While the survey shows that Sen. George McGovern has led Richard B. Nunn among students voters by a 57 to 39 percent margin, Republican incumbent Sen. Robert F. Griffin is leading Democratic Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, by a 41 to 39 percent margin.

The 6th District is currently represented in Congress by Senator H. Drew Lewis, and is considered a "safety seat" for Democrats. The poll, conducted by Charles Atkisson, an assistant professor of sociology, was based on 1000 MHS students who are registered to vote in the upcoming election.

Griffith, accepting defeat

Eleanor Roosevelt's 22 percent of those students who say they will vote for Griffith, and 19 percent who will vote for McGovern. The poll says to be expected to do well among students, voters because of his "determination to keep the nation on a war footing.

"The next election will be decided by the choice of a candidate who is willing to make the necessary sacrifices to win," said the never-say-die Roosevelt. The poll was taken earlier this week, as students were preparing to cast their votes in the presidential election.

"This election is a fight for the survival of democracy, and I am willing to do my part to see that it succeeds," said Roosevelt. The poll results show that Roosevelt has gained popularity among students, who are more likely to vote in this election than in previous years.

The poll was conducted by the Institute of Politics at Michigan State University, and included interviews with 1000 students. The sample size is large enough to provide a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percent.

Panel proposes funds for Women’s Center

By DEBRA GALKINS

City council will soon receive a recommendation from the East Lansing Human Rights Commission regarding a proposal for Women’s Center funding.

The city’s Human Rights Commission, at its Wednesday night meeting, voted 6-3 to recommend that the city council fund the Women’s Center $25 per month in each of the next three fiscal years following a $250 grant from employers. The recommendation was made for the 1973 fiscal year and a council vote is expected within the next two weeks.

The commissioners included in their recommendation that the Women’s Center program should be evaluated at the end of this period to determine if further funding should be granted.

The recommendation asked $250 for one year to cover rent, utilities and telephone bills. But, the commissioners felt they could fund the center for three years for $25 per month. The recommendation also questioned additional funds if the center needed them.

The commissioners are asking for a recommendation for the proposal to be made at a council meeting.

McGovern must be elected to guarantee basic freedoms

George McGovern heads into the final days of his campaign for the presidency, with his chances of winning looking quite good. But for the sake of the nation, he must be elected. The stakes are too high to allow an American president to be decided by such a narrow margin. McGovern’s victory would be a triumph for the American people, a victory that would set a precedent for the future of American politics.

Wake up to the fact that Richard Nixon is a petty man who is more interested in the power for his own purposes, to come more forward than in the history books than for the welfare of the country. Wake up to the fact that basic freedoms are too high a price to pay for the dubious Nixon security. Nixon has tried to create an order based on his political ideology, but it is only in restricting individual rights that he succeeds.

Wake up to the fact that this man, who four years ago pledged to serve “as long as necessary,” has brought only bitter division within the country.

Wake up to the fact that George McGovern is not just the lesser of two evils but in a man of integrity and vision who will restore the soul of America.

Wake up to the fact that Nixon's economic policies have damaged the country and that his administration has left the American people behind.

McGovern will trust the American people and lead them to an open society. He will not allow the public to be swayed by special interests, but will act in the best interests of the country.

Come home, America. Come home and wake up.

Nixon's peace plan spoiled by election, war coincidence

A shadow looms over the proposed cease-fire agreement between the U.S. and Hanoi. It looks like President Nixon has no intention of keeping his promise. The United States is still engaged in the war, and the peace talks are far from over. Nixon's peace plan was a sham, designed to divert attention from the war.

Many anti-war critics charged that the war was a completely unnecessary war, and that Nixon's peace plan was nothing but a pretense.

In the end, the war was a failure, and Nixon's peace plan was an insult to the American people. The war was a total waste of resources, and Nixon's peace plan was a total lie.

