing to delay voting in hopes some solution can be worked out.

Then later, a showdown on the issue was further put off until Friday morning after negotiations with some of the states showed progress toward a settlement.

The rules committee is one of three standing committees of the convention which will be meeting in Washington in the next few days to make final arrangements for the July 10 convention.

In New York, former Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford continued the roving Democratic platform hearings by offering a "short and simple" four-point plan to end the Indochina War.

It included a complete and immediate American troop withdrawal, the return of all U.S. prisoners held by the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong, an end to all military action on all sides and an agreement by the North (Continued on page 7)

Fund plan for states, cities OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House approved Thursday a plan to distribute about $30 billion in federal funds over five years to financially hard-pressed states and cities.

Passage by 274-122 vote was an election year victory for President Nixon who originally proposed letting local and state governments decide how to spend blocks of money collected through the federal tax system.

Governors, mayors and other local officials had lobbied in the House for the bill for over a year and Senate passage in some form is predicted.

If approved there, the bill would allocate this year $1.8 billion to the (Continued on page 14)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Men ordered drafted between July 1 and July 15 were given a chance Thursday to avoid the draft by joining the Reserves or National Guard or enlisting for two years' active duty.

This lets them in on a new policy by Selective Service that goes into effect July 1 giving future draftees such options after they have been sent their draft notices.

It's part of the effort to lure people into the Reserves and National Guard, which had long waiting lists of applicants in recent years but this year fell below strength by 40,000 as draft calls dropped sharply.

The men ordered to report early next month ordinarily would not have been able to take advantage of the options because a man must join the Reserve or National Guard or enlist no later than 10 days before he is due to be drafted.

Acting Draft Director Byron V. Pepitone told his draft boards to grant a 15-day delay for men with reporting dates between July 1 and July 15 who are actively being processed for any of the three options.

Pepitone said these men must locate unit vacancies on their own.

At present the only escape from the draft for a man who has received his draft notice is to enlist in one of the services for three years or longer. The Army and Marines are the only services that offer two-year enlistments, (Continued on page 6)

Day care decision deferred

By RAY ANDERSON
State News Staff Writer

A request for services and facilities to conduct a survey to determine the need for a day care center in East Lansing was deferred to the July 11 meeting by the city council Tuesday.

The majority of the council agreed that Susan Hook and Mary Anne Hering, who were representing the Action Committee for Quality Childcare, did not have sufficient evidence to convince the council that city funds for the survey were necessary or beneficial.

Hook and Hering explained to the council that their proposal was not to be construed as an effort to begin a day care center, but rather an effort to establish a concrete need for one.

Hook described the survey as a tool available for the use of groups interested in starting day care centers.

The survey would not be limited to documenting the number of preschool children in the community, she said, but, more importantly, to determine what parents needs and interests are, both educationally and economically.

Mayor Wilbur Brookover still expressed concern about the survey's exact function, however.

He was assured by Hood that a group of respected MSU researchers including Maryellen McSweeney, associate professor of counseling and personal services, and Ronald J. Horvath, asst. professor of geology, would assist in the survey.

Though Councilmen George L. Griffiths and

George A. Colburn supported the survey idea there was a continuing reluctance on the part of the other council members to fund a survey with funds or facilities paid for by taxpayers.

Councilman Robert Wilcox emphatically stated "I'm not interested in supporting the baby sitting industry." He added that he would only cast a yes vote all avenues of private, state and federal funding have been exhausted.

Testifying for the day care study group, Jack Wood, director of the Married Student Activity Unit, said that a well thought out survey would facilitate the implementation of a better child care program.

Hering later explained that was the group's primary thrust.

"Our plan is simply to conduct a survey that will document the need for quality childcare facilities in this community," she said. "How can we do something if we don't know there is a need, or where there is a need?"

The council decided to discuss the proposal at the July 11 meeting after they were assured by Hering that a format for the survey would be completed.

"There are no departmental records of antiwar groups but that doesn't mean an individual officer doesn't have a memory and or makes a note of it."

Delegates denied votes

Delegations from nine states are not being seated for voting purposes at Democratic National Convention committee meetings because they violate sex distribution guidelines.

States held not in compliance because they did not include enough women among their committee delegations are Arizona, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Illinois, Kansas, Minnesota, Washington, and West Virginia, Democratic National Committee press secretary Joseph E. Mohbat said.

The committees are meeting in advance of the Democratic National Convention which opens in Miami Beach July 10.

Unit may study secrecy

The Senate pressed Thursday for an early decision on how to handle secret documents.

By a voice vote, it instructed its Government Operations Committee to recommend by Aug. 7 whether to appoint a special bipartisan committee to study the problem.

"What we want is a set of guidelines so that senators will know how far they can go without violating any law," said Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I.

The issue was raised last April in an effort by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, to make public a secret Vietnam war study drafted in 1969 for President Nixon.

Japanese blasts N-tests

Japan charged Thursday that France and Communist China, by continuing to conduct nuclear tests in the atmosphere, increase international tension, contaminate the environment and ignore "the minimum moral duty" of atomic powers.

Addressing the Geneva disarmament conference, Japanese delegate Masahiro Nisibori urged the two nations to stop testing as soon as possible and voiced hope for their participation in the 10-year-old talks.

Nisibori commended the United States and the Soviet Union for the Moscow arms limitation agreement but accused the two countries of failing to work actively for a ban on underground nuclear tests.

U.S. to alter Viet force

The Pentagon said Thursday the U.S. command in Vietnam probably will be restructured and downgraded to an advisory group with fewer senior officers following the departure of Gen. Creighton W. Abrams Jr. as commander.

"We have a situation in Vietnam where we have phased down a long way and we will reach the stage where we do not need the same command structure as when we had half a million men there," said Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim.

"It may be that the change of command will provide the best time to restructure the command," Friedheim said. "Maybe we will not need so many commanding officers."

AMA avoids dispute

The American Medical Assn. (AMA) refused to act Thursday on a controversial issue of whether public or government representatives should have a say in monitoring doctors' medical practices and prices.

Acting on a motion from the California delegation, the AMA's House of Delegates referred the issue to the association's Council on Medical Service for further study. That delays consideration at least until December.

The AMA did adopt a strongly worded stand making it "unequivocally clear" that insurance companies must consult with organized medicine before determining "usual, customary and reasonable" fees.

Violence on campus viewed as out-of-date

CHICAGO (AP) — Clark Kerr, chairman of the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education, said Thursday "violence is passe" on the nation's college campuses.

"Students have found that violence is counterproductive," Kerr said at a news conference where he released a commission report on campus trends. Kerr said the report, which calls on the nation's colleges and universities to "humanize" higher education, clearly shows that the campus turmoil of the late 1960s was not caused by student dissatisfaction with campus life.

"The dissent and disruption was caused by awareness to great national issues," Kerr said, "...not that the campus was deteriorating."

The report, entitled "Reform on Campus: Changing Students, Changing Academic Programs," was based on a poll of 70,000 undergraduates, 30,000 graduate students and 60,000 faculty members in 1969-70. It showed students and faculty were generally satisfied with the campus despite a few specific complaints.

Kerr said the history of higher education shows activist trends on campus move between cycles of an "apathetic generation and an active generation."

That campuses are generally quiet, Kerr said, is not to mean that today's younger generation is apathetic but "there is more of a retreat into privatism on their part."

He said that although militant campus activity has leveled off, "it is at a higher plateau today than in the past."

The report, the commission's 14th since it was established in 1967, warned higher education to adjust itself to the individual desires and interests of students.

Russian critic pushes for rights bill, reforms

MOSCOW (AP) — Andrei D. Sakharov, father of the Soviet H-bomb and an outspoken critic of the Kremlin regime, proposed a bill of rights for the Soviet Union on Thursday and urged a massive redirection of Russia's economic and foreign policies.

The dissident nuclear physicist made public a sweeping reform program designed to democratize and liberalize Soviet society, which he claims is "threatened from inside by militarization of the economy and resurgence of Stalinist practices."

The paramount goal of the program, Sakharov said, is to protect human rights in the Soviet Union. The reform program, which he made available to some Western newsmen, consists of two signed documents: a "memorandum" dated March 5, 1971, and an "afterword" dated June 1972.

