Sihanouk refuses to meet Kissinger

The New York Times

BElston, Calif. — Prince Norodom Sihanouk, chief of the royal government in Cambodia, has told the United States government in a note of protest that he will not meet with President Nixon's envoy, Henry Kissinger, in Paris this week.

Mr. Sihanouk said in the note that he had refused to meet with Mr. Kissinger, who arrived here late yesterday, because he "did not wish to take part in a negotiation that would further the interests of the aggressor:" the United States.

The United States government had indicated that it would receive Mr. Sihanouk, the head of the revolutionary government, and that he would meet with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in Paris to discuss how to end the war in Vietnam.

The note was presented by Foreign Minister Souvanna Phouma, who accompanied Mr. Sihanouk to the United States.

In his note, Mr. Sihanouk said that he would not meet with Mr. Kissinger "for any purpose whatsoever." He said that the United States was "responsible for the continuation of the war in Southeast Asia." He also said that he would not meet with any of the \( 	ext{U.S.} \) officials who had been in the United States to negotiate with his government.

Mr. Sihanouk said in his note that he was not interested in a "cease-fire" with the United States, and that he would not meet with any of the \( 	ext{U.S.} \) officials who had been in the United States to negotiate with his government.

Ervin fan club started

"He says he is just an "old country lawyer" but when he talks about the Constitution, he makes you want to plead allegiance. So saying in San Francisco, Bob Gallagher and seven other young people announced the formation of the "National Ervin Fan Club," devoted to the North Carolina Democrat and chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

The administration Thursday slapped export controls on 41 agricultural items in yet another move to restrain costs of farm products and meat at home by limiting sales abroad.

The list, released by the Commerce Dept., includes peas, alfalfa meal, edible oils, animal fats and livestock protein feed. The controls are effective immediately.

The overall purpose of the controls is to reduce the supply of feeding livestock and thereby cut the cost of meat for the American consumer.

The new controls plug a loophole created by controls against exports of soybeans and cottonseeds, which were in wide demand overseas for use as livestock protein feed for livestock and for edible food oils.

Del Rio removal sought

The Detroit Police Officers Assn. (DPOA) is calling for the removal of controversial Recorder's Court Judge James I. Del Rio. The group says he is "not capable of sitting on the bench."

The resignation was made by DPOA President Charles Wabick in a letter to the Michigan Judicial Tenure Commission. The action was announced in an article carried in the current issue of the DPOA's monthly newsletter, Tanner.

"We have no desire to be any individual's" and Wabick. "We worked with him as a state legislature but he's shown what he is in the blank bowl"-coordinated situations with the police and recommends the DPOA, he has four occasions accused officers of contempt of court, perjury, or perjury, and once accused a president of coaching a witness.

The MDU Judicial Council, which has been calling for a change in the present system of dual rights and responsibilities for members of the Judicial Council, has filed a request for the creation of an interdepartmental body to bridge the two groups. A formal proposal by the judicial council offices and the Public Officers Commission has been filed to create the present dual system. Community regulations as well as those which would benefit both students and faculty members.

Michael Fagen, on, director of judicial programs and the staff was invited to find out what other institutions were doing in the way of developing community regulations. It was found that there was little or no regulations. Members of the Judicial Council and the rights of students could not be viewed by them.

"If we are concerned about the rights and responsibilities of members of the university, we have to assume that there is an interrelationship. It does not mean good to study them rights and responsibilities together," Then said.

Meant that the purpose of the report was to carry the body in the academic community about community regulations.

The study gathered information from 12 institutions that had established community regulations and attempted to find what all of the universities had in common. After it was found that they all were such.

"When we put the staff, students and faculty together we were trying for some common regulations which were consistent to all people. "

State explained.

Some of the conclusions of the report are as follows:

- The community regulations of most importance are applicable to students, faculty and administrative staff.

- The community regulations are written to be understood by students who are not academic specialists.

County must be sure landfill doesn't offend local residents

Ingham County Drain Commissioners are playing it cool by not revealing the site of a proposed landfill. If Soo's coffin falls off, Ingham County finally has a new tool that may offend residents who live close by.