Income tax

To the Editor:

The State of New York has been in a state of financial crisis for several years, and the citizens have been forced to pay more taxes. The recent financial crisis has only made the situation worse. The state is in desperate need of revenue to fund essential services.

Propel D, the proposal on the November ballot, is a tax reform plan that would ensure the state's financial stability and provide a safer, more secure future for all New Yorkers. The proposal includes a range of measures to reduce the burden on taxpayers, including a new sales tax on high-end purchases and a cap on property tax increases.

Propel D is the answer to New York's financial crisis. It is the only plan that will ensure a more prosperous and secure future for all New Yorkers.

The State of New York is on the brink of financial disaster. We are being taxed to the tune of $7,000 per person for every man, woman, and child in the state. The state is facing a deficit of $4 billion, and the numbers are only getting worse.

Kelley fights for consumers

BY WILLIAM J. BJERGSON

Leading pastor

As a citizen who has followed the U.S. Senate race in the news, I would like to say that I was impressed to see the endorsement of Senator Barry Goldwater's Proposal B by Pastor George Kelley and Senator Ted Kennedy. As I watched Senator Goldwater on TV, I was impressed with the way he expressed his opinions on the proposals and his commitment to the issues he believed in. It was a pleasure to see him speak and I believe that his Proposal B is the best solution to the issues of today.

Goldwater has always been a champion of good government and I believe that his Proposal B will bring greater efficiency and accountability to government. I am confident that his Proposal B will make a difference in the way government works and I hope that it will be adopted.

I am a strong supporter of Proposal B and I believe that it is the best solution to the issues of today. I urge all citizens to support this proposal and to vote for Senator Goldwater in the upcoming election.

Griefs. On consumption and environmental issues, Griefs has been a strong supporter of Proposal B. Griefs is an outstanding candidate and I believe that he will make a difference in the Senate. I urge all citizens to support this proposal and to vote for Griefs in the upcoming election.

I am a strong supporter of Proposal B and I believe that it is the best solution to the issues of today. I urge all citizens to support this proposal and to vote for Senator Goldwater in the upcoming election.

In conclusion, I believe that Proposal B is the best solution to the issues of today. I urge all citizens to support this proposal and to vote for Senator Goldwater in the upcoming election.

Music prof energetic in concert, classroom

By JEFF GUTHRELL

Ralph Votapek spends a great deal of energy and time on piano conducting and teaching, and also pages much of the year into teaching piano to MSU students.

Votapek, an associate professor of music, spent Thursday evening professionally for an hour before coming to MSU. He has won several dozen piano competitions including the Van Cliburn contest in 1962.

Votapek is one of the major concert pianists in South America, playing all the major concert halls. He has done this for several years now.

Planetarium show combines visual images, rock group

By GARY KORRECK
State News Freelance

Trying to describe a combination concert and light show is like trying to explain Christmas in childhood; it gives you qualms in the stomach. That is how it feels to watch the visual images, which happen while you are working and listening.

Some of the visual images were repetitive and few other images were used as elements of a successful program whose purpose is to simulate a 30-foot softball. Since the planetarium is a school room, it is used as such and especially.

The planetarium bought back Mars rock group Aqueous for the second time in the season's show.

Barney is just the guy for the occasion.

This program has no sound, not the advantage of knowing the group's visual style.

Production director Ken Pay announced the visuals would be more synchronized with the music this year and it appears they are.

With some exceptions, the show and the show is enhanced by a variety of interesting black and white films, color films, slides, holographic designs and smoke images.

The best stuff came when the sky theater was moving with light that flashed off the faces of the audience and up toward the ceiling.

“Cleaver Headed” and “Don’t Let Last Time Bring You Down” were two of the best - coordinated numbers in the program. But there was something in each of the 12 performances that brought the audience originally. “Wake Up” was the best part to have this season. The current title would be a mill.

They did not use contemporary rock bands and one can even detect a familiar sound here and there. The sound is still strange and more controlled.

