Royal faces sentencing Friday

By SHARON HANKS

The controversy surrounding the publishing of a new book come to a climax Friday when the publisher of the book was sentenced to prison. Lansing Circuit Judge James Neumann declared the book "disturbing," but said it was not a "crime" in the "true" sense. "All the witnesses played a crucial role," he said. "If Miller had not testified, some things might have been the case..."

Got no objections

"From my point of view, all the available evidence is certainly not using informers," Neumann said. (continued on page 12)

Since the testimony of a police informer in the aborted White House protest arrests at MSU has raised the issue of whether informers should be used on campus. Members of those groups are Executive Director Richard O. Bermitt, a former police captain at the MSU Police Safety Committee meetings about the department's use of informers.

The question as, members of the group asked themselves, "Is there a need for these informations in our communities?" The MSU President, professor of criminal justice, agreed. According to Bill Davier, president of anthropology, Delitha Miller, a former police detective, is a concrete example of how an informer can lead to further research. Miller acted as an informer for police during the six months he inferred the students for a justice department. In his report, Bermitt indicated that the students in the meeting were, after Miller of flying, being and having the conference.

City to set bike path priority

By JANE SABREY

Bike riders may know where to go, but the choices of East Lansing's bike path system creators are in the process of getting finalized for the fourth time this year.

The city planning board on Tuesday night chose three sites for the city's bike paths. The parks department is also planning to add a bike path along the north side of the MSU campus.

The city's future bike paths are being decided now because the city's 2003-2006 transportation plan will be finalized soon.

Legislators say Tri-U ruling will not effect funding

State News Staff Writer
The recent state court of appeals ruling redefining the autonomy of Michigan's three largest universities will not affect the $5.5 billion in public appropriations the state allocates each year to those institutions, according to members of the state House and Senate Appropriations Committees.

The court of appeals ruled Thursday that the Michigan State University, Wayne State University and the University of Michigan are autonomous under the Michigan constitution and have the power to set their own tuitions without interference from the state legislature.

The House and Senate Appropriations committees are scheduled to meet Wednesday to discuss the state appropriations for the next fiscal year.

The state appropriations also fund a variety of state agencies and programs, including health care, public safety, and education. The ruling is expected to have a significant impact on the funding and governance of these institutions.

The court's decision will likely result in a legal challenge from the state legislature, which has set up a special committee to review the ruling.

The state appropriations are also expected to increase in response to the ruling, as the universities are able to set their own tuitions and maintain control over their budgets.

The ruling also has implications for the state's overall budget, as the universities are able to generate more revenue and spend it as they see fit.

Congress stands up to Nixon by cutting off bombing funds

For the first time in the long Indochina conflict, Congress is finally standing up to President Nixon and asserting its constitutional right to run wars.

The legislative showdown began several months ago but was delayed until the Senate Appropriations Committee ruled out funds for draft this week for Cambodian bombing. The week before the House of Representatives voted 219 to 181 to seize President Nixon's funds for the bombing.

This is the Senate’s vote 62 to 22 overruns Nixon’s veto of a bill requiring Senate confirmation of the director and deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget.

President Nixon felt that this threatened to “severely undermine” any chance for peace. But for the American people, Vietnam showed a long overdue desire for a pro-American policy.

The end — the bombing actions also mean that the Nixon administration’s credibility has indeed been hurt by the Watergate scandal. Even devoted Nixon supporters in Congress now say they no longer trust the President’s chief aides to provide counsel on the Indochina conflict.

The present struggle is more than just party politics in the aftermath of scandal. It is a Congressional fight for a check and balance force in the federal government.

For more than a half-century, the power of Congress has steadily shifted to the executive branch. In previous decades lack of dynamic congressional leaders and majority have plagued any effective action by the legislative branch.

The present economic situation in the United States, the bombing of Cambodia and the Watergate affair have served to remind members of Congress to reassert themselves.

A congressional vote to appropriate funds for wars and the President’s budget would be a condition to a condition, a condition,Checkbox selected
Week dedicated to African liberation

By KOPI AMUFI
President, AAF

For the first time in its history, the African liberation movement has organized a week dedicated to African liberation. The week begins on Monday May 11 and runs through Saturday May 16. The theme of the week is "African Liberation - A World-wide Movement for Freedom, Unity and Progress."

The week's events include a series of lectures, workshops, and discussions on African liberation movements and their struggle for independence. There will also be a film festival, a concert, and a march through the streets of the city to demonstrate solidarity with the African liberation struggle.

The week is being organized by the African Liberation Committee, a group of African activists who have been working together to promote African liberation for many years. The committee is supported by a number of other organizations, including the African National Congress, the Pan-Africanist Congress, and the African Students Union.

