

Judiciary unit hears testimony on Nixon

FROM WIRE SERVICES

WASHINGTON — With reminders of the historic import of its task, the House Judiciary Committee on Thursday heard testimony on the evidence in its impeachment staff has gathered against President Richard M. Nixon.

The committee's proceeding marked only the second time in history that an impeachment inquiry of an American president has reached such a stage. The last was in the case of President Andrew Johnson in 1868.

The hearing began on a day that saw calls from Republican leaders to urge Nixon to resign instead of opening in office and fighting the impeachment move.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., in his opening statement, said, "I don't want to stress again the importance of the hearing and the wisdom, decency and dignity which we must bring to it."

The two opening statements took less than eight minutes to read and then the committee voted 31-6 to begin hearing evidence in closed session.

Hours before the committee session on House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona, suggested that the committee reconsider the possibility of impeaching Rhodes emphasized that he was recommending that Nixon take that step.

Participant in a breakfast session

Rhodes held with a small group of newsmen quoted the congressman as saying that "in view of the developments of the last few days there has got to be some soul searching going on . . . I feel that if Nixon comes to the conclusion that he can no longer be effective as President he will do something about it . . . If he should resign, I would accept it."

Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., a top House leader, said on Thursday it would be best for the nation for the President to resign. He also said he believes Nixon inevitably will be impeached if he does not resign.

Calls for the President's resignation or impeachment also came from the Chicago Tribune, the Omaha World-Herald and William Randolph Hearst, editor-in-chief of the Hearst newspapers. All have supported the President in the past.

The key issue in this first phase of the presentation of evidence will be whether the material dealing with President Nixon's Watergate role is grounds for his impeachment.

Rodino said the phase dealing with the Watergate break-in and coverup "is one of six areas of our inquiry. We expect to continue our inquiry until each area has been thoroughly examined," he said.

After the committee doors closed to the public, members of the panel were expected to examine, among other evidence, a secret grand jury report on the President's Watergate role, turned over to the inquiry by U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica.

In related developments:

* Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, President Nixon's close personal friend, made a surprise appearance Thursday before the Senate Watergate committee.

In at least two other appearances, Rebozo has told the committee he received $100,000 in $100 bills from a representative of billionaire Howard Hughes in 1969 and 1970.

He said the money was intended as a contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign but was kept in a vault untouched and was returned intact to Hughes last year.

* House Majority Leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass., said Wednesday that a full House vote on the impeachment of President Nixon will take place about Aug. 1.

"There is going to be a vote," O'Neill said. "There's no question about it."

* In Chicago, Vice President Gerald R. Ford said Thursday that Watergate has caused a loss of confidence in the federal government "which has reached crisis proportions."

"The time has come for persons in political life to face the truth and speak the truth," Ford said. "The time has come for persons in political life to avoid the pragmatic dodge which seeks to obscure the truth," Ford said.

Committee in session

The House Judiciary Committee met for 25 minutes in public Thursday as the panel opened its impeachment inquiry. The committee voted to move into executive session joined only by its staff and lawyers for the President.

Plan to overhaul House units sidetracked

NEW YORK TIMES

WASHINGTON — Democratic representatives, with their most powerful members sharply divided, sidetracked today the most important overhaul plan of House committees since 1946.

In a closed party caucus in the House chamber, the Democrats voted by secret ballot, 111-95, to send the reorganization plan committee of the caucus for further study. The committee, led by Rep. Julia Butler Hansen of Washington, was directed to bring its recommendations back to the caucus in July.

Supporters and opponents of the reorganization plan insisted the caucus move did not kill prospects for action this year.

Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., who had headed the bipartisan committee that drafted the major overhaul, declared: "I think it wounds it badly."

The caucus vote was a setback for Speaker of the House Carl Albert, D-Okla., who had backed the Bolling study and who urged the caucus Thursday to send the plan on to the full House for a vote.

It was a victory for Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, and a number of other Democratic chairmen whose committees would have lost jurisdiction in the proposed overhaul.

But after the caucus, Albert and Mills reacted to the outcome with apparent calm. "When the caucus speaks, the speaker is bound by it," Albert observed.

Mills, asked if he was pleased with the outcome, replied: "Oh, I don't know. I voted to send it to the Hansen Committee."

Others were more outspoken. An official of Common Cause, the self-styled citizen's lobby that had campaigned for the Bolling plan, said the caucus had "killed" the proposal and described the Hansen committee as "a political graveyard."

A lobbyist for Americans for Democratic Action, a liberal group, said the caucus action was "a cruel hoax" since at least half the members of the Hansen committee have announced opposition to the Bolling plan.

Under the proposed reorganization, representatives for the most part would be limited to serving on a single committee, which would require many representatives to give up at least one committee assignment.

The Ways and Means Committee, regarded as the most powerful unit in the House, would lose its jurisdiction over international trade, medicare benefits and revenue sharing. The Education and Labor Committee would be split into two separate committees, one dealing with education and the other with labor. The committees on Post Office, Civil Service and International Security would be abolished.

The aim of the reorganization was to divide more evenly the workload and the power among the committees and their members.

Daniel Demlow, Michigan insurance commissioner, said that Blue Cross and Blue Shield is unresponsive to its subscribers' needs. 18,000 MSU students are affected by his decision requesting that these insurers reimburse their subscribers.

Blue Shield goes to court for review of rate rulings

Michigan Blue Shield filed suit against State Insurance Commissioner Daniel J. Demlow in Ingham County Circuit Court Thursday, in an effort to bring to review insurance rate rulings Demlow made in April.

Demlow said Thursday that Blue Cross and Blue Shield have been wasteful and inefficient in controlling health care costs, generally being unresponsive to the needs of subscribers.

He was unaware of Blue Shield's circuit court appeal at the time he made his statements.

Eric Shneidwind, executive assistant to Demlow, said his office would reserve comment until they could find out what Blue Shield is charging.

Blue Shield alleges that Demlow "exceeded regulatory capacities," in a statement released Thursday afternoon. The statement made on behalf of Blue Shield officials also alleged that Demlow's decision is a clear attempt of government takeover of the organization.

While he did approve a 15.1 per cent rate increase for Blue Shield, this percentage was 1.6 per cent below the rate requested by the insurer.

Demlow also rejected Blue Cross requests to maintain current rates and ordered an 8.2 per cent rate cut.

Simplified, Blue Cross pays the hospital and Blue Shield pays the doctor. Both are operated as nonprofit and quasi-public institutions.

Approximately 18,000 MSU students are covered — either in their own names or under their parents' names — by Blue Cross-Blue Shield programs.

This is the first year Blue Cross and Blue Shield practices have come under thorough study by the insurance commission. Before the commission only approved or disapproved rate requests by the insurers.

Demlow's statistical advisers studied Blue Cross and Blue Shield inefficiencies for four months and worked on rate recommendations specifically for one month.

Demlow became insurance commissioner Oct. 1, 1973 and was formerly deputy director of the Commerce Dept. At age 29, Demlow is the youngest person ever to serve as state insurance commissioner.

Though the Blue Cross and Blue Shield decisions were made by Demlow alone, he does not feel his position has too much power.

"If there is too much power, the legislators can always alter that power," Demlow said.

The basic struggle between the insurance commissioner and Blue Cross and Blue Shield deals with the reserve fund each organization needs to operate.

Demlow maintains that a 1½ month surplus of 13.5 per cent is enough but the insurers feel a two-month surplus is necessary, which is about 16.7 per cent.

Demlow said that by lowering subscription rates, Blue Cross and Blue Shield would be forced to return the savings to subscribers.

He added that if Blue Cross were to continue charging the same rates they would have a surplus of 20 per cent by December 1975, the target date Demlow set to reach the 13.5 per cent reserve fund amount.

"If you look at it as a continuum Blue Cross and Blue Shield would be on the right, next to them would be the hospitals and doctors, and on the opposite side would be the subscriber," Demlow said.

The priorities of Blue Cross and Blue Shield must shift to meet the needs of subscribers first, he emphasized.

Demlow said Blue Cross should institute a prospective reimbursement program in hospitals.

Such a program would attempt to build incentives for hospitals to maintain costs.

Demlow explained that hospitals would submit a budget at the beginning of each year. Those spending less than their anticipated budget would be rewarded by the insurer and those surpassing their budget would be penalized.

"Twelve Michigan hospitals are participating in a prospective reimbursement program on a trial basis," Demlow said.

He said Blue Cross was ordered to institute such a program in 1970 and termed the trial program "too little, too late."

The insurance commissioners have found that Blue Cross is paying between $12.7 million and $25.6 million annually for empty hospital beds.

They also found Blue Cross could reduce costs another $20 million a year by cutting the length of time patients stay at hospitals an average half a day. Demlow said the average patient is in the hospital 7½ days.

"Blue Cross has not begun to identify the scope of these problems," Demlow said. "Blue Cross is doing nothing to solve the problems."

Demlow recognizes that more administrative personnel will be necessary to develop programs, but in the long run he feels these programs will save Blue Cross and its subscribers millions of dollars.