So far county officials have struck down their search for a new dump site. A 12-page tract to the proposal, which was held back, was kased off after opposition from residents and more than 1,000 signatures of their trustees. The county has to hand together answers to all the pertinent questions to finalize whether counties can construct new landfills within their boundaries.

Now the Ingham County Board of Public Works is looking at Dalry Township for a site to solve its problems. Residents there are already insisting they have a voice on the landfill location to prevent the project from being built on their farmland.

The point, here's where Soo holds his tramp card - if he doesn't mingle.

Soo is not revealing the location of the landfill so he can build another land speculation from the principal profit, he and his company will make two properties of the same area, one covering the landfill under the county. But Soo has been on the court before and intimates that residents will be in intense proximity to the dump, otherwise, the project may be voided.

The landfill system envisioned by the county would cost $3,000,000 and include a grading, elevating and compacting operation. Garbage would be loaded into the site in one shot and each day's trash would be covered with dirt. Trash regrading would be required.

Ingham County soon may have one of the finest solid waste disposal units in the country. But in the meantime, Soo must make sure that his secret dump site doesn't cause a nuisance to local residents.

Kent State inquiry long, long overdue

The U.S. Supreme Court, before recently for a long summer break, made an old long overdue move in agreeing to decide whether a suit may be brought in the deaths of four Kent State University students during a 1970 antiwar demonstration.

The court promised to examine next fall the role federal courts might play in determining the responsibility of the lower courts. Lower courts have so far disagreed attempts to file damage suits against former Ohio Gov. James Rhodes and officers and men of the Ohio National Guard. David Johnson and Larry. Mass, has also taken a renewed interest in the Kent State shootings and plans to get together with Arty. Gen. Ellen L. Richardson to discuss the case. As chairman of the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on Administrative Practice and Procedure, Kennedy is skeptical of the political neutrality of the Justice Dept. under attorney general John N. Mitchell and Richard G. Kleindienst.

It's time for the federal court system took a fresh hard look at the murders instead of trying to bury the incident under a rug.

Put down

A federal court in Oklahoma put President Nixon in his place when it refused to impound funds to Michigan appropriated under a literacy law for each action that's taken.

At the heart of the matter is whether tax-exempt colleges and universities and other like governmental bodies, like Congrats, in his turn fail to impound funds, denying him a kick in the shins. He's above the law.

When appropriate procedures, his position is one of no mandate. Federal courts must have Nixon's name on this before they hit to stem America.

POINT OF VIEW

Can't shut its doors

By ORRIN T. B.S.

Well, Lansing, the City Council

In an election year a fall for the people, the city will have to make an important decision. It will be a choice between building more City plans that are not supported by the city or building another city that will be expensive and provide no benefits to the residents.

The question before the council is whether to continue with the downtown area improvements or to build a new area that is more efficiently located for the downtown area because of its proximity to the main street.

We propose a plan to build a new area that is more efficiently located for the downtown area because of its proximity to the main street. This plan will include adding more parking spaces and sidewalks, as well as improving the aesthetics of the city.

On the other hand, the city council may choose to build a new area that is not located near the main street and is too far away from the downtown area. This plan will not provide any benefits to the residents and will be an expensive choice.

In conclusion, the city council should choose to build a new area that is more efficiently located for the downtown area because of its proximity to the main street. This plan will provide benefits to the residents and will be an efficient choice.

Citizens must be wary a lot earlier in the game

Even though the number remains in doubt, the Michigan Avenue Family Fun Center has already solved the problem of the group's loss. It has decided to create a new group of family fun centers, which may be more effective in helping the group to stay together.

The decision was made last week by the Michigan Avenue Family Fun Center's board of directors. They decided to create a new group of family fun centers, which may be more effective in helping the group to stay together.

For one thing, East Lansing is a university community and an important part of the operation. Operations are student in what way? I mean, perhaps, most of the decision-making project is for the few homeowners who have lived in the Michigan Avenue Family Fun Center. It's understandable, the board of directors has to do something. If not, it seems to me that the residents, the people, the fund, short of their civic obligations.

