Viets battle for truce positions

Recent reports of sexual assaults on enemy camps have stirred charges that the Viet Cong are forcing women to perform sexual acts upon American prisoners of war.

The reports are based on stories that Viet Cong soldiers are said to have forced American prisoners to perform sexual acts upon them. The reports are denied by the Viet Cong.

Police believe the men are seeking the information before they are locked in 12-30 a.m. and heard through other channels.

Denny Carter, director of student affairs at Romantic State University, states that his officers have been forced to install chokes on more doors and windows of the prisoners' rooms.

"You know, we have previously ordered them to open the doors, and they will open them for us. But now they're thinking it out by themselves."

The assistant director of Romantic State University has confirmed that the Vietnamese are sex acts on enemy camps and that they are being forced to perform these acts upon them. The reports are denied by the Viet Cong.

LBJ worked hard to improve society

Lyndon Baines Johnson could be remembered as the President who most comprehensively and successfully dealt with the problems of poverty in the United States. During his presidency, he pursued a set of economic and social policies aimed at improving the lives of the less fortunate, which were intended to combat the effects of the Great Depression and to lay the groundwork for a more equal society. His Great Society program included significant social welfare legislation, such as Medicare, Medicaid, and the Economic Opportunity Act, which provided job training and education to the unemployed and assisted the elderly.

Johnson was also involved in the civil rights movement, supporting the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965, which were groundbreaking in terms of ending segregation and discrimination against African Americans. He was also instrumental in the war on poverty, establishing the War on Poverty, which included the creation of the Office of Economic Opportunity and the Community Action Program.

In the field of international relations, Johnson was involved in the Vietnam War, which became a major issue during his administration. He played a significant role in the decision to escalate the war, and it eventually led to his presidency's downfall.

Johnson's approach to leadership was characterized by a pragmatic and hands-on style, driven by a deep concern for the welfare of the American people. His presidency is often seen as a period of significant change and the beginning of a new era in American politics.

Though we thought the student body was initiated by Donald Trump, it would appear that an incident in the Student Senate would have been a model for the Senate. Hiring women for police jobs reflects new nationwide trend
Labor criticizes multinational firms

By GEORGE WHITE

The News-Sentinel, W. Michigan

Facing criticism from developing nations and new economic challenges from developed nations, multinational corporations (MNCs) are being forced to confront the issues of labor's economic activities and their multinational practices. The Michigan Senate's Economic and Natural Resource Committee has passed a bill, S 1004, which would impose a net tax on MNCs. This bill has been endorsed by a majority of the committee members. The tax would be used to fund the construction of a new University Auditorium in Lansing, Michigan.

The bill was introduced by Senator Kreinin (D-Lansing) as a response to the growing pressure on MNCs to address labor's economic activities. The bill would place a net tax on MNCs that do not have labor relations programs or do not make a good faith effort to establish such programs. The bill would also provide funds for the construction of a new University Auditorium, to be used for cultural and performing arts events.

Senator Kreinin believes that multinational corporations have a responsibility to address labor's economic activities and to ensure that their operations do not harm the environment or the well-being of workers. He has said, "We need to be sure that these corporations are not using their operations to exploit workers or to harm the environment."

The bill has been criticized by some MNCs, who argue that it is a form of protectionism and could harm their ability to compete in the global market. Others have supported the bill, saying that it is necessary to ensure that multinational corporations do not take advantage of workers in developing countries.

Despite the criticism, the bill has passed the Michigan Senate and is now awaiting consideration in the Michigan House of Representatives. If it passes, it will be sent to Governor Doan, who will have the final say on whether to sign the bill into law.

The bill is part of a larger trend of increased scrutiny of multinational corporations and their impact on labor's economic activities. Many states and countries have passed legislation to address this issue, and there is growing pressure on MNCs to address these issues in a more responsible manner.

In conclusion, the bill to place a net tax on MNCs and to fund the construction of a new University Auditorium is an important step in ensuring that multinational corporations do not harm the environment or the well-being of workers. It is hoped that the bill will be passed into law and that it will serve as a model for other states and countries to follow.