Demlow said that 50 per cent of the advertising done by Blue Cross and Blue Shield is misleading because it purports the idea that the insurers are attempting to control health care costs when they are not.

No decline seen in freshman totals

By JOHN LINDSTROM
State News Staff Writer

While officials at many colleges and universities across the country are reporting decreased enrollment at their schools this fall, MSU administrators are reporting no decline in freshman enrollment.

At this time we have no evidence of a real decline in either applications or admissions," Ira Polley, asst. provost for admissions and records, said Thursday. "We expect that roughly the same number of first-term freshmen that were admitted last year — 6,700 — will be admitted."

However, Polley warned that a slow summer job market could adversely affect MSU's enrollment. Polley also said that the total college-age population in Michigan will decline beginning about 1977 or 1978.

"A deficient number of summer jobs for students could be of some concern and could affect our enrollment," Polley said. "In other words, if enough youngsters, young men and young women, who were expecting to have summer work were unable to obtain it that would clearly be a depressant on our enrollment," because students would not have enough money to return to school.

Many colleges and universities are expecting declines in enrollment for a variety of reasons, but not all colleges are suffering.

"For example, the prestigious ivy league schools are having no real problem in getting enrollments but some of the lesser-known private schools are suffering," Polley said.

One reason MSU's enrollment is having little difficulty in maintaining itself, Polley said, is that MSU is such a long-established school with a good reputation, a variety of programs and a commitment to scholarship, "that Michigan State is still very attractive to applicants."

And MSU has not done anything different than in previous years, Polley said, to maintain itself. There has not been an increased effort to enroll people, nor has there been any increase in the number of recruiters MSU uses to work with freshmen and high school students. MSU still employs six full-time recruiters and four others who recruit part time. The same number as last year.

Polley did say that by 1977 or 1978 the 18 to 21-year-old college-age population will begin to decline in Michigan and will continue to decline for some nine years.

"But, and this is very significant, even after a decline of nine years, at a clip of some 20,000 people a year in Michigan, the college-age population in 1986 or 1987 will be the same as it was in 1968 and 1969," Polley said.

However, the college-age population has not yet started to decline and is, in fact, still increasing, but at a much slower rate than before.

The slow increase is one cause of many colleges' concern about lower enrollment for the number of institutions of higher education has also increased so there are more schools competing for a number of students that is beginning to stabilize and will eventually decrease.

A recent study reported on in the New York Times said another cause of lower enrollment is that many middle-class students are not enrolling in college because they think only poor students can receive financial aid even though many middle-class students can apply for and receive aid.

Farm, food prices fall in April

Farm and food prices declined for the second consecutive month in April, slowing the overall rise of the wholesale price index to its lowest rate in six months, the Labor Dept. said Thursday.

The index rose a seasonally adjusted seven-tenths of one per cent in April, the first time in six months that prices did not rise more than a full percentage point.

An adjusted 3 per cent decline in farm and food prices last month was offset by sharp increases in a broad range of industrial commodities.

The index stood at 155.3, meaning that it cost $155.30 to buy a variety of wholesale goods that cost $100 in the 1967 base period.

Metals accounted for one-third of the industrial commodity rise, with iron and steel scrap up 14.7 per cent and steel mill products 2.7 per cent.

Parliament of Iceland dissolved

Icelandic Premier Olafur Johannesson dissolved parliament Thursday and called for elections June 30.

His leftist government, which includes two Communist ministers, had lost its majority in the chamber.

A resolution of no confidence had been introduced by the leaders of the opposition parties, which are in a majority in parliament, but the resolution has not been discussed.

The dissolution of parliament took away the mandates from all legislators and parliament cannot function until after election day.

U.S. copters shot at in Korea

Two American helicopters on a routine operational assignment near the Korean demilitarized zone were fired upon Thursday by North Korean gunners, the Army said.

U.S. Spokesmen said no crewmen were injured, but the South Korean Defense Ministry said one helicopter had to make an emergency landing.

The shooting was the first significant incident involving U.S. troops in Korea since August 1969, when three American soldiers were captured after their helicopter was shot down north of the DMZ.

Chrysler recalls 1,435 cars

Chrysler Corp. announced Thursday it is recalling 1,435 of its 1974 Plymouth Fury and Dodge Monaco sedans to correct a problem that could lead to brake failure.

Chrysler said longer station wagon brake tubes were installed on the vehicles instead of the tubes required. The problem was discovered during a routine quality control check.

The company said it had no record of accidents due to the mistake.

Dominican Republic riot kills 4

Four persons were shot and killed Wednesday in the Dominican Republic during a clash between the military and a group protesting the jailing of political prisoners, police reported.

The incident occurred as the country readied for national presidential elections May 16. At least 14 persons have been killed since the political campaign began.

The protesters were demanding the release of 200 political prisoners jailed since 1965. The prisoners, mostly leftists, announced a hunger strike on April 30.

Police used tear gas and fired shots into the air to disperse other protesters.

Danish workers walk off jobs

Thousands of Danish workers walked off their jobs Thursday in protest of a government proposal that would hike sales taxes and cut welfare service to meet a soaring trade deficit.

More than 10,000 shipyard workers in Copenhagen, Odense and Aalborg led the walkouts, asking for new elections and threatening a general strike unless the government withdraws the bills.

The minority liberal government asked parliament to pass the measures despite Common Market proposals that Denmark would, in effect, be establishing import controls.

Foreign Minister Ove Guldberg said the measures would hit domestic and imported products equally.

State unemployment rate drops

Michigan's unemployment rate dropped slightly in April but remained higher than the national average and considerably higher than the state figure for April 1973.

The Michigan Employment Security Commission said unemployment dropped from 10.3 per cent in March to 9.6 in April. The national average for April was 5.1 per cent while Michigan's April 1973 average was 6.9 per cent.

Commission spokesmen attributed the drop to improved auto sales and seasonal hiring in construction and retail trade industries.

Fans alive with spirit in '73-74

By MARGARET GOSSETT
State News Staff Writer
Somewhere amidst the 1973-74 football and basketball season, school spirit was unearthed and passed among the student body, in what MSU's cheerleaders called the most enthusiastic season to hit MSU athletic events in four years.

"Two years ago you couldn't get enough people to do a 'Go Green, go White' cheer. Now you can hardly keep up with the cheering sections. They all try to outcheer each other and the 'Go Green, Go White' cheer shakes the stadium, it's so loud," said Ron Turkus, 128 Collingwood Ave., member of the cheering squad for two years and captain this past season.

"We had better support this year than the previous two years I've been on the squad," Julie Olds, 424 Michigan Ave., said. She just completed her last year of cheering and will graduate this June.

"There are even fans at every away game, and those are the people with a lot of school spirit," Cindy Malthaner, 424 Michigan Ave., said.

Students would often initiate their own cheers, especially the popular "Eat 'em up, eat 'em up, rah - rah - rah" cheer, the cheerleaders said. The green and white uniformed squad would then join in, bouncing and cheering along with the crowd.

Jim McCabe, 562 Virginia Ave., a two-year veteran of the squad, said, "They don't always have to follow us in cheering. There's a lot of talent in the crowds."

"At football games it's hard to reach everyone in the crowd, anyway," said Kathi Tiplady, 424 Michigan Ave., now trying out for her third year.

The cheerleaders interviewed agreed that various factors intensified school spirit this year.

Pot group's concert will feature 3 bands

The Michigan Marijuana Initiative free concert, which was rained out last week, has been rescheduled for Sunday, May 12, in Valley Court Park. The "high noon" concert will begin at 2 p.m. this time around and can be referred to as the "high noon plus two" concert.

Three local groups, Jawbone, Jewel and Pine Ridge Band, will provide the music.

The purpose of the concert is to have people sign petitions which will put the issue of decriminalization of marijuana on the November ballot.

Correction

A statement in the Counterpoint article of April 23 indirectly quoted Richard H. Rech professor of pharmacology, as saying that no more than 700 milligrams of THC can be ingested by a nonuser before risking dangerous toxic overdose.

In fact, dangerous panic reactions, emotional instability and motor incoordination of incapacity can occur at much lower doses. The figure of 700 mg arose from speculation about what dose may be required (administered 4-6 times daily) to induce physical dependence.

"More people attended the games and were more enthusiastic about joining in the cheers. The crowds especially liked the tall pyramids, and loved it if one of us would fall. There's a danger involved and it adds to the excitement," Olds said.

They said they believe the anticipation of a new football coach and the excellent prospects for a Big Ten basketball championship also roused more student interest.

"The crowds weren't hostile, as they have been in the past. Even when we were losing, they kept up the spirit. They entertained themselves, passing up people and empty bottles instead of harassing the opposite team," Turkus said.

Barbara Riemer, asst. professor of psychology, suggests that due to a lack of organized political movements about campus students have sought other kinds of belonging, one being the enthusiasm for sports.

"Competition and aggression are inherent in our society. We're raised with a sports-minded ideology, an understanding that if we're good citizens, we have good spirit," she said.

"There aren't as many alternative ideologies offered now as in previous years," she added, "so students look for school spirit."

Media has a big effect promoting trends, she noted. She has seen sports streaking, which she said is a demonstration and public movements are ignored.