Sakharov said he sent the memorandum last year to the Soviet Communist party chief, Leonid I. Brezhnev. But, he wrote in the afterword, "It has gone unanswered. I do not consider it my right to further postpone its publication."

The scientist, cofounder of the unofficial Soviet Committee on Human Rights.

Soviet society, Sakharov wrote, "does not require a foreign policy whose purpose is external political stabilization or the widening of zones of influence or export of its ideas."

Sakharov condemned the Kremlin policy that permits military expenditures to eat up what he estimates is 40 per cent of the national income.

Sakharov's program included a detailed analysis of specific reforms that included:

- General amnesty for all political prisoners, including those sentenced on religious grounds, those incarcerated for trying to escape from the Soviet Union and those tried for escaping from labor camps.

- An end to close trials and review of all sentences made "in violation of the right to know."

- New laws and clarification of current regulations under which political dissenters are imprisoned in mental asylums.

- The drafting of a new press law that would be put to the people for national discussion on the basis "the right to know."

- An end to the jamming of foreign radio broadcasts
- Liberal access to foreign literature.

- Open borders for international travel and emigration.
- Reconsideration abolishing the death penalty.

- A "watchdog committee for the protection of the arrested, against physical methods of pressure, starvation, beatings, cold."

- An increase in the fight against alcoholism.

Sakharov bitterly denounced the "open secret privileges" of the government, party and cultural elite who "deeply indifferent violations of human rights." He suggested that salaries of officials be made public.

Cable TV firm questioned

By RAY ANDERSON
State News Staff Writer

East Lansing City Councilman George A. Colburn Thursday raised a question about the sincerity of National Cable Co. in maintaining a moratorium on expansion of their cable television system in the city. Colburn, who has been instrumental in drafting the city's proposed cable television ordinance, said the company is still obtaining rights from the Board of Water and Light and Michigan Bell Telephone Co. for the use of telephone poles. He considers this a violation of the moratorium National Cable Co. agreed to because the two utility companies have indicated they will rent the poles to only one company. Therefore any other company the city council may enfranchise under the provisions of the proposed ordinance would have to obtain the lease rights from National Cable Co.

National Cable Co. local attorney Lester Turner was unavailable for comment Thursday afternoon.

But Turner and Charles E. Norman, attorney for LVO Cable Inc., National's parent company, praised the city's 24 page document in a public hearing held Tuesday. The attorneys and LVO Executive Vice President Edward E. Drake suggested only one substantive change among numerous requests for word changing and technical suggestions.

That change involved a section the trio claimed would place the company's favored East Lansing position in jeopardy, which they hinted might necessitate company court action.

The company is presently operating under a licensing arrangement, where the proposed ordinance would require a cable firm to obtain a competitive council approved franchise. Norman said that under the planned arrangement the council could force them out of business and deprive National Cable Co. of their $500,000 local investment.

Colburn assured the attorneys and Drake that the council was not attempting to replace the firm but he could not assure them that a lower bid by some other firm would not be accepted.

Norman, Drake, and Turner explained that they would like to see the firm remain in East Lansing, but if forced to leave.

Colburn said that National Cable has the inside track on any franchise, but under the ordinance's stipulations any locally based nonprofit cable firm would get priority. No such company has yet been formed, however.

Colburn added that he was pleased with the lack of critical comment at the public hearing and indicated that the ordinance should be passed with little difficulty by mid-August.

The council has scheduled a cable workshop for August 9, when many of the technical and wording changes suggested by the attorney for National Cable Co. will probably be incorporated.

Milliken backs veterans' aid package

By RAY ANDERSON
State News Staff Writer

Gov. Milliken in a press conference Thursday urged legislative action on a proposed Vietnam-era education benefit package, which would mean $500 per year for veterans as early as next year.

The proposed state education package has been described as unique in the nation by the bill's sponsor, Sen. Harry A. DeMaso, R-Battle Creek.

In endorsing the $232 million state financed package the governor said, "it is in the public interest to meet obligations to what we all hope will be the last generation of American war veterans."

Financing for the veterans' benefits would come from a bonding measure which will be placed on the ballot in November if the legislature passes the bill. Milliken has been assured by legislative leaders and DeMaso, that the measure will pass. DeMaso attached the proposal to a similar pending Senate bill Thursday afternoon.

The legislature will have to pass the bill before conclusion of the present session July 1, if the bonding issue is to appear on the November ballot.

Should the bonding issue be approved by the public, Michigan Vietnam veterans could expect to receive in early 1973: • A $500 per year tuition grant for up to four years to all veterans who had served between Jan. 1, 1961 and Dec. 31, 1973. Estimated cost would be $93 million. • A one-time $500 bonus to veterans who, during the same period, served in the Vietnam theater, as described by the Dept. of Defense. The bonus would not be paid to those who receive educational benefits. Estimated cost for this program would be $131 million.

The governor explained that veterans who had served in Europe and the U.S. would be excluded from the bonus because these areas were not combat zones. The additional cost, which has been estimated at $100 million, was another factor.

Additional benefits in the proposed package include a $1 million dependency package for children of men who are missing in action or prisoners of war. The state would provide them with $2,000 per year for four years for educational purposes. The Veterans Trust Fund would also be amended to provide business loans of up to $1000 for Vietnam-era veterans. Upon passage of the bonding issue the legislature would be responsible for providing the annual appropriation of approximately $17 million that would be needed over a 20-year period to pay the principal and interest. The governor's staff and legislators have estimated that nearly one-third of Michigan's 250,000 expected Vietnam veterans will take advantage of the education package, which would extend the benefits under the requested money until 1980. The governor had chosen the December 1973 terminating date, he said, because he assumes the war will have been concluded by that time. The bill represents a compromise between Republicans and Democrats who had been pursuing separate education and bonus packages. In other remarks the governor said the recent decision by Federal District Judge Stephen Roth for cross district busing in Detroit's school districts would cost the state an additional sum approaching $100 million beyond the proposed 1972-73 budget. He added that he and his staff are working on financing of the busing order, but indicated it might require additional taxation. The governor noted these additional expenses will require a tough, hard approach to completion of the budget now being worked on by the legislature. Milliken said he would like to see some of those reductions come from the House-passed primary education bill, which far exceeded his requests. Milliken said he is favorably disposed to the social services bill which also exceeded his proposal.

Allied strikes stall North Viet attacks

GENEVA (AP) — Tank-led North Vietnamese troops broke through South Vietnam's northernmost defense line Thursday in the most serious drive in a month but contained with the intensity of the assault coupled with recent movement of North Vietnamese artillery toward the front at the My Chanh area, prompted speculation that the start of a major offensive might be underway. U.S. officials said it was too early to tell whether the assault marked a move on the former capital or an enemy attack against a 100-man South Vietnamese marine spoiling party launched last week.

including at least nine tanks in the fighting Thursday on both sides of the river. Early reports from the Saigon command said the paratroopers lost one man killed and nine wounded but field reports indicated the losses were higher. Sources said some South Vietnamese marines had pulled back from the main force that attacked North Vietnamese-held Quang Tri Province over the weekend. Others were said to be holding positions two or three miles north of the front.

A Viet Cong broadcast monitored in Saigon claimed hundreds of South Vietnamese troops captured during the conquest of the province had been released to return home. There was no indication however, they had appeared in friendly territory. A massive U.S. Air Force effort in the western part of the province rescued two downed American fliers Wednesday, U.S. spokesmen announced. One crewman on a rescue helicopter was wounded slightly in the operation. Both fliers went down on Tuesday the first in a Navy jet near the Laos border and the second in an Skyraider that was part of a 25-30 plane rescue armada.

American warplanes mounted more than 270 strikes Wednesday above the demilitarized zone, pounding supply, bridge and aircraft sites in the Haiphong area, the U.S. Command announced.

U.S. Air Force Phantoms escorted the bombing raids shot down a MIG21 in a dogfight about 50 miles northwest of Hanoi. It was the 38th MIG kill reported this year and the 149th of the war.

