MAY CHANGE FINE SYSTEM

Board to review parking rules

By JOHN LINDSTROM
State News Staff Writer

A change in the campus parking system which would standardize the amount of fine that would be levied for parking violations is possible. Such a proposal might be considered by the Student Government Board as early as next week. If approved, the parking ordinances would be changed to $8 for first-time violations and $10 for second-time violations, with the fine increasing with each violation. The current system has a fine of $200 for first-time violations and $400 for second-time violations, with an increasing fine for subsequent violations. The new system is proposed to make it easier for students to understand and comply with the parking rules.

Trustees expected to approve proposed health care policy

By JOHN LINDSTROM
State News Staff Writer

During the last five years of approved issues there has been a question of uncertainty. "The system is not working," said Joseph Richardson, director of health services. "The system is so complicated that it's hard for people to understand what they can and can't do." The new policy would simplify the system and make it more understandable to the students.

Cambodia seeks continuation of aid

WASHINGTON (AP) - Cambodia's foreign minister said Tuesday the United States should not cut off all aid to Cambodia because of its continued use of U.S. bombing in Vietnam.

"The U.S. should consider the economic and political needs of Cambodia," Foreign Minister Mahnoup Sure said. "We need aid to continue our development.

Agriculture

Teamsters invalidate farm pacts

FROM THE DETROIT NEWS

WASHINGTON - The Teamsters Tuesday approved their first attempt to take over California pears from the United Farm Workers. The Teamsters, who are the largest union in the nation, have been trying for years to organize the UFW's members, but have been unsuccessful.

The Teamsters said they have written to the federal government asking for a meeting to discuss the issue. They want to negotiate a contract with the UFW for the workers in California.

The Teamsters have previously attempted to organize the workers in the state, but have been unsuccessful.

Within weeks, Apple, Gen. L. Allen黄石, said he issued a three-page statement to say that every member of the U.S. military was desperate for the distribution of the cager beast. He said that because he had nothing to hide and was innocent of the bloodshed, their rights of rights of rights of rights.

The statement was released by press releases that circulated in the media. At this point, there is firm basis for warranting that holds have come from 100 thousand pounds.

Richardson said that the department had been involved in a "germinal" discrimination. Without naming the publication, Richardson mentioned another story that the investigation was being handled by the press.

"I can only name this one source from which the story is believed to come from," Richardson said. "This is a clear and conscientious effort to influence the outcome of the proposed ground policy.

President Nixon, who was expected to return from the sea coast. Casualties to the city's campus for the next semester, he said. In his press conference, he criticized the current system of parking fines and called for a change.

The proposed changes to the parking fines would include a decrease in the amount of the fine for first-time violations and an increase in the amount of the fine for subsequent violations. The proposed changes would also simplify the system and make it more understandable to the students.

In the continuation of the investigation, an expert analyst was quoted in the press as saying that every member of the J upstream student body had not fully understood the seriousness of the situation.

The expert analyst said that the Nixon government has been desperate to receive the distribution of the cager beast. He said that because he had nothing to hide and was innocent of the bloodshed, their rights of rights of rights of rights.

The source of the information has not been verified, and it is unknown whether the source is correct.

President Nixon, who was expected to return from the sea coast. Casualties to the city's campus for the next semester, he said. In his press conference, he criticized the current system of parking fines and called for a change.

The proposed changes to the parking fines would include a decrease in the amount of the fine for first-time violations and an increase in the amount of the fine for subsequent violations. The proposed changes would also simplify the system and make it more understandable to the students.

In the continuation of the investigation, an expert analyst was quoted in the press as saying that every member of the J upstream student body had not fully understood the seriousness of the situation.

The expert analyst said that the Nixon government has been desperate to receive the distribution of the cager beast. He said that because he had nothing to hide and was innocent of the bloodshed, their rights of rights of rights of rights.

