Credit cards—freedom, responsibility

By ALICE PARSONS

News Staff Writer

The cards are here, but the names and addresses aren’t.

The MSU student who orders a credit card at this time will receive a blank en velope.

The cards will be personalized, and the student will have to provide his name, add ress, and social security number. The cost is $5.50 for a single card.

The card will be a permanent record of the student’s financial status.

The cards can be used for a variety of purposes, such as purchasing goods and ser vices, or paying off debts.

Many students are excited about the new opportunity to have a credit card. They see it as a way to gain financial independence and build their credit rating.

However, others are concerned about the potential for misuse of the cards. They worry about the possibility of overspending or going into debt.

The university is aware of these concerns and is taking steps to educate students about the responsible use of credit cards.

Such education is crucial, as many students are not familiar with the basics of credit management. By teaching them about the importance of keeping track of their spend ings and avoiding unnecessary debt, the university hopes to prevent financial prob lems in the future.

Despite these concerns, many students are eager to use their new credit cards for the first time. They see it as a way to gain experience and build their financial future.

The cards are expected to be in students’ hands within the next few weeks. Students are encouraged to use them responsibly and to take advantage of the opportunities they offer.

The credit cards are being distributed as part of a larger initiative to improve financi al literacy on campus. The university is committed to providing students with the skills and knowledge they need to make informed financial decisions.

As students receive their cards, they will be encouraged to review the terms and condi tions carefully. They will also be provided with resources to help them understand the financial implications of using their cards.

The university is committed to ensuring that students have the tools they need to make smart financial choices. By providing them with education and resources, the university hopes to help students achieve financial success.
Filipinos keep martial law
President Ferdinand E. Marcos appears to be moving the Philippines toward a "revolutionary government" to regulate the nationalist presidential system that has governed this nation once independence from Spain in 1898.

With 73.6 per cent of some citizen's assembly reporting, presidential sources said Sunday that the vote - because support shown for Marcos has given his "blanket authority" to carry on rule by martial law. The voting is expected to end today.

Syria threatens pullout
Syria may threaten to pull out of its 16-month old federation with Egypt and Libya if these two countries try to "infiltrate" new war against Israel, Lebanon newspaper An Nahar said Sunday. It claimed the Syrians were badly hurt by Israeli attacks last week, with 508 persons killed or wounded.

King honored in Atlanta
Commemorative services marking the birthday of King Jr. are planned in Atlanta, Ga., today. The Mayor, Mayor Sam Massell, is declaring it a holiday.

Office Sunglasses, April 5, 1971, Page 3, Column 1, the Atlanta Constitution, the city's evening daily, said the property was "to involve people in a rally in the celebration of my husband's birthday and the perpetuation of his work and teachings."

Shorter sentences sought
A national advisory commission, in a wide-ranging report Sunday, urged that the maximum sentences for crimes except murder be no greater than 25 years.

The 22-member commission, after a year-long study, recommended that a federal model for state and local governments to use in reducing crime and improving criminal justice.

The 72-page paper calls for decreased emphasis on imprisonment as a crime deterrent, speedier trial procedures and a much closer police effort in attacking crime at the neighborhood level.

The findings, prepared by a 100-member task force, will be studied by the Federal Security Agency.

Defense ads deplored
Some 25 major defense contractors spent $2.3 million over the past two years on advertising apparently aimed at influencing military procurement decisions, the Council on Economic Priorities, a New York-based watchdog group, said.

In a 40-page report called "Advertising to the Military," the council organized efforts to attack the weapons industries, showed the efforts to get in the government, and pointed to the misleading claims of jobs and salaries in jobs that would not exist.

"Perhaps the Pentagon procurement officer who used to say, 'This weapon is a basic good like a cigarette should also not be used for all weather aircraft from Grumman in part because it 'kills wicked wallop,'" said Leo Reed, director of the council's study, quoting a Gruenman ad.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Washington tribe, charged that their tribe has been victimized by firms and developments out of the tribe's justice, going into the wood Wednesday with the promise that the four defendants will plead guilty.

If they do so, it will be against the advice of their lawyer, Harry R. Liddell of New York, who says he will defend the men - he will go in the plea of guilty.

Washington, D.C., April 5, 1971

"They're going to get it. They're going to pay the constitutional right to appeal and they will serve some years in prison," said the judge. Judge Liddell's decision, agreed with defense attorneys, R. G. King and Harry E. Fetterman, said the trial was fixed within a day of the March 23 hearing.

If it goes to the case, the attorney said then when he left his clients Friday he was on completely friendly terms with his five defendants, asking them to please "try to make appeal the appeal regularly," he said. But because of the judge's direction, he said, he would be willing to go in the plea of guilty.

Judge Fetterman has decided that the First District Court will refuse to let the judge's plea on only half of the charges against him and the Woman push for funds

From city to aid center

The Michigan Chamber of Commerce, the Public Interest Group in Michigan (PIRGIM) announced Thursday that it had collected $6,121 from about 30 people in Lansing.

For this amount, the chamber will provide a publically supported group for any cause that strongly interests any people.

