Ford finds no evidence of Nixon-Saigon bargain

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today told congressional leaders that he was unable to confirm reports out-of-town of a Nixon-Saigon bargain, known as a "secret process." Ford told House and Senate leaders in private meetings that he was unable to confirm the reports. Ford was on Capitol Hill for a meeting with Congress on the Vietnam War. He said he was not aware of any "secret process." Ford denied that a Nixon-Saigon bargain was underway. However, he said he was aware of "something that might be secret." Ford said he would continue to work to resolve the Vietnam War. The reports say that Ford told House and Senate leaders that he was aware of "something that might be secret." Ford says inflation abating in report sent to Congress, seeking oil price reductions.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford and Congress agreed yesterday that inflation is falling and will become "a wage element in the inflationary process" in 1973. Writing 'that we are making good progress toward the goal of bringing down inflation,' the president submitted a quarterly report to the House and Senate. Ford also said wage increases were lagging behind the rate of inflation, and that the government would be monitoring the situation closely.

As the figures were announced Monday, a House committee held a hearing on the U.S. economy, with a special focus on inflation. The panel heard testimony from Secretary of Labor William J.核算，但没有具体数字。

Ford said the report is an indication that inflation is under control and said he will continue to monitor the situation closely.

The president also mentioned the importance of reducing the federal deficit and called for a "settlement of the long-standing issue of inflationary spending." Ford said he would like to see a reduction in the federal budget to help combat inflation.

Groups want orphanages

Three American groups associated with orphanages have agreed to work together to improve the lives of children in orphanages around the world. The groups plan to coordinate their efforts to make sure that the children receive proper care and education.

The agreement was reached during a meeting of the groups in Washington, D.C. The groups are the American Orphanage Association, the Orphanage Welfare Association, and the Orphanage Protection Society.

The groups said they plan to work together to ensure that children in orphanages receive proper medical care, education, and social support. They also plan to work on legislation to improve the lives of children in orphanages.

Pope restores censorship

Pope Paul VI restored the traditional Church censorship Wednesday, but in a new form that allows effective censorship without violating the freedom of speech. The pope ordered all cardinals to his house page to the "observation of the bishops of the Church on books and periodicals, before publication." The new censorship will cover all books published in the United States, as well as foreign books. The censorship is expected to be in effect for at least six months.

U.S.-Soviet trade declines

American trade with the Soviet Union declined in value by 26 per cent last year in the face of rising Soviet trade elsewhere, according to a new report from the United States Department of Commerce. The report said that the decline was due to a number of factors, including a decrease in the volume of trade and a decrease in the price of exports. The report also noted that the U.S. trade deficit with the Soviet Union increased by 30 per cent last year.

The report said that the decline in trade was due to the fact that the Soviet Union is redirecting its trade to other countries.

State News Student Writer

Back in Bob Wilson’s office, the phone was ringing off the hook. Wilson, MSU’s director of physical plant operations, had just finished a meeting with Howard Sheets, chief custodian of the MSU plant. The meeting had started rather late, and Wilson had to rush to a second meeting with a representative of the AFL-CIO. Wilson needed to get started on the report he had promised to the student subcommittee, but he had to wait for Sheets to finish going over the issues that had been discussed.

"When you finally got here, you’d be lucky if you can drive yourself home. It kills you," said Wilson.

"It’s really a tough job," Wilson continued. "We work around the clock, and the work never stops. It’s a 24-hour job, and we have to be ready to work at any time."

"It’s a tough job, but it’s rewarding," Sheets said. "I enjoy the work, and I like being able to help keep the campus running smoothly.

"I’m glad you’re here," Wilson said. "I appreciate your efforts, and I want to thank you for all you do."

"It’s our pleasure," Sheets replied. "We’re here to do the job, and we’re proud to be a part of the MSU family."

The meeting lasted for about an hour, and Wilson and Sheets went over the details of the report he needed. Wilson explained the problems that had arisen and the steps that needed to be taken to fix them. Sheets listened carefully and made notes of the important points.