Undoubtedly, cheerleaders act to unify the crowds, the team and the band, Olds said, to produce a rigorous school spirit.

FBI 'stumped' by Hearst case

FROM WIRE SERVICES

WASHINGTON — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley Thursday said the agency is stumped by the Patricia Hearst case and so far has no proof she willingly participated in bank robbery.

months after the daughter of newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst was carried screaming from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment.

Kelley also said Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe's comments on the Hearst case "may even stimulate the Symbionese Liberation Army to additional activities."

But the director added that he knew of no particular harm done to the bureau's investigation of the case by Saxbe's comments.

Without linking his statement directly to what Saxbe has said on the case, Kelley said the decision of the SLA to rob a bank in San Francisco could have been a result of public statements questioning whether Patricia Hearst had become a voluntary member of the group.

"They were apparently somewhat disturbed by public statements that she was an involuntary member of the group and to show that (she was a voluntary member) they may well have gone into the Hibernia bank and robbed that," Kelley said.

The FBI has issued warrants for four SLA members on bank robbery charges but has named Hearst only as a material witness.

Questioned directly about statements by Saxbe, who described Hearst as a "common criminal" after the bank robbery, Kelley said:

"I'm sure, having read this, it may well have aroused the ire of the SLA. It may even stimulate them to additional activities."

"You have a very closely knit group . . . dedicated to a cause. They're very tight in their security," he said.

"They have restricted their activities," Kelley said. "They're holed up. They've got friends obviously who are helping them. They have found the key insofar as eluding the FBI up to this point."

But he promised, "In the event we do determine where she is, we're going to go in. We're going to exert every effort to not injure and certainly not kill anybody. It's going to be well planned, but we're going in."

Discussing the difficulty of tracking down the SLA hideout, Kelley said, "we at least know a number of places she was not."

He said descriptions relayed to him of the Berkeley apartment thought to have been an SLA hideout show "they didn't get out of that apartment very much. It was in a shambles."

At his first full - fledged Washington news conference since taking office 10 months ago, Kelley defended the FBI's initial investigation of the Watergate case, but sidestepped most Watergate questions.

Group of Dems holds key to campaign reform law

By JIM BUSH

State News Staff Writer

Both sides in the clash between state House Democrats and Republicans for the best way to correct campaign financing abuses are vying for the support of a small group of open-minded Democratic legislators who largely hold the key to victory.

Deadline near to file to run for delegate seats

Secretary of State Richard Austin reminded registered voters Wednesday that May 28 is the deadline for filing as candidates for precinct delegates.

Precinct delegates will be elected in the state's Aug 6 primary to represent their districts at party county conventions and elect delegates to the state and national conventions.

Austin, the state's chief election official, urged registered voters to seriously consider running for precinct delegate of the party of their choice. Similar pleas were made by Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelly, like Austin a Democrat, and State Democratic Chairman Harry Winograd.

Reconsideration of the election financing bill must come early next week, election officials say, if any reform is to be implemented in time for this year's elections.

The minority Republicans hope to entice the small group of Democrats — which includes Rep. Lynn Jondahl, D - East Lansing, — with a maximum limit at least on campaign contributions and possibly on candidate expenditures as well.

The Democratic majority's leadership, on the other hand, is flashing amendments at the holdout legislators that would possibly lead to partial public financing of state campaigns next year.

The bone of contention between the two parties is the current provision that allows the names of financial backers who contribute less than $25 to a campaign to go unrecorded.

Republicans — with the intense prodding of Gov. Milliken — want the floor, which they call a loophole, eliminated. But by themselves they do not have the votes in the Democratically controlled state House to get their way.

Democratic leaders say the floor is necessary if small donors are not to be discouraged from participating with their dollars in political campaigns.

But most of the 12

Democrats who joined House Republicans to initially defeat the Senate - approved measure on April 26 are not that concerned with contribution floors. To them, the true issue in campaign financing reform is a ceiling on contributions and expenditures.

"Our goal, in dealing with campaign financing, must be to guarantee that political office cannot be purchased," Jondahl said. "It is not reform simply to make known who bought the office."

House majority floor leader Bobby Crim, D - Davison, said Thursday he has been holding off a second vote on the bill, which was sent with Senate approval to the House in loose form in January, until he has the 14 extra votes needed for passage of the Democratic leadership version.

"We're about two or three votes short of the 55 necessary to get our bill passed," Crim said, indicating that much of the new support stems from Democratic legislators who were absent for the first vote two weeks ago.

Though he would not identify the legislators, Crim added that he has won the support of three or four of the 12 Democrats who joined with Republicans to defeat the bill earlier.

"We're considering two amendments that we hope will help us win sufficient support to get the bill approved," he said.

One of the changes would require that contributions of more than $25 be made only by check. Current language in the bill would make it easy for a donor to contribute large amounts and possibly avoid detection.

The other amendment, Crim said, will indicate the legislature's intent to partially fund political campaigns through an income tax check-off system, similar to the $1 check-off now possible on federal income tax returns.

But that is not enough for Rep. Perry Bullard, D - Ann Arbor, one of the holdout Democrats.

"I might accept that if we took the check-off thing a bit further and actually set up the fun' now," Bullard said. "Then we could establish a formula for spending the money later."

Crim said he expects to get the two or three more votes he needs before Tuesday.

Republicans, who are threatening a Milliken veto if the contribution reporting floor is not eliminated, hope they can convince the small Democratic group to buck their party leaders and vote against the floor if some kind of funding ceiling is also added.

Japanese woman gets Mona facelift

TOKYO (AP) — Yukie Tamura, 21, had saved her money for years for a trip to Paris to visit the Louvre museum and see the Mona Lisa.

When she heard that the famed Da Vinci painting was coming to Tokyo, Tamura took the money, the equivalent of $500, and visited a plastic surgeon. Asked what she wanted, she flashed a picture of the Italian masterpiece.

Though Tamura's case is the only one of Mona Lisa face-changing so far reported in Japan, it points up the craze that the visit of the painting created here.

White House crimes verified

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

"Whoever willfully endeavors by means of bribery . . . to obstruct, delay or prevent the communication of information relating to a violation of any criminal statute of the United States . . . shall be fined not more than $20,000, or imprisoned not more than five years, or both."

- 18 U.S. Code Sec. 1510.
"Whoever commits an offense against the United States or aids, abets, counsels, commands, induces or procures its commission is punishable as a principal."

- 18 U.S. Code Sec. 2.
The first press and public comment on the edited White House transcripts has dealt largely with the presidential character revealed - the meanness of spirit, the isolation, the hatred, the conspiratorial air. That is understandable. But now it is time to focus sharply on what must overwhelmingly concern the House impeachment inquiry: the evidence of specific crimes.

By the standards of what is required to bring an ordinary indictment, there is overwhelming evidence in these transcripts that Richard Nixon committed federal crimes. It is easy to understand now why the Watergate grand jury wanted to indict him.

The Chicago Daily News asked an experienced former federal prosecutor, David P. Schippers, to study the transcripts. He concluded that they would support indictments of the President for "six different kinds of criminal activity: obstruction of justice and of criminal investigation, subornation of perjury, misprision of a felony, conspiracy and interstate transportation in aid of bribery.

The two main themes are obstructing justice and suborning perjury. They were also sounded by Philip Kurland, the distinguished and conservative constitutional scholar of the University of Chicago Law School. In an interview in the Chicago Tribune, Professor Kurland said there was "strong evidence" of both in the transcripts.

"You can't interpret them otherwise," Kurland said, "unless you believe the people quoted in the transcripts talk in code and mean exactly the opposite of what they say."

The evidence of obstruction of justice relates to the demand for more hush money by E. Howard Hunt, one of the convicted Watergate defendants. John Dean reported the blackmail demand to Nixon in their talk of March 21, 1973, warning him explicitly three times that payment would be an obstruction of justice. The President nevertheless repeatedly indicated his approval of paying the money.

"I know where it could be gotten," he said, and he agreed that John Mitchell was the man to handle it.

Ten times during that March 21 talk, Nixon returned to the subject of Hunt's blackmail demand. After H.R. Haldeman joined the conversation, Nixon said, "The Hunt problem . . . ought to be handled now." And, "His price is pretty high, but at least we can buy the time on that as I pointed out to John."

Then, toward the end of the transcript, there is this most significant exchange:

P: "That's why for your immediate things you have no choice but to come up with the $120,000, or whatever it is. Right?"

D: "That's right."
P: "Would you agree that that's the prime thing that you damn well better get that done?"

D: "Obviously he ought to be given some signal anyway."

P: "(expletive deleted), get it. In a way that - who is going to talk to him? Colson? He is the one who is supposed to know him?"

Very few criminal cases have such direct, first-hand evidence in the words of the conspirators. After the discussion, Kurland said, "Everyone in the room knew that the money was to be paid." And $75,000 was paid to Hunt that night.

To the Editor:

It is a pity that the State News continues to resort to filling its propitious pages with such poor excuses for opinion page commentary as contribution by John Tingwall to literary uselessness in the May 1 State News.

