Nixon cheered by Oklahomans' support

FROM WIRE SERVICES

VASHINGTON - After the recent flurry of Republican calls his resignation, President Nixon received an uplift in spirit urday night during a trip to Oklahoma.

in that visit, Nixon vowed he would "never give up" dispite geoning clamor for his resignation, and he was received with ral warmth by large crowds at both Vance Air Force Base at Oklahoma State University.

To shouts of "Hang in there," and "We're with you," Nixon ponded: "Believe me, that does your heart good."

The message that Nixon is determined to stay on the job also was borne by Vice President Gerald R. Ford and the President's daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, in public appearances

She declared that her father would fight impeachment all the way through a Senate trial, even if "only one senator believed in him." Ford told Republican gatherings in Texas that Nixon should stay in office and asserted that the nation is "a lot better off than if we had George McGovern."

Speaking at a $100 a plate GOP dinner at a Dallas - Fort Worth Airport hotel before flying back to Washington, Ford said, "I don't think the President should resign.

"He believes he's innocent of any impeachable offense," Ford told the group. "I've read the transcripts. I concede and admit there's some things in there that I don't like. I don't think the transcripts confer sainthood on anybody.

"But when you add up the good and the bad, the good far outweighs the bad, particularly when you look at his achievements and accomplishments. We are fortunate to have President Nixon as President of the United States. We are a lot better off than if we had George McGovern."

The House Judiciary Committee this week will hear portions of 18 White House tape recordings as sessions in the panel's impeachment investigation of President Nixon resume.

Once the hearings reconvene Tuesday morning, the inpeachment panel is expected to subpena additional tapes of conversations between Nixon and members of his administration relating to possible involvement of the President in the Watergate Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D - N.J., has indicated that the panel will focus its demands for White House evidence on specific conversations, rather than press a broad April 19 request for some 75 Watergate tapes.

This week's presentation of evidence was expected to touch on the Watergate break - in and White House involvement in the initial criminal investigation of the operation.

The hearings probably will be opened to the public sometime next week, with live television coverage planned by the major

Opinions from state officials on the possible resignation or impeachment of the President are mixed.

Michigan Republican Party Chairman William F. McLaughlin said Saturday he does not agree with calls by leading Republicans for President Nixon's resignation.

"I still don't believe resignation is the answer," McLaughlin said in an interview.

The GOP chairman said he has not read the entire White House transcripts, but the excerpts he has read in the newspapers left him "very sad."

Gov. Milliken Friday said the transcripts of President Nixon reveal a "frightening model of political cynicism and pragmatism" and said he was "anything but reassured" by them. "I fail to find in those transcripts the overwhelming proof of the president's innocence that we were promised," said the Republican governor, who has called for the impeachment proceedings to move

Milliken said earlier he feels impeachment pressure against President Nixon will increase due to the information publicized in the recently released transcripts of White House Tapes. Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R - Mich., Friday night said he believes the Nixon transcripts made a "convincing case" that the President was not involved in the original Watergate break in but added, "I'm not going to defend the transcripts beyond that point."

Hearing about layoffs ome said. The Vatican and Italian bishops have rongly urged repeal, which one priest at local store delayed

By EDWARD S. WARNER State News Staff Writer

A hearing to determine if two former student employes of Crossroads Imports - an East Lansing specialty shop - were unjustly laid off was postponed Thursday after five hours of testimony from witnesses who claimed the store's management had laid off the students to prevent creation of a union.

Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC) hearing examiner Shlomo Sperka, acting on a motion by the employer's attorney, granted the postponement in order to decide if the charges made by the two former employes have been supported by the testimony presented Thursday. Sperka said the hearing would reconvene in about two weeks if he determines that there is reason to continue.

The two former employes, Connie Askew and Beth Roberts, both MSU students, charge they were laid off Feb. 6 along with four other Crossroads sales clerks after the store's management discovered they were organizing for membership in the Retail Clerks Assn., an internationl union.

If the hearing is reconvened and a ruling is made in their favor, both Askew and Roberts would be eligible for full back pay and a return to the jobs they lost in the layoffs. The store's owner, John Belaski, claims the six were laid off for economic reasons, since the store was cutting back its hours. He said that plans to make the layoffs had been in the offing long before he learned of his employes' attempt to Askew's testimony, though, disputed Belaski's stand. She charged that she was given no advance notice of the layoff, and that her 10 - month seniority was not considered, since others with less time on the job were still retained.

Askew also contended that several new employes were hired after the layoffs and that her work performance had been highly respected by the management.

A letter of recommendation, given to Askew after her layoff by Crossroads' general manager Lisa Pollard, was introduced as evidence.

Under cross - examination, Askew admitted that after her layoff she had turned down a job as a bicycle mechanic at Crossroads Bicycle Shop, a store also owned by Belaski, and that while most of the Crossroads Imports' employes had signed union authorization cards, there were several who had not.

Askew's co - claimant, Roberts, testified that, like the other five who were laid off, she had signed a union card and met with the union representative. Both sides in the case later stipulated that all of the six who were laid off, including the two claimants, had signed cards indicating their desire for union membership.

Several former Crossroads employes who had been laid off at the same time as Roberts and Askew testified on their behalf. One of them, Siri Cook, said she had been laid off the day after signing the union card and that Belaski had given her severance pay on the condition that she "didn't tell anyone else." Neither Roberts nor Askew had received severance pay,

One employe who was not laid off, Sue Winter, testified that she had informed the store's manager of the efforts to organize a union and that the manager, Carol Lewis, had then left to attend a luncheon meeting with Belaski. When Lewis returned, Winter said, she began giving lay - off notices to the employes involved.

Lewis, however, denied this charge and said that the decision regarding the lay offs had already been made before her discovery of the union organizing.

The MERC hearing was held in Lansing at the State Treasury Building. It had originally been scheduled for a conference room in the MSU Administration Building, but a change of venue was granted at the request of the employer's attorneys.

Like Old Man River, Dr. Zachary Veldhuis - who at 104 is the oldest living graduate of MSU - returns to the campus each spring for the annual reunion of the MSU Alumni Assn. to get a look at the place where he earned a degree in veterinary medicine in 1896.

Despite his age, MSU's elder statesman, who now lives in Hamilton, makes it back each year for some story - swapping, eating and what have - you with other patriarchs, who become eligible for this annual affair when their classes have been graduated for 50 years.