White flag budget unfurled

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird has suggested that if Sen. McGovern's defense budget of $55 billion is ever adopted, we might as well throw in the towel and spend a billion dollars for white flags which we will hoist all over the world.

On the basis of past performance of our defense contractors, $1 billion for white flags is a wholly unrealistic figure, and Laird knows it.

This is what might happen if the Defense Dept. let it be known that it was planning to contract for white flags to fly around the globe:

Washington, D.C., April 30, 1973 — The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee announced today that the Lockheed Flag Co. has been given a $1 billion contract to produce 500 white flags for the Defense Dept. The chairman denied the fact that Lockheed Flag was located in his district of Swampville, La., had anything to do with the company's winning the order.

Swampville, La., July 14, 1973 — The president of the Lockheed Flag Co. displayed a prototype of the WF1 (White Flag One) for the press this morning. The president said the WF1 would outperform any white flag now flying. It would be an all-weather flag which would fly at night as well as during the day, and could stand gusts of wind up to 100 miles an hour. Lockheed Flag said it hoped to have the WF1 in production in 10 months.

Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., June 15, 1974 — The first WF1 was tested here today and Defense Dept. officials announced they were very pleased with the results. The WF1 flew at an altitude of 23 feet for three hours. Although it showed some fabric fatigue under stress, Lockheed Flag engineers said the damage was minimal, and easily could be repaired.

Swampville, La., Sept. 2, 1974 — The president of Lockheed Flag announced today that due to increased labor costs, fabric fatigue and hikes in flagpole ropes, his company would not be able to fulfill its WF1 contract for $1 billion. He said he was asking for a supplementary $800 million, which was still a bargain for the country.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 15, 1974 — The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee said he was recommending the $800 million overrun for the WF1 as the security of the nation was at stake. He also said he was adding $100 million extra for Christmas bonuses for Lockheed Flag executives.

Anchorage, Alaska, March 8, 1975 — Two WF1s crashed to the ground yesterday and Pentagon investigators suspect the wooden flagpoles used to fly the white flags were at fault. Termites were found in both flagpoles, and the Defense Dept. has grounded all WF1s until a new aluminum flagpole could be designed.

Swampville, La., May 11, 1975 — The president of the Lockheed Flag Co. said he would need another $1 billion to replace the flagpoles in the WF1. He said it was the Defense Dept.'s insistence on wooden flagpoles that caused the overrun, and he would need the money immediately if the white flags were to be delivered on schedule.

Washington, D.C., May 12, 1975 — Sen. William Proxmire called the WF1 the biggest Defense Dept. bungle of the year and suggested the contract be cancelled.

Testifying in front of Proxmire's committee, the president of Lockheed Flag said that if he doesn't get $1 billion immediately, his company would go bankrupt and not only would this create a hardship for stockholders but it would put people out of work.

Washington, D.C., Sept. 11, 1975 — Congress, at the urging of the White House, voted today to give Lockheed Flag Co. $1 billion to complete work on the WF1 and to lend it another $1 billion to develop a new multiwhite flag project which would fly six white flags from the same flagpole at the same time.

Swampville, La., Nov. 9, 1975 — The president of Lockheed Flag Co. announced today that because of a strike he was asking the Defense Dept. for another ...

Trustees should pass marijuana ordinance

The board of trustees should follow the example of the East Lansing City Council, which Tuesday passed an ordinance calling for a minimum fine of $5 for use or possession of marijuana in East Lansing.

The city ordinance, introduced by city Councilman George Colburn, one of East Lansing's student-oriented councilmen, provides a graduated penalty for use or possession of marijuana. A second offense would cost an individual $10, while any subsequent offense would be punishable by a $100 fine.

While the ordinance is far from the perfect solution, the four council members who voted in favor of the new ordinance are to be commended for doing the best they could given the present state statute.

Unfortunately, the East Lansing ordinance has no jurisdiction over the campus where ordinances are approved by the board of trustees.

The establishment of such an ordinance on the MSU campus might affect the voting tendencies of the 18- to 21-year-olds. And it has been proven in the East Lansing City Council and the presidential primary elections that students do exercise the right to vote.

Voter turnout in the student precincts was 75 per cent for the city council election and ranged from 79 per cent to 59 per cent in the presidential primary election. In the city council election Councilmen George Griffiths and George Colburn, who launched a youth-oriented campaign, were elected by a considerable margin. Though the rest of Ingham County voted for George Wallace in the presidential primary, East Lansing and Meridian Township gave George McGovern 90 per cent of the Democratic votes cast — enough to swing the entire county for McGovern.

While the student vote should not be the only reason for passing such an ordinance on campus, trustees Clair A. White, D-Bay City, and Frank Hartman, R-Flint, who face re-election in the fall, cannot afford to ignore that factor.

The trustees should also note that, though the establishment of such an ordinance on campus would not necessarily convince students to stay in the residence halls, the more liberal East Lansing marijuana ordinance coupled with the present restrictive campus policy can only serve as yet another goal to drive students toward off campus living.

The trustees kept abreast of the changing times when they passed the ordinance permitting persons over 18-years-old to consume liquor on campus in the residence halls. They should maintain this attitude by not letting the city of East Lansing make them look like antiquarians concerning marijuana.

HHH again

There is a certain madness which grips losing presidential hopefuls as the years slip by them and the noose of oblivion starts to tighten around their necks. Hubert Humphrey serves as the latest example of this political fact of life.

Humphrey's attacks on his one-time personal friend George McGovern began to increase as the primary results showed McGovern leaving Humphrey far behind on his way to the nomination. But Humphrey reached the sublime Tuesday when he described McGovern as a candidate of the establishment.

At a New Orleans news conference, the very, very hopeful said that McGovern was a candidate of the establishment because of his "unpopular" views on welfare, defense and taxes. Humphrey said McGovern has the support of the affluent suburbs, upper income blacks and the university group.

"That's the establishment," Humphrey said.

Humphrey, of course, is a true populist and wants nothing to do with such "establishment" groups. His support, now as in 1968, comes from the spokesmen of "the people" like Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

The sad part about such talk is that Humphrey, once a true champion of liberal causes, may even start to believe it. But somehow it seems unlikely that Eugene McCarthy or George McGovern ever will.

TRB FROM WASHINGTON

Congress, people losing power

BY RICHARD LEE STROUT

We are having lunch six miles up — sky full of popcorn clouds. "Red or white?" asks the pretty Malaysian hostess in a stunning oriental dress. We left the Singapore Hilton at 6 a.m. and will end in Honolulu at some incomprehensible hour, for with this International Date Line you never know whether it is yesterday, today or tomorrow. The captain's voice over the intercom says casually, "on our left the Mekong Delta."

We are fighting a depersonalized war down there, to save our national honor. Mr. Nixon has said he isn't going to be the first President to lose a war. The Harris poll says 79 per cent want a U.S. pullout but, on the other hand, 45 per cent (to 38 per cent) would oppose peace by accepting a coalition government that included Communists.

The fields of Vietnam are being scientifically cratered. It's a small country but even at that Mr. Laird says it will cost us $3 to $5 billion more to do the job. Between 1965 and 1971 bombing dug some 26 million craters with an average depth of 25 feet and diameter of 40 feet. Along with that herbicide spraying killed perhaps half the hardwood forest west and north of Saigon, and maybe half of all the mangrove forests.

There has been a price for this at home, of course, of helplessness and frustration, of dejection and despair. Worse still, probably, is the loss of confidence of many people in their institutions and their government. A lot of people have avoided this simply by closing their minds to the war; tuning it out.

America is in this fix, I think, partly because of our odd form of government. More and more we have been getting away from the responsibility in Washington, massing power at the top, largely the president. The abdication of authority by Congress has been most conspicuous change in years. Congress has been found unnecessary element in carrying this war, and so has the press, and finally has the public. They all opt the war but it goes on. The important factors are the Pentagon and the President.

When Mr. Nixon was in Moscow Comrade Brezhnev must have enhanced his power. Comrade Brezhnev doesn't go through our election process, but he has to clear a lot of things with others. The American President can order an invasion of Cambodia on his own.