Everything Tingwall stated in his moronic waste of an unknown number of column inches could have been reduced to an admission that Tingwall had nothing intelligent to piece together, in order to present us with alternatives to the current handling of the Nixon farce. This seems to be the present craze of our auspicious journalists - cut down Nixon with weak sarcasm.

MSU women, your liberation ends upon graduation - at least if you are or will be married to another MSU graduate. MSU will send various information and publications to its alumni, but you won't rate even an "and Mrs." in the address. Since my marriage I've been dropped from all MSU mailing lists. POINT OF VIEW

Minorities still face persecution

By CALVIN G. VINSON

I decided to do a follow-up article on Operation Zebra for two reasons: first, to examine the potential ramifications of Operation Zebra, and second, to respond to the questions posed by Tim Ross in his article which appeared in the May 3 State News.

The events that preceded the arrests of seven black men in San Francisco described as members of a terrorist cult called the "Death Angels" were: the random shooting and killing of 18 whites on the streets of San Francisco, the initiation of a tactic known as Operation Zebra where black men resembling a composite drawing were searched, public outrage at the tactic as evidenced by the protests of a biracial group of more than 1,000 people outside San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto's office, the filing of suits seeking an injunction to the tactic by the ACLU and NAACP, the issuance of a preliminary injunction by a U.S. District Court judge, the formation of a special squad of 30 black policemen assigned to the case as undercover agents, and the cancellation of a proposed campaign trip by Alioto to meet with an informer.

I opposed the use of Operation Zebra for three main reasons: 1) from a constitutional standpoint that innocence precludes guilt; 2) a belief that the black community was being persecuted for the acts of a few; and 3) knowledge that a composite is not always accurate, that it is accomplished by this writing. Offer alternatives! Arouse students. Interview officials, take a poll - anything to rid the paper of emaciated space.

In the meantime, maybe we could fill the opinion page columns with the rise of intelligent graffiti from nursery school pencil boxes.

Group to study RAs' drug control role

To the Editor:

Publicity surrounding the recent resignation of an Akers Hall resident assistant and the University Student Affairs Committee's proposed investigation has clouded the real facts and the true nature of what is currently at issue in relation to the University's controlled substances policy.

The policy was generated early last fall as a result of the increasing number of armed robberies of students involved in the sale of controlled substances in residence halls, and the genuine concern that serious injury or a death could result if these incidents were not controlled. Gary North, coordinator of residence hall programs, resisted issuing a policy statement on this problem until the near shooting death of a student in Brody Complex forced the issue. The current policy is the result, then, of a fear of injury or death as the result of "ripoffs," as well as the recognition that the University cannot ignore or condone what the state of Michigan has classified as an illegal activity.

The committee discussed this policy last fall when it was released, and I appointed a subcommittee to essentially investigate the legality and workability of such a policy. As the year progressed, a combination of factors resulted in the committee's decision to drop the investigation, essentially based on the opinion that the policy was generally being ignored by all concerned.

The recent case involving Jerome Jacobs has generated concern on the part of myself and several members of the committee. On Tuesday, I will be reappointing the subcommittee and charging them with a thorough study of the role of the resident assistant,

Conyers calls for 'input' to help clear up problems

To the Editor:

For many years I have been involved in numerous issues on a local, state and national level. As an advocate of "people power" in government, I find it increasingly difficult to tackle the many problems facing Detroit and the nation without the active interest and enthusiasm of community members.

The year 1974, unlike other years, marks the beginning of a change for the City of Detroit. In January of this year, the first black mayor of this city took office, and for the first time many important issues are now being discussed with a reasonable chance for positive action.

Community action and involvement do not begin with an abstract group, but it starts with each and every one of you reading this letter. Your input, not only as students, but as representatives of the even larger Detroit community is needed. All persons interested in having a voice on the issues facing all levels of government can volunteer some of their time by contacting Marcia Davis in my Detroit office at 313-226-7022. Together we can work for needed change.

Late swims

To the Editor:

I hope Arthur Sherbo's letter in Tuesday's State News attracts attention and gets action in readying MSU's outdoor swimming pool for the 1974 summer season. I'd like to request some consideration for MSU staff who work from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and want a swim at 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Last year the pool closed just at the time many of us wanted to use it.

particularly as it relates to the controlled substances policy. The committee will not become involved in defending or condemning the actions or alleged actions of Jacobs, for it does not fall within the realm of the committee's jurisdiction.

The scope of the investigation, in cooperation with North and his office as well as the vice president for student affairs and other interested parties, will attempt, if possible, to alter or change the current controlled substances policy to mitigate to some extent the burden this places on the resident assistant in relation to his floor and its residents.

Cooperation with those involved in generating the original policy is to be regarded as a joint effort to improve the quality and quantity of the injury and not as co-option or selling out by the committee.

New hospitals will aid in entire Lansing area

A recent proposal to build a 200-bed teaching hospital at MSU has ignited heated controversy. Lansing Mayor Gerald Graves fears that approval of the proposed facility will result in a surplus of hospital beds in the Lansing area and force St. Lawrence Hospital to close.

The Capitol Area Comprehensive Health Planning Assn. must carefully study each side of the issue and make a rational decision which will best serve both the MSU and Lansing communities.

There is little doubt that MSU needs the new hospital facility. Its construction on campus will greatly improve medical service to students, faculty and staff and will further the development of the colleges of Human Medicine and Osteopathic Medicine. The services and efficiency of the University Health Center will also be increased.

Because it no longer meets state standards, St. Lawrence must either build new facilities or close its doors within three years. Graves and St. Lawrence officials fear the planning association will rule against their building proposal because the construction of two new hospitals will result in a surplus of beds in the community, forcing St. Lawrence to close.

The controversy, however, is based on politics rather than facts. The two facilities will provide separate programs and serve different needs, each helping the residents of the Lansing community and the state.

MSU's proposed hospital will provide 180 beds for specialized care not available in a general hospital for patients from throughout the state. The remaining 20 beds will be used for students, faculty and staff as replacement for University Health Center.

The planning association must critically analyze St. Lawrence proposal to insure that it can provide the continued health care to the community it has served for 50 years. It can erase the current controversy by heeding Gerald Faverman, asst. dean of osteopathic medicine at MSU, who said, "This isn't a time for political grandstanding. We should all work together on this."

Fast will feed hungry

Americans feel "hunger" during the five hours between their three or four meals a day or when they have the "munchies." But for seven West African nations hunger is a way of life - and death.

MSU students living on campus can aid the starving millions and increase their awareness of the problem by fasting the evening of May 23. If at least one-third of the students in any residence hall sign up by Sunday night to forgo their dinner on May 23, that hall's management will reimburse the African Famine Relief Fund for each meal forfeited.

Local organizers of the fund drive said that the necessary one-third participation in the fast already had been achieved in Case, Hubbard, Mason - Abbott and Phillips - Snyder halls by Thursday night.

In the countries of Ethiopia,

Senegal, Mauritania, Mali, Upper Volta, Niger and Chad with a total population of 50 million people, one million have died of starvation and disease in the last six years and 30 million have been severely afflicted.

While participation in the May 23 fast may not save thousands of lives, it will be tragic if the attempt to lay the ideological groundwork for a just distribution of the world's food is met with the prevalent student apathy.

If you are having trouble signing up for the fast in your residence hall, call the Center for Peace and Conflict Resolution at the University of Michigan, Department of Higher Education, Harrison Road.

Residence hall students are the only ones who can help. Campus students can send contributions to African Famine Relief, account number 5-0302, at the East Lansing State Bank.

Handicapped tell of social denials, stigma

Shortening of hours set for 2 Lansing bus routes

By JIM KEEGSTRA
State News Staff Writer

The two cross-town Lansing bus routes, Jolly - Miller and Aurelius Road, will be cut to only two hours of service a day beginning Monday.

The two runs - which the Capitol Area Transportation Authority (CATA) says mainly carry school children - will operate from 7 to 8 a.m. and from 2 to 3 p.m.

Minor operating time reductions on the remaining 16 Lansing bus routes may be instituted May 20. The three East Lansing loop routes will not be changed.

These time changes have allowed the CATA board of directors to lower its request for subsidy money in the coming fiscal year from the six participating local governments to $482,000. CATA also needs $131,000 for current operating losses.

Lansing City Council and Delta and Lansing township officials have already approved payment of their subsidies while East Lansing and Meridian Township have yet to take action on CATA's request.

Several Delhi Township trustees have decided to ride the black panther - marked buses themselves before making a decision.

East Lansing's payments will come before city council Tuesday at an 8 p.m. meeting specifically called to adopt the city's 1974-75 budget. CATA is asking East Lansing for $91,152.

At the opening of council's May 7 public hearing on the budget, councilmember Mary Sharp told the audience that the city would try to meet that amount though only $36,000 were allotted East Lansing's proposed budget. "This council is struggling with the problem of raising these funds without raising taxes," Sharp said.

Mayor Wilbur Brookover said earlier he expected the council would try to make the payments. Councilmember George Griffiths said Thursday the city evidently would receive more federal revenue sharing money than previously expected and support for the bus system's operating losses next year would be an appropriate use of this money.