Not surprisingly, the campus has changed in many ways since Veldhuis graduated — one of a class of 50 persons — from a college with a total enrollment of about 250 persons.

In 1896, a year that saw America coming out of the depression of the 1890s and Grover Cleveland in the White House for a second term, the MSU campus was essentially only a little of what is now Circle

Veldhuis enjoys the attention he inevitably gets at such reunions, playing up to photographers and the scores of "youngsters" who ask in awe, "What's your secret?"

Woman killed in weekend storm

A 60 - year - old woman in Hell, Mich., was killed Saturday when her modular - type home was blown down, as high winds, hail and rain battered parts of southern Michigan.

Tornado warnings were issued for a two - hour period in eight counties in southeast and central Michigan and at least two twisters were sighted near Ann Arbor and Jackson.

The Livingston County sheriff's office reported extensive damage to the landscape and said that telephone and power lines were down in the Hell and Pickney areas.

Weather officials said the severe weather, caused by a line of thunderstorms that stretched from Terre Haute, Ind. to Flint, had moved out of the state by 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Most truckers will ignore strike

Ohio truck drivers said-Sunday that while they could not afford another shutdown over high fuel prices, "we sure can't afford to keep running either."

Most drivers surveyed indicated they would ignore a strike call for 12:01 a.m. Monday from Overdrive magazine, one of the militant leaders of earlier shutdowns.

Jim Kirk, a spokesman for the Council of Independent Truckers, said there would be "absolutely no shutdown." The council claims a nationwide membership of 22,000 drivers.

Work survey rates military tops

A survey of 1,435 persons across the country surprisingly shows the military installation with the highest rating on the question of how good a job 15 institutions are doing for the country.

The presidency came out lowest on the survey, which was conducted by the University of Michigan Institution for Social Research in Ann Arbor.

Colleges followed the military, with churches, small businesses, schools, the U.S. Supreme Court, corporations, Congress, state government, judiciary, local governments, labor unions, the federal government, and the presidency finishing the ratings.

The high rating given the military "shocked us," said Willard Rogers of the institute. "It happens that it came out on top but it is quite close to colleges and

Hearst not encouraged by report

Randolph A. Hearst said Sunday he is neither surprised nor encouraged by reports that a bloodhound led agents to a blindford bearing the scent of his kidnaped daughter.

"It is not surprising they found it," said Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner. "I never at any time believed she was taken except against her will."

The FBI had no comment on the report that on May 2 a bloodhound trained to detect the scent of Patricia Hearst led agents to a blindfold fashioned from sponges. Agents had taken the dog into a San Francisco apartment that had been used by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army.

Poll shows rise in pot smokers

According to the latest Gallup poll, the percentage of college students who have smoked marijuana at least once has increased by 50 per cent since 1967.

Fifty -five per cent of the 1,100 students surveyed in January and March said they had tried marijuana, as compared with 51 per cent in 1971, 42 per cent in 1970, 22 per cent in 1969 and 5 per cent in 1967.

The survey also showed that students from relatively affluent families are more likely to have tried the drug than students from less affluent families.

Cancer cell regression reported

Cancer specialists from around the world were told Thursday that there have been 200 documented cases of partial or complete disappearance of cancer through spontaneous regression of cancer cells in the last 70

But scientists attending a conference at the Johns Hopkins Medical Center in Baltimore were told that 655,000 new cases of cancer and 355,000 deaths are anticipated this year in the U.S. alone.

"Despite our own personal fervor and enthusiasm about the remote possibility of spontaneous regression, the public, and particularly our cancer patients, must be protected from the heartbreaking frustration and disappointement of sensational claims but unfulfilled expectations," said Dr. Edward F. Lewison of Johns

Some speakers said the evidence of spontaneous regression without outside interference justifies the hope that scientists can duplicate the process, but they urged cancer patients to continue orthodox treatments.

U.S. policy on Chile protested

More than 100 persons picketed the Federal Building in Detroit Saturday as part of a nationwide protest against the U.S. government's "support" of the military junta in Chile.

Members of the Detroit faction of the U.S. Committee for Justice to Latin American Political Prisoners, which sponsored the protest, were joined by picketers from the United Farm Workers, American Federation of Teachers and various leftist groups.

and lost by a narrow 44,000 votes. Observers said at the time that many voters had difficulty finding any differences between Levin and Milliken, but this time around Levin has the Republican incumbent's more than three years in office to criticize.

And that is exactly what the 42 - year - old Detroit attorney and former state senator did at a forum sponsored by the Michigan Democratic Junior Black Caucus.

Levin sat on the desk in a Union classroom in his shirtsleeves and made his opening pitch attacking Milliken.

Then, as he has been doing across the state in similar small meetings over the past few months, Levin invited the 20 to 30 students to ask him questions and tell what they felt needs to be done.

This gave Levin a chance to elaborate on Michigan's problems and to challenge Milliken to run on his complete record - including the state's high unemployment rate, large rate hikes granted to public utilities and his support for President Nixon's economic programs of "phases, phrases and freezes."

Levin proposed giving tax breaks to businesses which increase their number of employes and said it is time to really reform Michigan's tax

It was this new tone rather than specific concessions that caused the American officials to upgrade chances for a settlement.

COMMENTARY

Brandt's action guide for Nixon

By ANTHONY LEWIS New York Times

When Willy Brandt resigned as Chancellor of the Federal German Republic, he gave the briefest of official explanations: "I accept the political reponsibility for negligence in connection with the Guillaume espionage affair." The his parliamentary next day, for colleagues, he added:

"My resignation is a result of my. . respect for the unwritten rules of democracy, and is to prevent my personal and political integrity from being destroyed."

Distinct themes were woven together there. One was the duty to put system above self. Brandt was saying that West Germany's institutions were more important than any individual, that the country's interest was different from his own. The other was personal, human, a matter of character. There are things that count more in life, Brandt was saying, than holding public office.

When the Federal Republic was born, just 25 years ago this month, it had to be regarded as one of the most frail democratic enterprises. Even if one could have put aside the horrors of the immediate past, there was almost nothing in German history to provide confidence that the self - restraint, the commitment to constitutional order needed to make democracy work, would be found among the republic's politicians.

Today West Germany is at least the equal of any other country in Western Europe in the confidence and stability of its institutions. A major and perhaps decisive reason has been the performance of Brandt.