Considering all the residents of this group that emerged in the city and state lawmakers, the plan not only secured without winning in the last round is the community. They say that someone is willing to name the residents of Michigan Avenue as part of the process until the controversy became full-fledged. And then a couple of years later, the city officials said the plan after the project. It was first discussed formally in East Lansing in early 1971.

It is clear that some residents process broke down - maybe intentionally, probably not - and people didn't find out what was going on till it was too late.

POINT OF VIEW

Law school belongs at MSU

By JACKIE VAUGHN

State Representative, 18th District

Since Charles H. Crisp, chairman of the Board of Education policy student affairs committee, presented the concept of a public supported law school to the legislature in March 1972, the questions of the Michigan Legislature were: What can be done to support law schools? of the 21 public law schools, should we support one alternative to another? or how can we support both law school education and public policy education?

We support both. A public policy education is important for public policy education, an essential ingredient for the future of our society. A public policy education is not only important for the future of our society, but it is also important for the future of our state.

Over and over again, this school has been shown to be MSU. Our state representatives have expressed their support for the center of the state's university system, the public policy education. It is a school of national pride. It is the largest state-supported university in the state and it has been a leader in the development of personnel and facilities for local, state, and national quality law school. It has been the best in the nation in this field.

In sum, it is obvious that we must continue to support our own state by building our own school. The Michigan State University School of Law is the right place for our state's university system. We have the ability to create a strong and effective school in Michigan, which will be the best in the nation.

The school not only provides a strong legal education, but it also provides a strong education in the social sciences, which is important for understanding the world we live in.

So, let's continue to support this school and let's make it the best school in the nation.

On the other hand, it is important to note that the school has been called into question by some people who believe that it is not necessary for the state to support a law school in Michigan. However, this argument is not valid.

In the current state of the economy, it is even more important that we support our own school. The school is not only important for the future of our society, but it is also important for the future of our state.

So, let's continue to support this school and let's make it the best school in the nation.

Original plans called for the arena to seat 2,500 but costs were a million dollars over the allowable budget. Having the project to be reestimated and rebid, delaying the proposed completion date from July 1, 1973, to June 1, 1974. Miller said, "We have to take out the seating and re-con and bring it back in a proper perspective," Thursday said.

He also said the 8,000 capacity seating capacity is down to 8,100. The women's hockey facility is in the country. A complete physical therapy room, offices for trainers and women's locker room are also to be included in the complex.

Lecturing decreases

State News; Staff Writer
In the spring of 1987, the University of Michigan's 20,000 student population will experience a decrease in the number of classroom lectures.
To facilitate this decrease, the Michigan State University department of Developmental Programs has adopted a large-scale innovative program called the Developmental Program (DP).
The goal of this program is to reduce the number of college students who are perceived as being "at-risk." The program includes an intense two-week orientation period designed to aid at-risk students in the transition to college life.
Professor Richard Kopka, coordinator of the DP program, said, "The Developmental Program is designed to help reduce the stress and demands associated with college life.
Students can expect to be involved in a wide variety of activities that will make the transition to college easier for them." The program utilizes a variety of techniques to achieve its goals. Some activities include guest speakers, workshops, and small group discussions. The goal is to provide students with the skills necessary to succeed in college.
Professor Kopka explained that the program will be implemented on a large scale beginning in the fall of 1987.
A pilot program was held in the spring of 1987 and was found to be successful. A nationwide search has begun to find funding for the DP program.
"We hope to attract funding from a variety of sources," Kopka said. "Our goal is to have the DP program implemented at all major universities within the next five years." The program is currently being implemented at the University of Michigan, Michigan State University, and the Ohio State University.

PLAYGIRL HITS MARKET

Magazine evens up score

By JUDY RYPM
State News, Fash

For years there was a great void in the magazine industry - the lack of a "women's entertainment" magazine for women. But, with the advent of the new Playgirl magazine, the women of 1973 are finally seeing that void filled. Women were getting sick of reading articles on how to change a diaper or how to handle their in-laws. They were fed up with thumbing through issues of the popular Playboy magazine which was filled with pictures of nude women when all they wanted to do was enjoy the jokes, cartoons and articles the magazine had to offer. Playgirl is now publishing articles and cartoons that are just as good as those in Playboy, but now women can gaze at the male form in all its glory. Playgirl offers features, article basics, article forms, the top menu, eating T-shirts, liberal critiques, and much more. The magazine has a vast readership of women's interest, and it's doing well. Playgirl has now emerged as the most exciting child star in decades - the new magazine. The two can make a difference.
Group admits bombing of recruitment center

DETROIT (UPI) - A Detroit federal judge on Wednesday approved a $4 million settlement between the city and dozens of black residents who said they were injured in a summer 1973 airplane explosion at an Army recruitment center.

