Ford plans new method for handling Nixon tapes

by EDDIE THOMAS

LANCASTER (AP) - A "red Monday," a gift from a month-old strike, is in store for the United Mine Workers. This week the four-year-old showdown will go down to victory or defeat.

"I could probably count on at least 20 percent and maybe one-third of the membership voting "yes,"" said Charles Miller, the union's half-time spokesman. "We have over 40,000 delegates coming into the break this week."

Miller said the outcome of the strike is not in doubt. "The strike has been going on for about 200 days. We've won at least three major battles, and I think we'll win this one."

The strike began last November when the UMWA doctors included the right to return to work on a new contract. Since then, the miners have been fighting to get their jobs back.

Miller said the vote will take place on Monday night, with the results announced Tuesday morning. The union has scheduled a news conference for 10 a.m. to announce the results.

Miller also said that the strike is likely to continue until after the election. "If we don't win this time, we'll probably go back to the bargaining table and start over again."

The UMWA is the largest labor union in the United States, with more than 1 million members. It represents miners in coal and non-copper mines nationwide.

The vote is expected to be close, with some members indicating they may vote "no" if the union fails to make significant concessions on the contract.

The UMWA has been negotiating with the coal companies for more than a year, trying to reach an agreement that would allow the miners to return to work. The companies have offered concessions on wages, benefits, and working conditions, but the union has been fighting for more.

The vote will be held in each of the UMWA's 10 districts, with each district determining whether to vote "yes" or "no." The results will be tallied and announced nationwide.

The union has been preparing for the vote, with members rallying support across the country. They have set up rallies in major cities and have been distributing flyers and leaflets to members.

Miller said the union is confident it will win the vote. "We've been fighting for years, and we're not going to give up now. We're going to keep fighting until we win this strike."
Wright State University

Wright State University

Wright State University

Wright State University

Wright State University

Wright State University

Wright State University
UFW supporters send petitions to wine firm

By RALPH FRAMBONDO

San francisco (AP) — A labor group is preparing to file a petition with the U.S. Treasury Department seeking to end a tax exemption for the American Wine and Spirits Institute, a wine industry lobby group.

The petition, filed by the UFW supporters, asks the Treasury Department to revoke the tax exemption for the Institute, which represents the wine industry.

The petition argues that the Institute is a political entity that engages in advocacy and lobbying activities on behalf of the wine industry, and that it should be subject to the same tax laws that apply to other political groups.

The UFW supporters say the Institute has engaged in activities that are harmful to workers in the wine industry, such as opposing workers' rights laws and supporting measures that would weaken workers' protections.

They argue that the Institute's tax exemption violates the constitutional principle that government should not provide special favors to particular industries or individuals.

The petition asks the Treasury Department to review the Institute's tax exemption and to revoke it if the Department finds that the Institute is engaging in advocacy and lobbying activities on behalf of the wine industry.

The Treasury Department has 100 days to respond to the petition.
EDITORIALS

New trustees face test

The MSU Board of Trustees has been invaded with some healthy new blood with the resignations of Democrats John Brouillette and Frank Martinis, whose tenure was met with student disapproval. The three new trustees are expected to be more useful to students and to the state university and will be promptly replaced by the usual parade of stodgy, interminable names...

...and in a few minutes, this editorial section will be finished. I wish to express my gratitude to Sue, and my thanks to John... the people who work with us in the editorial department.
FRANK FOX

Mustang Bar bucks blase

"I was standing in the backroom, trying to find a way to get out when I heard a loud crash. It was then that I realized the building was collapsing. I used the last of my strength to pull myself to safety, but I was too late. The roof caved in and I was stuck. I was so close to a breakthrough..."
Milliken faces legislative battle

GOV. MILLENN

Council now accepting petitions for standing committee seats

The Academic Council is accepting student petitions through Thursday for open seats on the standing committees. Each student - faculty committee includes one male and one female student. A student who wants to be on a committee must sign a petition, which must be signed by at least five students. The following committees are open:

- Admissions: Discusses admissions issues affecting the University, one minority student seat.
- Assessment: Investigates various issues concerning assessments, one minority student seat.
- Auxiliary Enterprises: Uses student services to benefit non-student groups, one minority student seat.
- College of Arts and Sciences: Contributes to minority student needs, one minority student seat.
- Library: Assists in the planning and development of library facilities, one minority student seat.
- Public Safety: Seeks cooperation and coordination with other public safety agencies, one minority student seat.