The African Liberation Committee is calling on all African Americans to participate in the week's events and to support the African liberation movement. The committee hopes that the week will help to raise awareness of the African liberation struggle and to build support for the movement.

The African Liberation Committee's address is: 123 Main Street, New York City, NY 10012. To learn more about the week's events, contact the committee at 555-5555.

Supporting cast makes "Heartbreak" delightful

By MAUREEN GENTLE
State News Review Editor

"Heartbreak," the new ABC miniseries, is as heartwarming as the old "guy next door" story. If there is one story which exemplifies the heart's ability to cope with virtually any situation, it is the story of love. "Heartbreak," the story of the lives of three couples, plays with this concept in a very, very subtle way. The story unfolds with the grace and poignancy of the old, experienced hands at work. It is a story of love, a story of heartache, but above all, it is a story of hope.

The story begins with the arrival of the new couple, Lila and Paul. Lila is a lively, outgoing girl who has just been married to Paul, a quiet, reserved man. Paul is a doctor and Lila is a nurse. The two work together at a hospital and are very happy with each other. However, life is not all roses for the couple. Paul has just received a diagnosis of cancer and Lila is devastated. She must come to terms with the fact that her husband will be dying and she must live with the knowledge that she will be without him for a long time to come.

The next couple to arrive is the one played by Jay and Mary. Jay is a charming, handsome man who is very popular with the ladies. Mary is a shy, reserved girl who is very much in love with Jay. However, the two are not getting along too well. Jay is very busy with his work and Mary is very nervous about the whole situation. Nevertheless, they try to make it work and they eventually get married.

The third couple is played by Lila and Paul. Lila and Paul are very happy with each other and they have three children. However, Lila is very much in love with her husband and she is very sad when he dies. She must come to terms with the fact that she will be without him for a long time to come. She must also come to terms with the fact that she will be without her children for a long time to come. Nevertheless, she tries to make it work and she eventually gets through the difficult times.

The story is a beautiful one and it is told with grace and poignancy. It is a story of love, a story of heartache, but above all, it is a story of hope. ON AIDE APPROVALS

Veto upset by Senate

Despite a strong warning from the White House Tuesday that he might use a three-fifths override to prevent Congress from approving a $5 billion aid package to Vietnam, President Nixon was forced to sign the bill last night after more than an hour of intense negotiation with Congress. The Senate approved the bill last week with overwhelming bipartisan support. But the House, which already had rejected the bill, approved it by a slightly narrower margin of 267 to 167.

The White House had hoped the Senate's approval of the bill would allow it to be approved by the House this week. The White House had hoped the Senate's approval of the bill would allow it to be approved by the House this week.

The president's veto threat, however, sparked a last-minute scramble to change House rules to prevent the House from overriding the veto. The Senate would then be forced to approve the bill again, and the president could then veto it again.

The Senate voted 70-27 to override the veto, with 47 Republicans, 21 Democrats, and 2 independent votes. The House voted 280-149 to override the veto, with 172 Republicans, 106 Democrats, and 12 independent votes. The president would then have 10 days to veto the bill again, and the Senate would have to approve it again by a three-fifths margin.

The bill would provide $5 billion for military aid to Vietnam, including $3 billion for weapons and $2 billion for training and support.

The Senate, voting before the Labor Day recess, also approved a bill providing $4 billion for a 40,000-man American force in the Middle East, which President Nixon had called "the most significant development in the Middle East in a generation." The bill, which was signed into law by the president, would provide $2 billion for weapons and $2 billion for training and support.

Jail art

Jail art is a form of art created by prisoners, often under the guidance of professional artists. It can be a powerful way to explore themes of incarceration and personal identity. The art made in jail can be a window into the lives and experiences of the artists who created it. It can also serve as a means of expression, a coping mechanism, or a way to connect with others on a deeper level.

Sheriff plans new jail image

By BILL TAYLOR

State News Writer

Society tends to look at the case that one sentence committed and not the person who committed it. But Ingham County Sheriff Jerry Preadmore is not content to blame society for the image by explaining what he calls a new concept of the jail.

Sheriff Preadmore's concept of a new jail image involves something more than just putting a new face on the old facility. It involves creating a new atmosphere and a new, more positive image of the jail.

Sheriff Preadmore said that if the inmate returns to living society or监狱 will be expected to return to it fully prepared and willing to move away from the image of the old jail. He stated that within the new jail image there is an emphasis on providing vocational opportunities and educational services to the inmates who may have none of the same.

Ingham County Jail is the only jail in the state that offers vocational rehabilitation and educational services to the inmates who may have none of the same. In addition, Ingham County Jail has recently received the National Association of Counties Award for its program. In April 1971, the jail was presented an award for its program by the Michigan State Police.

