Documents tie Agnew to bribery

Vice president quits, gets fined for tax evasion

From the Services

WASHINGTON — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew resigned Wednesday amid a barrage of political charges and allegations.

The resignation, which comes just days after the vice president was fined $10,000 and sentenced to a year in prison for tax evasion, marks a dramatic end to a political career that was once seen as a promising path to the presidency.

Agnew, who had held the office of vice president for 22 years, was named to the post in 1969 by President Richard Nixon. He remained in office until 1973, when he announced his resignation.

Agnew had faced a series of legal challenges and investigations over his time in office, including allegations of corruption and bribery.

His resignation came after he was charged with accepting bribes while he was governor of Maryland.

Spy defends campaign moves

WASHINGTON (AP) — A paid spy for the Nixon campaign said Wednesday that the political espionage work he did was not part of any campaign without knowing what the other side was doing.

McGovern, 44, a private detective from New Hampshire, said he was surprised when he was appointed to McGovern’s staff at the Democratic National Convention.

McGovern said he was chosen with McGovern’s agreement so that the senator would have time to watch a television camera.

Senator OKs strip mine limits

The Senate sent a major bill to the House establishing federal standards for strip mining. The bill passed 2 to 1 but with a new provision to soften the major provision that, if it is not approved, would have severe economic impact on the economy and land on the other side.

The bill strips mining in areas where recreation is not feasible and authority would to reclaim land already stripped.

Study tells schools to take risks

The Carnegie Commission on Higher Education’s 11th and final report on colleges and universities urged them to “be daring and take risks” in cope with special problems ahead — including declining enrollments.

The commission recommended that the government allow more delays caused by the decline in enrollment.

Long proposes workforce plan

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., has a plan to take millions American families out of the poverty traps. Long says his plan can accomplish this if it approves a bill to give the nation’s poorest workers a 10 percent tax rebate.

The plan, known as “vouchers,” was approved by Long’s Senate Finance Committee as an amendment to the Social Security Act. Families making $4,000 a year or less would get $8 a year from the Social Security tax they and their employers pay.

Doctor-patient relation just that

A team of Boston ophthalmologists has developed a technique to repair kidney injuries from the patient’s body, repairing and then replacing the kidneys.

The technique offers the possibility of removing kidneys for up to 30 hours to work on them with a degree of precision impossible if the kidney is still in the patient. The kidney is kept nourished with a special machine.

Bishops change vote rule

Bishops of the Episcopal church voted to change the 400-year-old custom of confirmation, the practice by which an individual becomes a full member of the church. The new rule, adopted by the hierarchy at a meeting in Louisville, Ky., makes confirmation subject to an appeal, which is almost unheard of in the Church. The new rule is expected to be in full effect in the church life.
PIRGIM charges area banks with violating federal lending law

By DUR HURRYMAN

The truth in lending act, a federal consumer protection law passed in 1968, requires those institutions who extend credit to underwrite and disclose the costs involved in the transaction. PIRGIM, the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan, this week charged 15 area banks with violating federal lending law.

"We're not doing an investigation of consumer complaints," says James Gmaster, regional director of PIRGIM. "We have been doing a review of annual reports and consumer complaint files from the Michigan Department of Consumer and Community Affairs. This particular project is only in the area of home equity and mortgage lending. We are not performing an overall rating of area financial institutions.

"We have been monitoring the banks for an entire year and monitoring the consumer complaints. We have found through checking data at the Michigan Department of Consumer and Community Affairs that the Department of Consumer and Community Affairs is not monitoring the solicitation of consumer complaints and that the banks are almost always shown to have been in violation of the law.

"This is not to say that all the banks are out of compliance, but it is to say that the Department of Consumer and Community Affairs has not been following the law. The banks have been complying with the law as far as we can see and the department has not been following the law. The failure of the Department of Consumer and Community Affairs to follow the law is an important function of the bank's ability to charge interest.

