Reasons for food trouble start to materialize, focus

BY TOM HAROLDSON
State News Staff Writer

A wary nation continues to watch the soaring inflation, as higher food prices are a major factor. This week saw another rise in the cost of many basic food items. The increase in prices is not limited to food, but is also affecting other areas of the economy.

Through recent reports, reasons for the rising food costs are beginning to emerge. One major factor is the rising cost of labor, which has been increasingly affecting the cost of production. The use of advanced technology in the food industry has also contributed to the high food costs.

As the economic climate worsens, individuals are becoming more cautious about their spending. The threat of recession looms large, and people are looking for ways to save money. The high cost of food is one area that has been affected, and the trend is likely to continue.

The issue of food prices is not limited to the United States, but is also affecting other countries around the world. This global phenomenon is a result of a combination of factors, including weather conditions, supply and demand, and international trade agreements.

The government has taken steps to address the issue of food prices, but the effects of these measures may not be felt immediately. It is important for individuals to be aware of the factors affecting the cost of food so that they can make informed decisions about their finances.

Trustees vote to OK budget for 1974-75

By BY NARLENE KETCHAM
State News Staff Writer

The Michigan State University Board of Trustees voted to approve the 1974-75 budget at its meeting Monday. The budget totaled $1,014,000,000, which is a two percent increase over the 1973-74 budget.

The budget represents a continuation of the university's commitment to education and research. It includes funding for new academic programs, research projects, and facilities improvements.

The budget also includes funding for student aid programs, including scholarships, fellowships, and work-study programs. These programs help students finance their education and prepare them for successful careers.

The budget was the result of months of deliberation and discussion by the university's administration and faculty. The budget was presented to the Board of Trustees early in the year and was reviewed by various committees and groups.

The Trustees approved the budget after careful consideration and discussion. They recognized the importance of education and research and the need to provide the necessary resources to support these activities.

The budget includes funding for a number of important initiatives, including:

- Increased funding for academic programs
- Increased funding for research and creative activities
- Increased funding for student aid programs
- Increased funding for facilities improvements

The Trustees were pleased with the budget and were confident that it would support the university's mission of education and research.

Michigan State University is committed to providing a quality education for its students. The budget approved today is a step in that direction.

Study says commune life beneficial for children

Study says commune life beneficial for children

The study, published in the American Journal of Pediatrics, found that children who lived in a commune during their early years had better social and emotional development than children who grew up in more traditional family settings.

The study, which followed children from birth to age 5, found that children who lived in communes had better social skills, were more adaptable, and had fewer behavior problems than children who grew up in more traditional family settings.

The study suggests that the unique environment of communes may provide children with opportunities to develop important social and emotional skills. Communes offer children a chance to interact with a diverse group of people, to learn how to live in a community, and to develop a sense of responsibility and empathy.

Communes, however, are not without their challenges. The unique environment of communes may also lead to conflicts and disagreements among members. It is important for parents to carefully consider the benefits and drawbacks of communes before making a decision about their child's living arrangements.

City demolition

The City of East Lansing razed the vacant fraternity house at 451 E. Plumb Avenue last week. The structure was a fire hazard and had been vacant for several years.

The demolition was carried out by the Michigan Department of Transportation. The site will be used for a new parking lot.

The demolition of the fraternity house is part of the city's ongoing efforts to improve the neighborhood. The city has been working to upgrade the area, including the construction of new streets and the installation of new lighting.

The demolition was met with mixed reactions from the community. Some residents were pleased with the progress being made, while others were concerned about the impact on the community.

Junti vows to repair economy

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Chinese military junta has announced an emergency plan to put the economy in order and open the door to foreign investments with guarantees against repudiation.

Gen. Guo Lingshi, a member of the junta's Assembly of Experts, appealed to the United States, the Soviet Union and Great Britain to help the Chinese people.

Guo said the junta would take measures to stabilize the economy and to become secure. His voice crackled with emotion as he addressed his fellow nation in a speech broadcast in radio stations in China.

Last-ditch ration plan weighed

The Nixon Administration's last-ditch ration plan now under development incorporates features from the current Emergency Plan.