In Brandt's years as chancellor the country faced severe tests of its constitution and passed them.

His resignation is one more test of the constitution, and in that sense, a last great contribution on his part. The West Germans will pass the test and will show that their fidelity is now to system rather than to person.

Brandt's character was more important than his policy. He brought directness, simplicity and, above all, integrity. An American who was close to him said this week: "I'm convinced that his lasting value, for the Germans and for the rest of us, was his demonstration that there can be moral integrity in politics. That is why he quit as he did with the simple statement that he took responsibility."

Americans are bound to make the comparison with their own embattled President. It is an instructive one.

In all those pages of White House transcripts, there is not a word of concern on Richard Nixon's part for the integrity of our constitutional process - for law, for the courts, for Congress or for the public that is the ultimate sovereign. There is only fear, hatred and contempt for

Instead of a willingness to face responsibility, even responsibility for the modest fault of negligence in controlling subordinates, there is a desperate search for ways to avoid it. Deception, public relations tricks, partisan maneuvers, even crimes are to be preferred to truth.

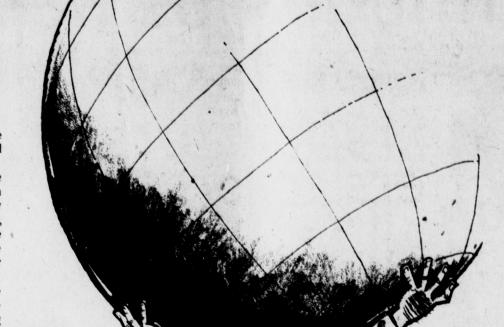

Reading those transcripts, one perceives a man with no discernible commitment to any moral principle, with no interest in life save office and power - an empty human being, almost pathetic in his isolation and insecurity. The very rhetoric is mean, shabby and barren.

In Nixon there is a total confusion of self and state. Like a child, he cannot see beyond the self. He therefore thinks that any attempt to curb him is wrong. His overpowering concern is for survival - his survival in office, at whatever cost to his country and its institutions. He is the

Those who read the transcripts will find it hard to avoid the Wall Street Journal's conclusion that they "reveal a flawed mentality." Even Hugh Scott, the Senate Republican leader, now finds the performance "shabby, disgusting, immoral," and says he is "disturbed that there was not enough showing of moral indignation." One wonders where Scott's moral indignation was when he first read a transcript last January, but better late than never.

What is happening these days is a public and political revulsion at the character of a president. It is precisely this situation that the framers of our Constitution had in mind for impeachment. Madison spoke of a President's "negligence or perfidy" as reason for removing him, or for his "betrayal of trust." Those generalities will underlie the specific crimes considered by the House Judiciary Committee.

But is it really necessary for this great ountry to go through months more of uncertainty and torment? Surely no one accepts any longer Nixon's claim that his survival is necessary for the sake of the presidency. We do not have a parliamentary system, but the Constitution does envisage presidents resigning. By that service Nixon could still hope to earn the respect of history.

Outgoing editor explains speling

"Is no one on your staff literate?" This terse inquiry came in the mail to the State News from J. L. Witton and J. K. Robinson of 208 W. Shall Hall.

The situation which prompted Witton and Robinson to complain is the State News' weird style of spelling. With their letter, they attached clippings of two words from front page headlines, one word being "subpena" and the other word "supenaed."

Obviously, the word which is defined as "a writ commanding a person to appear in court or face punishment" is spelled with a "b."

However, the two women who serve as many callers who phone the State News to insist there must be an "o" in the word. These crackpot phone callers insist that the word is "subpoena." In fact, if you rely on Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, the word will be spelled with an "o." However, the State News is among those newspapers which does not like to waste your valuable reading time throwing around extra vowels.

The State News copy desk, a group of employes who write a headline for each article and who check every word and fact in a news story, has a dictionary which says that it is acceptable, albeit second preference, to spell the word "subpoena" as "subpena."

Actually, the State News has been spelling subpena that way for a long time. but only recently has the word come to be mentioned as often as President Nixon's Words mean quite a bit to journalists right word (s) to convey the same message to all people who glance our way.

The State News lexicon is a unique and personal collection of the right words to communicate certain ideas.

For instance, there is no such thing as a "dormitory" on the MSU campus. The State News calls them "residence halls," even if in conversation everyone calls them "dorms." Of course, the conservative MSU management has a position called manager of "dormitories and food services."

A certain word or phrase conjures up a specific vision in your head. For example, the controversy two years ago over a "cross campus highway" was shrouded in emotional semantics, but might not have received any protest if some tricky politician like Mary Sharp called it a "scenic boulevard."

The peculiarities of spelling, however, are not whimsical at the State News. For example, the extra vowel "e" is dropped from the word "employee" and other such words to conserve trees.

This column is merely offered as an explanation to those mystified readers who are confused by our spelling and to those dedicated citizens who grope relentlessly looking for a State News error.

To put our spelling habit in perspective, however, I should point out that the word "through" is spelled "thru" in the Chicago Tribune, which also spells "although" as "tho" (the State News spells it "though").

EDITORIALS Voters should support proposed handgun ban

Few issues arouse public concern and reaction more than gun control. Attempts to limit the availability of guns result in well organized, mammoth and successful campaigns to defeat the proposals.

The control of handguns which constitute the chief weapons in the burgeoning murder mayhem - is long overdue. Michigan residents should support a proposal to ban the private ownership of firable handguns, except for police, military and licensed security personnel.

Fifty - four per cent of the 18.520 murders committed in the U.S. in 1972 were carried out with handguns. Of the 721 law enforcement officers killed between 1962 and 1971, 73 per cent were killed by handguns.

More startling is the fact that nearly three - fourths of these murders were not crime - related. Thirty- per cent of all murders in 1972 occurred within families or between estranged lovers. Another 41 per cent were caused by disputes between people who knew each other. Criminals were responsible for only 28 per cent of the

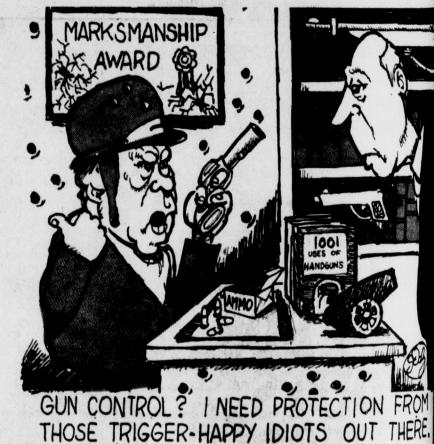

Though polls show a majority of A merican systavor stricter digun controls, the gun lobby has squelched most gun control measures.