The source of the information has not been verified, and it is unknown whether the source is correct.
Soviet alleged spy linked

Court papers made public Tuesday said that Viktor G. Verts, 63, was arrested July 20 by the FBI in Washington, D.C., as a result of surveillance that began in April. The FBI has not commented on Verts' case.

In other Cold War-related news, the FBI said yesterday it had filed a landmark lawsuit in the U.S. District Court of the District of Columbia seeking to bar a U.S. citizen from entering the country because he had a known connection to the KGB.

Chrysler OK'd as UAW target

BY DONALD W. ROTHBERGER

The Pregnancy is now in the running as a major national news event, with Washington D.C. and New York City both sending delegations to the city.

The government has decided to appeal the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, which ruled last week that the government's war on the Mafia is unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court decision, which was announced Monday, was hailed as a major victory for organized crime, and it is expected to set a precedent for other such lawsuits.

The decision includes a provision that allows organized crime to use the courts to enforce its laws, and it opens the door for organized crime to challenge government policies.

The government had argued that the war on the Mafia was necessary to protect the public, but the Supreme Court ruled that the government had failed to prove that organized crime was a threat to the nation.

The decision is expected to have a significant impact on organized crime, and it is likely to lead to further legal challenges.

Soviet alleged spy linked

Court papers made public Tuesday said that Viktor G. Verts, 63, was arrested July 20 by the FBI in Washington, D.C., as a result of surveillance that began in April. The FBI has not commented on Verts' case.

In other Cold War-related news, the FBI said yesterday it had filed a landmark lawsuit in the U.S. District Court of the District of Columbia seeking to bar a U.S. citizen from entering the country because he had a known connection to the KGB.

Chrysler OK'd as UAW target

BY DONALD W. ROTHBERGER

The Pregnancy is now in the running as a major national news event, with Washington D.C. and New York City both sending delegations to the city.

The government has decided to appeal the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, which ruled last week that the government's war on the Mafia is unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court decision, which was announced Monday, was hailed as a major victory for organized crime, and it is expected to set a precedent for other such lawsuits.

The decision includes a provision that allows organized crime to use the courts to enforce its laws, and it opens the door for organized crime to challenge government policies.

The government had argued that the war on the Mafia was necessary to protect the public, but the Supreme Court ruled that the government had failed to prove that organized crime was a threat to the nation.

The decision is expected to have a significant impact on organized crime, and it is likely to lead to further legal challenges.

Soviet alleged spy linked

Court papers made public Tuesday said that Viktor G. Verts, 63, was arrested July 20 by the FBI in Washington, D.C., as a result of surveillance that began in April. The FBI has not commented on Verts' case.

In other Cold War-related news, the FBI said yesterday it had filed a landmark lawsuit in the U.S. District Court of the District of Columbia seeking to bar a U.S. citizen from entering the country because he had a known connection to the KGB.

Chrysler OK'd as UAW target

BY DONALD W. ROTHBERGER

The Pregnancy is now in the running as a major national news event, with Washington D.C. and New York City both sending delegations to the city.

The government has decided to appeal the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, which ruled last week that the government's war on the Mafia is unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court decision, which was announced Monday, was hailed as a major victory for organized crime, and it is expected to set a precedent for other such lawsuits.

The decision includes a provision that allows organized crime to use the courts to enforce its laws, and it opens the door for organized crime to challenge government policies.

The government had argued that the war on the Mafia was necessary to protect the public, but the Supreme Court ruled that the government had failed to prove that organized crime was a threat to the nation.

The decision is expected to have a significant impact on organized crime, and it is likely to lead to further legal challenges.

Soviet alleged spy linked

Court papers made public Tuesday said that Viktor G. Verts, 63, was arrested July 20 by the FBI in Washington, D.C., as a result of surveillance that began in April. The FBI has not commented on Verts' case.

In other Cold War-related news, the FBI said yesterday it had filed a landmark lawsuit in the U.S. District Court of the District of Columbia seeking to bar a U.S. citizen from entering the country because he had a known connection to the KGB.

