An East Lansing resident who was nearly gutted early Wednesday when a fire ripped through the ninth-floor, multimillion-dollar structure housing 12 students. All the residents escaped before the blaze arrived at 7:05 a.m.

The nine-track blaze began in the windows of the MAC Ave. 3, a study scenario which housed 12 students. All the residents escaped before the track row arrived at 7:05 a.m.

Through the East Lansing Police Dept., was called in its investigation, a possible fire, officials concluded late Wednesday the blaze resulted from a fire that started at 7:05 a.m. Nothing further was said.

Arthur P. Kalmar, East Lansing fire chief, said the damage would not exceed $2,000. He said several residents were uninjured.

The fire is the fourth to occur in a similar manner in East Lansing in eight months. Total damage in all the fires now exceeds $300,000 with seven injuries.

UPI, "U" agree on tax plan

The University and MU's branch of the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan (PIRG) have reached an agreement in their debate over a tax collection method.

The agreement allows for a "U" tax bill system to be included in the registration process. The system will begin in December with early registration for winter term. As a result, the University and MU's branch of PIRG have released a statement saying that the tax collection method is the "U" tax bill system.

Drug scare tactics futile, report says

A question of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's (HEW)'s report, "Drug Abuse: The Nation's Threat," shows that the use of "other drugs" is increasing, but not nearly as rapidly as the use of marijuana. The report shows that the number of drug abusers has increased significantly since the report was released in 1971, but the rate of increase has slowed.

The report of the study, which is based on a sample of 3,800 persons, shows that the use of "other drugs" has increased significantly since the report was released in 1971, but the rate of increase has slowed.

In addition, the report shows that the use of "other drugs" has increased significantly since the report was released in 1971, but the rate of increase has slowed.

Large income tax boost dismissed by Miliken

Proposal C, which would increase income taxes on individuals by $10 billion and on businesses by $5 billion over a 50-year period, was rejected by the November ballot. However, the measure was not approved by a majority of the local property owners, who would have to pay the additional taxes.

John R. Hodgdon, former state professor of social science, Monday praised the facility grievance procedure because it would be free to the public and would be an overall tax burden.

"It would be a tax burden on lower income families, but it would not be on all families," he said. "It would be a tax burden on lower income families, but it would not be on all families." Hodgdon said that he would take a minimum of 2.5 percent in the first income tax on individuals and 2.5 percent on business to make up for the last property tax. The average tax on a home would be $10,000.

Ferency plus three best for state court

Four of the nine candidates for Michigan's Supreme Court would be positive additions to the bench, according to our lead story.

Though this important race has been neglected in the shadow of other contests, the impact of the court on the system of justice in Michigan merits citizen consideration of the choices.

In addition to Ferency's outstanding credentials, the court would be enhanced by the election of Robert L. Novosad, Horace W. Gillson and Charles L. Levin. Voters on Tuesday are asked to choose two candidates.

Though Ferency lacks judicial experience, he has displayed an amazing ability to isolate problems and correct them. A maverick politician who speaks his mind with courage, Ferency believes strongly in human rights.

As a person who was instrumental in establishing the Human Rights Center in East Lansing, which dispenses free legal aid, Ferency has tackled cases he felt were in the public interest without monetary compensation.

Ferency believes the judicial system must be made ready accordingly.

He is equipped with an understanding and background demonstrated by his early opposition to the Vietnam War and his bolting of the Democratic ticket for the Human Rights party. This initiative and conviction is needed to unshackle the growing court system.

Three other equally-qualified candidates are expected to be needed to slated the court.

Arguing that the present system is in chaos, Vroman, a Detroit Recorder Court Judge, has shown the ability to update court programs to deal with problems related to crime.

CARR urges openness in race for Congress

By RAY ANDERSON
State News Staff Writer

In the 1974 State House race for the 56th District seat, Democrat Claude C. F. Carr is running as an independent candidate. His opponent is Rep. Mike Stern, a Republican.

Carr, a 56-year-old Lansing attorney, was not a candidate in 1973 for the seat now being vacated by former Rep. John Hart, a Republican, who won the seat in 1971.

While ready to help with any group's activities on the House floor and in committee meetings, which he will continue to attend, Carr said he is opposed to closed-door meetings and would try to do away with unwarranted congressional secrecy if elected. He also advocates釉for television or radio broadcast of House proceedings.

Carr is running because he feels the country is moving too rapidly, with too much emphasis on the special interests, and no real national support for the people as a whole. The Coalition has been endorsed by the United Auto Workers, a group of 150 state-wide councils, the AFL-CIO and the Michigan State Federation of Labor.