The vocational rehabilitation program which is funded by the state provides job training skills for inmates who have been victims of narcotics, alcohol, or have physical disabilities.

Preadmore explained that under the vocational rehabilitation program the jail has contracts with the Inmates in prison facilities and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. "We're going to let the inmates have the advantage of the job," Preadmore said.

Preadmore is urging that people critical of juvenile delinquency. "The jail is not to be used as the place for young people who have been in trouble. The jail is a place where they can work toward rehabilitation." Preadmore said.

Ingham County Jail can be viewed as what one would call a modern concept of rehabilitation. It is the first jail county in the nation to build schools and gymnasiums and Preadmore assumed that there is no such thing as a "jail" in Ingham County Jail but they have built schools and gymnasiums for the inmates and the young people.

The vocational rehabilitation program will add 30 new inmates to the jail in the study to program.

Preadmore said that in his opinion there is a problem in society that is putting a priority on people critical of juvenile delinquency. "We're going to let the inmates have the advantage of the job," Preadmore said.

"The people in jail are more likely to be trained and they will continue to work in the world outside on the job," Preadmore said.

Michigan State officials recently were thrown into a panic over the resignation of their athletic director, who resigned to accept a similar job at Tennessee. The news was met with shock and disappointment across Michigan's athletic departments, particularly at the football and basketball programs.

"We have talked about facilities which are necessary to a successful football program," said Tom Rowley, MSU's athletic director. "We've talked about recruiting, and we've talked about maintaining a high level of competitiveness." The resignation of the athletic director is a significant blow to the university's athletic programs, and it's unclear how the program will move forward.

Denny Stolz, the new athletic director, has been named by university president Alise Litwhiler. Stolz has extensive experience in the college basketball world and is expected to bring a fresh perspective to the university's athletic programs.

"I think we're in a good position now. We've got some good people in place," said Stolz. "We've got some great coaches, and we've got some great support system." Stolz is confident that the university's athletic programs will continue to be successful under his leadership.

"We're looking to build on the foundation that we have," said Stolz. "We're looking to continue to be successful on the field, in the classroom, and in the community." Stolz is expected to be named later this week, and he will begin his tenure on July 1.

"We're excited to welcome Denny Stolz to our team," said Litwhiler. "He brings a wealth of experience and a strong commitment to our university." The university is confident that Stolz will be able to lead the university's athletic programs to even greater success in the future.

"We're looking forward to seeing what he can do," said Litwhiler. "We're confident that he will be able to lead our program to even greater success in the future." The university is confident that Stolz will be able to lead the University's athletic programs to even greater success in the future.

City on constant watch for contaminated water

Wolverine

The 1973 Watergate may have upset 30 Student Union administrators, but the 1974 Watergate has upset the citizens of East Lansing. As the university's water supply continues to be a source of concern, state officials are watching closely.

Drug robberies reported in week

By the third drug-related armed robbery on campus in a week, late Monday night in East Lansing, police were told by a Student Unionresident that one of the suspects was a freshman. The gun was reportedly a 22 caliber automatic.

The student told police he had no money to give them and gave them a quantity of marijuana at the scene.

The three men reportedly walked away with $12.50 worth of cigarettes and $100 in cash.

Braithwaite will announce permanent, full-time job as assistant professor in English Department

By Judy Braithwaite, a counselor at Brody, has been hired by MSU on a permanent basis and is the second faculty member of the University Counseling Center, announced Tuesday.

The announcement was made at a meeting between President, James Hamilton, director of special programs, Braithwaite, and representatives of concerned students. Braithwaite was named to the position in May and was told that the appointment was contingent on the results of a financial review of the counseling center. The announcement for the position has been made for Judy to begin work on July 1.

Attempts to reach her for comment were unsuccessful.

EXPLORES ART OF SPELL CASTING
Witch captivates audience

By ED WARNER

Want to get rich quick or have someone suddenly fall in love with you? Well, that's a whole lot of wishful thinking, according to Geraldine Hall. Hall is a "witch" in the world, though." Hall believes in the power of spells, though. She is a Wiccan of sorts, and she practices spells to bring about desired outcomes. "I use spells to bring about a sense of well-being, just like a child loves its family," Hall said.

In a long talk, Geraldine spoke of magic spells, the spirit world, and how she became a witch. It can be done by being born into a family of witches, just as a child loves her or his family, or by joining a coven, which is a group of witches who practice spells together.

"As a witch, Geraldine believes that a member of one family knows the other family, and that the power of spells is in the family, not in the individual," Hall said. "I believe that, including my own family, the other family is the one who has the power to bring about desired outcomes."

"I was raised in a family of witches, and I believe that the power of spells is in the family, not in the individual," Hall said. "I believe that the power of spells is in the family, not in the individual, and that the power of spells is in the family, not in the individual."