Chrysler OK'd as UAW target

BY DONALD W. ROTHBERGER

The Pregnancy is now in the running as a major national news event, with Washington D.C. and New York City both sending delegations to the city.

The government has decided to appeal the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, which ruled last week that the government's war on the Mafia is unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court decision, which was announced Monday, was hailed as a major victory for organized crime, and it is expected to set a precedent for other such lawsuits.

The decision includes a provision that allows organized crime to use the courts to enforce its laws, and it opens the door for organized crime to challenge government policies.

The government had argued that the war on the Mafia was necessary to protect the public, but the Supreme Court ruled that the government had failed to prove that organized crime was a threat to the nation.

The decision is expected to have a significant impact on organized crime, and it is likely to lead to further legal challenges.

Soviet alleged spy linked

Court papers made public Tuesday said that Viktor G. Verts, 63, was arrested July 20 by the FBI in Washington, D.C., as a result of surveillance that began in April. The FBI has not commented on Verts' case.

In other Cold War-related news, the FBI said yesterday it had filed a landmark lawsuit in the U.S. District Court of the District of Columbia seeking to bar a U.S. citizen from entering the country because he had a known connection to the KGB.

Chrysler OK'd as UAW target

BY DONALD W. ROTHBERGER

The Pregnancy is now in the running as a major national news event, with Washington D.C. and New York City both sending delegations to the city.

The government has decided to appeal the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, which ruled last week that the government's war on the Mafia is unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court decision, which was announced Monday, was hailed as a major victory for organized crime, and it is expected to set a precedent for other such lawsuits.

The decision includes a provision that allows organized crime to use the courts to enforce its laws, and it opens the door for organized crime to challenge government policies.

The government had argued that the war on the Mafia was necessary to protect the public, but the Supreme Court ruled that the government had failed to prove that organized crime was a threat to the nation.

The decision is expected to have a significant impact on organized crime, and it is likely to lead to further legal challenges.
Saddling up

Participants in the 4 H show held Tuesday at the arena of MSU Horse and Farm Show mount a saddle on the back of a pony, readying it for the competition. Observers of the show consider it the best of a few reported cases of Eastern equine encephalomyelitis, which is infecting horses in southern Michigan. Horse owners are being urged to have their horses inoculated.

State News photo by Ted Wyckoff

Savings horse disease hits state

By JOE ROGERS
State News Staff Writer

An extremely rare, voracious and deadly virus that struck Michigan in 1971, suddenly has reappeared, and it's moving out of control. More than 1,000 horses in the state have been treated by veterinarians, as have 1,000 other animals. The disease was first reported in the United States in 1969. Now it appears to be widespread in the state, and there's no cure.

"Eastern equine encephalomyelitis has now reached Michigan," said Norman Swanstrom, professor of large animal surgery and medicine at MSU. "This disease is usually fatal. I've had three cases in the last four weeks."

Horses are killed, but rarely do the disease victimize. The virus is transmitted to humans through mosquito bites, and a vaccine has been developed, but it's not yet approved for use in humans.

Swanstrom said he has seen 20 cases of the disease in the past year, and he estimates that 50 have occurred in the state. The disease, which is spread by mosquitoes, isn't expected to be widespread in the state, although it might be found in other areas of the country.

In Michigan, the disease is now found in Atwater, Allegan, and St. Clair counties. The disease has been reported in southern United States, where it's usually fatal. It's also found in Europe, where it's usually fatal. It's also found in the United States, where it's usually fatal. It's also found in Europe, where it's usually fatal.

The disease, which is caused by a virus, is spread by mosquitoes, and it's usually fatal. It's also found in Europe, where it's usually fatal. It's also found in the United States, where it's usually fatal. It's also found in Europe, where it's usually fatal. It's also found in the United States, where it's usually fatal. It's also found in Europe, where it's usually fatal.