Franklin Roosevelt had two conferences a week; Mr. Nixon's last formal one June 1, 1971; over a year ago. Jeer if you want to press, but it is a safeguard of democracy; it links the President to reality. The Nixon administration deliberately set out to downgrade Mr. Nixon is the most isolated President since Hoover. That is trouble with our system of election, particularly where we have a man who is reclusive, introspective, lacking warm and relationships with the public. The problem goes deeper than Mr. Nixon. We have elevated the symbolic office of the Presidency so that we it must not be tarnished; it must be diminished by military defeat, must save face.

Mall display cruel to animals

To the Editor:
To the promotion director, Meridian Mall:

I cannot help but write this letter in hopes for better exhibits than you displayed on June 7.

I graduated from MSU last year, and have used the facilities of Meridian Mall consistently while living in East Lansing and when returning for visits, which I frequently do. My present complaint centers around a zoo exhibit which apparently subjects animals to cruel and unnatural treatment.

To quote my mother, who upon returning from East Lansing with my two younger brothers:

"We were going to the new Meridian Mall Big Boy for lunch and stopped to see the animal exhibit within the Meridian Mall. The man who ran the display was angered because a baby elephant was pushing its small cyclone fence enclosure out of its proper area. The man hit the baby elephant on the head with a broomstick then twisted its tail until it dropped to its knees. The animal was whimpering and squealing. The man said the elephant needed to be disciplined because she was bad. The boys were quite upset and I have never seen an animal treated so cruelly. One monkey was screaming in a cage that was way too small. College students are hired to clean up any mess left by the animals. The whole exhibit was cruel."

I hope Meridian Mall has had other complaints of this nature concerning this exhibit, although I imagine they would take these things in stride. Last year I witnessed a rooster that played the piano and some other "fowl acts" that responded to the drop of a quarter. The site of this demonstration was, again, Meridian Mall.

My brothers left the Meridian Mall rough and ready to rip the mall off. I don't blame them. The pet store is disgusting. The exhibits are rarely this bad, though that's no excuse. Please try to exercise restraint. You have already lost four customers.

Correction

To the Editor:
On June 1, 1972, your newspaper published a report under the heading "Course in African Studies Added" (page 6). The report dealt at length with the outcome of the African-American National Conference on Africa, recently held in Washington, D.C.

Specific mention was made of certain "indictments" issued against South Africa at the conference. Here I would like to point out that South Africa is not adverse to criticism, however, it is an entirely different matter when outright lies are utilized to enrage an unsuspecting audience.

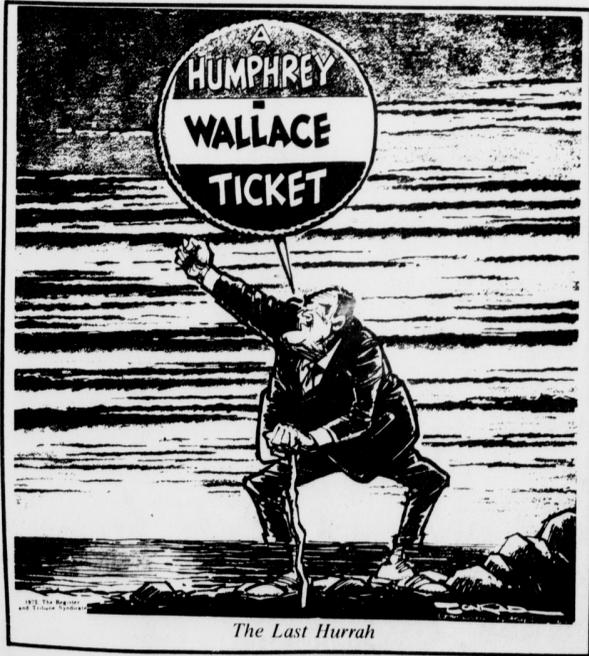

The statement regarding infant deaths, for example, is so devoid of any substance that it verges on the ridiculous! Fact is that South Africa's population increased by more than 30 per cent in the decade 1960-70 — with black South Africans leading by far in percentage population growth.

It is also claimed that a "24 hour work absence" is a "criminal offense" in South Africa. Perhaps the conferees had some other part of Africa in mind. We do sometimes get blamed for atrocities far beyond our borders in newly independent Africa.

If your readers are really interested in South Africa and wish to go beyond the smoke-screen of hate and unfounded criticism, this office would be only too willing to assist with facts.

SENATE BID

Kelley moves to omit busing issue in race

Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley appears to be trying to eliminate busing as an issue in his senate race against U.S. Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich. Kelley said flatly Tuesday he formally announced the candidacy he has been building towards for years. Griffin quickly aligned himself with antibusing forces when it became an issue in the Detroit area.

The strategy appears to be for Kelley to say, in effect, "We're both equally against busing, so look in other areas when you decide which of us you like." He will attempt to picture himself as a friend of business and large corporations with himself as a friend of the little man.

The attorney general made no mention of busing in his announcement, but was well prepared for the inevitable questions on the subject from newsmen which followed the reading of the statement.

"I am against busing because I believe it is a false answer to a real problem in this country — the bankrupt system in this country and its obvious inequality," he said. "I do not believe that busing as contemplated by the implementation of Judge (Stephen) Roth's decision, for example, is the solution."

He said the statement signed last year by Democratic leaders, including himself, which endorsed busing as a "limited tool" was "never intended to imply endorsement of massive cross-district busing. That was in the context of using it in a single school district as a limited tool. I have been opposed to Judge Roth's finding from the beginning."

Kelley said, "There are those who have been trying to use this issue to divide the people of this state along racial lines, to divert their attention from the real issues that are facing Michigan, and are trying to use it to perpetuate themselves in political power."

When asked if Griffin was using the busing issue politically, Kelley said "yes."

Kelley also disassociated himself from the amnesty resolution passed a week ago by the Democratic state convention.

"I do not believe a person who chose not to serve should have the same considerations as one who did serve," he said. "Amnesty traditionally has been used to bind wounds and we certainly need binding of wounds in this nation as a result of that tragic war. But I would only favor amnesty so far as to allow those who left the country to be given a chance to come back and do two years' service in a nonviolent capacity."

Everything's free

Freestore plans Tuesday opening

By LINDA WERFELMAN
State News Staff Writer

The Freestore, a receiving and distribution center for free used books, clothing, furniture and other goods, will officially open Tuesday.

"We're not geared to the poor people, we're geared to people who need something. If President Wharton goes over and finds some books he needs, he can have them," Levon Buller, Lansing graduate student and Freestore publicity director, said Thursday.

The store, located in Quonset Hut 82, occupies space loaned to it by the Office of Black Affairs.

The Freestore has operated on an informal basis for several weeks, though regular hours will not begin until next week when it will be open from 1 to 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The store will extend its hours when more volunteers join the staff, Buller said.

Staff volunteers have collected goods for several weeks, he said. "I was really surprised at the good quality of goods we've gotten because I was expecting a bunch of junk," he added. "But we have stuff here that has never been used."

Some donations, including some old clothes, that have been discarded because of the problems that would be involved in restoring them to usable conditions, Buller continued.

"We want stuff that's already in good condition because we don't have the people to repair things," he said.

The store already has received a large number of donations, Buller said, adding, "We've had a pretty good response in getting things, but now we need people to come in and use them."

Many people have been reluctant to take goods from the store unless they have had articles to offer in return, Buller said.

The concept of the Freestore began last December, when several people suggested that an organization form to provide free Christmas presents for the children of poor parents, he added.

Additional information may be obtained from the Office of Volunteer Programs, 26 Student Services Bldg.

Busing panel meets secretly

By ROBERT BERG
United Press International

A nine-member panel established to draw up a desegregation plan for the Detroit public schools held its first meeting behind closed doors Wednesday.

After the meeting, members from both Detroit and the suburbs said they expect to meet the 45-day deadline established for them to draw up a plan last week by Federal District Judge Stephen Roth.

"I think the feeling of the panel is that we're going to try as hard as we can to meet his deadline and it appears we'll be able to meet it," Aubrey McCutcheon, a Detroit board of education member who served as temporary chairman of the panel said. A second meeting was scheduled for today in Detroit.