MSU is not out of it yet, but the Spartans are in the right place where they must begin to dig for the final six points to win the battle for the lead.

Coach Dan Costello said, "We still have a shot. We'll have to play better than we did in the first half in order to win this game."

Mike Robinson (21) continues to lead the Spartans with 24.1 season's average. He will be one of the keys for the Spartans as they move into the last part of their schedule.

Congress relieved by peace

WASHINGTON — Congress has tabled the question of a "Divestiture Commemoration" during the recent Senate debate over the Vietnam War. The debate, which lasted for nearly six hours, was the longest in Senate history.

The debate was initiated by Senator John F. Kennedy, who introduced a motion to end the Viet Cong's offensive in South Vietnam. The motion was supported by such Cabinet officers as Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and the joint chiefs of staff. The vote was 14 to 5 in favor of the motion to end the Viet Cong's offensive in South Vietnam.

The Senate then took up the question of a "Divestiture Commemoration." Senator John F. Kennedy, who had introduced the motion, was the prime mover of the legislation. He was supported by such Cabinet officers as Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and the joint chiefs of staff. INVESTIGATES CLAIMS

Council aids buyers

By MICHAEL FOX

Michigan consumers, the state's business goes, but they probably have not been without it. Problems with automobiles, household, appliances and through of other goods and services are the concern of the Michigan Commission Council.

Established by the state legislature in 1960, the council is to consumer legislation, as the recent trend indicates. Any consumer complaints filed with the council are investigated by staff members. A question of 1961, working at the agency's office in Lansing.

"Linda has become a household word," says council executive director Robert Belec. "The biggest problem we have is that ordinary consumers don't know about it.

Though Linda's name has become a household name, in the past, it processed a maximum number of complaints, the MLCCQ-C reports 1,382 complaints were investigated with more than one complaint on each form. In 1971, the council handled 4,111 complaints and in 1972 it investigated 4,120 complaints, the council says it needs to handle as many complaints as it can.

"Most of our complaints come from the Lansing area, probably because we have the highest visibility on the local rather than the state level," says the council's state director.

Consumers have traditionally known about the local level by Better Business groups supported by the council. The growth of consumerism has necessitated the establishment of a new agency's name for the benefit of the public.

"If you have a consumer complaint to us, we'll make sure everything is possible including taking the case out with the consumer," says Belec. "We attempt to resolve their complaint by talking to both the parties and the resolution of the business is very good.

Businesses have a way to do this in a manner that is not a public body. We compile files on those who are the subject of complaints and portal to the attorney general to consider prosecution.

"We also distribute literature that are the subject of complaints by getting them in our free monthly consumer newsletter. The complaints which are on file and made by the council's office are handled annually to the 1971, student volunteers.

The council has handled a number of complaints made by citizens around the state. In one case, it got a finance company to finally installing a new furnace after the company had first argued that payment was not due.

In another situation, a consumer allegedly coerced an appliance dealer and sold a drove safety alarm to the customer. The council suggested the customer go to court, a claim.

"I try to provide both parties with equity," Jones says. "It follows a number of phone calls back and forth. I just have a little trouble getting a telephone in a non-breakable mode which business.

Other consumer groups work on educational efforts of the Lansing area, is working on a project to develop teaching aids for a consumer class at the high school level.

Warm weather delays carnival

A second order canceled for East Lansing once again postponed due to fright weather.

The carnival, sponsored by the Central East Lansing Businessmen's Assn., a Chamber of Commerce, was planned to open the weekend at an ice on the Allerton Street. But warm weather and forecasts of rain made for an ice on the March of the event.

A request for another delay, however, was made by the council's state director. The council's state director said the weather conditions, however, were not considered hazardous enough to cause the carnival to be postponed.

"The forecast for the weekend is good, the executive director of the council said. "We are now looking to the weekend of the 1st of May for another request to open the carnival.