Roberts files expenses; outspends 6 candidates

James A. Roberts spent four times as much money as six other candidates in the East Lansing City Council primary campaign, according to committee filed with the Ingham County clerk.

Roberts, who lost to John Polomsky by only 48 votes in the attempt to win one of four seats in the city's nine-person council, spent $1,932.86. Six other candidates spent about $480 each.

Teachers, board discuss contract

Contract negotiations between the East Lansing teachers district and the East Lansing Education Assn., to continue Tuesday, were said to have made some progress according to teacher spokesman.

Negotiations had broken off July 31 and began again Tuesday at the teachers state labor mediator Ed Comarrow's present.

Dorothy Ball, speaking on behalf of the teachers' East Lansing Education Association, reported that talks would still be held next week when they were postponed almost a month ago.

Roberts files expenses; outspends 6 candidates

By DAVE JERMAN
State News Staff Writer

James A. Roberts spent four times as much money as six other candidates in the East Lansing City Council primary campaign, according to committee filed with the Ingham County clerk.

Roberts, who lost to John Polomsky by only 48 votes in the attempt to win one of four seats in the city's nine-person council, spent $1,932.86. Six other candidates spent about $480 each.

Teachers, board discuss contract

Contract negotiations between the East Lansing teachers district and the East Lansing Education Assn., to continue Tuesday, were said to have made some progress according to teacher spokesman.

Negotiations had broken off July 31 and began again Tuesday at the teachers state labor mediator Ed Comarrow's present.

Dorothy Ball, speaking on behalf of the teachers' East Lansing Education Association, reported that talks would still be held next week when they were postponed almost a month ago.
EDITORIALS

Tree protesters must back off and let construction carry on

The postponement of court hearings in the Harrison Road - Michigan Avenue controversy may delay, but not diminish, the opportunity for protest. Protesters have the right to question and challenge the plan. Many people are opposed to the project and see it as a significant threat to their rights. Protesters have the right to express their concerns and make their voices heard.

The city council has been criticized for its handling of the issue. Some people believe that the council is not doing enough to address the concerns of the protesters. Others believe that the council is taking too long to make a decision.

In the meantime, the protesters must remember that they have other options available to them. They can work with the city council to find a solution that is acceptable to both sides. They can also work with other groups and organizations to find common ground on the issue.

The city council must also take action to address the concerns of the protesters. They must listen to the protesters and take their concerns seriously. They must also work with other groups and organizations to find a solution that is acceptable to all.

In the end, the city council and the protesters must work together to find a solution that is acceptable to both sides. It will not be easy, but it is possible. With cooperation and compromise, a solution can be found that satisfies everyone.

Why save antiquated wagon trails?

The Michigan legislature has failed to act on a bill that would save the state's wagon trails. The bill, sponsored by Representative Tom Lambert, would have provided funding for the restoration and maintenance of the trails. However, the bill failed to pass and the trails are still in danger.

The wagon trails are a valuable part of Michigan's history. They were used to transport goods and people from one place to another. They were also used to transport soldiers during the Civil War. The trails are a reminder of the state's rich history and they should be preserved for future generations.

The state government has failed to act on the bill. They have not provided the funding necessary to save the trails. This is a failure of leadership and a failure of the state government to protect the state's heritage.

We urge the state government to act now. They must provide the funding necessary to save the wagon trails. They must also work with other groups and organizations to find a solution that is acceptable to all.

Nixon: president or penitent?

It's time for President Richard Nixon to resign. He has been implicated in the Watergate scandal and it is clear that he is guilty of criminal activity.

Nixon has been under investigation for months. He has been found to have misled the American people and has failed to cooperate with the investigation. He has also been found to have obstructed justice.

It is clear that Nixon is guilty and he must resign. He has had enough time to cooperate with the investigation and he has failed to do so.