Many businesses, an organizer for the center said, "in any form of support making us want to go for a lot of women who want to be helpful for women. If the women who wish to help she would like to help her.

The $2.3 million fund is considered important," because the center can "very likely" flee wages for young people at the time.

In the counseling center, the staff is working to help students navigate a variety of issues. The center, led by Director Howard L. Pierson, offers a range of services to help students with academic, emotional, and personal concerns. The center provides individual counseling, group therapy, and workshops to address a wide range of problems. Students can also receive assistance with career development, including resume building and interview preparation. The center is committed to creating a safe and supportive environment where students can explore their concerns and work towards their goals. Contact information is available for those interested in using the counseling services.
Students should eye new education bill

Majority

To the Editor:
We, the undersigned, have put up with a great deal from our own student body. A group of us have discovered that others who would be paid for by our fees should be paid insufficiently and should be paid in an undignified manner. We think that our students should be better educated.

We are concerned about the professors and the department chairmen. We see that there are not enough people to teach the courses we want.

We hope that the new administration will give us a better education.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:
I am a student at the [University], and I have been involved with the Business department. I believe that the Business department needs to be reformed. The current curriculum is outdated and does not prepare students for the real world. I think that the Business department should offer more practical and relevant courses.

I urge the administration to take action and make these changes.

But, Kissinger, as the senior vice president of the White House, had warned Nixon against taking such a step, because it could lead to a crisis. Nixon, however, was not convinced. He believed that the United States had a right to be in Vietnam and that concessions would only make the Vietnamese more demanding. But, as the situation in Vietnam deteriorated, Nixon began to reconsider his position. He eventually decided to begin peace negotiations, which led to the Paris Peace Accords in 1973. These negotiations resulted in the withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam, and ultimately led to the end of the Vietnam War. The negotiations were difficult and contentious, but they ultimately resulted in a settlement that brought an end to the war. Nixon's decision to begin peace negotiations was a significant moment in American history, and it had a profound impact on the country and the world. The end of the Vietnam War was a turning point for the United States, and it marked the beginning of a new era of international relations. Nixon's decision to negotiate with the Vietnamese was a bold and courageous move, and it is a testament to his dedication to the cause of peace.
The contest against Iowa was not decided until the final event, the horizontal bar. MSU had built up an early lead by competing with four men on the side bars.

Before the meet, MSU coach George Szypula said, "Iowa's strength lies in their depth." Szypula's statement was proven true as the next three gymnasts for Iowa scored 9.0, 8.9 and 8.8.

The outcome hinged on MSU's performance in the final event. Randy Barber performed his routine and scored a 9.0. Junior Brian Grace then reestablished the MSU lead with a 9.0. MSU scored only a 7.40 for the Spartans to sport.

Factor came through with a score of 9.88 and that was the nail in the coffin. The advantage was very pleasing," Szypula said. "We worked hard all week preparing for this meet, and it paid off. Iowa is loaded with talent and anyone can beat them, you're done a good job."

"Right now our main concern is getting ready for the NCAA championship meet," said Randall Barber, father of the MSU's top scorer. "The key to the way MSU's spent was the first performance of Junior Don Wayboldt on the side bars. Submitted to be MSU's weak spot, the side bars was the same that enabled MSU to take an early lead against the Hawkeyes. With Wayboldt's score of 6.66, MSU was the side show from Iowa by a score of 24-20-59."

After a shaky start and a 9.38 score for MSU's Dave Ziegler settled down to score a 9.6 in his specialty. On the six-column display board, Mr. Wayboldt displayed the form that was for him the title last year and scored a 9.55. In the air, the two seniors won the crowd's praise with slides and jumping to a final score of 9.88. Iowa's victory was a victory in every sense of the word, considering that their five outstanding seniors and the team scored above 9 in every event except floor exercise.

In the last event, the floor exercise, the crowd was agitated by the presence of two Big Ten stars. MSU's Big Ten champion, who had won his title by an inch, was considered by many to have the potential to take the national title this year, most now see the Big Ten title to March to wear the title away from MSU.

In every sense of the word, it was a Big Ten title for MSU's Big Ten champions and it a victory in every sense of the word. The winning team was also the one that scored above 9 in every event except floor exercise.

Miami proves itself
LAX TUCSON

Miami proved itself to be a Super Bowl contender when they crushed the Los Angeles Dolphins, 41-6, in a Super Bowl II game.

The Dolphins, winners of nine straight games, took on Miami, who had won 11 games in a row.

The Dolphins were well prepared and took the lead early on with a touchdown by Paul Warfield, who had been held in check by the Miami defense in the previous two games.

The Dolphins defense then fell apart, and the Dolphins took control of the game.

Miami proved their worth as a Super Bowl contender and proved that they had what it takes to win the championship.
Spartans can't hang on--Wolves kill winning streak

By GARY KORNECK
State News Sports Writer

It took an MSU slump on the road to beat all the records to make Michigan a better team than the Spartans. Fifth-ranked Michigan, a team that played a solid first half in a 3-0 win over Illinois, finally ran up some needed points. The Wolverines had the lead by 15 points at the break, and the Spartans never caught up.