"If I win, I'll do better, but if I lose, I'll do better," Carr said. "I won't be one of the crowd, and I won't be as easy to defeat." He also said he'll return to his district three weekends a month, maintain a congressional office in Lansing and Jackson, and keep an office in the state capital.

The coalition is headed by Sen. James W. Colburn, D-Benton Harbor, chairman of the House Committee on Joint Inquiry into Water Pollution. Colburn is one of the organizers of the coalition.

The coalition's executive director is Sue Colburn, who is married to the senator. The coalition also is sponsored by the Michigan Bureau of Shipping, the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, the Michigan AFL-CIO, the Michigan Elks, the Michigan Professional Industries Group and the Michigan Federation of Labor.

The coalition's proposed agenda includes the following:

1. A national health service program to provide medical care for all Americans.
2. A national education program to improve the quality of education at all levels.
3. A national unemployment insurance program to provide benefits to those who lose their jobs.
4. A national transportation program to improve the nation's highways, bridges and mass transit systems.
5. A national energy program to reduce reliance on foreign oil.

The coalition has no financial backing, but it has received support from a number of individuals and organizations.

Carr said he believes the coalition will be successful because it is a grassroots movement that is not controlled by special interests.

The election is scheduled for November 7.

Carr said he plans to run as an independent candidate for the House seat in 1974, but he is not sure if he will run as a Democrat for the Senate seat in 1976.

Nixon bid paced, McGovern's raced

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pushing to a national election campaign stage, President Nixon has concentrated on the 18 states holding their presidential contests in early primaries. Democratic candidates George McGovern and some unknowns are keeping tabs on the four key states where McGovern's candidacy is strong: New Hampshire, South Carolina, Ohio and California.

Nixon scored a major endorsement Tuesday when his running mate, Vice PresidentSpiro Agnew, announced McGovern's candidacy would enable him to win in 18 states. The Republicans' national campaign headquarters in Washington, D.C., has been closed to the public, but the party's share of the presidential campaign is expected to continue.

Some Dems avoid party see

WASHINGTON (AP) - For the first time in a decade, Democratic presidential hopefuls are avoiding party see, a nationwide series of events that has become an annual ritual. They have decided to concentrate on primary elections and delegate selection.

Democrats have traditionally held national conventions in the spring of election years to nominate their candidates. However, this year's conventions will be held later in the summer.

Ferency applauds third party growth

The campaign of Ralph Nader, Reform Party candidate, and the independent presidential campaigns of Ross Perot and Pat Buchanan have expanded the middle ground in American politics, according to Ferency, a former presidential adviser.

Ferency said the growth of third parties in the U.S. is a good thing, and that it is important for the two major parties to respond to the demands of the electorate.

College support for Nixon seen

They said no campaign spending and the tax laws that encourage it are among the key reasons why Nixon has not suffered in college campuses where he was not met four years ago.

The national presidential campaigns of both Nixon and McGovern have been supported by college students, with college campuses playing a key role in both campaigns.

Ferency, who is a former presidential advisor, said the growth of third parties can help to bring about change in American politics.

PIRGIM director pledges action

By TARA JARVIS

"With a total of 300,000 Michigan college students in Michigan, we have several potential candidates for the social change," said PIRGIM's newly appointed executive director, Mike Tuchinsky. PIRGIM (Public Interest Research Group in Michigan) recently lined three full time positions, including Tuchinsky, to aid in statewide organization and planning.

Tuchinsky declared his intention to reveal PIRGIM's specific activities and plans, but promised that "I'll have some neat ideas to present before students are asked to join our organization or sign up for senator nomination."

But Tuchinsky said that the state local against sexist and racial discrimination, pollution and consumer power.

PIRGIM is funded and contracted by students through the Michigan Union, he said, though it will work with other groups in time that affect them. He says that his organization has contracts with public interest research groups that are under other states. He's been in a strategy to help people affected by legal to help themselves. Tuchinsky said, PIRGIM will leverage finances of other public-interest organizations that want to do the same.

"We hope this is what will beiging with PIRGIM's seniors," he added. He was discussing his plans to contract with PIRGIM's students to ensure that all PIRGIM representation from other organizations. His idea is, he said PIRGIM will work toward "a few projects of limited impact" at first, with specific accomplishments to be completed. Tuchinsky said he plans to extend PIRGIM's influence to the local branches of state government through a 501c3 status.

THE MERRY PUMPKIN STAGE: "The time is right," says Holiday Groves to the darts of East Lansing Police Dept. Tuesday night, police said.

"The opposition to PIRGIM's being simply a main group in the year 1972," said Tuchinsky. "We want PIRGIM to work toward a few projects of limited impact at first, with specific accomplishments to be completed. Tuchinsky said he plans to extend PIRGIM's influence to the local branches of state government through a 501c3 status.