McCutcheon said the panel is "trying to reach a consensus on what we are going to do. We are dedicated to try to come up with that which conforms with the ruling of the judge. The atmosphere of the panel was such that we don't look for any major disagreements on the panel."

Oakland County Intermediate School District Supt. William J. Emerson also said he expects an agreement will be reached. But Emerson, appointed to represent suburban interests, said he would prefer to have the meetings of the panel open to the public.

"The more people know what goes on in these instances, the less apprehensive they're going to be," he said.

McCutcheon said Wednesday's session, however, involved organization work "that was not the kind of thing we felt could best be handled in a public meeting."

"We don't want to raise questions in the mind of the public that need not be raised because we may discard various ideas that will be brought up," he said. "I'm sure there will be some public meetings of the panel but most of the meetings will be in executive session."

Earlier in the day State Supt. of Public Instruction John Porter said a large-scale busing plan could be implemented for Detroit and 51 suburban school districts named in Roth's order only "if you intend to raise havoc with the operations of schools."

Porter, who has been assigned by Judge Roth to formulate a plan to finance the desegregation, said it is too late in the year to begin ordering new school buses for use in September.

Coalition backs three ven county official race

Three candidates for county offices were endorsed by the Coalition for Human Survival Wednesday.

The Coalition put their support behind Terry Luke, East Lansing special student, for Ingham County sheriff; Greg Madde-Lansing senior, for Ingham County drain commissioner; and John Veenstra, East Lansing doctoral student, for Ingham County commissioner from the 6th District.

At 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Union the coalition will hold a meeting to discuss an endorsement for county commissioner from the 9th District and the Coalition's preliminary platform. The group is working to finalize the platform in the near future.

A July 5 meeting is also scheduled to discuss future policies.

No-fault law will help police, Parsell says

PONTIAC (UPI) — Enactment of no-fault automobile insurance will relieve police officers from being forced to act as judge and jury in every accident case, the president of the Police Officers Assn. of Michigan (POAM) said.

In a statement Thursday, Carl Parsell voiced the support of the organization for the no-fault insurance proposal which is currently pending in the Michigan legislature.

POAM is a statewide organization of about 6,000 police officers.

He also said no-fault insurance "would necessarily lead to less police involvement in accident court cases and make policemen more accessible for criminal work."

Coverage eyed on sterilization

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL
Legislation which would require Michigan Blue Shield to cover voluntary sterilization was submitted in the Senate Thursday by Sen. Gilbert Bursley, R-Ann Arbor.

Blue Shield currently pays for out-patient vasectomies, the male sterilization operation, if medically necessary. It does not cover voluntary sterilization, however, for either a man or a woman who wish to limit their family size. Bursley said the policy for women is based on obscure and arbitrary considerations.

"Voluntary sterilization should be available to everyone who wishes to limit their families," Bursley said. "Unless the procedure is covered by insurance, it is the poor who will suffer most by facing the full cost of the operation or the alternative of additional, unplanned children," he said.

Blue Shield pays for voluntary sterilization in most other states, he said.

Blue Shield would save money and improve its service by including voluntary sterilization in its medical coverage, a spokesman for a National Voluntary Sterilization Group said Wednesday. Courtland Hastings, a field director for the Assn. for Voluntary Sterilization, Inc., said 38 of the 47 states with a Blue Shield program offer full coverage for both male and female sterilization.

"It's amazing, since Michigan has a reputation as a progressive state," Hastings said. "But it's dragging its feet in the area of voluntary sterilization."

Consumer loan rate seen stable

By LAURANCE F. STUNTZ
Associated Press Writer

Interest rates generally are inching up, but though the rise is bad news for most businessmen, consumer loans and mortgage rates shouldn't be affected.

In fact, some experts even say mortgage rates might be a little lower by the end of the year.

The higher charge is showing up both in the interest which banks pay savers and in the rate they charge borrowers. The latest big jump is in Britain, where the basic lending rate went up a whopping 1 per cent Thursday, from 5 to 6 per cent. This makes it the highest rate in any industrial country, even above France's 5.75 per cent. The U.S. equivalent rate is 4.5 per cent.

But U.S. rates are going up because of increased economic activity, not as a spill-over from the European trend. The big jump in British rates was due to fears about devaluation of the pound — the British government raised the rates to make it more profitable to buy sterling and get interest on it. This should increase the demand for pounds and thus make them worth more.

Banks in the United States already are paying higher rates to big depositors and charging more for loans to business. So far this trend has not affected the American who wants a mortgage to buy a house or a loan to buy a car.

"Mortgage loan demands might even go down as housing starts taper off," said Franklin R. Saul, former asst. secretary of the treasury. Housing construction this year has been running at the rate of 2.3 million buildings a year, compared to 2.1 million last year. However, it is expected to decrease toward the end of this year. With fewer houses being built, there would be less demand for mortgage money and rates could be expected to go down fractionally.

The American public is now saving almost 8 per cent of its income. Even if this percentage goes down, it will still supply plenty of money to be loaned by banks. For another, business loan rates are subject to short-term demand in cycles, whereas consumer loans lag behind by several months.

Though the interest charged on the 3-month type of loans used by business is "firming up, I'm not sure this will have any impact on consumer type loans this year," Saul said. There seems to be little danger the rise in interest rates on sterling — you'll pay 17 borrow pounds will spill over into the lenders who think pounds will be devalued higher interest to cover risk. People who already own pounds are selling to buy dollars. This raised the value of the dollar in most European markets.

IN MIAMI BEACH COURT

Gays acclaim dress ruling

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two Miami Beach ordinances outlawing female impersonation were struck down Thursday, prompting cheers of "bring out the gowns" from gay activist leaders who feared arrest at national political conventions in Miami Beach.

U.S. District Court Judge William O. Mehrtens ruled the two laws invalid on grounds they were vague, overbroad and discriminated against men. He enjoined police from basing arrests on them.

"You mean you're not in drag yet, honey?" Charles

A. Lamont, 30, exulted, "spokesperson" for the National Coalition of Gay Organizations, on the courthouse lawn immediately following the ruling.

Robert Barry, 26, president of the Gay Activist Alliance of Miami and Lamont's roommate, shouted "bring out the gowns!" and a colleague quickly responded by pulling from a brown paper bag a sequined, black velvet gown.

Mehrtens' hearing featured testimony by Miami Beach Police Chief Rocky Pomerance, a 250-pounder who was given a "male or female" quiz on various items of wearing apparel by Bruce Rogow of Miami, attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union.

Rogow filed the suit which led to the ruling for the ACLU in behalf of Lamont and Barry.

One law stricken by the judge made it illegal for a man to impersonate a woman; the second outlaws a man "wearing a dress not becoming to his sex."

City officials said no decision was made immediately to appeal the ruling or seek enactment of new ordinances. The city council is scheduled to meet Friday.

Rogow said gay liberationists had already been threatened with a demonstration by Pomerance's men. He said a June 5 preconcert demonstration was off because Maj. C. Schuler told him, "I'm ready for you."

Lamont testified expected 6,000 brothers and sisters Miami Beach for the July 14 Democratic Convention and the Aug. 21 Republican gathering. However, he said Mehrtens' ruling "is going to have effect" on the crowd.

He said homosexuals planned to attend demonstrate for rights homosexuals, to contact delegates and to inclusion of promissory planks in party platform.

Unit studies plans to curb food costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council debated a recommendation for "firm and immediate action" to slow the rise in food prices Thursday, but there was no indication the council was ready to act.

The options are still wide open, sources within the council said, despite the recommendation of the Price Commission Wednesday night to extend government controls to raw agricultural products.

Council sources said a number of possibilities are under consideration.

The commission has been free to act independently on items in the marketplace not singled out for exemption, but had to go to the parent council for clearance to move on food prices.

Government economists say they are worried that slapping controls on food prices would sharply diminish the supply, particularly of meat, a commodity which has experienced high wholesale price rises in recent weeks.

Those increases are expected to be reflected sharply in retail prices in June.

One solution, a council source said, would be to extend price controls to the retail and wholesale levels, without any controls at the farm. Another alternative would be a temporary freeze on farm products.