However, Griffiths was not as positive about the remaining $13,719 CATA wants for current losses through June 30.

Councilmember John Polomsky said Thursday, as he has several times before, that he strongly favors East Lansing making the payments.

"I'm all for it," Polomsky said. "We've got the funds in there somewhere for it and we've got to ferret them out."

The fifth councilmember, Thelma Evans, could not be reached for her opinion on the issue.

Miniscule organism seen as key source of protein

By PAULA HOLMES
State News Staff Writer

A tiny organism — smaller than the head of a pin — may be the main source of protein in the world within six years.

"The world is rapidly approaching the point where it can no longer rely on fish, grain and meat for all of its protein," Arthur E. Humphrey, MSU's distinguished agriculture lecturer, said. "Single-cell protein may have a role in solving the food problems and minimizing the calorie protein crisis."

Humphrey, a microbiologist from the University of Pennsylvania, was on campus Thursday and today. His primary research interests are in protein production, enzyme utilization and computer-controlled fermentations. He has written more than 80 technical papers and is co-author of a book on biochemical engineering.

"From the single cell we can make a better miracle whip or a better meat substitute," Humphrey said. "In fact, we can improve on nature. And we can become independent of agriculture in producing a significant food form."

Factories for growing the single-cell organisms are already in operation in Italy, the Soviet Union and Western Europe. Two weeks ago Standard Oil Co. of Indiana announced that it will open up a plant in the United States to produce the organisms.

Single-cell bacteria, yeast and other microorganisms can be grown on waste materials or on alcohol derived from crude oil. The organisms burn carbohydrates chemically to produce energy and protein in the same manner that a plant does through photosynthesis.

Single-cell production has several advantages over plant production. The cells can be grown in tanks independent of the climate. The cells also grow much faster than plant cells. A single cell reproduces every 20 minutes and a plant cell once a week.

"This allows for more genetic experimentation," Humphrey said. "You can get a new genetic variety of the protein in a matter of days."

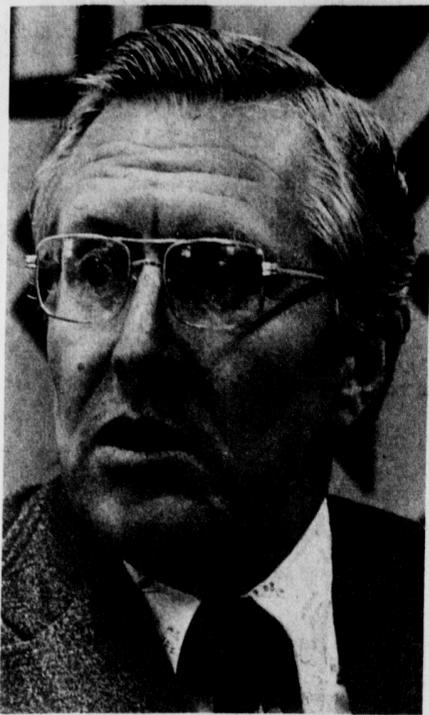

The cells can be bred for a certain texture or flavor and the protein can be used either as a means of stretching animal feed or in synthetic human foods. Eventually the single-cell protein could replace the soybean and fish meal as a human protein substitute, Humphrey said.

The cost of the single-cell protein would be about 50 cents a pound, which is about the current cost of soybean protein.

But single-cell protein production will not solve all of the world's ills.

"The production takes energy, either from waste material or renewable resources," Humphrey said. "And this energy can be used either for making food or fuel. It's an energy-food trade-off."

"So the protein takes on a political as well as a social aspect. Eventually I think the world will develop into two powers; the protein powers — Brazil, United States, Russia and China — and the energy powers — the Arab states.

Food scientist

Arthur E. Humphrey, a microbiologist from the University of Pennsylvania, is lecturing on campus today as MSU's distinguished agriculture lecturer for 1974. His research deals with single cell production of protein, as a means of growing food independent of agriculture.

Panel accused of sitting on can, bottle legislation

By WILLIAM J. HOLSTEIN
UPI

Sponsors of returnable bottle legislation Thursday accused a House committee of sitting on a bill aimed at cleaning up litter by putting a deposit on all bottles and cans because of industry pressures.

The Michigan Returnable Coalition, composed of environmentalist groups and recycling centers, said the beverage industry is using "scare tactics" to prevent action on the bill by the House Consumers and Agriculture Committee.

"The committee members have been under heavy pressure from lobbyists from these and other interests who have taken the position that the bill would cause high unemployment and would not solve the problem of litter," said Paul Schrodt, coordinator of the Ann Arbor Ecology Center.

The bill, sponsored by State Rep. Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing, would place a 10 cent deposit on all wine, beer and soft drink cans and bottles, but not on liquor containers. Sponsors say the deposit would encourage consumers to return the bottles to a store rather than litter and would enable more recycling of glass and metal.

Schrodt said the returnable coalition is sending a letter to committee chairman Frank V. Wierzbicki, D-Troy, demanding a vote on the bill.

But Wierzbicki said the committee has not voted on the legislation because "the votes obviously aren't there."

"They haven't convinced six members of the committee that the bill is needed at this time," Wierzbicki said.

The coalition disputed claims by the industry and the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce that the legislation, if enacted, would cause thousands of workers to lose their jobs.

Schrodt said a Western Michigan University study recently indicated that the likely impact would be a net increase of about 9,000 jobs.

Bartrem leaves post on ASMSU

Larry Bartrem, chairman of the University Student Affairs Committee, resigned Thursday as executive assistant to the president of ASMSU.

Bartrem, in a letter to Tim Cain, ASMSU president, stated his decision to resign was based on what he felt were "irreconcilable conflicts of personality, style and approach (to the administration)."

Bartrem had served in the same position under former ASMSU president Ed Grafton and is planning to run for a board of trustees seat in November.

When contacted Thursday afternoon, Cain had no statement, but said he would rather wait until after the ASMSU meeting Thursday night.

In another part of his letter, Bartrem said that his style did not match Cain's, which Bartrem said characterized administrators as "ogres or monsters." He also said that Cain's terming Bartrem's attempts to arrive at mutual agreements as conciliatory and selling out have impelled him to either change his style or resign.

In closing, Bartrem said, "The trust and close communication required between a president and his executive assistant is totally nonexistent between you and

Draft registration still required

By PAT NARDI
State News Staff Writer
If you are an 18-year-old and you think the draft is a couple FBI agents may knock on your door to inform otherwise.

birthdays.
But according to Mildred Edling of MSU's Office of Defense Services Information, few men seem to realize their obligation to register.
"We're getting an awful lot of men late in registering. They don't seem to realize that the draft has not ended; only the authority to induct has ended," she said. "There have been two or three at MSU who have been contacted by the FBI for not registering. You are liable to be prosecuted if you don't register."

Those who register are given a 1-H classification, which Edling said was a "holding" classification. Nineteen-year-olds will receive a lottery number, which will not mean anything until they are 20.
"You are only eligible for the draft during the year you are 20," Edling said. About 100,000 men in the United States, all 20 years old, are reclassified as 1-A to make up the peace-time pool of men, who would be the first called in an emergency.

After age 20, men receive a safer reclassification until their 26th birthday when the Selective Service destroys their records.
"At age 26, you are considered to have fulfilled your military obligation," Edling said.

They think is part of the establishment. I am not here to promote the Selective Service."
The Office of Defense Services Information, located at 162B Student Services Bldg., was formed in September. Office hours are Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m.
Edling said she also has information and materials about opportunities for women in the armed forces and she urges interested women students to discuss these in her office.

Black group will award local community service

An MSU student or faculty member who has been involved in the local black community will be awarded for outstanding achievement Saturday at the third annual Ujah Awards Cabaret.
The awards cabaret, which is sponsored by the United Black Caucus, will be held 9 p.m. in Wonders Hall grill. The awards will be presented at 10 p.m.
The charge is $1.25 per person and $2.00 per couple. Nominees for the award are chosen by black students throughout campus. However, the final decision will be made by the black students of Wonders Hall.

Ralph Hanson, MSU senior, was the first recipient of the award in 1972. Hanson was rewarded for his commendable service to the Black United Front free breakfast program in Lansing.
The following year, the award was granted to Robert Green, dean of the College of Urban Development.
Bernie Adams, treasurer of the black caucus, said the Ujah award is provided mainly to recognize individuals who have contributed their services to the black community of the East Lansing and Lansing area.

"This is more than just another cabaret, this is something in which we're trying to involve the nation-building aspects of what's happening in the Lansing area," he said.
"What we are trying to do is incorporate a lot of elements like political and sociological aspects in a social setting," he continued. "That's why it's a cabaret."

Those who register at the MSU office should bring identification which shows date of birth, plus names and addresses of two people other than family members who will always know the registrant's address.
Late registrants must fill out a "Reason for Lateness" form, Edling said, but usually the Selective Service is fairly liberal about accepting these.
"They know that those who don't register aren't being defiant. They just don't understand," Edling emphasized that she is hired by MSU - not the Selective Service.