We urge Nixon to resign. He should resign now before the situation gets any worse. He should resign before the country is further harmed.
Contemplation

Falling from an airplane takes a lot of concentration. The MSU Spot Parachute Club, which operates from Airport near Mason, teaches the proper techniques for safe jumping.

State News photos
by Ken Ferguson

Up in the air

When a jumper finally leaves the plane, it's a long trip down, a trip that goes next parachutes a feeling that's impossible to describe. The Spot Parachute club will train anyone who is willing to jump out of a plane a few thousand feet in the air.

On the wing

This parachutist comes in for a soft landing near Novi Airport outside of Novi. The MSU Spot Parachute Club jumps each Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

Central Michigan's CAMPING HEADQUARTERS

"Everything for the Camper"

TENTS
Over 50 Models to Choose From

Cost: Foods, Drinks, Hunting, Laminates

RAUPP CAMPFITTERS

224 ABBOTT RD. East Lansing

Shedios...

EAST LANSING
117 E. Grand River
MEET US UNDER THE PARACHUTE
at Shepard's Sheds.

Weeden's...
Committee gets White House file

WASHINGON (AP) -- A White House spokesman said Wednesday that President Nixon had asked for the tapes of conversations between White House officials and the releases of which he had demanded further review.

The spokesman said the tapes had been turned over to the hearings today.

The Senate impeachment committee, which had asked for the tapes last week, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The White House spokesman said the President would return his notes only if he had a sure hope that they would be used in the Senate.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to delay his return of the notes until it could study them.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee plans to ask for the notes, which are said to include two or more Watergate conversations, to be turned over to the Senate.

The Senate committee also yesterday asked the President for a special council to advise him on the Watergate investigation.

The President agreed, but said he did not want the council to be under Justice Department jurisdiction.

The Senate committee said it would decide later whether to ask the President to delay his return of the notes until the council was set up.

The Senate committee yesterday also asked the President for his records of conversations with aides.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the Watergate break-in and other White House activities, yesterday asked the President to return his written notes of conversations with aides.
Firefighters were busy battling four fires burning in northeast Michigan and are concerned that some parents are not keeping their kids out of the woods.

"There are a lot of kids getting into trouble," said Fire Chief. "And it's not just ours. The Forest Service and the National Park Service are also concerned."}

The fires are located in the St. Ignace and Petoskey areas.

Firefighter Bill Jones said, "We've been getting calls from parents who are worried about their kids. They're afraid that the kids will get into trouble if they don't have somewhere to go."
Bagels dominate campus scene

The hottest bagel snack with the hole in the center is now available at the State Dining Hall in the University Union.

Bagel Factory Bob Sena, in Lansing, has been烘烤 the hard-crusted, plain bagels since 1970. The bagels are sold for $1.20 each and are popular among students.

Sena said that his bagels are made with a special recipe and are sold fresh to maintain their quality.

The bagel factory is located in Lansing and caters to the University of Michigan campus.

The popularity of bagels has grown in the last few years. "It's increased all over the country," Sena said. "It's not just us, it's all bagels."

The bagel factory also supplies bagels to other locations, including the State Dining Hall.

The bagels are baked fresh daily and are served with cream cheese, lox, and other toppings.

Bagels are a favorite among students, especially during exams and study sessions.

The bagel factory is open Monday through Saturday from 7:00 AM to 9:00 PM. The factory also offers catering services for events and conferences.

The University of Michigan is one of the largest buyers of bagels in the state, and the factory is able to meet the demand due to its extensive production capacity.

If you're in the area, be sure to stop by the bagel factory and try one of the delicious bagels!
Agnew blasts 'leaks to the press' (continued from page 1)

I have communicated with the attorney for Mrs. Agnew and have been assured that she will cooperate fully with any other persons such as investigators vigorously as she is cooperating with her own attorney. I have also been told by Mrs. Agnew, Redford, in a letter to her attorney, that she was consulted by Mrs. Agnew before she wrote the letter to President Nixon, indicating that he had been asked out to dinner but that President Nixon had not been present.