This final stage of a four-step "contingency plan" — which would go into effect if inflation becomes necessary — would involve several "checks" issued to all consumers for purchases of certain goods, especially those needed for repair and consumption.

Before these final steps would be taken, an administration news briefing would include appeals for voluntary fuel conservation by the public, and the use of gas stations to conserve fuel.

TB radio warned on sexism

The John Black member of the Federal Communications Commission warned broadcasters they must do nothing to undermine women's or face consequences.

The commissioner, Benjamin Hack, who addressed a meeting of a chapter of American Women in Radio and Television in Minneapolis, said he had learned of actions by some stations which were deemed to be detrimental to women.

Albert hits Nixon comments

"The President does not have a monopoly on wisdom," declared Speaker of the House Carl Albert in a nationwide radio address Sunday responding to criticism of Congress' legislative record. Albert said Congress had compiled an impressive record for this year and will improve on it before adjourning.

Albert said Congress, not Nixon, had taken the initiative in dealing with economy, health, energy and crime problems.

Democratic leadership in Congress would like to work with Nixon, Albert said, but elections have to be made for differences of opinion. "Congress does not perform at the behest of this or any president," he said

Senate considers defense cuts

The Senate is expected to sharply test this week President's plan against cuts in U.S. defense overseas and in Vietnam. The Senate adjourned Friday night during a showdown in Trinidat and Tobago development.

"All of our efforts to secure a more peaceful and prosperous world would be endangered if we indefinitely continue our defense posture," Nixon said in a letter to Senate leaders. The administration is considering a bill authorizing $30.4 billion for military procurement in the current fiscal year.

Petitioning opens up for ASMSU election

Petitioning begins today for a special election to be held by Associated Students of MSU (ASMSU) on October 3, to fill a vacated ASMSU commissioner seat. The empty seat represents the College of Communication Arts and Social Sciences/James Madison College, both officially named at ASMSU's 5th meeting.

Petitioning for the position begins Friday. Though this is contrary to the ASMSU Operations Code, which states petitioning for an ASMSU position, the ASMSU commissioner, the ASMSU president, and the ASMSU commissioner of student affairs have decided to expedite the process. The students have agreed to the temporary petition for the ASMSU commissioner seat, for the ASMSU vice president to remain in his seat.

One problem for the special election has already emerged that ASMSU is currently without an election committee. The Elections Committee nominees each election by counting the signatures on petitioned papers and forwarding them to the students for approval. If the number of signatures is found not to the ASMSU president, the petitioned paper will be returned to the students for reformation.

Petitioners do not need to get signatures on these papers. ASMSU and the ASMSU vice president have agreed to expedite the process.

There are two ASMSU commissioner positions open this semester, but only one for the fall semester, because the elected seat for the student body president will be vacated due to the election.

We will not have a more detailed account of the election because the deadline for the election is October 1, the day before the elections are due. The election will be held on October 3 and the election will be held at the ASMSU meeting on October 4.

WJIM viewers to 'wait and see' if station’s programs will improve

Now that Harold F. Gross and his WJIM-TV station have had their license renewed by the Federal Communications Commission, they will have to adopt a "wait and see" attitude in regard to local program improvements.

Gross reached agreement with Citizens United for Better Broadcasting and the Lansing Committee for Children's Television the day the station's license was renewed.

According to the agreement, WJIM will start broadcasting more local children's programs, more local public affairs and more local news.

However, Gross says he is not exactly a "model citizen" just because he reached agreement with local citizens under license renewal proposal. There is still the question of the Detroit Free Press article of Sept. 9, in which Gross is accused of promoting his business interests on WJIM-TV action and talking too much on WJIM news reports who oppose his business interests.

According to this article, Gross backed out such statements as those made by Gus Schulte, the late president of Michigan's AFL-CIO, and ex-Tea-Team boss James R. Hoffer, saying that something was wrong with his Lansing city television did not agree with his plan for Lansing's cable television system.

If Gross were to have the Lansing cable television franchise, there is a definite possibility of a monopoly on local communications. Such a monopoly would, according to the agreement, be a danger to competition, interest, due to lack of competition, and give area viewers little choice in programming.

Gross has taken more than just a pass during the day-to-day operations of WJIM. Hopefully, steps have been taken to give WJIM personnel a greater say in the operations of the station and low subject on a one-man rule.

