In recent years, bicycles have been held as a economically sound and ecologically wise mode of transportation. A number of cities are encouraging bicycling. Last year alone, the U.S. Postal Service alone has sponsored bike clinics, bike rodeos and bike-a-bikes to work audiences. However, the increase in bicycle use has not been without problems. A recent report indicates that more than 10,000 people were killed and approximately 200,000 injured in bicycle-related accidents last year, nearly 90 percent of whom were involved in fatal or non-fatal bike accidents. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has released a study showing that the increase in bicycle ridership has led to an increase in bicycle-related accidents.

A recent report indicates that more than 10,000 people were killed and approximately 200,000 injured in bicycle-related accidents last year, nearly 90 percent of whom were involved in fatal or non-fatal bike accidents. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has released a study showing that the increase in bicycle ridership has led to an increase in bicycle-related accidents. The report notes that the increase in bicycle accidents has been accompanied by an increase in the number of bicycled-related injuries and deaths, with the majority of these occurring on roads.

The report suggests that bicyclists should be encouraged to wear helmets and other protective gear, and that cyclists should be educated about safe riding practices. The report also recommends that bicycle-related accidents be studied further in order to better understand the factors that contribute to these accidents and to develop effective strategies for preventing them.

The Peace Corps has won the support of Senator John F. Kennedy, who has called for increased funding for the agency in his budget proposal for fiscal year 1962. Kennedy, who is a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said that the Peace Corps is "an exciting and vital new force in our foreign policy." He noted that the corps has been successful in helping to stabilize and develop countries around the world and has been instrumental in promoting peace and understanding.

Kennedy also praised the corps' work in helping to provide aid to countries in need. He said that the corps has been "an example of what can be done when people work together for a common purpose." He added that the corps has been "an inspiration to all who believe in the power of volunteerism and the importance of peaceful cooperation.

The senator said that he would work to ensure that the Peace Corps receives the funding it needs to expand its operations.

"The Peace Corps is a vital program that promotes peace and friendship among nations, and it is important that we support it fully," he said. "We must continue to work together to help the people of the world, and the Peace Corps is a key part of that effort."

The U.S. Peace Corps volunteers detained by the Ugandan government have been released on bail. The volunteers had been arrested and detained for allegedly engaging in subversive activities.

The volunteers were arrested on July 23, 1961, after they had been accused of planning to overthrow the government of Uganda. The volunteers were released on bail after a judge ruled that there was not sufficient evidence to hold them for trial.

The volunteers, who are from a variety of countries, had been working in Uganda as part of the Peace Corps' efforts to promote development in the country. They had been accused of传播 subversive ideas and engaging in political activities.

The volunteers have been praised for their work in promoting development in Uganda, and their release has been welcomed by many as a step toward improving relations between the United States and Uganda.

However, the Ugandan government has been criticized for its human rights record, and the volunteers have called for greater accountability and transparency in the government.

The Peace Corps has launched a new campaign to encourage more young people to volunteer for service in developing countries. The campaign, called "The Peace Corps: A Call to Service," aims to attract more volunteers from a diverse range of backgrounds.

The campaign highlights the impact of the Peace Corps on the lives of young people who have served in the program. It also highlights the positive effects the program has had on the countries where volunteers have served.

The campaign is part of a broader effort to increase the number of volunteers serving in the Peace Corps. Over the past five years, the number of volunteers serving has increased by 50 percent.

The Peace Corps has released a report showing that the agency has made significant progress in recent years in promoting the education of young people in developing countries.

The report shows that the Peace Corps has helped to support the education of over 300,000 young people in the past five years. The agency has worked with governments and local communities to establish schools and provide educational materials.

The report notes that the Peace Corps has also helped to improve the quality of education in many countries. It has worked with local leaders to develop learning materials and curricula that are relevant to the needs of students.

The report emphasizes the importance of education in promoting economic development and social stability. It highlights the role that the Peace Corps can play in supporting education in developing countries.

The Peace Corps has announced that it will be launching a new program to support the development of small businesses in developing countries. The program, called "Peace Corps Business Services," aims to provide technical assistance and training to entrepreneurs.

The program will be implemented in partnership with local businesses and government agencies. It will provide support in areas such as market research, business planning, and financing.

The program is part of a broader effort to promote economic development in developing countries. The Peace Corps has a long history of supporting economic development initiatives.

The program is expected to be implemented in 2023, and the agency is seeking partners to join in this effort.

Nuclear tests expected

Scientists warned a Sunday morning to ship around its South Pacific nuclear test site in a move expected to bring the relatively small blast may begin soon. All ships were warned to steer clear of the area from noon on Sunday. Some reports said the atmospheric explosions could be heard in the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union abandoned atomic testing on Christmas Day but it has not been confirmed. But France and China have refused to sign the accord, charges that have been attributed to perceptions of nuclear superiority. A wide campaign in France and Pacific countries has failed to dissuade the French from proceeding with their nuclear tests on Mururoa Atoll, about 900 miles southeast of Tahiti.

Sunday's note to shipping does not mean an immediate action to avoid and forbidding overnight of the area must now be issued. In the past, the warning to a warship has preceded the start of a test by 48 hours.