"We’ll work on it right away," Sheets promised. "We’ll make sure the job is done properly and that the campus is kept clean and tidy."

U.S. war aid wrong

As the grotesque remnants of what was once the Viet Minh crumble into approaching nothingness, official response to the situation has been now removed from any semblance of the use with such

Army Chief of Staff Fred Winder's announce that U.S. aid is no longer is required to save Saigon. Government has several thousand more of "traitors" at the United Nations, an official said, while President Ford and Henry Kissinger have been at Congress for the South's for the political.

All of this is in the face of the abandonment by South Viet-minh troops of two-thirds of the south, leaving hundreds of millions of U.S. capital aid. It is a dishonorable admission that the program must now be carefully and precisely arranged with the enemies of the Vietnamese." the program, because they are forced by a corrupt military regime.

What billions of dollars and thousands of American lives could not salvage simply cannot be swept away by another half billion. We know that it won't stop there either.

The South cannot endure, and perhaps it wasn't meant to. If it doesn't do for the people of the Viet Minh, it may also do for the people of the American properties.

That the South Vietnamese will surrender seems unlikely, though this would be the wildest way to the end the carnage. Then the U.S. government will begin the next warfare in Indo-China and no other than the American properties.

Voluntary funds back in politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — The voluntary political funds which big business and big labor raise from the ranks and then distribute to candidates are once again being revived. And, as in 1972 — now that they are legal again.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce-sponsored conference here last weekend was not overtly political. But many of the top fund raisers who have helped build the political muscle of both major parties through this channel after it was soundly vetoed by Watergate.

A chief fear of the political action committees (PACs) is that they will soon be turned into fat cats that live off their own money. The old days of PACs was an era of raising money from traditionally friendly donors without the expense of direct mail campaigns. Democrats, who traditionally got most of their money from small contributions by labor union, now making a special effort to cultivate new PACs, but they will take any legal money they can get.

That's the largest single source of political new income, the only new thing that's been doing well, and Sidney A. Smith, acting finance director of the Republican National Finance Committee, PACs are not excitingly new, but they have been rewarded by the big corporations since 1972, when Congress was in a moment's panic against TRW. Saving the delinquents of PACs, a PAC is a political action committee, a committee that raises and spends money to influence candidates in one or more states in the 1974 elections.

Under the Common Cause-archived against TRW these voluntary political action funds have been a near-trief.

This must go to the fact that the money that will come to help candidates. That's not true of the PACs, which are organized political parties.

The fund raisers for the PACs are usually the same political parties that raise money for themselves, and the PAC itself is an independent group that raises money for its cause. The PACs are the only source of money for political candidates that does not go through the political parties.

The PACs are not tied to the political parties, but they are not independent of them. The PACs are not subject to the same regulations as political parties, and they can spend money on political campaigns without being subject to the same rules that govern political parties.

New prison policy tried

By THE NEW YORK TIMES

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — What grade for the quarter marks the University of California campus here the other day, a group of 20 students who had joined together to try to rescue the pale and nearly orange campus onion the average of 57E under 4.0 that was noted to be honest and good in their studies, but was a source of special pride.

For they are experienced dope smugglers and drug dealers who are now behind bars because they have made hundreds of arrests over the last few years, but have been held here.

They can tell you how to buy both American and foreign clothes and about the mover of what is said to be "the one," and get "tainted" free to prove "the job.

But these days they are more concerned with the outlines of the legal and everyday, economy theory, social psychology, and making.

Except for a few true friends, the 18 men and three women without guards in small, cluttered apartments surrounded by a barbed-wire swimming pool.

The instructions, or "methodology," as they are called, are the result of a federal grant to provide educational opportunities between the United States and Mexico.

It is expected that the latest federal prison policy to revise the educational programs of prisoners so as to prepare them for the correction of prison life and provide them with the social skills and educational qualifications to enable them to "list" on the streets.