But economists wonder whether any of these would work since retailers and wholesalers include reports that their profit margins are extremely narrow.

Six killed in shooting spree

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — A man went on a shooting spree in two office buildings Wednesday afternoon, shooting at bystanders as they ran for cover, police said.

Six persons were killed and several others were wounded, Public Safety Director Wallace Peters said. Earlier a spokesman for Gov. William T. Cahill said seven were dead, but Peters said this was wrong.

Police Chief Frank Jones said the gunman identified as Edwin J. Grace, 33, of Brooklyn, N.Y., shot himself in the neck and stomach and was taken from one of the office buildings to a hospital along with other wounded persons before authorities realized who he was.

The gunfire erupted shortly after 3 p.m. in the office building on North Kings Highway. Police said the gunman, armed with a .22-caliber automatic and a sawed-off weapon believed to be a shotgun, opened fire in the building.

Several young women in the GMA Co., located in the building, escaped injury as the gunman ran along a first-floor corridor.

One man who was wounded slightly notified police.

Several persons were shot in the building, and the gunman then ran across the street to Heritage House, another office building, and continued firing rapidly. More persons were shot there.

Police cordoned off the area and ambulances began speeding to the scene.

Police said that Grace was wearing a jacket with a patch on it that read "Court Clerk, N.Y."

shot my boss in the head and he hit the floor. And he shot the guy sitting in front of me a couple times in the back.

"The other three of us grabbed chairs and crowded into the corner of a small room begging him not to shoot us, but he kept on firing and he kept saying 'Don't move, don't move.' He was a maniac."

Ashmen said the man kept reloading his handgun.

Police fired tear gas into the corridor of the two-story Heritage House as soon as they arrived, and the gunfire ended a short time later. When police and ambulance crews moved in, they found wounded persons sprawled about the first floor. Among them was Grace, who was carried out on a stretcher.

New York City police said Grace, who had a taxi license in that city, had no arrest record.

William J. Brennan Jr.

The dissenters, Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. and Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, complained that the decision gives unions and corporations "a heretofore unrecognized opportunity to influence elections in this country."

The decision set aside the conviction of Pipefitters Local 562 in St. Louis and three of its officials charged by the Justice Department with conspiring to make hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of illegal contributions.

The government argued that union campaign funds must not be controlled by the union or serve its purposes. But the court said "such a fund must be separate from the sponsoring union only in the sense that there must be a strict segregation of its monies from union dues and assessments."

Brennan's majority opinion continued: "Nowhere... has Congress required that the political organization be formally or functionally independent of union control or that union officials be barred from soliciting contributions or even precluded from determining how the monies raised will be spent."

Powell, in dissent, predicted the decision

"opens the way for major participation in politics by the largest aggregations of economic power, the great unions and corporations" at a time when the public and Congress are interested in limiting "the influence upon the elective process of concentrations of wealth and power."

In the third ruling, the court said war protesters could be barred from distributing handbills in a 50-acre shopping center in Portland, Ore.

Justice Powell, delivered the 5-4 decision, said property does not lose its private character "merely because the public is generally invited to use it for designated purposes."

Dem delegations question makeup

... believe that by the time of our final withdrawal from Vietnam would have ended," Clifford said in urging the Democrats to adopt the plan as major campaign plank.

While the skirmishing before O'Hara's rules committee in Washington is a sign of things to come, the major battle over seating will take place at the credentials committee meeting next week when challenges to seating at Miami Beach will be heard. But the new rules for selecting Democratic delegates also require a balance between men and women on the three standing committees.

The delegates elected to the committees by 13 states have been refused certification by the Democratic National Committee on this basis, as well as the general delegations from nine states. O'Hara ran into difficulties as soon as he called the rules committee into session and tried to have it elect a permanent chairman. He is the temporary chairman and his election as chairman is a mere formality.

Delegates from Arizona, Florida and Illinois objected to the committee taking any action until the seating question is resolved, but agreed not to press the fight as long as no votes were taken.

Other states involved in the dispute are Alaska, Connecticut, Georgia, Hawaii, Kansas, Maryland, Mississippi, Rhode Island, Washington and West Virginia.

McGovern nears first-ballot victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sen. George McGovern marched to the threshold of the Democratic presidential nomination for the White House Wednesday with a near sweep in New York's climactic presidential primary.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy declared flatly and "as finally as I can" that under no circumstances would he accept a spot on the national ticket in 1972.

And Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, sharply critical of McGovern's position, has said he could spell electoral disaster, rated the South Dakota senator a 3 to 1 favorite for nomination, but maintained that he does not have it wrapped up.

The outcome that took shape Wednesday after a long, laggard count of the complex and confusing ballot in the Tuesday New York primary showed McGovern had captured 225 delegates of 248 at stake.

That meant his supporters had won all but 12 of the delegate races they contested, and it also meant McGovern will gain another bloc of New York delegates Saturday, to push his state total to at least 250.

The Democratic state committee will choose 30 delegates then to complete a 278-vote delegation, biggest at the Democratic National Convention, with the selections to be in proportion to the primary verdict.

After that, only 42 Democratic delegates remain to be selected.

The New York competition, in which McGovern was the only major candidate and his opposition came largely from uncommitted entries turned out this way:

McGovern — 225 delegates.
Uncommitted — 17 delegates.

Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York — four delegates.
Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine — one delegate. A Muskie supporter was ahead in the only undecided contest.

McGovern forces said at least five of the uncommitted delegates will in fact vote for their man on the first convention ballot.

McGovern himself said in Washington that by midnight Saturday, he expects to have 1,407 first-ballot nominating votes. It will take 1,509 to nominate when the Democratic National Convention begins balloting in Miami Beach in three weeks.

The Associated Press count of nationwide delegate strength as of Wednesday showed:

McGovern — 1,300.3
Humphrey — 384.3
Gov. George C. Wallace — 371.

Muskie — 227.05
Uncommitted — 506.4.

The McGovern force hoped to pry loose the delegates for first-ballot nomination by seeking delegates now uncommitted, or aligned with other entries.

Kennedy, who had left open the possibility he might accept second place on a McGovern ticket if he was convinced that it would be essential to a Democratic victory, closed it with a statement in Washington.

He said the statement was issued in response to a New York Times story on the call of Matthew Troy, a Queens Democratic leader, for a "legitimate, full blown" vice presidential draft of the Massachusetts senator.

The Kennedy statement: "Because of a story which appeared in the New York Times this morning, and in order to prevent any further speculation on the part of the press or any doubt in the minds of the delegates to the Democratic National Convention, or the public, I wish to repeat and state as finally as I can that there are no circumstances under which I would accept a nomination for any national office this year."

McGovern told a New York news conference he would not make any judgments about a vice presidential candidate until the convention.

Later, in Washington, he said "I take Sen. Kennedy at his word. I'm not going to try to sandbag the senator in any way."

McGovern said it would be "premature and out of order" for him to say more about the vice presidency. He said the New York outcome was "better than even we expected," and that on election night he was sure he would win the nomination in Miami Beach.

Humphrey, in Washington, said McGovern probably would fall short of first-ballot victory. The 1968 nominee rated his own chances of winning nomination at one in four.

"He is far out in front but far out in front does mean he has it wrapped up," Humphrey said. "I'm a candidate. I am staying in a candidate."

UPSET STUNS REP

Celler's loss spurs recount

NEW YORK (AP) — Emanuel Celler, dean of the House of Representatives, said Wednesday he will demand a recount of a 30-year-old committee woman's hair-line victory in the Democratic primary. Celler has represented a Brooklyn district in Congress for 50 years.

Stunned by Elizabeth Holtzman's 562-vote upset Tuesday, Celler, 84, said he has not decided whether to run as the Liberal party candidate. He was seeking his 26th term, a longer period than any congressman in history.

Her vote was 15,557; his 14,995.

"I haven't made up my mind what to do after the recount yet," Celler said.

"It's too early," Holtzman, a Radcliffe and Harvard Law School graduate who campaigned under a "new politics" banner, told jubilant supporters Wednesday that "seniority is less important than service."