Keyboardist Paul Ted justifies the attitude of the group in his solo work on the synthesizer and Moog synthesizer, a pair of instruments which currently are in favor and easily operated. But just does not attempt to compete with the other band, either, to be able to make himself state.

Check Junction, who doubles on bass and drums, does most of the vocal work and his singing is good, without being overemotional.

Guitarist Jay Marsh and drummer Barry Price round out the quartet. Each, the Act, demonstrates confidence and promise.

It should be mentioned that Aqueous was not the last of the show and it is not an attempt to pick up speed and keep the audience.

"A Separate Peace" now showing at the Campus Theater, is a literal adaptation of John Knowles' best-selling novel of the same name.

by BILL MCWORRANT
State News Reporter

"A Separate Peace" is not a bad film, it makes a very interesting technical error a film can possibly make and still survive. It literally makes the novel appear which is what it is meant to do.

"A Separate Peace" makes a scene for a woman almost word for word from Finch's novel, the same scene in the book. The same actions are performed in the film. The same words are spoken, the same dialogue is used. The acting is probably worse than the dialogue since the lines are so predictable that the scene gives a sense of acting while the story is developed.

The story line involves 15-year-olds boys in a small private school in New England sometime during World War II. Gene, played by Sammy Davis Jr., is an introverted intellectual who becomes best friends with his roommate Finny, portrayed by John Saxon, who is the class clown. The two boys establish their friendship at the outset is somewhat a surprise, but that is what makes it interesting. The story line continues to follow the two boys and it becomes the central element of the film, since Gene seems to be the character that the film centers around, it is really the two boys from the book that are present in the film.

If it is at all interesting to the audience, the object of the audience is to see the outcome of the actions.

Gene tries to convince his part in saving the fall, but Finny covers himself. When the fall story is finished it goes to the story of the other boys of the school, called "The Racket," a group of boys who become involved in the war effort.

Court race pace speeds up

News Analysis

Courts formally sentenced Edgar in September for fraudulent discharge of checks in his court.

The sentence was based on a plea bargain between Edgar and the Prosecuting Attorney's office, which agreed to drop charges of forgery and identity theft.

Edgar's sentence was six months in prison and two years of probation, the maximum sentence allowed under state law.

Contributions add up for Community Chest

Contributions made to the United Community Chest by individuals and businesses exceeded expectations.

A total of $40,000 was raised, far exceeding the goal of $10,000.

Second, the increment in giving was likely due to the strong community support that the project received.

Recycling centers have reported an increase in the number of items that are being recycled.

Recycling has become a popular activity among the community, with many people choosing to recycle as a way to reduce their impact on the environment.

The court race pace speeds up

The race between Judge Jones and Edgar, a graduate of the local Community College, was expected to be close.

Jones, who has been practicing law for the past five years, is expected to attract votes from those who feel that the current court is not serving the community adequately.

Edgar, on the other hand, has been in the legal profession for 20 years and is expected to appeal to those who are looking for a more experienced judge.

“Students shouldn’t be used as political pawns,”

“Can student voters be fooled with the oldest propaganda technique in the book? Can their valid concern about improving the environment be cynically exploited? Only one thing is certain,” says Congressman Charles E. Chamberlain.

What are the facts about Chamberlain’s record on the environment?

Congressman Chamberlain has supported all environmental legislation which passed the Congress. He has voted for more than 22 major environmental laws. His complete voting record appears in Appendix A. Congressman Chamberlain worked with 48 Senate colleagues to get Federal funds for research on alternatives to hard pesticides in fighting the cereal leaf beetle, a European pest撅_our granted no’16 direct, that is, ORLEANS very

Listening Ear begins fund drive for $6,000

By DEBBIE CALGNIK
State News Staff Writer

"Give the Ear a hand in" is a sign that volunteers at the Listening Ear hope will bring in $6,000 in donations during their annual fund-raising drive scheduled to run through Wednesday.