Agnew's resignation in public's interest

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, the nation's top tax collector and its leader in "tax and order," finally ran up against a brick wall which he could not flatten with a barrage of worthless rhetoric. His resignation from office, when faced with criminal charges and the threat of possible criminal actions, can only be seen as his ultimate service to all Americans.

Agnew made it clear in resigning that he would not cooperate with the 30 prosecution teams. If he were to do so, his lawyers would be forced to the same necessity of non-cooperation that he wishes to impose on the nation.

An Agnew presidency would have been a nightmare. His first acts would have included a reversal of his predecessor's policies and a return to economic liberalism, which would have been as disastrous for America as the depression he hopes to end.

The constitutional questions of impeachment and impeachment proceedings would have focused on the current vice president and the nation's political process would have been thrown into a state of paralysis.

It is clear that the public's interest and the goal of the nation's political system are served by the resignation of Spiro T. Agnew and his departure from the political scene.

Choice of successor problem; difficult challenge for President

WASHINGTON - For the 14th time in 14 years, the nation is without a vice president. Nixon's resignation, although applauded by many for the need of three and three months, has created a crisis which a vice president has never faced in his position. Nixon's decision comes as no surprise, but it is a blow to the nation's political system.

Nixon seems to be driven by his desire to avoid a scandalous and expensive trial. He seems to feel that he has to be "overseas" for replacing Agnew by appointment. It is not surprising that Nixon is one of the leaders in the list of those who would have to be considered for the position. Nixon's decision comes as no surprise, but it is a blow to the nation's political system.

To the Editor:

The result of any semblance of election held in the nation's capital is a farce. The people of the nation have no representation in Congress, as the executive branch's employees on campus have been pending their resignation for the last few weeks. The situation is not only one of the most corrupt, but also one of the most alarming in the nation's history.

However, the vice president's resignation is a Pyrrhic victory for those who have been critical of his actions and policies. It is a tragedy for the American people as a whole, as it will have serious implications for the future of American governance.

Agnew made a responsible choice in resigning when confronted with the need for cooperation and otherwise. But had he been induced by a grand jury, a special prosecutor, or even the possibility of a civil trial, he would have had no choice.

Several prominent figures before a grand jury, Nixon, Agnew, and the Congress, with the threat of an impeachment proceeding surrounding them, would have seriously jeopardized the nation's interest and freedom of the press.

The constitutional questions of impeachment and impeachment proceedings have been settled in the current vice president's favor. The nation's political process would have been thrown into a state of paralysis.

It is clear that the public's interest and the goal of the nation's political system are served by the resignation of Spiro T. Agnew and his departure from the political scene.

Night watch for tickets down the drain

To the Editor:

To ensure that tickets are finally sold to the fans, I hope that the New York Giants and the University of Michigan will take all necessary precautions to avoid selling tickets to fans who have not paid for them.

The tickets are for a huge event, and it is important to make sure that the fans who buy them actually see the game.

In the interest of selling a sale and a priority ticket, it has been suggested that the President's ticket price be lowered significantly. It is important to make sure that the fans who buy them actually see the game.

Accordingly, the fans who buy the tickets should be aware of the policies and procedures of the University of Michigan and the New York Giants.

Milliken cites strike law need

By DAVID LAVER
State News Staff Writer

Gov. Milliken reiterated his concerns for Detroit school children at a press conference Wednesday and stated that the laws governing collective bargaining in the state and the need for binding arbitration for some issues were the only two reasons he would be opposed to the strike. "If we continued to be involved in these two issues, in addition to the strike, you would be in an untenable situation," Milliken said.

"The strike is needed to settle these issues," he said. "We will do everything to avoid a strike, which would mean a disruption of our schools, but we believe we have to have a strike to settle these issues."

The Governor has stated his belief that the state should be involved in the strike issue, which would allow him to make a decision on the matter. "We have to make sure we have a strike because of the issues involved," he said.

Two days before the strike, Milliken met with the city's educators to discuss the issue, but he said that there were no plans to mediate the strike.

"We have already said no mediation," Milliken said.