The lobby, led by the National Rifle Assn., (NRA), has placed the fear of voter rejection in the heath of lawmakers across the country Federal and state legislators fear the loss of votes due to support of the gun control proposals far more tha they anticipate vote gains.

The gun lobby responds to gu control proposals with a barrage of mail and coordinated actions. Gu lobbyists recently threatened a economic boycott against Michiga YWCAs and church leaders for alleged support of the handgu proposal. Only the most courageon legislators dare face this kind of opposition.

But Michigan voters have the chance to take the heat off the leaders. Citizens United to Sar Lives is now circulating petitions place the handgun ban amendmen on the state ballot in November. 300,000 signatures are obtained by June 1, Michigan voters will be abl to decide the issue themselves.

MSU bus management faulty

By MICHAEL NAEGELE

I have heard a lot of derogatory talk about the bus system at MSU. Some of the problems appear to be:

• Up until about four years ago, when the present management took over, the MSU bus system was a money - making venture. In addition to regular campus service it provided good charter services which helped defray costs as well as bring in extra income for drivers. This source of income is practically nonexistent under present management.

• The present management is going by the theory that cutting back on services saves money and makes it possible to break even.

Prior to present management, the MSU bus system provided more routes (including summer term routes) and more stops on routes. Currently it appears that services are to be curtailed rather than improved; eg., the deletion of the Case -Wilson route spring term.

 Present policy of the bus management office is to sell buses not being used. It seems these buses are the very ones which could be used to improve service on campus and provide charter service off

• $100,000 set aside for the bus system has been used at least in part to build new office buildings. Was this money intended to be spent on buildings?

• One "new" idea has been to require that blind students buy passes, an expense not required by Lansing or similar city bus

• The head of the bus system has been trained in a field other than transportation. This same person has been quoted as stating he would eliminate the bus service on campus.

I, for one, would like to see the MSU bus system improved, built up and continued, rendering a valuable service to students. Currently the system manages to exploit students who have to ride buses to avoid 30 - minute walks to class - and that's about all.

Letter policy

The Opinion Page welcomes all letters. Readers should follow a few rules to insure that as many letters as possible appear in print.

All letters should be typed on 65 - space lines and triple spaced. Letters must be signed and include local address, student, faculty or staff standing and hometown.

Letters should be 25 lines or less and may be edited for conciseness to fit more letters on the page.

No unsigned letters will be accepted.

Sharp note

To the Editor:

I would like to submit the following open letter to East Lansing City Councilwoman Mary Sharp.

It is a generally accepted fact that nothing can be accomplished without effort; once in many lifetimes lives must be sacrificed, but more often, either time or energy or money must be spent in order to bring change. Many Americans died in the revolution that started an international movement towards a popular retaking of governmental powers. History has taught us that action, self - sacrifice in some small measure, is necessary to protect our interests from those who might wish to force their interests upon us.

War is costly; billions of dollars and a vast amount of human potential, both American and foreign, were squandered senselessly in the Vietnamese conflict. As of now, there are no effective controls to keep that kind of waste from occurring again. A small pittance spent here in East Lansing is certainly not too much to pay for insurance against this kind of devastating fiscal loss in the future.

I think your move to substitute a new, ineffective antiwar policy to replace the old, effective one that you were instrumental in having defeated must be regarded as merely another example of the tokenism that seems to have sprung from the post - Watergate political morality. I think that on these measures we ought not bow to corporate interests. Rather, we should continue to make our voices heard, small though they may be, until effective To the Editor: measures are passed.

'Weaponry'

To the Editor:

Pat Morgan seems to think that it is as reasonable to outlaw handguns as it is to prohibit automobiles because there are hit and run drivers or to ban pop and beer bottles because they can be used as weapons (Vox Populi, May 7). What Morgan does not realize is that some items have legitimate and useful functions while others do not. Automobiles are a convenient way of transporting people from one place to another. Bottles do an admirable job of containing beverages. Handguns, however, are useful only for killing people; they have no constructive function.

Morgan states that most people buy handguns for self - protection; this may well be true. But most murder victims are previously acquainted with their killers. and most of them are killed by handguns purchased for "self - protection."

Mr. Nixon, I didn't want you to be elected in 1968, but I was too young to vote so it didn't matter very much. I tried to get you out of office in 1972, but you had fooled most of the people into voting for you and I was outnumbered, and again you held the presidency. Now you have gotten into the milieu I had forseen. There was nothing that could have kept you from your corruption because you have always been an ambitious and evil man.

But now your crimes have been broadcast far and wide and your rationalization that you had a mandate to lead has been negated by all of the polls. Your only ally is the darkness of your soul. Wouldn't it be just as well for you to resign with honor and save taxpayers a bit of money? Let us get back to the business at hand.

Health care

To the Editor: I, like Sue Kaczmarck (May 7 State News), am disgusted and disappointed with the shoddy health care offered at MSU's health center.

Today I saw Dr. Lorch Hatch to have a diet suggested. All diets in magazines and elsewhere are prefaced with the warning to consult a doctor before beginning any

It would seem that the principle behind this warning would be for the doctor to determine what one's personal needs and limitations are.

Hatch, however, didn't take the time to give any type of exam nor did he even ask questions as to the state of health I was in, if I was on any medication, etc.

This exact diet was prescribed by the same doctor to at least three of my friends. All of us get different amounts of exercise and are on completely different schedules. This, it seems to me, would indicate that we should not be eating the exact same things.

The diet itself (no breakfast, one piece of fruit for lunch, eight ounces of protein and a cup of vegetables for dinner and two glasses of milk and two cups of coffee daily), seems to me, at best, impossible. Imagine sticking to this for a month.

It is unfortunate that the only thing the health center has going for it is that it's

The next time I need medical attention will go to qualified and, hopefully, concerned doctors at a facility that treats patients as something more than objects on an assembly line.

Choreography great at Orchesis concert

By DARRYL GRANT State News Reviewer

Over the weekend the Performing Arts Company once again presented the annual Orchesis dance concert.