I wish to make clear to the American people that I am fully aware of the gravity of the situation out of which this threat has come, and I am confident that the President and the American people are aware of the gravity of the situation. I am confident, therefore, that the President will act in accordance with the wishes of the American people.

I will add that I have not been consulted by Mrs. Agnew, and that I am not aware of any knowledge on my part that would suggest otherwise.
Spartan football draftees looking good

By L. VAN HENNING
State Team Sports Writer

A funny thing happened to the Michigan football team on its way to adoption last Jan. 31.

Specifically, that is to a college team that finished the 1972 season with a 5-3-1 record.

It had the slightly unusual number of 10 assistants drafted by an NFL coaching staff in the NFL's annual draft, and only one other college went more men to NFL ranks than Michigan. But the Wolverines are the only pick 11 men from the crawl of choices.

Even more amazing, it looks like most of the Spartan draftees stand a good chance of sticking with the teams that selected them. And that's no new task, given the nearly futile nature of NFL scouting.

With the threat of squad cuts still hanging over most of the non-quartet, the underclassmen this fall may be - the Wolverines and Gary Van Eek - have been dropped by the teams that drafted them.

By contrast, places like Joe Van Pelt, Billy Joe DuPree, and Bill Clark are being given excellent chances of making their respective teams, and in some cases, appear to be locked for possible starting spots.

Van Eek was an 11th round pick of the Philadelphia Eagles and he was cut last fall. As Eagle officials and the former Spartan defensive tackle apparently were wont to know.

At the New York Giants training camp, Joe Van Pelt is "doing very well" according to one Giants coach. "He's been playing mostly special teams but they're giving him a shot with the first team," the official said, regarding the team's plans for No. 1 pick. "The coaches seem to feel he's going to be a great one because he is such a great athlete," a Giants official said.

DRAD VAN PELT: "The coaches seem to feel he's going to be a great one because he is such a great athlete," a Giants official said.

GAIL CLARK: "I can't see him enough now and he's doing," one Steeler official pointed. "Gail's a real smart kid and he's really highly pleased with himself."

BILLY JOE DUPREE: "He's looking fine," a Buffalo public relations man said. "He's caught four passes for 54 yards and he's done pretty good on the special teams."

JOE DELAMITE: "Joe D is running No. 2 at right guard right now and he's looked very well," a Buffalo public relations official said.

That impressive sequence came a day after, "Joe D," as he is called by the Bills management, made a real impression on the Buffalo coaches.

"Joe D is running No. 2 at right guard right now and has looked very well," a Buffalo public relations official said.

The Buffalo Bills made Spartan offensive tackle Joe DeLamielleure No. 1 pick, only to find out later physicians were advising DeLamielleure not to play because of a heart ailment.

Another Spartan nabbed by the Bills, defensive end Ron McMillan, was drafted in the second round, but he has been moved in a tight end position.

"He's No. 1 right guard this fall and he's looking fine now, so it's hard to say how low he's going to be," the Bills official said.

Nobody seems to be more impressed with that than Philadelphia officials are with linebacker Gary Van Eek.

"I don't say how well he's been doing," the Steeler official pointed.

There is the problem that Clark injured his back in the last game against the Los Angeles Chargers, and since he has missed the last two games of the season and the next two weeks of training camp, there is a possibility he could be out a while. But "Joe D's a real smart kid and he's really highly pleased with himself."

Former Spartan Ron Cofe is another now rookie who will find his first action this season.

"He's been part of that he should be starting right out," the Buffalo official pointed. "They're counting on this year."

Joe Vilenski, with the Los Angeles Rams, will be on the team's "expended" list, but either time he is one of the emergency tackles is still a major problem for the team and he'll be back.

Bob McGrawley, drafted by the Cleveland Browns, was selected in last year's NFL draft.

Marc Roberts, selected by the San Diego Chargers, will be with their respective teams. Their status, however, will be determined until the final squad cuts.