She added: "No incumbent, no matter how deeply entrenched, can ignore the demands of the people. . . . No district, no matter how brazenly gerrymandered, can protect him from those demands."

Celler was first elected to Congress in 1922 and was unopposed for the Democratic nomination until 1968, when he easily obtained it.

The son of a wine merchant, he sold wine by the barrel to work his way through Columbia College and Columbia Law School.

He has helped write liberal legislation, including the Civil Rights Acts of 1957, 1960 and 1964.

Should he fail to win a 26th term in November, Celler would be succeeded as chairman of the House Judiciary Committee by Rep. Peter Rodina, D-N.J.

Only Carl Vinson of Georgia ever served as long as Celler. Describing his margin of defeat as "very narrow," Celler said, "What's in mind of the voters I didn't express to me?"

Holtzman termed victory a "political miracle."

Celler was the incumbent Democratic congressman in the state who failed to repulse insurgent challenger.

But in two hot Democratic incumbent were thrown against another through redistricting.

Rep. S. Abzug, battling first-term federal liberal, suffered a 2-1 defeat by Rep. William Ryan in a new Manhattan Bronx district.

In the Bronx, Rep. James Scheuer lost by 4,775 to his friend and fellow liberal, Rep. Jonathan Bingham, in a largely Jewish district.

Area residents asked to aid in local projects

The Volunteer Bureau has released a list of projects requiring area volunteers. Interested individuals may contact the bureau at 27 Student Services Bldg., or may call 353-4400 to offer their services.

The Freestore is open. Anybody who would like books, clothes, candles, infants' items, cameras, kitchen utensils, and many other articles stop by and pick it up — for free. Volunteers are needed so that the store can be open more hours per week.

A halfway house for teenage boys has six of its residents taking a drivers' education course this summer. The course lasts for eight weeks and ends Aug. 5. The boys need tutoring help because of reading problems.

Several people are needed to help these boys pass the course and get their driver's licenses.

About 20 people are needed for a recreational program on Wednesday evenings at the Boys' Training School in Lansing. They are looking for both men and women to plan ping pong, shoot baskets, and engage in other recreational activities as well as just talk and be friends with the boys. Transportation is provided for this request.

Community Mental

Health is looking for people-oriented volunteers to work in a vocational experience program with retarded adults.

In this program, the stress is on the client as a worthwhile human being and an atmosphere is created for positive staff and client growth.

Theater groups will hold auditions

The Summer Circle Free Theater of MSU and the Story Dance Theater for children will hold open auditions at 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the Arena Theater of the MSU Auditorium.

Directors Peter Moss and Barbara Rutledge need actors, singers, and dancers of all ages.

Summer Circle Free Theater will present "Lyle" July 22. This play, written by Robert Sommerfeld, will be its first production on the outdoor stage in Kresge Commons. Moss describes it as a light comedy with a revue structure.

The Story Dance Theater will present two productions in Lansing area parks during the last week of July and the week of August. They will also be presented in performances at the Okemos Barn Theater July 20-21. Rutledge has created the scripts out of familiar folk fairy tales to be acted, danced, and sung in a typical children's vaudeville show.

Auditions are open to anyone interested in participating in these productions.

House gets mud bath

A river of mud poured in the back door of the Ernest W. Craig home in Black Mountain, N.C., about 2 a.m. Wednesday and swept through the house as the

Tropical storm strikes on East Coast, kills 26

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tropical storm Agnes thrashed the Eastern seaboard with up to a foot of rain and gusting winds Thursday, causing widespread flooding, forcing evacuation of communities, and disabling transportation, power and communications.

Twenty-six deaths were attributed to the storm. An "extreme emergency" was declared in Pennsylvania, where the former hurricane dumped seven inches of rain. It sent the Susquehanna River's tributary waters spilling over banks and took seven lives. At least 10 persons were reported missing.

The National Weather Service broadcast a flash flood watch through midnight for southeastern New York and New England, except Maine, as the storm seethed north from Florida and North Carolina.

Residents of Olean, N.Y., just over the Pennsylvania border and south of Buffalo, were warned to expect the "worst flood ever." The Allegheny River rushed over a 10 1/2-foot flood wall, inundating a residential area. Rescuers used boats to evacuate townspeople there.

Not far away, the entire hamlet of Almond, N.Y., was evacuated.

All roads into Baltimore from the south were impassable because of high water, and officials recommended evacuation of the northwest portion of the city for fear that a dam holding back Lake Roland might break.

There were four dead elsewhere in Maryland, with 15,000 persons evacuated. Baltimore police reported water as high as eight feet in northern areas.

Amtrak cancelled train service south of Philadelphia, but airplanes were flying. In central Pennsylvania, a 63-car freight train plunged into a swollen creek when a bridge collapsed. Two trainmen escaped.

Government workers in Washington, which recorded up to 12 inches of rain, were told to stay home if they had trouble getting to work.

Various bridges in the nation's capital and several roads were knocked out. About 200 buses were flooded and unusable.

IN YEAR-OLD INCIDENT

U.S. charges 5 Klansmen

DETROIT (UPI) — The former Grand Dragon of the Michigan Ku Klux Klan and four Klansmen were charged Thursday in last year's tarring and feathering of a high school principal trying to improve race relations at his school.

It was the second federal indictment against Robert Miles, 46, of Howell, now Klud, or chaplain, or the Michigan Realm of the United Klans of America, in connection with problems associated with the integration of schools.

Miles faces trial with four other men in the bombing-burning of 10 school buses in Pontiac last Aug. 30, a week before court-ordered busing of schoolchildren began.

The five men charged Thursday were accused of waylaying R. Wiley Brownlee, principal of Willow Run High School, on his way home from a school board meeting April 1, 1971.

Brownlee was forced to stop on a lovers' lane road when a car was parked in front of a narrow bridge. He said a car following him then stopped and its occupants forced him to march to the side of the road.

The men took a five-gallon can of tar and poured it on him from the shoulders down, then sprinkled him with feathers from a chicken coop," he said. Because the men were hoods, Brownlee was not able to identify them. That was one reason it took so long for the suspects to be arrested, Ralph B. Guy, U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan said. Guy said they were indicted

Michigan gets OK to act in suit

Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley said Wednesday the state of Michigan is being allowed to intervene in a lawsuit filed by the federal government against the Reserve Mining Company of Minnesota.

The suit filed by the federal government seeks to halt the company from dumping tailings from its mining operation into Lake Superior.

Kelley filed a brief seeking to intervene in the case on the side of the government in March. He said Wednesday U.S. District Judge Miles W. Lord has granted his motion to intervene.

Lord's order said "it is quite clear to this court that Michigan does have a substantial interest relating to the subject of this action."

on the basis of "scientific evidence and the granting of immunity to witnesses." Brownlee, principal at Willow Run for six months when the incident occurred, felt it was caused by his participation in a program to bring racial harmony to the school, which had been beset by problems for 10 years.

Contacted at his home in suburban Plymouth Thursday, Brownlee said the tarring and feathering "had a lot of positive payoff" in bringing the community together.

He said people were outraged by the event and were motivated to actively work for greater racial harmony in the community, which grew up around the defense plants of World War II and has concentrations of blacks and whites from Appalachia as well as native Midwesterners.

The new attitude is "by golly, we're going to live together," he said.

He proudly pointed out that there was not one racial incident at Willow Run High School during the past school year.

Those named in two three-count indictments besides Miles were: Arthur Meadows, 32, Edward Maldonado, Green B. Cawood Dr., 40, all of Ypsilanti, and Sammy Million, 27, formerly of Ypsilanti and now living in Baltimore, Md.

One court charged them with conspiring between Jan. 1 and April 30, 1971, to cause bodily harm to Brownlee; another of going "in disguise of the highway" to hinder Brownlee's constitutional rights and third of tarring and feathering the principal.

All but Million pleaded innocent to the charges. Bond was set at $10,000 each. Million was being sought in Baltimore.

INITIAL WEEK

Sports clinics start summer

The MSU campus has been infiltrated by more than 300 youngsters aged 9-17 in the first annual Michigan State Athletic Instructional School this week. Some of the sports have had schools in the past (such as wrestling and hockey) but all MSU coaches have been required this year to have a summer clinic.