It was an exciting evening of dance with some exceptionally fine moments

This year's performance placed more emphasis on presenting the individual pieces as part of a total theatrical

One of the ways this was achieved was through the use of the Choreoplay Relay, a series of theatrical vignettes was especially interesting because it was conceptualized by Della Davidson in New York and transmitted by mail to East Lansing. Her ideas were subsequently interpreted into movement by Diane Newman.

The choreoplay consisted of nine street - garbed dancers who performed short skits ranging from searching for a lost contact lense to scratching from a case of the "cooties." These vignettes gave the necessary comic relief for an otherwise straight concert and provided a unifying element.

The first number was "Suite de Percussion" choreographed by Dixie Durr, Orchesis director. This was an interesting piece, full of vitality and what is known in dance as style. Oftentimes, however, this style appeared to take the form of variety show choreography. There were moving triangles of legs and arms dancing across the state, looking exactly like the June Taylor dancers. This detracted greatly from the sophistication that Durr obviously strove to portray.

Following "Suite de Percussion" was "La Fleur," choreographed and danced by Joan Banks, "La Fleur" was an awkward piece that never really worked. The choreography was disjoined and contained vulgar, swaggering movements that were meant to be dancing and was as far from anything flowerlike as chalk is from "The Unanswered Question," choreographed by Heather Sisto Collins, was a severe piece that was beautiful in its stark simplicity. The superb dancing was further enhanced by the use of life sized slides of the dancers projected onto the back - drop. The next work was "A Simple Song," choreographed by Mary Lou Stack. "A Simple Song" was a breathtaking piece that worked on many levels to produce one single dazzling aggregate. Record companies are finally getting on the ball. After years of clamoring from despairing American fans, two companies have taken heed and released the collected works of two of Britain's most historically prominent bands, the Zombies and the Move.

Epic records has pulled together a package called 'Time of the Zombies." The Zombies were responsible for the classic singles "She's Not There," "Tell Her No" and "Time of the Season," all extremely well written compositions that scored quite high on the national charts. No doubt this group has been forgotten by many since

"Time of the Season," its last single, but various members of the band have since resurfaced in successful musical ventures of their own. Keyboard man Rod Argent now leads the highly skilled group bearing his last name,

Colin Blunstone currently is in the midst of a blossoming solo

"Time of the Zombies," a double - record set, bears a wealth of new material that should gladden the hearts of Zombies' fans.

Disc one contains the group's hits mentioned previously, along with several more obscure singles that were never previously released on an album. Two of the highlights include "She Loves the Way They Love Her" and "Smokey Day," both fine - crafted tunes that were later redone by Blunstone on his first solo album, "One Year."

Disc two of "Time of the Zombies" is actually a reissue of the group's last album, "Osyssey and Oracle." That album, released in 1968, was one of the few masterpieces of the '60s and contained "Time of the Season." It is generally acknowledged as an album conceptually years ahead of its

Today it sounds better than ever. For those who currently enjoy Argent or have a nostalgic taste of the '60s, this album is a must.

A&M records has finally gone all out and emptied their vaults of precious material by the Move, recently released as "The Best of the Move," another two - record set.

The Move was a fairly successful British group that received unanimous critical praise in this country, but unfortunately nothing more until recently. After the group's demise in 1971, a semisuccessful single, "Do Ya," was released. This single was to become an integral part of the final Move album "Split Ends."

After the Move disbanded, Recycle 355-1826

the Electric Light Orchestra was formed. This group was comprised of Move members Roy Wood, Jeff Lynne and Bev Bevan. Currently, the Electric Light Orchestra has amassed a respectably large U.S.

Wood, who left the group after its first album's release, has since produced "Boulders," a superb solo effort. Currently he is a member of Wizzard, a group that, ironically, has only seen success in Britain.

"The Best of the Move" is really the best of the early Move. Finally being released in America is the first Move album, which makes up the first disc of this new set. That album was not released in this country due to an unfortunate decision by A&M when the group's earlier singles did little on the charts.

The second disc contains several singles, including the group's first, "Night of Fear." None, with the exception of "Brontosaurus," were previously released in album

Best of the Move," almost all of that group's recorded material is now available in this country - a situation that clearly did not exist at the time of the group's demise. Praises should go to the record company for amending the situation. "The Best of the Move" is a welcome package.

MSU sports said unhurt by equal rights plan loss

By PAM WARD State News Sports Writer

University athletic officials do not think that the failure of the federally proposed regulation calling for equal spending for women's and men's athletics will effect

The regulation would have extended the equal rights provision of Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 to include collegiate athletics. Last week, however, Burton Taylor, Health Education and Welfare Dept.'s Office of Civil Rights planning director, called many of the proposed regulations absurd and said they will have to be completely rewritten.

Nell Jackson, asst. athletic director in charge of women's sports at MSU, is confused as to where HEW directors will go from here but believes that the failure of the proposals will not effect the progress of MSU women's athletics.

"I'm not clear about what HEW means," Jackson said. "I totally eliminated from the Title IX act but only that the proposals must be reworded. I think the University will continue to provide a good women's program here.

"Athletics cannot be forgotten. We must remember that Title IX is a law and schools still have an obligation to provide an equal opportunity for women. The guidelines would have just made it easier for some schools to commit themselves to an adequate women's program."

Title IX was passed in 1972 and prohibited sex discrimination for any educational program or activity receiving federal funds. Since its passage, however, athletic officials have argued that athletics do not fall under its jurisdiction. HEW was drafting the proposals to clear up the controversy. If the proposals would have passed monies would have had to be equally distributed to men's and women's athletic programs, and equipment, facilities, coaching and scholarships would have to be equalized.

Burt Smith, MSU athletic director, said that the failure to pass the regulations could have been largely caused by financial fears.

"I don't know specifically why the proposals have failed," Smith said. "But from what I've heard throughout the country many feared that the proposals would have put a great strain on the present varsity programs.

"The proposals, as they were written, would have required almost a doubling of financial grants and budgets. Right now several universities are struggling to keep their entire program going. Most of the schools feared they couldn't survive under those proposals."

Many feminist leaders have charged that HEW was pressured by men's athletic associations to drop the proposals.

'The athletic associations are not playing by the rules and Weinberger (Secretary of HEW), instead of being a fair referee, has taken sides against equal opportunity for women," Arvonne Fraser, we have the funds.