Watergate suspect gets jail sentence

The 36-year-old Barker, who was arrested July 30 on charges of mail theft and conspiracy to defraud the government, was sentenced by U.S. District Judge John W.各区 in Washington.

Judge各区 told the jury that he would base his sentence on the "fairness and justice" in the case. This is the second time Barker has faced trial in the Watergate case. He was convicted in the first trial in November 1973 of conspiracy to defraud the government.

Barker, who is a member of the Republican party, is one of the few remaining defendants in the Watergate case. He is also a suspect in the Watergate burglary.

The Watergate case is the largest political scandal in U.S. history. It began in June 1972 when a group of burglars broke into the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee in Washington.

The trial in the case ended in 1974 with the conviction of President Nixon's former campaign chairman, John Dean, and several other aides.

Nixon resigned in August 1974 after the Watergate scandal forced a constitutional crisis.

Barker's co-defendants in the Watergate case were convicted, but they are not expected to be sentenced until later this summer.

The Watergate case is being prosecuted by the U.S. Attorney's Office in Washington.
Armstrong paces Purdue offense

Purdue's 12-7 win over Michigan Saturday may provide the spark needed to get the Boilermakers back on the track in the Big Ten race. The victory, which ended Purdue's three-game losing streak, was important to the Boilermakers, who are now 3-2 in Big Ten play.

The win was also significant for the Boilermakers' hopes of finishing in the top four in the conference. Purdue is currently in fourth place, but a conference championship is still within reach.

Armstrong had 166 yards rushing on 20 carries, including a 47-yard touchdown. He also had 60 yards receiving on two catches.

"It's a good win," Armstrong said. "We needed a win like that to get back in the conference race. We played well, and I'm happy to be a part of it."

All good things must come to an end, and Big Ten football is no exception. Yes, half of the league is clear by now because "they're fighting with a stick." All the fun is over and to be honest, I'm a little disappointed. I don't want to say to any MSU athletics are no longer needed, but I will say this: I want to get into something bigger than football. All the fun is over when you don't win, and you can't win without losing. Big Ten Feeling. Pappy, Bob and Ron English select from Big Ten circle once this year. That's a big achievement because those four seniors were the backbone of a squad which won the Big Ten title last season. The team's record was during the last four games of the season, and the Spartans have been playing well in recent weeks. MSU will have to be careful in its next game because it is facing a very strong opponent in the Big Ten. Phillips, who played two key in last Big Ten game, is a three-year letter man and has been handed the No. 1, A, and the Big Ten spot. R. B.izio...AAD.

The decision was reached during the evening meeting between the seniors and officials.

"We feel that the decision is an equitable one and we feel that it fulfills the purpose of the meeting," Senior Paradise (27) observed.

"If we feel this agreement, it means that the senior class and the student body are satisfied," another senior said.

SHADOWS

In another development, the senior class and the student council are working on a new proposal to improve the quality of life on campus.

"We want to make sure that the students have a good time," one senior stated.

"We believe that this will improve the overall atmosphere on campus," another senior said.

THE UNIVERSITY

The university is currently planning a series of events to commemorate the anniversary of the senior class.

"We want to make sure that the students are involved in the planning," one university official said.

"We believe that this will be a great opportunity for the students to come together," another university official said.

THE COMMUNITY

The community is also preparing for the anniversary celebration.

"We want to make sure that the community is involved in the planning," one community official said.

"We believe that this will be a great opportunity for the community to come together," another community official said.

THE FUTURE

The senior class and the student council are also working on a new proposal to improve the future of the university.

"We want to make sure that the students have a bright future," one senior stated.

"We believe that this will improve the overall future of the university," another senior said.,
PEOPLE ADD TO MSU CHAOS

Cars, bikes, buses clog street

by GARY KORRECK
State News Staff Writer

It is 10 a.m. Wednesday. It is cold and rainy.

Monday and Tuesday classes are dismissed and there is a Planned Parenthood rally across the street. Students walk down the sidewalk. A man at a crosswalk enforces traffic. A few people walk on the street, or stand around the area.

The busy people at the crosswalk are known as the "cyclists," who are often joined by other people, such as students or faculty.

The MSU News Service reported that there were over 1,000 people in the area, mostly students.

Each day, the MSU police report on the number of people walking and biking on campus.

The MSU police have been monitoring the area, and have reported that the number of people is increasing.

The MSU police have been working on the problem for some time, and have implemented several solutions.

The MSU police have also been working with the City of Lansing to find a solution to the problem.

University officials say bicycle violations have increased, but they are working to find a solution.

Many, like those above shown after a run-in on Farm Lane, are finding themselves fighting for space.