Bobbi plays on

Flutist Bobbi Humphrey is filling in for trumpeter Donald Byrd at the Stables this week while Byrd recovers from a virus infection. Though Byrd and his band are on stage each night, the trumpeter can't play his horn. Friday and Saturday night performances are at 10 p.m. and midnight.

PROF COMPOSED MUSIC

Band to premiere work

The Michigan premiere of a composition by H. Owen Reed, professor of music, will be presented by the MSU Symphonic Band in a free concert Sunday at 4 p.m.

"For the Unfortunate" was commissioned by the McKeesport, Pa., Area High School Band in memory of its respected director, Joseph P. Krysik," Reed explained. "Krysik, his wife and child died in a plane crash about three years ago. In the rubble they found a list of composer's names that Krysik had considered commissioning for his band. My name happened to be at the top of the list, thus the title of the piece."

Reed described his experimental work as tragic yet hopeful. He employs vague and dissonant tonality and nonmetric rhythm to portray tragedy.

A recording of a choir singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" is superimposed over the dissonance.

"I hoped the choir would be like a ray of sunshine during the storm," Reed said.

The band will also perform Roger Nixon's "Festival Fanfare - March," Richard Wagner's "Overture to Tannhauser," Alfred Reed's "Music for Hamlet," James Hartway's "Two Rube Goldbergs for Band" and Paul Hindemith's "Symphonic Metamorphosis."

The Symphonic Band will close with a selection of lighter works, including a series of Scott Joplin rags featured in the movie "The Sting."

WKAR shows flicks

Two Busby Berkeley productions featuring James Cagney, Ruby Keeler, Dick Powell and Ginger Rogers, will be shown at a benefit for WKAR radio and TV at 7 p.m. Friday in 108B Wells Hall.

"Footlight Parade," made in 1933, and "Gold Diggers of 1933" will be shown by People for Public Broadcasting to raise money for the WKAR stations.

Admission to the program is $1, but Public Broadcasting Service subscribers are invited to a free showing on Saturday.

Trudeau's plank—budget that ousted him

FROM WIRE SERVICES

OTTAWA — Canadians are going to the polls July 8, and Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau said Thursday one of the main campaign weapons of his Liberal party will be the same budget that brought down his minority government.

Trudeau lost a vote of confidence on the budget Monday and was forced to seek new elections. His economic proposals were billed by the government as hitting the corporations — "the big guys" — while helping low-income earners and others less able to defend themselves against inflation.

College dean quits, cites health reasons

Kullervo Louhi, the dean of MSU's College of Business and the Graduate School of Business Administration announced his resignation Thursday.

Louhi, who has been dean for five years, is stepping down from his post because of ill health. The resignation will not be effective until July 1.

Provost John Cantlon said, "Dean Louhi has served the College of Business effectively and faithfully, and we all regret that the condition of his health has necessitated his leaving the deanship."

For the past few days, Louhi has been undergoing tests at a Cleveland Clinic but will return within a week to complete his final two months at MSU.

Louhi will be replaced by an acting dean in about two weeks but is expected to retain his affiliation with the college in the fall. Presently, his plans are uncertain.

Each of the 13.3 million Canadians who will be eligible to cast ballots has already been touched in some way by rising prices for food, clothing, shelter and energy.

Inflation was 9.1 per cent in 1973 and is running this year at more than 10 per cent, the highest level since the Korean War.

Inflation plagued the Liberal government almost from its beginning on Oct. 30, 1972. It was the issue the opposition used to hound the government and a stated major factor in the New Democratic party decision to withdraw its critical support from Trudeau on Wednesday on the issue of the national budget.

Foreign policy is not expected to be a major issue in the election. Spokesmen for all parties have expressed concern about foreign ownership of major segments of Canadian industry and business, much of it controlled in the United States. Differences are mainly a matter of degree.

The election will spotlight four politically seasoned leaders, each of whom may be running in his last campaign.

For Trudeau, 54, the election tests anew both his government's policies and his personal popularity, which declined sharply in the 1972 campaign from the heights of 1968.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, 60, risks his political fortune in his third attempt to oust a Liberal government.

David Lewis, whose Democrats precipitated the election, needs more seats to become an alternative to the two major parties. He is 64 and is in his second campaign.

The fourth leader, 56-year-old Real Caouette, is faced with expanding the base of his Social Credit party beyond Quebec, where it met sharp reverses provincially last October.

Trudeau's government had survived 19 no-confidence votes in the 1½ years preceding Wednesday's vote, usually with the help of the left-leaning New Democratic party (NDP). The latest no-confidence vote carried because the NDP — which held the balance of power in the 29th parliament — decided to join the main opposition Conservatives in attacking the administration's budget.

"We think it is a very good budget," Trudeau said. "We're going to campaign on it."

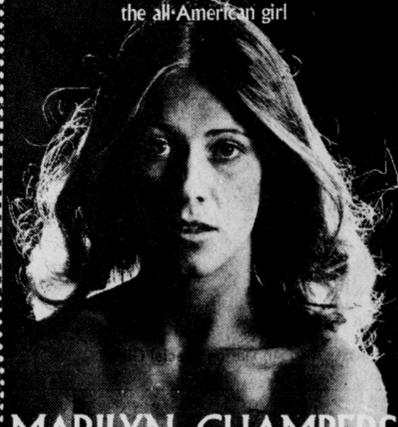

The 54-year-old prime minister said he will travel extensively to defend his government's record and its handling of the economy. "I intend to fight a vigorous campaign, a tough campaign, not a violent campaign," he pledged.

Recent sampling of public opinion has been encouraging to Trudeau. According to one Gallup Poll, Trudeau was rated twice as popular as Stanfield of the Progressive Conservatives, Trudeau's chief rival for the prime ministership.

But Stanfield predicted victory for his party. "I feel we have an excellent chance of achieving a majority," he said.

By FLORA LEWIS
New York Times

PARIS — The voters affirmed what the pollsters foresaw: Gaullist rule of France is over. It remains to be seen what stigmas are left, but the spirit gone and gradually the policies are likely to change. The question for France is "left or right?" — the historic division of this troubled society. Gaullism blurred that underlying issue, gathering people from all classes into a broad political spectrum.

Returns from the election Sunday show that the mix has fallen apart and Frenchmen are moving back to traditional positions.

Political analysts find the two major blocs, left and right, more nearly balanced than ever before in postwar France, but the right still seems to have an edge of 4 to 5 per cent. The odds then slightly favor Valéry Giscard d'Estaing's campaign to form a conservative coalition over the effort by the Socialist leader, Francois Mitterand, to bring the left to power.

Mitterand, with 43.36 per

cent of the vote, drew almost two percentage points fewer votes from the United left than its component parties drew separately in legislative elections last year. This was apparently due to defections by right-wing Socialists who could not stomach his promise to bring Communists into government.

Regardless of whether Giscard or Mitterand becomes the third president of France's Fifth Republic in the runoff election May 19, the strange tacit alliance between Gaullists and Communists domestically and between Paris and Moscow internationally has been broken.

The base of Gaullism was De Gaulle's ability to transcend traditional divisions and polarize France between his followers and the Communists. This provided a certain mutual reinforcement.

It maintained the Gaullists in power as long as the majority of Frenchmen saw no credible alternative but the Communists and assured support from the left for Gaullist foreign policy.

For the Communists Gaullism supplied anti-Americanism and a brake on European unity that suited their international views, and it stifled the center and moderate left. Reflecting this, Moscow showed its sympathy for the Gaullist candidate, Jacques Chaban-Delmas, in the first-round election and its disappointment at his rousing defeat.

It is conceivable that the disappearance of the Gaullists as a major force will eventually weaken their counterpart, the Communists, and restore the old center-left alliance, but that would take gradual evolution.

Timber wolves

NEW YORK (AP) — The often maligned timber wolf will be reestablished in the Huron Mountain area of northern Michigan if a conservationist project works out.

Close contest seen in governor's race

State GOP chairman William McLaughlin predicted Wednesday that this year's gubernatorial race will be close, but not necessarily because of the impact of Watergate on the Republican party.

"I think any time a Republican runs statewide in Michigan, it's a close race," McLaughlin said in an interview following a speech to the Associated Builders and Contractors.

"It was close when Watergate wasn't around in 1970," he said in a reference to the slim victory of Gov. William G. Milliken over Democratic challenger Sander Levin four years ago.

McLaughlin said any Democratic candidate — and Levin appears the most likely nominee at this point — would be unwise to attempt to taint Milliken with Watergate.

"It's not a salable item," McLaughlin said. "Number one, he's always been outspoken on the subject of Watergate. Number two, it's not salable to say that he condones or would be any part of anything like Watergate because it is not in the make-up of a Bill Milliken to act that way."

McLaughlin said that because of Watergate and other factors he expects more widespread ticket splitting this year than in years past. But he said this could benefit Republicans as "we're going to have the better candidates."

Stickmen end season

MSU's lacrosse team will aim for its best season ever as a varsity sport at Dennison College in Granville, Ohio, Saturday. The Spartans will close out their 1974 season with hopes of posting their best record since becoming a varsity sport in 1970. Since then, State's best record has been a 5-8 mark in 1972. The squad's current record is 5-6.