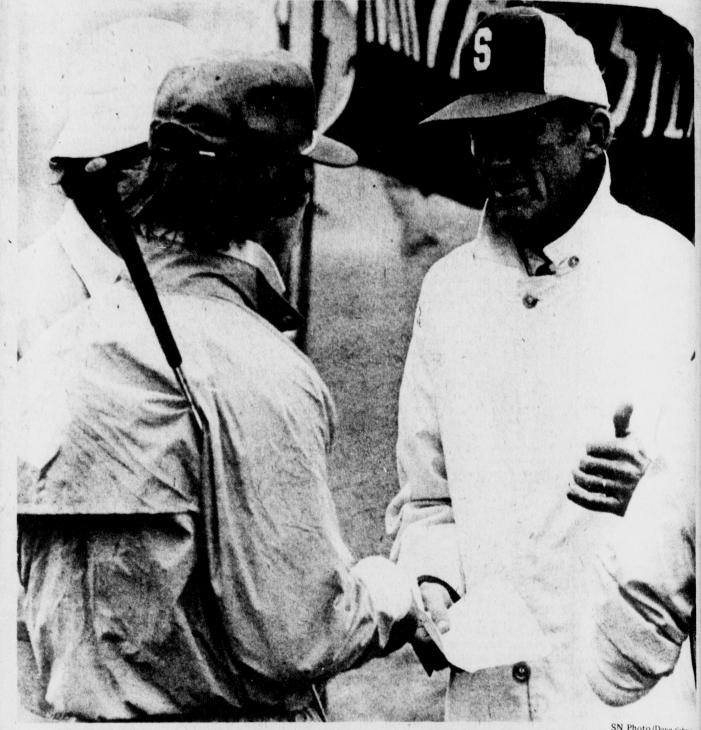

president of the Women's Equity Action League, said. "HEW's action in junking the proposed regulation goes entirely against the intent of Congress when it passed Title IX in 1972."

The NCAA had repeatedly voiced opposition to the proposals saying that they would ruin the present varsity programs.

At the moment no one is sure where athletics stand under the present Title IX law. HEW has gone back to the drawing board to decide what equal opportunity means when it comes to university athletics.

Smith, however, knows where MSU stands and emphasizes that the failure of the regulations will have no effect on MSU's present athletic programs.

"I really can have no reaction to the failure of the proposals. We've always tried to run a total program here and that won't change," Smith explained. "We've got a good start and we're going to do our best to keep it going as long as

Hitting drought plagues batsmen; latest losses drop record to 19-16-1

By JACK WALKDEN State News Sports Writer

The inability to win the close one - run ballgames continued to plague MSU's baseball team over the weekend as the Spartans lost two of three Big Ten conference games with both losses coming by a single run.

Coach Danny Litwhiler's Spartans split a Friday doubleheader with Ohio State, holding on to win the opener, 10 - 7, but dropping the nightcap, 2 - 1. MSU lost a Steve Watson hit a fourth tough 5 - 4 Saturday contest to Indiana and was spared the possibility of losing the twin bill when the second game was rained out with the Spartans trailing, 3 - 0, in the top half of the third inning.

The Spartans have now lost six of their last seven contests to fall to an overall record of 19 - 16 - 1. All six of the defeats have come by one run.

MSU is now 5 - 8 in the Big Ten and is in eighth place. Five of the eight losses have come by a single tally.

The recent slump is reminiscent of last season when MSU lost 12 of its last 18 games. Litwhiler believes there is one major difference, however.

"This year it's been just a clutch," he said. "We've been outhitting the other teams, but not in the clutch. It's been mainly a slump in luck.

"Last year we didn't hit period. We couldn't get a hit whether it was in the clutch or

Probably the person who has been hurt the most by the lack of clutch hitting is sophomore pitcher George Mahan. Mahan held Ohio State to just six hits, but was the 2 - 1 loser when inning home run.

Mahan has given up just three runs in his last 16, innings of work, but doesn't have a victory during that time to show for it.

Rick Moore picked up his sixth win against just one loss in the first game against the Buckeyes. The Spartans built up a 10 -2 lead for Moore, but the southpaw was in constant trouble due to eight walks. Scott Evans finally came on in the sixth inning to save the game for Moore. Senior Steve VanderLaan held Indiana to just six hits, but three were homers in the narrow 5 - 4 defeat.

Dave Wilson and Don Seidholz slammed round - 2 pitch between Mickey trippers to help the Hoosiers to a 3 - 1 lead, but the Spartans rallied for three runs in the sixth to take a one - run margin into the seventh. Bill Simpson's two - run double and pinch hitter Howard Schryer's run scoring single were the key hits in the inning.

Ken St. Pierre's lead - off homer in the seventh tied the game and a series of strange events followed to give the Hoosiers the win.

Barry Burnett reached on an intentionally walked, Dale

Thake sent what appeared to be a routine fly ball to rightfielder Al Weston. Weston slipped in the rain - soaked outfield and the ball fell in front of him for a single, loading the bases. Designated hitter Bill

Armstrong then hit a ground ball to shortstop Terry Hop. Hop's throw drew catcher Dale Frietch away from home plate allowing the winning run to

Bosox belt Hiller again; Tigers nipped in 10th, 4-3

DETROIT (UPI) - Former Tiger Dick McAuliffe doubled home Carl Yastrzemski with two out in the 10th inning Sunday to give the Boston Red Sox a 4 - 3 victory over Detroit and hand John Hiller in his second consecutive defeat.

Yastrzemski singled to right with one out in the 10th and went to third when Rico Petrocelli dumped a single in front of Jim Northrup in right with two out. McAuliffe hit a 1 Stanley and the first base bag to help Bill Lee raise his record to 4 - 3. Lee went 9 2/3 innings with Diego Segui taking over in Boston tied it at 3 - 3 in the eighth when pinch - hitter Dwight Evans singled home Carlton Fisk, who had doubled. Fisk's double drove out starter Lerrin Lagrow and Evans' single came in Hiller's third straight relatively ineffective appearance.

Willie Horton had hit a homer with two men on in 'he first inning to give the Tigers a 3 - 0 lead.