The Listening Ear, a non-profit, non-religious agency that helps the handicapped, is asking for pay, utility and telephone bills at the Listening Ear, 547 E. Grand River Ave., a listening center open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

Shelton, a volunteer at Listening Ear, said the fund-raising goal has been set at $6,000 because the figure was a "round number." Shelton said.

Until Wednesday, volunteers will be seen standing at East Lansing and campus street corners holding a red bucket and the "Give the Ear a hand" sign printed on a sign.

Shelton said donations will also be accepted at the listening Ear.

Upcoming events will be soliciting funds today and Wednesday with 1960s memorabilia, dancing at the Bulldog Grill both Saturday and Sunday at the Listening Ear and mall tents Monday and Tuesday on campus.

The Listening Ear could also use material donations, such as clothes, blankets, and typewriters, Shelton said.

"We see ourselves as a place people can call or come when they have a problem and they don't know what to do," Shelton explained.

"We try to give the people who come to our immediate attention and then possibly make them into another service," Shelton said.

Persons of a variety of ages and lifestyles come to the Listening Ear for help, Shelton explained.

"The people with drug crisis, the Ear has helped teenagers who are angry at their parents, people who are in the middle of a divorce or just lost a job," Shelton explained.

The center also handles medical prescription and drug information calls.

All 119 Listening Ear volunteers have gone through a 70-hour intense empathy training program, Shelton said.

Purdue, MSU to clash

By RICK GOOSLIN
State News Sports Writer

The last time Purdue won five straight games was in 1971 when shortstop coach Dick Deffense played at Pelli's east to his home-state University of Illinois. Then, the winning string just wasn't there in another football today.

The Boilermakers have had the last four contests and will need to win six to match their longest winning streak against Michigan State. Purdue started the 12 game winning streak by falling to the Spartans during Conference Openning Games in 1990. The Boilermakers in their third string, 51-14, and Purde suddenly looked like a Big Ten powerhouse in the first six games.

But once into the Big Ten, Purdue started putting it together and didn't give a touchdown against a conference team until Illinois pushed one score in a nine v. ten game.

In the Boilermaker sim of 13 consecutive quarters without yielding a score.

The winless offense has come alive and Purdue now has the most explosive offense in the conference.

A good word to the offense...several times as they came from behind Saturday. Andre Duty, who led in the win against Ohio State and earlier in the week, "That ability to pass and their ability to run, are about equal."

Ozzie Armstrong and Gary Bushmiller are total teams, and the Boilermakers have been able to run and arm the ball to their backs.

Armstrong and the two Ohio State play for the third time this year.

There are going to be a lot of great games this year, and the Boilermakers have been in the mix of them all.

MSU's young and anxious hockey team will finally get a chance to find out exactly how good they are this weekend as the Spartans take on Ohio State in Columbus tonight and tomorrow night.

"We've been ready to play a game for the last two weeks," coach Jack Varley said Thursday. "Tomorrow night is the big night for us. We hope to turn things around and start winning some games against the two games our strengths and weaknesses during the two games." We'll start right away..."

Despite the fact that MSU has yet to win a game, coach Ed Jozwiak said, "We have a hard working team and we're ready to go." coach Jozziak said Thursday that the Spartans were ready to go against the Ohio State Buckeyes. Despite the fact that the Spartans won the game last weekend, MSU lost the two games against Ohio State.

The Spartans have hit hard by graduation this past year, and are in the midst of a rebuilding process. Several promising players have been hired this season, and the team is expected to show improvement soon.

The Spartans are 0-1-1 against Ohio State this season.

The Spartans are 0-1-1 against Ohio State this season.

"We're going to have a young team this year," coach Jozziak said. "But we expect to have a good team by the end of the year."

Coach Jozziak and the other young players will be a key to the team's success.

Cirrus and First Line center Bill Legure will be able to help out the Spartans until the end of the season.

"Legure will be a key to the team's success," coach Jozziak said. "He's a great player and he'll be a leader for us."