Men netters on the road

The MSU men's tennis team will be trying to improve their 3-4 Big Ten record as they journey to Ohio State today and Indiana Saturday for conference dual matches.

Coach Stan Drobac's netters have had an up-and-down Big Ten season so far. They have beaten Purdue, Northwestern and Wisconsin and have dropped conference meets to Michigan, Iowa, Minnesota and Illinois.

The Spartans overall season record is now 6-5 after beating Wayne State, 9-0, in a nonconference meet Tuesday.

Women netters at home

MSU's women's tennis team will be in home action this weekend as it faces Kalamazoo College today and Principia College on Saturday.

Today's match will begin at 4 p.m. on the varsity tennis courts. MSU will face Principia College at 11 a.m. There is no admission charge.

The Spartans are currently 2-1 in dual meet competition and have taken their second consecutive Big Ten championship earlier this year.

Women golfers at Ferris

MSU's women's golf team will travel to Ferris State College today with hopes of maintaining its spotless record.

The Spartans are currently 3-0 and have won two Midwest Regional titles and the Big Ten championship.

"These last meets are very important to the girls," coach Mary Fossum said. "Their performances will help to determine who will go to the nationals."

Softball team faces Lansing

The women's softball team will play the Lansing Lassies in a doubleheader at 6 p.m. Saturday at Ranney Park in Lansing.

This will end the Spartan's season competition. The games are designed to give the MSU squad practice playing under the lights for the College World Series. The Spartans will be traveling to Omaha, Neb., May 16-19 for the series.

Women's track team at WMU

MSU's women's track team will end its season competition Saturday as it travels to Kalamazoo to face Western Michigan University.

The Spartans will be trying to improve its 5-1 record. MSU has defeated the Broncos once this season already. MSU will be traveling to Denton, Tex., May 17-18 for the intercollegiate track championships.

IN LAST HOME LEAGUE GAMES

Batsmen confront OSU, Indiana

By JACK WALKDEN
State News Sports Writer

With its Big Ten title hopes all but dashed, MSU's baseball team closes out its home league season with a pair of doubleheaders over the weekend.

The Spartans will entertain Ohio State today and Indiana Saturday with both twin bills starting at 1 p.m.

Coach Danny Litwhiler's team lost any hope of winning the title by losing a pair of one-run games to Michigan last weekend. MSU is now 4-6 in the Big Ten and 18-14-1 overall.

Even though the Spartans' title hopes have ended, Litwhiler believes a great deal can still be accomplished this season.

"We're going to win as many as we can the rest of the season and at the same time look to next year," Litwhiler said. "I'd like to try and finish in the first division, but I also want to look at what's coming back next season."

The Spartan pitching staff was dealt a crippling blow Wednesday when righthanded ace Duane Bickel was advised not to throw for a month.

Bickel's injury is described as inflammation of the bone in his pitching forearm and will cause him to miss the remainder of the season.

To replace Bickel, MSU has called righthander Todd Hubert up from the junior varsity team. Hubert, a freshman, began the season with the Spartans, but developed a sore arm during the team's trip to Florida.

Freshman Rick Moore (5-1) and sophomore George Mahan (1-2) will pitch against the Buckeyes today. Moore is second in the Big Ten with a 1.63 earned run average entering this weekend's action.

Mahan has earned the start after two fine relief performances. The Davison righthander pitched four scoreless innings against Central Michigan April 30 before losing the game on an eighth inning home run. He followed that up with five and two-thirds innings of no run, no hit ball against the University of Michigan Monday.

The Buckeyes will counter with a pair of righthanders, freshman Paul Semall (3-3) and sophomore Andy Stiegemeier (2-1). MSU faced the Buckeyes twice during the Florida trip and won both games.

In Indiana, the Spartans will face the Big Ten's top hitting team. The Hoosiers are batting .327 as a team in 12 league contests.

Litwhiler plans to use freshman Jim Knivila (4-3) and senior Steve Vander Laan (2-2) against the Hoosiers.

MSU's trackmen get final tune-up during alumni run slated Saturday

MSU's men's track team will get its final tune-up before the Big Ten outdoor championships when it takes on a team of former Spartan track stars in a dual meet slated for 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the Ralph Young Track.

The Spartans were initially scheduled to compete against Big Ten opponent Northwestern on Saturday, but because of spiraling transportation costs the meet was canceled. The Northwestern meet would have been the tracksters' only home dual contest of the outdoor season.

"I believe that the alumni meet will be an adequate substitute for the Northwestern meet and it promises to be a very competitive affair," MSU Track Coach Fran Dittrich said. "We have some good former Spartan track runners who still live in this area and are really enthusiastic about this meet."

Leading the alumni entourage will be Bob Steele, outstanding 440-yard hurdles competitor; Del Gregory, standout long jumper and triple jumper; and Bill Wehrwein, former Spartan middle distance great. MSU will send its entire squad against the alumni unit. "The meet will be especially helpful in the middle distances because the alumni have some good performers in that area," Dittrich said.

Dittrich's squad has been impressive thus far this season, but everything will be on the line next weekend in Ann Arbor where the Big Ten outdoor championships will be staged.

The two-day meet (May 17-18) will see the Indiana Hoosiers rated as the favorites with Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and MSU given outside shots at the title.

Coaches fired in financial cut

By JACK WALKDEN
State News Sports Writer
MSU soccer coach Payton Fuller and lacrosse coach Fred Hartman have been fired for financial reasons, the State News learned Thursday.

MSU Athletic Director Burt Smith confirmed the coaching changes, but said official word would not be released until Monday.

Smith added that the reason for the dismissals was the current athletic money pinch and had nothing whatsoever to do with the coaches themselves.

"Payton has done a good job for us and the same goes for Hartman," Smith said.

Fuller, only the second coach in Spartan soccer history, posted a 20-8-9 record in four years at the helm and never had a losing season.

Hartman is in his first season as lacrosse coach and has led the Spartans to their best season in history this year (5-6). The stickmen have one game remaining.

Asst. football coach Ed Rutherford will be named to replace Fuller as soccer coach.

Rutherford's place on the football coaching staff will be taken by Ron Chismar, a former asst. football coach at Bowling Green State University who was added to the Spartan staff last Friday. Head football coach Denny Stolz said Chismar has been given the title of assistant line coach.

"We hired a new football coach (Chismar) because of our commitment to Denny (Stolz) to hire nine coaches for the team," Smith said.

Smith added that a replacement for Hartman is unknown at this time.

"It will depend on who we get in the physical education department next year, and if there is anyone with lacrosse experience," Smith said.

The decision to change from football to soccer wasn't an easy one for Rutherford to make because he had 25 years of gridiron coaching experience.

"I've been in football a long time," Rutherford said. "When they changed head coaches, my job changed too. I was doing less actual coaching in the last two years. This helped make my decision for me."

Though he has little game experience, Rutherford has taught a team game class (which includes soccer as one of the games) at MSU since 1965.

Rutherford hopes to rely on help from former MSU soccer coach Gene Kenney as he gains experience.

"I'm not so naive that I think I can coach a sport that I've never coached competitively before without experienced outside help," he said.

Though Smith gives financial problems as the reason for the dismissals, Fuller believes there is more to the situation than meets the eye.

"There is a possibility that they are trying to phase out some of the nonrevenue sports," Fuller said. "They won't say that, though. They'll continue to give the reasons of financial problems."

When asked about Fuller's comment, Smith said, "There is no truth to the rumor that soccer and lacrosse are being phased out. We will continue to support them as long as financing is available."

Former Spartan goalie Dave Goldman also disagreed with Smith.

"I expect Smith to totally cut out some of the smaller sports like soccer within two years," Goldman said. "Smith tries to please the public by continuing to say, 'It won't happen! It won't happen!' but I know it will even though he keeps denying it."

Fuller was resentful of the way he was informed of the decision.

"To me it was a very bad situation," he said. "They told Rutherford about the decision two weeks before they told me. In fact, they never did tell me. I finally had to call Burt to verify it."

Hartman hadn't been notified as of Thursday afternoon.

"I haven't heard anything about any decision as of yet," he said. "If there is anything to the rumor, I haven't been told."

Play begins today at Spartan tourney

Weather permitting, play began early this morning in the ninth annual Spartan Invitational golf tournament at MSU's Forest Akers course.

The final round of action in the 36-hole tournament is slated to get underway at 8 a.m. Saturday with awards to be presented at the conclusion of the day's action. Play should end at approximately 6:30 p.m. today and Saturday.

A total of 32 teams representing 31 universities and colleges make up the field of the largest collegiate tourney in the Midwest.

MSU is fielding two teams. The Green (first team) consists of Brad Hyland, Bill Bradford, Bill Marx, Steve Broadwell, Steve Cole and Scott Malaney.

The White squad (second team) includes Gary Domagalski, Dan Welch, Chris Moore, Rick Sessions, Dave Chalmers and one other player who was determined in a playoff late Thursday.