BALL STATE, ASHLAND WIN Rain cuts short MSU Invitational

By STEVE STEIN State News Sports Writer

The disappointment could be read all over Bruce Fossum's

Fossum, MSU's men's golf coach, had just conferred with the Spartan Invitational tournament rules committee and decided to call off play Saturday in the second and final round of the 36

Morning showers had drenched Forest Akers west course and a severe thunderstorm lashed East Lansing about 4:15 p.m. The late afternoon cloudburst sent golfers scurrying for cover and then Fossum announced his decision to call off play about 5 p.m. The postponement decision wiped out all the scores in the second day of competition, so the only scores which officially counted were recorded on Friday. It marked the third straight year where the tournament had perfect weather for its Friday round and bad conditions for the final round, though it was the first time play was cancelled. Ball state won the 17 - team university division competition with a 369 score with MSU's "White" team, the second team, taking the runner - up spot at 372.

Ashland recaptured its college division crown with a 380 score. Western Illinois took second with 386. There were 14 teams competing in that division.

In the individual competition, Tom McParlan of the University of Michigan took medalist honors with a one - under - par 70. In a three - way tie for second were Dan Welch of the Spartans, Craig Carson of Ohio State and Max Minnick of Ball State. The trio shot even par 71.

"This was one of the most disappointing decisions I've ever had to make in golf," Fossum said. "But it was so dangerous out there with that lightning. There was a tornado warning, too."

The lower greens were saturated and even if we were able to wait long enough for the water to go down, it would have ruined

"Everything was going so smoothly. We were all set to have it on color television (WKAR - TV, channel 23 was supposed to broadcast the final action beginning at 5 p.m.) and Burt Smith was going to present the awards.

"To have to get together and make that decision was hard." MSU's Welch said he was at the eighth hold when the storm hit

"I made one mistake on the 17th hole when I knocked one over the green," the 6 - 4, 175 - pound senior from Flushing said "But I put a lot of long putts close and that really helps."

Other scores recorded Friday by MSU's runner - up "White" team included Gary Domagalski's 74, Chris Moore's 75, Risk Session's 76, Dave Chalmers' 76 and Kurt Hassburger's 76.

Leading scorers for the "Green" team were Bill Marx and Stere Cole, who had 73s. Steve Broadwell shot 77, Brad Hyland 78, Bill

Brafford 79 and Scott Malaney 80. "I was very happy for the 'White' team," Fossum said. "It was only right that they won the trophy and played as well as they did. Those guys have been battling the course all year." In the special driving contest Friday, Ted Pease of Indian

State won the prize for the longest drive, a 274 - yard shot off the first tee. Chris Moore of MSU took the prize for the longest three drives in the fairway, with shots of 255, 239 and 256 yards He was the only one of 22 golfers to get all three drives in play.

MSU's lacrosse team took a beating Saturday afternoon from a team of rude hosts at Dennison and if the Spartans never see the Ohio school again, it will be too soon.

The first Celebrity Golf Tournament is set for June 4 at the Country Club of Lansing. Sixty foursomes - 60 celebrities and 180 guests ($100 contributors) - will play in the day - long affair which is the first of its kind ever to be held in Lansing. "It's the greatest thing I've even been involved in," said Tim Staudt, WJIM sports director and celebrity chairman of the tournament. "It's going to be one of the most super events this city has seen in a long time.'

With not all of the celebrities in the fold yet, Staudt has lined up a host of pro athletes and coaches from across the nation, a group of nationally known TV and press people and many other big Karras, Wayne Walker, Greg

Other notables such as Frank Gifford, Bud Wilkinson, Chuck Fairbanks, Joe Falls,

As of late last week, 115 entries had been confirmed out of the 180 guest spots open and vacancies were going fast. A number of women have expressed interest in the tournament. Staudt is putting finishing touches on landing several celebrities from the Ladies Professional Golf Assn.

Larry Ziegler of the men's pro tour will be present. Staudt said over 90 per cent

"It's going to look exactly like a pro tournament," Staudt said. "There will be marshals, scoreboards - the works. The tournament committee has really gone first class."

Portuguese peasants desire peace By HENRY GINIGER New York Times

GLORIA DE RIBATEJO. Portugal - This farming village, where women gossip at the fountain and dogs sleep safely the dirt streets, seems remote from Lisbon though it is only 40 miles away. Yet what the relatively small political class in the capital decides about war and peace or dictatorship and democracy is intruding on a way of life that otherwise has not changed much for centuries.

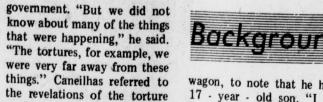

In a dim cafe there is a photograph of a soldier on a wall behind the bar. The inscription says, "Jose Fino Feijao, died in Mozambique Nov. 18, 1969, at the age of 22." Young Feijao, the son of a local landholder, was part of the heavy tribute that the Portuguese peasantry has been paying to a war to hold the country's African empire together.

Thirteen years after the fighting began in Mozambique, Angola and Portuguese Guinea and less than four years after this particular soldier's death, the war - weary armed forces overthrew the long entrenched dictatorship. Since the coup d'etat on April 25, the politicians suddenly released from clandestinity, prison or exile have rushed to claim power in a new, democratic Portugal, and some of them will share it in a provisional government that is scheduled to be announced this

Far from all this maneuvering, villagers in this area seemed perplexed by the visit of a few foreign newsmen, as if unaccustomed to having anyone ask their opinions on anything. Periodically the old regime's political machine would call on them to vote for government candidates, and it was in the rural areas that it rolled up its heaviest majorities against opposition candidates, who confined themselves largely to the relatively sophisticated

Some men and women pleaded their illiteracy today to say "I know nothing." Most said how happy they were at the overthrow as a way out of war and the chronic depression that has gripped the rural areas for so long. Jose Alexandre Fernandes. the 25 - year - old son of a local farmer, is working in a metallurgical plant near here. He spent "30 months and eight days" with an infantry regiment in a remote and uncomfortable area of northern Angola, "defending the local population and defending my own life." He

he said. "The government should initiate negotiations with the liberation movements. Those territories belong to them, not to us."

A friend, Francisco Oliveira Nunes, a 23 - year - old sergeant on active duty with an infantry regiment based in Portugal, agreed about negotiations to end the war. He was less sure about giving up

Nearly 400 latino high school students were urged to pursue top - level positions through higher education Friday at a general assembly in Wilson Hall auditorium.

The assembly, a series of speeches by MSU officials, was the first part of a two - day visitation for latino students. The visitation was sponsored by MSU's Chicano student organization, the Office of Admissions and Scholarships and the Office of Minority Programs.