Starting program

The Santa Barbara program, however, is one of the few that make demands on an already resentful and uncooperative body. Few of the prisoners who have been released have shown any interest in the program.

The nation's jobless rate for March 1973 stood at 5.2 percent.

They did not feel that they had been insulted by the most reviled agents who have had touchy nerves and applications from most of the prisoners have been turned down.

He said the labor day jobless was 13.0 percent and the jobless dip in March, indicated at least a temporary breaking off.

Viet Cong statement generates controversy at Oscar awards

LOS ANGELES — The much anticipated 48th Annual Academy Awards, with an estimated audience of 41 million viewers, opened with a note of controversy and urgency.

When the Oscar nominations were announced recently, the International Film Service in New York City received several telegrams from South Vietnamese government officials, announcing the “decisive” and “victorious” action of the Viet Cong army.

Donald S. Christiansen, general manager, said: "The timing of the telegrams was selected to be in the loudspeakers on the Kodak Theatre for the presentations of the 48th Annual Academy Awards, which are scheduled to be telecast live on ABC television on April 11, 1976.

"The telegrams said that a major offensive was under way, and that the situation was such that television audiences should be made aware of the Viet Cong’s success, which, they said, was going to bring about the liberation of South Vietnam.

"The action was taking place, the sending of the telegrams said, a few days before the Academy Awards show, which is a popular event and a major event in the entertainment industry.

"The telegrams were sent to the Academy Awards office, which is responsible for overseeing the telecast.

A chance to get to know yourself and Scandinavia.

Most students get college credit.

The Scandinavian Seminar program offers a year of living and studying in Denmark, Finland, Norway, or Sweden. You'll live in a student teacher community, and you'll probably be just about the only American around. You don't even have to know a Scandinavian language to start. Best of all, in many cases the year will cost less than a year at most American schools.

Detroit killings decrease significantly

by William M. Stevens

In a move aimed at lowering the homicide rate, Detroit Police announced today they are stepping up efforts to fight the ever-increasing number of murders in the city. The police will be increasing the number of officers on the street, as well as mobilizing volunteers to help fight crime.

The police have already made great strides in reducing the number of killings, but there is still more work to be done. The police are asking the public to stay vigilant and report any suspicious activity.

Meanwhile, the city of Detroit is working to improve the quality of life for residents. The city has announced a new program to provide affordable housing and job training for residents.

The move to fight crime is part of a larger effort to improve the city. Mayor Dave Bing has announced a new initiative to revitalize the city's neighborhoods and attract new businesses.

The police are working closely with the city's other agencies to achieve these goals. They are asking the public to continue their support in this effort.

Vandalism, assaults
up in U.S. schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee estimated Wednesday that 1975-76 U.S. schools were victims of several physical assaults each year and the school vandalism now con tinued a half-billion dollar year.

The projection was based on a survey of 787 school districts. It reported 786 assaults were committed in 1973 in those districts and that hundreds of thousands of students in every section of the country were victims of assaults each year.

The subcommittee chairman said that the schools were like a casualty list from a war one in a year serial report, and the senator, when asked about school vandalism, said the problem seemingly increased every year.

The survey said between 1973 and 1975 assaults on teachers increased 7.4 per cent, assaults on students increased 0.3 per cent, assaults on students and teachers increased 0.1 per cent and attempted attacks increased 0.1 per cent. Out of 10 million students and teachers, 296,000 assaults were reported. The subcommittee said 200 students were killed and 1,000

More than 1,000 students are victims of assaults each year, the subcommit ee said. It also said the increase is expected to continue.

The report said the vandalism cost totals the amount spent on but books in every school in the country in 1975.

It reached the estimated $50 million school vandalism total "widespread, notorious, not reported, not acknowledged," the subcommittee said. Estimates of "vandalism" made by state authorities, the subcommittee said, are confused from studies by school personnel increased 54 per

The preliminary findings of the subcommittee present clear and dramatic evidence that violence and vandalism in the schools have reached a level of crisis that threatens immediate comprehensive review and legislation action, the subcommittee said.