But will Gross and WJIM really reform? It is hard to say. He has reached agreement with citizens on local programming and that, at least, is a start. Better local programming will not only benefit the community in general but will help Gross and WJIM as well. The increased local programming should serve a larger cross-section of the community.

As for the other accusations against Gross, only time will tell. WJIM is a housewife, fast and efficient. This must be remembered at all times. One can only hope that Gross will not recite his financial interests with his responsibility to the Lansing community and outgoing voters.

WASHINGTON - Two leading Senators say they are now on record in favor of Vice President Agnew resigning or being removed from office. Several others have already urged President Nixon to remove Agnew as Vice President.

The two Senators of concern are Senators William Proxmire, Democrat of Wisconsin, and Clemente on the Senate Banking Committee. The two have been working on an antitrust suit against the Ford Motor Company. The Senate has been working on an antitrust suit against the Ford Motor Company.

When voting

While the ASMSF proposal offers students an immediate voice in university, a constitutional amendment is a more direct item for student representation in the future.

The Michigan Higher Education Student Assn., of which ASMSF is a member, is currently involved in a petition drive seeking an amendment to the state constitution. The amendment would provide positions for students on all college governing bodies with regular voting rights and responsibilities.

ASMSF's student liaison adviser proposal now goes before the ASMSF board, and then to a joint university-student advisory committee for nomination, before it finally reaches the statehouse.

The last time the trustees were presented a similar proposal they approved it beyond recognition. This time the move must be essential and must remain.

Employees shocked by recent dismissal

By SHARON HANES
State News Staff Writer

In the case of Larry Lums' and Bill Rouillard's separations from the Lansing Board of Education, both the state employment and the school districts were upheld by the Michigan Employment Relations Commission.

However, the firing of two former employees of the Lansing Board of Education has left the residents of the city concerned about the future of public school education.

Larry Lums and Bill Rouillard were fired in a vote of the Lansing Board of Education. Lums had been a teacher for 20 years and Rouillard had been a principal for 15 years. The two men were fired for "insubordination" and "improper conduct," respectively.

"We were shocked to hear the news," said Lums' wife, Mary. "We had been told that we were doing a good job and that our performance was excellent."

Rouillard's brother, Jack, said, "It was a surprise to everyone. We had no idea that anything like this would happen."

The Lansing Board of Education has not commented on the reasons for firing Lums and Rouillard. However, sources within the district say that the two men had been involved in a long-running dispute with the administration over budget cuts and staff reductions.

In related news, the Lansing Board of Education has announced plans to lay off an additional 100 teachers next year due to financial pressures. The district is expected to lose $10 million in state funds this year, and officials are looking for ways to cut costs.

"We are doing everything we can to avoid layoffs," said Superintendent Dr. Janice Johnson. "But we have to make tough decisions to ensure the future of our schools."

The news has sparked outrage among parents and community members, who say that the district is sacrificing the education of their children for short-term gains.

"This is a disgrace," said parents' group leader John Smith. "Our children deserve better than this."

Lums and Rouillard’s terminations could signal a shift in the Lansing Board of Education’s approach to managing its finances. In recent years, the district has faced increasing pressure to reduce its budget, leading to cuts in programs and staff.

The Lansing Board of Education has said that it is committed to providing a quality education for all students, regardless of financial constraints. However, some parents and educators are concerned that the district is sacrificing the quality of education for cost savings.

"We need to be more creative in finding ways to fund our schools," said Mayor Elizabeth Williams. "We can’t just cut programs and services."

The Lansing Board of Education will hold a special meeting on Monday to discuss the layoffs and other financial issues.

Prices to level off, grocers say

By DON HARRINGTON

Some grocery stores are upgrading products, but the people in the stores said Wednesday that prices are not their doing.

"For the most part, a store has to purchase its goods from the wholesaler," one grocer said. "We're trying to maintain the lowest possible price but at the same time we have to meet our costs and the wholesaler's price," she said. "Fortunately, we have some items we have some promotions on." The grocer added that she is not aware of any shortages.

A manager for another store said, "It's a little difficult to say with all the media attention, but the wholesaler's price has not increased as much as we'd like."