A special driving contest is set for 5:30 p.m. today with one player from each team competing for prizes for the longest drive in the fairway and the longest combined three drives in the fairway.

WKAR - TV, Channel 23, will broadcast the final action of the tournament beginning at 5 p.m. Saturday.

The 32 teams are divided into two divisions, a University and a College division. MSU coach Bruce Fossum said earlier this week he believes MSU, defending champ Ohio State, Illinois State and Ball State are the University favorites.

Fossum sees defending College champ Ashland (Ohio), Western Illinois and Eastern Illinois as the teams to beat in that division.

The tournament, started out as an event for Michigan schools and has grown vastly since then.

Apartment managers offer extras including birthday cakes, bonuses

By MARY ANNE FLOOD
State News Staff Writer

Apartment life does not go without its rewards. Some tenants get free cake, others, free bread.

At various student-populated apartment complexes in East Lansing the management provides tenants with free birthday cakes or $25

Buried mail

BRADFORD, England (AP) — A Bradford postman decided to save time on his morning rounds by burying part of the mail in his back garden, a magistrate's court was told.

to any tenant who finds someone to live in the complex for the next year.

Every day some Cedar Village tenant receives a knock on his or her door and is presented with birthday greetings from the management — a Bill Knapp's chocolate cake with a question mark candle holder and one lone candle.

Cedar Village has been saying happy birthday to its tenants for over two years now and over 1,000 times a year, said manager Clare Tamblin. "We deliver at least one cake every day and sometimes as many as six," Tamblin said.

Cedar Village tenants aren't the only ones in town whose management offers something extra.

The tenants of Reaume Dodds - managed apartment complexes — Americana, Capitol Villa, Cedar View, Eden Roc, Riverside East and Norwood Apartments — can earn money by supplying tenants for the complexes for the year following their leasing period.

Any tenant who either decides to stay another year or who finds another group of tenants to rent for the following year receives $25 for each apartment he is responsible for filling.

"Some kids make over $100 in one shot," said an American apartments secretary. "But we are always filled up the first day we start leasing for the next year."

Each year hundreds of tenants take the management up on their $25 offer, said Reaume Dodds co-investor Nat Hammond.

The apartments need less advertising because of the $25 policy, and the tenants who win $25, even if they just decide to stay on a year, surely enjoy the extra cash.

State unit backs open meeting bill

The State Board of Education today went on record in support of legislation requiring all governmental boards to hold open meetings and to allow girls to compete with boys for positions on school baseball teams.

The two proposals were among more than a dozen bills the state board voted to support at its regular monthly meeting.

The open meetings bill would set rigid requirements for meetings held by governmental boards, including local and intermediate school boards.

It would require that all decision-making meetings be public, that adequate public notice be given of all meetings and that minutes be available for review by the public.

Baseball would be added to the list of noncontact interscholastic sports activities under a bill introduced by Rep. Gary Owen, D-Ypsilanti.

In 1972, the legislature amended the Michigan School Code to permit girls to participate in all noncontact interscholastic athletic activities but baseball has been considered a contact sport by the Michigan High School Athletic Assn.

Other bills endorsed by the board include measures to offer instruction in the contributions of racial, ethnic and religious minorities and women and to expand Michigan's vocational education area center program.

Americans lured

to fish consumption

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are eating more fish than at any time since the federal government began keeping records in 1909, the Commerce Dept. said Tuesday.

Per capita consumption of seafood in the United States last year was 12.6 pounds, an increase of three-tenths of a pound over 1972.

League gives men voting rights

By DENI MARTIN
State News Staff Writer

A national women's organization has taken its support of the Equal Rights Amendment literally by giving men a more active role in league decisions.

At its national convention in San Francisco Tuesday the League of Women Voters voted to give men full membership and voting rights.

Though men have been allowed to join the League of Women Voters as nonvoting associate members in the past, this is the first time they will be able to vote on league issues.

Local reaction to the national convention's decision to amend the league's bylaws has been favorable. Denise Lewis, a Meridian Township resident who works at the Michigan chapter of the League of Women Voters in Lansing, said that "there was widespread support from local leagues in favor of the amendment."

"We have always had male members," Lewis said. "This is a democratic organization. We're not just a women's group. We're a citizen oriented organization that happens to be composed of women."

Lewis said there are at least 12 male members currently in the state chapter of the league including ex-Michigan governor George Romney. She said they will be given full membership rights soon.

She also said the league would welcome any new male members that would like to join the organization.

Virginia Delano, one of league's local board members, said she was delighted with the decision.

Delano said the resolution was passed in part as a moral principle. "We wouldn't be a democratic organization if we excluded men from the league," she said.

The League of Women Voters, originally started as part of the woman's suffrage movement in 1920, has been one of the staunchest supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment.

In a pamphlet issued to members at the national convention, the Male Suffrage Caucus of the league stated "the League of Women Voters cannot continue to demand passage of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution and not give the vote to men."

Though the amendment to give men equal rights in the league passed by the required 2-1 margin, some league members are worried that the league may have to change its name to accommodate the new amendment. But Lucy Benson, the league's national president, indicated Tuesday that a name change would not be necessary at this time.

Group to view ideas for facilities for proposed intramural building

By JO GALLI
and STAN STEIN

Suggestions on the types of facilities to be included in a proposed new intramural building will be reviewed by members of the Intramural Advisory Committee in an open meeting with an ASMSU study committee at 10 a.m. today, 215 Men's Intramural Bldg.

The Intramural Advisory Committee of faculty and students, established last December, is researching what should be included in a possible East Complex intramural facility and where funding could be obtained.

The ASMSU special funding committee was formally initiated in April to gather more information on the proposed facility.

ASMSU President Tim Cain explained that once the special funding committee reports its findings May 19, the resolution will go to the ASMSU Policy Committee for further analysis.

"If we should pass the resolution, it would be sent to the board of trustees," said Cain. "It would certainly jump this up the building priorities list."

"They (advisory committee) will recommend the essential activity areas which should be included in the proposed building relative to the funds we eventually receive," said Frank Beeman, director of intramural programs and advisory committee member.

Reactions by members of the special funding committee show student support of the proposed facility.

"A sampling of Holmes Hall students showed that they were very supportive and wanted the facility to be co-ed," said ASMSU committee member Paul King, who is assigned to research areas of student support.

King also reported that an unofficial sampling of Akers Hall yielded the same results, and added that "there was little negative reaction, if any."

Funding committee member Gregory Corona, who is also head of the Policy Committee and the Interfraternity Council, said, "It will definitely be passed because we see the need for it and hope the University considers it a top priority."

"The action we generate will hopefully get the intramural building up on the priority list," he concluded.

MSU working for related elective courses

By LARRY MORGAN
State News Staff Writer

Some day the bevy of unrelated electives a student takes throughout his college career may be as out of date as a 1957 Edsel.

But a new idea will soon be incorporated into required electives — courses that relate to each other.

Thematic programs will be groups of courses put together by faculty members with an interest in an area of study not covered by existing departments or colleges as a major or minor.

A set of multidisciplinary courses, such as African studies, women's studies and Mexican - American studies, must go through appropriate administration channels for approval as a thematic program.

The approval process goes from department chairmen and deans to the assistant provost for undergraduate education, the University Curriculum Committee and the Academic Council. Dorothy Arata, asst. provost for undergraduate education, did not give a definite date when such programs would appear in the course catalog, but did say it would not be until after fall 1974.

Whether any thematic programs are offered by winter term depends on when the administrators approve them.

Arata emphasized that these are not to be considered as majors or minors, but only as supplements or complements to a student's major.

"We want to avoid anyone — students or faculty — viewing thematic programs as competition to a major," Arata said. "This is a way by which courses in a discipline can be drawn together in a theme."

She said the benefits of such an arrangement are three fold:

"By being planned programs by faculty with an interest in a particular theme, the package (of courses) will relate to each other."

"After a program is approved, it will be listed in a separate part of the course catalog with references back to each individual department."

She added that this listing will be an assistance to the University's advisers.

"Upon completion of a program, the student's transcript will be noted, and this will serve as an official record that the student took a program beyond the requirements of his major," Arata said.

She added that students must be aware that, even though they enroll in a thematic program, they will not be guaranteed a space in each one of the courses in that package as they are in their majors.

They will be just as susceptible to being bumped out by an unsympathetic computer as they would in any other course, Arata said.

However, by design of the programs, a student does not have to take each course in sequence, and he can pick up any missed courses in a later term.

Even so, Arata said that students planning to enroll in a thematic program must plan their schedules in advance to take this into consideration.

The programs have also been limited to a maximum of 10 credits to make them available to as many students as possible regardless of major.

Every four years, each thematic program will undergo a review by the University Curriculum Committee in cooperation with the Office of Institutional Research and the assistant provost for undergraduate education.

This review will include a faculty evaluation of the program, the number of students completing the programs and a judgment of the current compliance of the program with existing policies.

On the basis of this review the curriculum committee will recommend continuance, modification or withdrawal of the program. It can also recommend that a program be submitted for approval as an academic major.

Arata said that though a thematic program can eventually become a major, it is not primarily intended for that purpose.