The settlement was reached today by United Press Associated and Michigan State Attorney General. The federal judge in the case, U.S. District Judge James Hackett, said the settlement was a fair one for all parties involved.

The $4 million settlement is the largest ever awarded to a group of black residents in the United States. It was reached after months of negotiations between the city and the residents, who said they were injured in the explosion.

The explosion occurred on July 19, 1973, at the Army recruitment center on the city's east side. The explosion killed 17 people and injured more than 100 others.

The settlement includes $3.5 million for medical expenses and $100,000 for pain and suffering.

The residents said they were injured by shrapnel and other flying debris from the explosion. They said they were promised a fair settlement by the city but were forced to accept a low offer.

The residents said they were also forced to accept a settlement that was much lower than the amount they had been promised.

The settlement was approved by the court after a hearing in which the residents and the city presented their arguments.

The residents said they were pleased with the settlement and would continue to fight for justice.

The city said it was happy with the settlement and would continue to work towards a fair solution for the residents.

The residents said they would continue to fight for justice and would not accept a settlement that was much lower than the amount they had been promised.

Over 600 people attended East Lansing's annual community bike Day Tuesday, June 28, according to Race Director Thomas Glasscock.

East Lansing and Lansing residents, as well as others from the surrounding area, participated in the event.

Glasscock said the event involved a field of cash prizes and a race in downtown Lansing.

The annual bike Day was sponsored by the Freewheelers Club, an organization that organizes and promotes bike events in the Lansing area.

Several local sponsors contributed to the event, including Michigan Pizza, which provided the prizes.

The bike Day route traveled through downtown Lansing, allowing participants to experience various city sights.

At the finish line, a 100-meter race was held, with the first three finishers receiving trophies.

The event was enjoyed by participants of all ages, with children and adults alike taking part in the fun.

East Lansing residents were encouraged to participate in the bike Day, and many took advantage of the opportunity.

The East Lansing bike Day is an annual event that aims to promote cycling and encourage residents to enjoy the city's attractions on two wheels.

Leader of the pack

Charles Glazier, 29, of the Jackson Freewheelers Bicycle Club, led the pack as they crossed the finish line of the annual bike Day.

Glazier, who is the head of the club, said, "I definitely won't be changed. We're just having a good time." Glazier estimated that over 600 people participated in the event.

The bike Day was held in East Lansing on Wednesday, offering participants a chance to enjoy the city's sights and sounds while on two wheels.

The event was a huge success, with many people taking part in the various activities and enjoying the atmosphere.

Council cautious about limiting police

by JIM BUSH

A resolution to limit local police salaries has been soundly defeated by East Lansing City Council, which voted to alter the resolution put forward by Mayor Stephen Hart for his comments.

The resolution, sponsored by Tuesday's meeting by Councillor George Griffiths, would reduce the police force of officers and other non-sworn personnel within the city.

Griffiths said that, while he was a proponent of the resolution, he was opposed by the Lansing city administration.

"The resolution is not meant to reduce the size of the police force, but to reduce the number of new positions that are added," he said.

Griffiths said that the resolution was supported by members of the city council and that it was important for the council to take a stand on the issue.

"We need to be proactive in this regard," he said.

The resolution was met with opposition from other members of the city council, who argued that it was not the role of the council to dictate the size of the police force.

"The police force is the responsibility of the city manager and the mayor, not the council," said Councilwoman Mary Johnson, who opposed the resolution.

The resolution was defeated by a vote of 6-1, with Mayor Hart being the only member of the council to vote in favor of the resolution.

"I believe that the police force is too large and that we need to reduce the number of new positions that are added," said Mayor Hart.

"I believe that the council should support the resolution," he said.