"The wholesalers have not been in our store a lot to tell us about pricing," he said. "We are working on a holiday promotion, but that doesn't necessarily mean that the price for beef has increased."

SN compares costs at area food markets

Food prices are high; one needs to be told this, then is the face of those children, whose popcorn is even being sold back from their old food purchases.

For many people, it becomes more obvious about the types of food they eat and the amount of money they spend. Here has been compiled a table to show some of the prices of food items.

However, the chart will give you an idea of where you can save and East Lansing to get the best for your food dollar.

The last column was surveyed locally by various East Lansing citizens. It was made to get a representative sample of food prices, and it was done in a similar fashion for comparison.

The table is compiled and is not intended to be an exhaustive list of what is usually less expensive than these hard-purchasing.

The "X" represents:

- More expensive

Draw western, things, parades, drinks (for
- less expensive)

...the latest, most current...and preparing items for the repairs, though very often we need to change annually.

- More expensive

Lecture Concert Series

During the 1977 season, the "cold out" sign was posted at the box office in eight Lansing County parks and schools. The signs were posted because of the extreme cold that many people experienced during the winter months. The signs were later removed and replaced with signs that indicated the current temperature and forecasted weather conditions. At the beginning of each fall term, we announced the dates of several professional concerts available in our fall schedule. At the end of the season, we held a survey to determine the satisfaction of the "cold out" sign weaknesses.

Their outfits are stylish—carefully tailored, chic, and shiny. But for the most part, they are not certain that their glamorous jobs make them America’s most glamorous workers.

"A waitress is a road dog," said Denise Magruder, 19, who worked at the High Wheeler a few months ago. "They can’t seem to make any money. It’s a lot of work, and always with a tip. It’s a hard job to keep, but it’s not a good job for a person that wants a career.

One thing that they do is go out and wait tables at local restaurants. "I never thought about leaving the High Wheeler to do another job," she said. "It’s just a job you have to have in order to make any money.

Some waitresses work the evening shifts in other bigger tips. But at the International House of Pancakes, 245 W. Cedar Ave., the night shift is not open at all.

"We have a big staff to maintain," said Joanne Raupp, 19, who has been working as a waitress at the High Wheeler for over a year. "We have to make sure we are there when our shift starts."

Waitresses at the High Wheeler, a part of the chain of restaurants that opened in 1965, make $2.50 an hour regardless of the length of time worked."

Spartan win needed

The Spartans weren't expecting much heading into the game against Miami. They had been struggling and hadn't won a game in a month. To make matters worse, they were facing the team that had been dominating the Big Ten for the past few years. But in the end, it was a different team that emerged victorious.

With only seconds remaining, quarterback Tommy Wilson threw a touchdown pass to wide receiver Jayden Reed, giving the Spartans the lead. The final score was 28-21, a much-needed win for the struggling team.

The win was a huge boost for the Spartans, who have been struggling with injuries and poor defense all season. With this win, they have a chance to make some noise in the Big Ten.

Mets win, 5-2

New York Mets shelved their long ball hopes, but they still managed to score five runs against the Los Angeles Dodgers. The Mets' win puts them ahead in the National League East.

In the first inning, catcher Willson Contreras homered to put the Mets on the board. In the fifth inning, second baseman Brandon Nimetz hit a solo home run to extend the lead. The Mets continued to add runs in the later innings, winning the game 5-2.

The team had been practicing hard throughout the season, and their hard work paid off. The team is looking forward to defending their title next year.

LJM, Miami (Ohio) stop MU Harriers

The LJM, Miami (Ohio) men's track team defeated the MU Harriers in a close match. The team's victory was due to strong performances in the middle distances and the sprints.

The LJM team won the 800-meter and 1500-meter races, as well as the 4x400-meter relay. The MU Harriers won the 400-meter dash, but it wasn't enough to overcome the LJM team's strong performances.

Hoofer's Herb

The Hoofer's Herb is a popular spot for students to study and hang out. The coffee is strong and the环境 is cozy. The staff is always friendly and ready to help students with their studies.

The coffee shop is a great place to work on assignments or just hang out with friends. The Hoofer's Herb is definitely worth a visit for any student looking for a quiet spot to study.