The Governor has been criticized for his stance on the strike, but he has maintained that he is not involved in the decision-making process. "We are not trying to avoid a strike," Milliken said. "We are trying to settle the issues."
President Resigns Decision

Nixon gets letter of resignation

WASHINGTON (AP) - Following a meeting with Vice President Agnew to discuss the nation's economic situation, President Nixon said he would resign Aug. 9. The announcement was made Aug. 8, 1974.

In a letter to Agnew, Nixon said: "I have concluded that the best way to end the existing crisis is to resign the office of President of the United States."

Nixon said in the letter that he would submit his resignation to the United States Congress at 5 p.m. Aug. 8, and would make a joint statement with Agnew.

Agnew has been under investigation by federal, state and local authorities since May, when he was appointed interim governor of Maryland. Nixon has been under investigation by federal authorities since late June.

The most difficult decisions are often those that are the most personal, and I know you will understand why this decision is so difficult and why I believe that it is in the best interest of the people of the United States. I have concluded that the best way to end the existing crisis is to resign the office of President of the United States.

I am convinced that you will not only understand my decision, but also respect and support it. You have always been a faithful and dedicated public servant, and I am confident that you will continue to serve the American people with distinction and integrity.

Sincerely,

By: [Signature]

Shock and elation were two ofiments on the faces of many.
people yesterday as the news of the resignation of Vice-Pres ident Spiro Agnew became known.

Secretary of State John M. Shriver, who announced Agnew's resignation in a statement announc..

Mr. Agnew was not present at the announcement, but his resignation was officially confirmed.

The statement said that Mr. Agnew had made a "full sus.."

The resignation was widely accepted as a sign of the Secretary of State's determination to keep President Nixon out of the Watergate scandal.

Some people said that they thought Agnew's resignation was a "good thing" for the country.

"I'm glad to see him go," said one person. "He's been a distraction for too long." Another person said, "I'm surprised he didn't resign sooner."

But there were also those who were not pleased with the resignation.

"I don't think it was the right thing to do," said one person. "He should have stayed in office and fought for his principles."

The announcement was made at a press conference at the State Capitol in Jefferson City. Mr. Shriver said that he and his staff had been working on the matter for several days.

"We had to act," said Mr. Shriver. "The situation was becoming too difficult to continue."

Mr. Shriver said that he would continue to work with the new vice president to ensure a smooth transition.

The resignation was announced at 10 a.m. at a press conference in Washington, D.C.

Two players suspended

By LYNN HENNING

Cincinnati Enquirer

There are still three episodes left on the team's calendar, not counting today's game against Boston, and it is likely that more than one will have been dealt after this week. The problem is that the team has not been able to provide a steady diet of adequate pitching. The team's general manager, Paul Voss, has had to rely on a number of young pitchers who have been showing some promise, but the results have not been encouraging.

The team has been trying to improve its pitching by bringing in several new players, but the results have not been as expected. The team has also been experimenting with various strategies, but the overall performance has not improved much. The team's goal is to improve its pitching in the remaining games of the season, but it will be a challenge to achieve this.
Bridge project concept OK'd by group

350 feet east of its present location and elongating it 213 feet to present site. The project would also extend East Stadium Street across Michigan Avenue and Medicare Avenue from two laneways.

Road widening planned

A 500-foot channel will reduce the Red Cedar River to four lanes. The new bridge will replace the present structure will be completed.

Mode of payment

Three Street, designer of Campus Parks and Planning, told the committee that the bridge project would be made.

"This will improve the flow of traffic along Stadium Street. There was discussion of finding enough along Stadium Street," he said.

A County road official told the committee there was too much traffic moving on what they considered an absolute necessity.

"It will be a two-lane and more general traffic along Stadium Street will be used to complete the project," he said.

"But the land for the new river is not used for any ski and the property the current stream are of special importance," he added.

Skeet Anderson, professor of structural engineering, who had been present at the discussion of the project. The "make of the project will be presented to the Board of Trustees before their Oct. 13 meeting," he said.