Currently, the sports of baseball, basketball, wrestling, swimming and hockey have schools in progress. All the clinics hold double sessions during the day with the morning session stretching from 9 - 11:30 and the afternoon session from 2-4. All of the clinics utilize the respective MSU varsity facilities of the sport involved. The clinics are spread throughout the summer with repeat schools for the five sports involved this week scheduled for next week.

Track and gymnastics clinics will begin the second week in July and run for two weeks. Football follows with the next two weeks running into August when it will be joined by golf and tennis for one week stints. Cross country will close out the clinic season with a 10 day school at the end of August.

Those participating in the clinics are also offered an evening relaxation program with such options as swimming, volleyball, paddleball, handball and basketball offered to the students. In addition, films of championship games involving the students respective sport and lectures from personalities prominent in the various sports are available to the student.

West favored in 'Star game

The West team, featuring at quarterback the signal caller from the numbers one and two in the nation last season, are looked upon as the favorite in the 12th annual Coaches All-American game to be played Saturday night in Lubbock, Texas. Green Bay Packer first round draft choice and all-American quarterback from number one ranked Nebraska Jerry Tagge will guide the West attack with relief help to be offered by scrambling Jack Mildren of number two ranked Oklahoma. To top off the West quarterbacking depth, SMU's Gary Hammond, an excellent quarterback in his own right, will be switched to flanker for the contest. Hammond, who played three different positions in his three years at SMU, will return to the wide receiver slot that he held his sophomore year when Chuck Hixson was throwing the ball for the Mustangs. Another key factor in the West offensive is Nebraska's Jeff Kinney, whose fullbacking was a key to the Cornhuskers' successful wishbone venture. Kinney is expected to carry much of the ground load for the Chuck Fairbanks - coached West unit. The East team, coached by Alabama's Paul "Bear" Bryant, is expected to give the West a run for its money in the contest. Bryant will base much of his scoring punch on two running backs, Johnny Musso of Alabama and Lewis Jolley of North Carolina. Jolley will join in the backfield the quarterback from his days at North Carolina, Paul Miller, who is one of only four players participating in the game who was not drafted by a professional team. "I'm pleased with the squad we have assembled," Bryant said earlier in the week. "Sure, there are a few players we would like to have on our side when we face talent like this, but I'm confident we have the horses to get the job done. I'm impressed with the fellows I've got." "Most say the West is favored in this game, but I just don't understand how anyone could be favored when both squads are made up of all-Americans," Jelly said. Bryant expressed a pleasure at having the unheralded Miller as his quarterback (Miller will be backed up by John Gilliam of Tennessee State), calling him "a winner." Miller completed 75 of 146 passes for 1,041 yards last season and ran for 261 more including six touchdowns.

Jamieson takes lead

CHICAGO (UPI) — Pudgy Jim Jamieson, a local favorite still looking for his first professional victory, shot a 3 - under par 68 on a chilly, windy day today to take the lead among early first - round finishers in the $150,000 Western Open. Jamieson, who missed the cut in four of his last seven tournaments, went 5 - under par during a five - hole stretch of his back nine to edge Steve Oppermann by one stroke among the early finishers. Most of the field of 147 still were on the course when Jamieson and Oppermann finished. Playing the back nine first, Jamieson shot a 1 - over par 37 but then he sank a 30 - foot birdie putt on No. 1, a five - foot birdie putt on No. 3, eagled the short par - 5 fourth hole by hitting his second shot 18 inches from the cup and made an 18 - foot putt for a birdie on No. 5. He lost one stroke back by three - putting the sixth hole. Jamieson, 29, of Moline, Ill., missed the cut last week at the U.S. Open and returned home to take some lessons which he said corrected problems he had been having with his driving. "I felt I'd been driving the ball real bad and since I was driving it so bad, I just wanted to go up and get it over with," Jamieson said. He said his pro, Bob Fry, of Davenport, Iowa, "got me to think more." Bob Barbarossa was the only other player among the early starters to break par, shooting a 1 - under 70, but scores were expected to improve in the afternoon as the wind died down. Three - time champion Billy Casper was among those struggling, shooting 75. Defending champion Bruce Crampton was a late - starter but four of the top players — Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino and Gary Player — were not entered.

Candidates ready for primary race

By RICK WILBINS
State News Staff Writer

Primary races in almost all county offices and commissioner districts, and in the 59th representative and 6th congressional districts will be heavily contested this August, reflecting a trend towards increased political participation in both parties.

All candidates will face opposition, many for the first time, in the Aug. 8 primary or Nov. 7 election, with the exception of three commissioner districts and the circuit court judgeship.

Officially, as of 4 p.m. Tuesday, 104 candidates for county offices had filed their petitions to be placed on the primary ballot.

Only 47 persons had filed through Monday, but 56 more filed Tuesday, as candidates waited until the last minute before putting their names into the campaign hat.

The county clerk's office must validate the candidate petition signatures on the candidates' petitions, however, before their names can be placed on the primary ballot.

In one of the heaviest turnouts in recent years of legislative and congressional candidates, eight people have filed for the 59th District representative seat, vacated by Rep. Jim Brown, R-Okemos.

Three Democrats, five Republicans and one independent will be vying for Brown's old office.

Democrats are Marianne R. Davis, 1943 Birchwood St., Okemos; H. Lynn Jondahl, 5166 Park Lake Road, East Lansing; and William Palmer, 603 Ardson Road, East Lansing. Republicans who filed are William Gorman of 5926 Hagadorn Road, East Lansing; Donald G. Huber, 3700 E. Hiawatha Drive, Okemos; Patrick W. Joy of 593 Virginia St., East Lansing; James A. Pocock, 1165 Ramblewood Road, East Lansing; and Sidney P. Worthington, 1932 Clifton St., East Lansing.

Mickey, of East Lansing, announced he was running for Brown's 59th District seat, but the county clerk's office said no petition for Mickey has been filed with them.

6th District
Brown, and one other candidate, Glenn E. Miller, of Genoa, will be challenging incumbent Charles Chamberlain for the 6th District congressional seat in the Republican primary race. This is the first time Chamberlain has been opposed in a primary in 16 years.

M. Robert Carr, a Lansing attorney, is the only Democrat running for Congress in the 6th District. He will run against the winner of the Republican primary.

Republicans have the advantage of incumbency in the 6th Congressional District, 59th Representative District, all county offices and 13 of the 21 commissioner districts. Four of five commissioner districts that include parts of East Lansing are held by Republicans.

Unit ends 'U' war stud

(Continued from page one) any information that we asked for and we asked for some pretty detailed things," Poizel said.

Before King and Hoffman spoke to the subcommittee on the status of the ROTC programs, the members requested copies of the actual contracts between the University and the Defense Dept. for both the Army and Air Force ROTC programs, copies of the contracts ROTC cadets sign and detailed cost information on those parts of the programs paid by the Defense Dept. and those paid by the University and students.

Some of the questions directed to Terry concerning University policies on purchases and investments with war contractors involved the dollar amount of purchases each year from such companies, the legal restraints of accepting low bids for contracts, the complete makeup of the University's stock portfolio and the legal obstacles of excluding war contracting companies from MSU investments.

One of the questions raised by protesters during a demonstration at the Placement Bureau staff term was whether the bureau had a policy excluding any employment from use of the building. The subcommittee put the question on Shingleton.

Having finished gathering the information the subcommittee is organizing the material.

House OKs plan

(Continued from page one) states and $3.5 billion to cities and other local governments. The state share would go up a maximum of $300 million each year for the next four years.

Although the outcome had not been in doubt since opponents lost a key procedural vote Wednesday, they continued to argue that the bill means sharing, not revenues, but government borrowing since the budget remains in deficit.

Proponents said much-needed help for local governments should have as much priority as any other program financed by the government.

There were contentions too that the formulas for allocating the funds are capricious.

The state share of the funds would be distributed according to tax effort by each state, with particular weight given to the extent each made use of state income taxes.

The share for cities, counties and other local units would be divided under a complex formula taking into account population, urban concentration and poverty.