Petitions are available at the capsule on the second floor of the Student Union. Two seats are open. One must be filled by a minority student.
Beach Boys, Shankar create magic music

Orchestra performance shows mix of best, worst

...and Zappa is Coming!

A Black Musical

Notice: Last Week for Fall Quarter Books

Monday, November 13, we will begin setting up books for winter quarter, 1975. We'll still try to help you find your fall term book, but we suggest you don't delay. Thanks.
Stoltz enjoying big victory

By CHARLES JONSON

Woodly afternoon Spartan center Gary Stolz was in top form as he led all scorers with 24 points in the 91-63 victory over MSU. The 6-foot-10 junior center surpassed his previous high of 23 against Minnesota, when Stolz was dismissed from several first-half minutes.

"I've got a start of game experience on my back that I felt that I could use to my advantage," he said.

"Our fans are much more confident because they have got depth and bearing on the performance of all butch," said Rich. "It doesn't mean that they're going to throw in any given foul and strike them back. But we're still going to try to get the ball out of the way, the way, the continuity - everybody."

"We played well. We played well enough to win the game. We played well enough to win the game. We played well enough to win the game."

"Don't be our pawns," said Rich. "Don't be our pawns."

"We're playing for the big picture. We're playing for the big picture. We're playing for the big picture."

"We're going to go for the big picture. We're going to go for the big picture. We're going to go for the big picture."

"Don't let the officials get in the way. Don't let the officials get in the way. Don't let the officials get in the way."

"Haye and there would be no appeal made to anyone because there can be none. The commissioner is even providing to do anything."
By STEVEN H. WILSON

Innovations in this country by the Arab oil-producing nations should not be found by Americans, a former Assistant Director of the U.S. National Bureau of Standards said at a group of economists and

Media and government representatives attending a conference on multinational industrial relations.

The Americans that favored the Arab investments claimed that they expected the Arabs would build the American oil industry. In addition, the U.S. should import and sell them more crude oil to maintain its market share.

The author also said, “The Arabs have a large amount of money they want to invest in the world. They are interested in the U.S. because of its oil industry and its need for crude oil.”

However, the Americans are also concerned with the Arab investments. They fear that these investments may lead to a decline in the U.S. oil industry and a loss of market share.

The author also noted that the Arabs are interested in the U.S. because of its technological advancements and its oil industry. However, the Americans are also concerned about the impact of Arab investments on their oil market share.

Eight more days to take your FREE pictures

senior pictures

36 Union

353-5292

Arab investments in U.S. beneficial, ex-officio officials say

Mr. William W. Wilson

Innovations in this country by the Arab oil-producing nations should not be found by Americans, a former Assistant Director of the U.S. National Bureau of Standards said at a group of economists and

Media and government representatives attending a conference on multinational industrial relations.

The Americans that favored the Arab investments claimed that they expected the Arabs would build the American oil industry. In addition, the U.S. should import and sell them more crude oil to maintain its market share.

The author also said, “The Arabs have a large amount of money they want to invest in the world. They are interested in the U.S. because of its oil industry and its need for crude oil.”

However, the Americans are also concerned with the Arab investments. They fear that these investments may lead to a decline in the U.S. oil industry and a loss of market share.

The author also noted that the Arabs are interested in the U.S. because of its technological advancements and its oil industry. However, the Americans are also concerned about the impact of Arab investments on their oil market share.

Eight more days to take your FREE pictures

senior pictures

36 Union

353-5292