Cosmonauts visit U.S.

A delegation of Soviet space officials, including 10 commandos, left Sunday for the United States in advance of the 50-week manned space mission in 1975, the Soviet space agency reported. The 34-member delegation will travel to the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas, for a program of familiarization with American space technology.

Later this year a Russian space delegation will travel to Moscow for the same kind of program.

New training for the 1975 Apollo-Soyuz flight is planned in the initial visits.

Nader urges apportionment

Ralph Nader, the consumer advocate, warned Sunday that the Federal Trade Commission and the automobile safety agency drift into a state of "passivity." In a letter to the secretary, Claude E. Bringer, Nader urged an independent, full-time appointment of a successor to Douglas W. W. Lewis as chairman of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration because there is a long list of pending safety standards that have been delayed by inaction. He expressed concern that the NTSC might over what he called "dilatory actions" to ban seat belts for all bags or comparably "pamphlet test" service systems on passenger cars. A passive response is one that operates automatically, without any action by the vehicle's occupants.

Congress reconvenes

Congress returns to work this week after a 5-week recess, with the Alaska pipeline and farm price supports the first items of business. In the four weeks before Congress recessed on Aug. 3 until Labor Day, action is planned on a wide variety of legislation ranging from presidential war powers to minimum wages and campaign reforms.

The legislators will try to get moving on appropriations bills. Action has not been completed on a single one of the regular money bills to finance the government in the fiscal year that began July 1. Agencies are operating under resolutions that permit spending at the levels of the previous fiscal year. The last major issue before the Senate this week is a bill to clear away a legal obstacle to construction of the long-stalled pipeline to tap Alaska's vast oil resources.

Gas distributors meet

Michigan gasoline and fuel oil distributors will meet with the state's congressional delegation in Washington this week to discuss the flat shortage problem.

A week ago were announced Friday by the Michigan Petroleum Assn. of Detroit which is sponsoring the meeting. About 60 association members will meet Monday with U.S. Senators Carl Levin and Sargent.

S.W. said that we would like to do everything in our power to make sure nobody in Michigan is without heat next winter.

Supply route reopened by Cambodian troops

By DENNIS MELLO
Associated Press
PHnom Penh (AP) -

Supported by almost constant American bombing, government troops retook Phnom Penh's supply route to the south in the week before fighting, the Cambodian government reported.

The rebels had cut the only highway at the town of Prey Picha, 19 miles west of the capital on their way to the UN base on the south-eastern outskirts of the city. But reports said the anti-aircraft guns were in the hands of the Cambodian forces.

In two other areas, the fights included three days of shelling.

Highway 4 blocked

Twenty high school journalism majors are expected to participate in the first Michigan State Journalism Workshop this week.

The two-week session designed for minority students will work on writing skills as well as examine all aspects of newspaper production.

"The program is structured so that we will start with a general study of the job, then move to specific and detailed sections, and finally put those skills into action," said the workshop coordinator, Jeanne Jacobson.

U' courses lack flexibility

By J. PATRICK FOLKERTZ

Learning seems to be a straightforward process. I have received many requests for and against required courses. In its present form, a course must be required in order to be taken. I have often heard students complain about the amount of work they must do in order to pass a course. In my opinion, this is a waste of time. In my opinion, the student must want to learn the subject matter in order to be considered as being successful. The student must be willing to put in the effort to learn the subject matter.
Policy formed to fight sex bias

A move to eliminate sex discrimination in educational institutions which receive federal funds appears to have met with some resistance, the Michigan State Senate has decided that a copy of the faculty or staff sex discrimination handbook which had been distributed to all employees of the institution was likely to have been received and whether it was read. The report noted that sex discrimination in education is a federal offense and that the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) has filed a lawsuit against the university alleging that the handbook violated the First Amendment.

The Office of Women's Programs, through the introduction of a Women's Program, is being formed to address the issue of women in higher education. The program will focus on issues such as child care, maternity leave, and family leave policies.

A letter to the editor will be not addressed to the name of the writer need not be, in fact, addressed to the name of the writer. The Office of Women's Programs will discuss the concerns presented by the faculty or staff and will provide resources to those in need.

If the remarks continue and more letters are received, a notice of the meeting will be sent to all employees.

The opponents of mass transit have lost all of the work planned on sales tax increases from the local government. They have not been able to unify their forces to meet highway funding needs. Then proposed projects, such as raising U.S. 23 and U.S. 230 in Monroe, will have to be abandoned due to lack of funds. Cable TV outlet allows residents to participate

By LAURIE WINK

"Not only are we getting free cable, but we're also getting more channels to watch," said Bob Novosad of 11 State Street. "It's nice to have so many channels to choose from for various interests in different programs. Productions are being aired in a wide variety of time slots."

Those who would rather work behind the scenes can also participate. Equipment is installed by cable VanDalsen, who also serves as the community's cable coordinator. If a resident and make area who has been instrumental in developing the cable system.

"The intention is cable TV's ability to appeal to people who are interested in television," said VanDalsen. "People are television as something of bringing shows and movies to a wider audience."

