Nixon aids Griffin campaign

BY ROBERT BAG
State News Staff Writer

MIDLAND—President Nixon, after a brief, on-the-fly ride through China, flew into 10-2 Upland Cottage Nightly to lend a helping hand to Sen. Griffin.

The move is one of a number of efforts by the administration to shore up the Senate majority as it prepares for the general election. The legislature will meet for two special election sessions, and the leaders of the two parties, who have already started to plan their campaigns, are fearful of a strong challenge from Republicans.

"There are only five men in the Senate with real power, and Griffin is one of them," Nixon told about 4,000 people at a fund-raising event.

"The structure of the Senate is changing, and Griffin is in the center of it," Nixon said. His speech was strong support for the Senate majority, but he also made it clear that he was not going to campaign personally for the majority, as he did in 1972.

"The Senate majority is under serious attack, but we are going to fight back," Nixon said. "The Senate majority is the key to the future of this country, and we are going to do everything we can to keep it."

Nonreturnable ban needs state control

The St. Louis Star-Times, in an editorial of March 31, proposed an ordinance to the city council of St. Louis, Missouri, seeking a ban on the sale and use of nonreturnable beverage containers. The ordinance would prohibit the use of nonreturnable bottles and cans, which would be replaced by reusable bottles and cans. The editorial argues for state control over the production and distribution of such containers, stating that the law would be ineffective without such control.

The editorial also discusses the economic and environmental benefits of implementing such an ordinance, emphasizing the need for state control to ensure that the initiative is successful.

The editorial calls for the city council to consider the proposed ordinance and to take the necessary steps to implement it, highlighting the importance of addressing the issue of nonreturnable beverage containers.

Americans spend less on food than anyone else

Statistics won't lower food prices, but these facts may help you see the whole picture...

Even in the face of rising prices, we spend less on our attires, supplies, and entertainment than anywhere else in the world. The source for this statistic is the United States Department of Agriculture. Specifically, we spent 11% of our income for food at the super market, and another 3.3% for production. So the total food expense is 14.3%. Now compare that to some other countries:

- England: 20%
- France: 28%
- Japan: 33%
- Italy: 45%
- Russia: 48% to 50%

FOOD PRICES HAVE GONE UP THE LEAST OF ANY MAJOR CONSUMER EXPENSE

This seems surprising, but the fact is food prices haven't kept pace as much as other prices. The source for this fact is the United States Department of Labor.

Compare the statistics:

- Food in the super market up 29% in ten years
- Clothing up 50% in ten years
- Recreation up 46% in ten years
- Housing up 44% in ten years
- Medical Care up 18% in two years

We notice food prices more, of course, because we buy food more often and usually each day. But... food prices have actually gone up less of any major consumer expense.

Statistics don't lower prices, but they can help you see the whole picture.

FOLLOWING 2-YEAR DELAY
Water study project begun

By TERY ALBRECHT
Staff Writer

The Michigan Pollution Control Agency has begun to settle a lawsuit with the Great Lake Water Resource Council, the latest move in the 2-year-old battle to study the Great Lakes.

Last month, the council filed a lawsuit seeking $2 million in damages and $1.5 million in costs for being asked to fund the study. The suit claims the state had promised to pay the money before the study ended, but the state later decided not to pay it.

"The council is trying to hold us to a promise that we didn't make," said council spokesman Jim Johnston. "They're trying to use the courts to force us to pay for a study we didn't agree to."

The state has denied the charges, saying the money was already paid.

"We've been working with the council for two years," said John G. Allgood, director of the agency. "We're trying to come up with a fair solution for both sides."

The study was expected to cost $300,000 and was completed in 1974. It was funded by the state using money from a federal grant.

"We're trying to get a fair deal for both sides," said Allgood. "We're hoping to reach a settlement soon."

The study examined the effects of pollution on the Great Lakes and recommended ways to clean them up. It was widely praised by environmentalists at the time.

"The study was a big step forward," said Johnston. "We're hoping to see some of its recommendations implemented."

The council is asking for the money to be returned and for the state to pay the costs of the study.

"We're hoping to see some of its recommendations implemented," said Johnston. "We're hoping to see some of its recommendations implemented."
IDENTIFY CITY PROBLEMS
Research bureau proposed

DEAN CALHOUN, Lansing, chairman of the State Office of Volunteer Services, has appealed to the city’s 3,000 volunteer organizations for a letter to the city council with a proposal for a research bureau, which would study the volunteer organizations. "We have not yet tried to act on this,\" he said.

Mr. Calhoun, who is also executive director of the Volunteer Bureau of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, has offered to assist the city. For the city to be better supported by volunteer workers, the city must develop a bureau to study problems that "city citizens" have. "We need action here,\" he said. Mr. Calhoun and his staff are ready to study the feasibility of any proposal that the city council might make. The research bureau would cost the city nothing, he said. The idea is to have the bureau report the results of its activities to the city council, but the city would not have to pay for the research.

DETROIT (UP) — The Detroit City Council yesterday voted to spend the $1 million it set aside for the multimillion-dollar project to build a new road connecting the Michigan Avenue bridge to the Liberty Street cableway.

"We voted to pay the city’s bills and not to spend any money on the project,\" Mayor John F. Ford said.

The vote was 4-1, with Councilman William H. Young abstaining.

The $1 million was set aside last week by the city to build a new road to the bridge.

"We have a lot of work to do on the bridge," Ford said.

The road will be built by the city, he said.

"We can’t afford to do anything more until the bridge is completed," he said.

Young said the city should not spend any money on the project until the bridge is completed.

The Hawkeyes punished the Spartan defense for 117 yards in the first quarter by scoring three touchdowns. Iowa's longest play was a 58-yard pass, which was followed by a 13-yard touchdown pass. The Hawkeyes then added a 15-yard field goal for good measure.

The defense didn't let up, as it gave up only 100 yards in the second quarter. The Hawkeyes had a 28-0 lead at halftime, and the game was over.

In the third quarter, the Hawkeyes scored two more touchdowns, one of which was a 70-yard pass from quarterback Rick Eubanks to wide receiver Tom Farley. Iowa's defense shut down the Spartan offense again, allowing only 24 yards in the quarter.

In the fourth quarter, the Hawkeyes scored one more touchdown, this time on a 5-yard run by fullback Ron Farnsworth. The final score was 42-0, and the Hawkeyes had won their second straight game.

A huge game for the Hawkeyes was not only a win, but also a step towards redemption after their loss to Michigan State two weeks ago.