Special programs and workshops were held in which Chicano, Puerto Rican and Spanish - American students from Michigan high schools were informed of the assistance and careers.

The students who attended the free program stayed in MSU residence halls during Rudy Suarez, asst. professor in the College of Education, addressed the students in Spanish, informing them of the need to aspire to be students. Traditionally, he said, latinos have not attended college and hold many of the lowest ranking positions.

The current enrollment at MSU is approximately 290, about the same level as 1972 and 1973.

Yet Suarez told the group that things are a lot better for them than when he went to college in 1964 at California State University.

Over 40 per cent of this country's energy is used to boil water, Michigan Public Service Commission Chairman William Rosenberg told a MSU class on Energy and Environment Thursday.

Rosenberg, who said he has been steering the utility regulating commission into reviewing the management side of utility problems instead of just checking their ledgers, is hoping to be granted funding from the National Science Foundation in the next few weeks to study the water boiling problem.

Rosenberg, will conduct the study with Dow Chemical Co. and Paul McCracken, a member of Governor Milliken's Special Commission on Rosenberg said that 17 per cent of the nation's energy is used to boil water for industrial steam while an additional 25 to 30 electrical production.

The study would look into the possibility of using the heated water in both industry and electricity production without duplicating the water heating process.

Other management - oriented plans Rosenberg noted include a recently appropriated $350,000 for a utility consultant to examine the commission's efficiency and develop a system to survey utility management effectiveness.

"Michigan utilities, which collect $3 1/2 billion a year, are currently "weak sisters' of problem ridden Con Ed of New York, because the utilities are not making the profits necessary for financial health," Rosenberg said.

The poor planning involved in a Consumer Power plant in Marysville, which ran 287 per cent over cost, led to a 35 per cent rate hike for Consumers Power, Rosenberg noted.

Annual bikathon's goal: funds for Easter Seals

By HARRIET WILKES

State News Staff Writer Roll your wheels for Easter

Bikathon '74 is expected to draw over 2,000 MSU and greater Lansing area bicyclists to the MSU commuter lot Saturday between 9 a.m. and 4

The bikathon, sponsored by the MSU Residence Halls SECRETARY OF STATE Richard H. Austin Friday unveiled a Assn., is an opportunity for participants to raise money which supports Ingham County Easter Seals programs for the physically handicapped.

Bicyclists can choose to complete one of four the project, and assistant established routes which are 3, 11, 19, or 30 miles long. Each route begins and ends at the MSU commuter lot at Mt. Hope Road and Farm Lane.

Before the bikathon begins, bicyclists will solicit pledges. The pledgers will donate however much money they wish for every mile the bicyclist completes. Sponsor sheets are available in all residence hall lobbies, the Union, intramural buildings, and local bike shops. Completed sponsor sheets are due when bicyclists register Saturday at the Commuter

Proceeds are used for direct service programs offering hospital beds, crutches and other orthopedic loan equipment to the physically handicapped. Recreational facilities such as coffeehouses and swimming pools or transportation to doctors' offices and schools are also available for the physically handicapped through the service

The Red Cross Disaster Aid Communications Team will administer first aid and water to bicyclists at each half way point of the bikathon. Jim Magyar, co · ordinator of resident adviser in Bryan Hall advises participants to carry, canteens of water to insure a refreshing trip. Magyar suggests that participants carry plenty of quick - energy foods such as candy bars or sweet snack

Since the bikathon is not a race, bicyclists can pause to relax and picnic along the way. "Cyclists should prepare brown bag lunches of small sandwiches and fruits," Magyar After lunch, pedaling at a leisurely pace, participants will complete their trips. Bicycle repair clinics will be sponsored hourly by Crossroads

A cold rainy day probably discouraged many riders in last year's bikathon. Only 125 riders pedaled to the finish. "This year, dress depending upon Saturday's weather to avoid discouragement," sald Ten - speed bicycles will be awarded to the male and female bicyclist collecting the most pledges. The first 500 cyclists with $10 or more pledge contributions will receive bicycle safety flags.

DETROIT - (UPI) - General Motors and the United Auto Workers (UAW) reached agreement Friday on a new local contract that could end one strike, but still faced deadlines by 10,000 workers at four plants in the next week.

The agreement Friday covered some 1,800 workers at GM's New Departure - Hyatt Bearings Division plant in Sandusky,

The strike against Stroh Brewery Co., which cut off the supply of the state's third best - selling beer for 40 days, also ended Friday when workers ratified a new three - year contract.

A spokesman for Teamsters Locals 181 and 1038 said the Stroh's contract provided wage hike of 61 cents an hour immediately, a 35 cent an hour increase next year and a wage reopener in 1976. He said the settlement also included a 'significant increase" in the company's basic fringe package.

With the settlement at the Sandusky facility, GM and the UAW still have 28 of 145 bargaining units still without local contracts to supplement the national agreement reached last November. The GM car assembly plant in Leeds, Mo., with 3,400 workers, began a strike Friday night.

Speaking of her past experience as a MSU student, Galvin said she can easily relate to the unfulfilled needs of Indian students at MSU.

"When you come from a reservation, as I did, you experience a very lonely feeling. I needed more Indian students to identify with. Indian students will have very little incentive to come to a university like MSU where their cultural ideas are not taught," she said.

George Cornell, chairman of the North American Indian Student Assn., said Galvin can provide moral support to Indian students through informal counseling about personal problems in addition to financial aid and academic counseling.

Galvin's office is located in the office of admissions and scholarships on the second floor of Administration Building. Indian students can call to visit her anytime for counseling.

Cornell added that Galvin has to meet a few people who are active in the state such as the Michigan Inter - Tribal Education Assn. members. The association grants financial aid to Indian students.

After Galvin has been introduced to administrators and adjusted to her new role in the office, she plans to formulate a recruit ment program which will increase the number of North American Indian students at MSU. So far, only 30 to 40 students are enrolled in the University.

"Increasing enrollment will be a long - term effect," Galvin said. "Stressing the importance of education should begin with 9th or 10th grade - level Indian students. Though a rapid increase in enrollment will not come this fall, gradual increase is expected once social, political and religious groups are contacted where parental cooperation is elicited."

Galvin reported that 10 new Indian students will arrive on campus fall term. Cultural unity and survival within the University will be stressed by Galvin, while Indian students are encouraged to further their education.