"The 11 State Street residential cable outlet is unique in that it has a" is the key to success for area residents to participate in the cable industry. "The 11 State Street outlet is a Cable Corporation," said VanDalsen. "The outlet is a Cable Corporation and the outlet is a Cable Corporation, which gives us the ability to bring television to the area."

"We're now the 9th town in the state that has cable," said VanDalsen. "We've been working on this for over a year now."

"We don't have any idea of what we're doing," said VanDalsen. "We need to have someone do a survey."

Channel 11 can be viewed by students at public schools. Students have a special subscription fee. VanDalsen noted that the majority of married students are new and it is one of the advantages of offering the cable outlet.

The National Cable TV Council passed the system at a meeting held on December 12.

Carol Burnett "Pete 'N' Tillie"

Exhibits of four days are planned for the cable outlet in the future. "Pete 'N' Tillie" is a show that is geared to the audience.

"There are no limits to the shows we can air," said VanDalsen. "We are open to any and all shows that are approved by the FCC."

"We want to provide the best possible shows to the community," said VanDalsen. "We want to provide shows that are educational and entertaining."

"We are interested in the creative possibilities that cable TV offers," said VanDalsen. "We are interested in exploring the potential of cable TV to provide educational and entertainment opportunities."

KROGER'S OWN GOOD NAME GUARANTEES THE PURITY FRESHNESS AND FLAVOR.

If you had to supply about 7 million customers each week with pure, wholesome dairy products, how would you DO it? If you were Kroger, you'd build and operate your own ultra-modern dairies...see to them. You'd put each one under the supervision of a specialist with a degree in Dairy Technology. You'd set your own quality standards even higher than most federal and state regulations. You'd install sophisticated laboratory equipment for maintaining continuous quality control. And to make sure it met your Dairies standards, you'd have to test every single batch. Then, and only then, would you put your name on it. That's what we did. And that's why you can depend on dairy products bearing the Kroger name and prepared in Kroger's own dairy.

AAU TRACK TOUR

Dill, Herb in Europe

By LYNN HEMMING
Sports Editor-Spokeswoman-Blade

MSU trackman Marshall Dill and his Washington prep rival may return from their European 400-track tour as the best U.S. sprinters in their respective events.

That's the admittably prejudiced projection, but the sprinters who will be meeting the Dutch athletes like a hawk when the U.S. boys sail off on another European tour of competitive meets.

Washington, who graduated in 1972, will be running 100 meters and 200 meters for the 100 meter relay. He will attempt to top Williams of Illinois, who will also be in Europe.

Dill, who is the NCAA 200 meter champ, will be going against Williams and the last U.S. 200 meter champ, Kennedy.

The 200 duo will also be half the horsepower in the 400 meter relay with U.S. Hampton and Williams.

"I can see people like Rambo and Bonfine and others, getting into the world," Dill confided Tuesday night, explaining that Washington would be returning to college from training.

That's why Dill saw the reason exchange down here for getting to the world meet. Williams, at a price of 100,000 dollars, may be the best in the world.

Another Sparman, junior Bob Casselman, will be participating in the competition. Casselman will be competing in the 400 meter relay, 1973 augments, 1000 relay, and 4x400 relay.

"It's not only the toughest competition," the newcomer explained, "but it will be the most fun too, through the U.S.

"The World Games are a little international experience." That he will go is not in doubt at Ed Earl's track.

Intramurals

A young children's center is now available as part of a new program started by the NIXE intramural fund. All faculty, staff and student children three years of age and older can enter with the NIXE intramural fund.

The fee for the center must be accompanied by a parent unless the child is capable of attending the center on his own.

The center is mainly for children ages 3 to 10 during the school days. It is located on the second floor of the Center Building.

Student, faculty and staff members are welcome to come in and help out with the center. The center is open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

AAU TRACK TOUR

Dill, Herb in Europe

MSU trackman Marshall Dill and his Washington prep rival may return from their European 400-track tour as the best U.S. sprinters in their respective events.

That's the admittably prejudiced projection, but the sprinters who will be meeting the Dutch athletes like a hawk when the U.S. boys sail off on another European tour of competitive meets.

Washington, who graduated in 1972, will be running 100 meters and 200 meters for the 100 meter relay. He will attempt to top Williams of Illinois, who will also be in Europe.

Dill, who is the NCAA 200 meter champ, will be going against Williams and the last U.S. 200 meter champ, Kennedy.

The 200 duo will also be half the horsepower in the 400 meter relay with U.S. Hampton and Williams.

"I can see people like Rambo and Bonfine and others, getting into the world," Dill confided Tuesday night, explaining that Washington would be returning to college from training.

That's why Dill saw the reason exchange down here for getting to the world meet. Williams, at a price of 100,000 dollars, may be the best in the world.

Another Sparman, junior Bob Casselman, will be participating in the competition. Casselman will be competing in the 400 meter relay, 1973 augments, 1000 relay, and 4x400 relay.

"It's not only the toughest competition," the newcomer explained, "but it will be the most fun too, through the U.S.

"The World Games are a little international experience." That he will go is not in doubt at Ed Earl's track.