By the third quarter, the Spartans were down, 26-9. And that was when the turning point hit. The Spartans managed to score 20 points in the final 15 minutes of the game, but Michigan kept hitting back. The gamed was over.

The Spartans will have to wait for a 13-month victory streak to end. Michigan won, 86-71, breaking the streak.

The loss ended Michigan's winning streak, a streak the Spartans were hoping to win.

The game started out with Michigan leading, 12-8, but the Spartans closed the lead to 20-15 by halftime.

Midway through the second period, the score was 37-21, and the Spartans were on their way to winning.

Michigan outscored the Spartans, 15-10, in the final 15 minutes.

The Spartans' score was 20 when the game started, and they never caught up.

The Spartans' record is now 13-10, and Michigan's record is now 16-5.

The Spartans are still in the running for the Big Ten title, but Michigan has the edge.

The Spartans' next game is against Minnesota, who is also in the running for the title.

The Spartans' next game is on Monday, January 16, against the Golden Gophers.

BUSY GOALIE

MIL's goalie squad had the pressure on the Wisconsin net throughout most of the final minute and had to play the extra minutes to hold the Badgers off. By the 9-2-1 output, Bob Bessone and Bessie Clair Fist, Ten Big don't think they could go any other way. Jim Murphy, with 9-2-1, has pulled their goalie four times and will have to watch out for the Bessone duo.

DILLEY, swimmers shock Badgers in 73-50 rout

The Michigan swimmers came into the Michigan State meet with their sights set on the Big Ten Championship. They came away with two individual and one relay victories, a close victory in the 200 yard individual medley, a win in the 200 yard medley relay, and a win in the 200 yard butterfly. The Michigan swimmers won 10 of the 12 events and were the clear-cut victors, even though Wisconsin did win the 100 yard medley relay.

V CAGERS BOUNCE MUSKEGON, 107-80

The Muskegon varsity basketball team defeated the Port Huron Northern High School varsity team, 107-80, Saturday night. This victory was the 11th straight for Muskegon in the last 12 games, as the Hawks have only lost one game in the last 12 games. The Hawks have been led by the outstanding play of seniors Jim Rice and Tim Murphy, who scored 30 and 25 points respectively. The Hawks are now 13-1 on the season and are the top team in the state.
Iceboating can be fun — especially at speeds up to 80 mph — according to Tim Gottlieber, Frankenstein junior, shown speedboating across Lake Lansing.

SEASON ‘NEAR-PERFECT’

Winds, cold cheer iceboaters

The bone-chilling temperatures and winds that followed the heavy rains of a few weeks ago have created near-perfect conditions for iceboating in the area.

In fact, Chuck White, Lansing junior commodore of the MSU Sailing Club, recently returned from a short iceboating season. Recently, White and Tim Gottlieber, Frankenstein junior and winter commodore of the club, took advantage of the weather, sailing on Lake Lansing for the MSU Sailing Club.

"It's just about the most exhilarating thing I've ever done," Gottlieber exclaimed.

The thrill of riding the wind, an element above the smooth as glass, is something that iceboaters across the country and the world say they love.

Some 2,500 boats are registered in this country, and it is impossible to estimate the number of boats that are not registered for racing.

DN boats like the club owns are the fastest, shallowest, fastest and least expensive. They are used for iceboating but also in lakes. DN stands for Detroit News, which built the first 60-year-old boat, which is designed and registered and cost about $850.

They weigh about 150 pounds and are said to be capable of reaching 90 miles per hour under ideal conditions.

DN stands for the Detroit News, which built the first 60-year-old boat, which is designed and registered and cost about $850.

The only special equipment required for the sport is warm clothing.

"Down for a very cold day of winds," White said, "and you've just got to dress for it."

Strong ice beams are much longer and faster than the DN 60 and the speed-boat racing, there is an "unlimited" class where almost anything goes, White said.

The DN season is usually about two weeks long, beginning early in January. But this year, there were some people sailing on Lake Lansing in the middle of December, according to residents at the lake.

"This area of Michigan is probably one of the best areas of the country for iceboating," Gottlieber said. "If you are a beginner, there is too much wind."

The first inter-collegiate iceboat race was held in the 1800s, according to the sport's history.

Tim Gottlieber, second commodore of the MSU Sailing Club, sets some of the 60 - square - feet of sails on a DN 60 iceboat. The boat was designed 60 years ago for the Detroit News, which at that time published a page on how to build them. Iceboating has grown in popularity over the past few years, although veterans of the sport warn that it's colder than it looks.

A brand-new coffee house opened with a pair of old friends last weekend. The friends were the Hancock brothers of Concord. Brothers Terry and Bruce McGhee left Marsha coffee house with a performance which left the audience spellbound.

The Hancock brothers opened their set with a lively version of the traditional "Rock Island Line," which rates as a class act by the Hancock brothers. Their set climaxed when they performed once again, this time on a Marsha soundboard. Combined with the coffee house guitar work and the Hancock brothers' traditional singing style, the Hancock brothers' set climaxed.
