DPS to outline search policy for concerts

By CAROLE LEE HUTTON
State News Staff Writer

Two years ago, the State Board of Regents decided to initiate a policy, which would provide the state's chief law enforcement agency with a plan for searching areas on state-owned property, according to the State News.

The board of regents, by a vote of 10 to 3 in December, agreed to the plan.

On the proposed search policy, Paul Hanigs, director of public safety at MSU, said, "This is the best of a bunch of ideas that have been circulated among the police departments and campus organizations for years."

Hanigs said that the current search policy at MSU is "unwieldy" and "incomplete.""We're not saying that it's the best possible plan, but it's the best we have, and we're going to try it out and see how it works," said Hanigs.

The search policy will be outlined in a handbook for college personnel, and a similar policy will also be given to college personnel in the future, according to Hanigs.

The handbook will be distributed to college personnel in the fall of 1976.

The search policy will be endorsed by the Board of Regents at its meeting in November.

Proposed fire station: a smouldering issue

By RALPH FRANKENBOOM
State Farm Bureau Staff Writer

East Lansing voters may add fuel to the smouldering controversy over a proposed fire station if they allow the city to get ahead and build the station. A recent poll for the city's November 4 ballot measures proposed permission for voters to allow the city to spend up to one million dollars for the construction of a new fire station.

Fire and city officials, along with some local merchants, have called for the proposed $1,000,000 fire station project in time because the city is in need of new fire-fighting equipment.

But residents of the new station say the station which the city had already purchased for the station is too far from the area where most of the fires occur.

Lawrence Broun, head of department, of the Fire Department, said the city used to the station located south of Saginaw Street, but that most fires occur in the northwestern part of the city.

"The area of very high incidence of fire is the proposed fire station area," Enslow said.

Enslow said Enslow, 8, starts major fires in the city happened south of Saginaw Street, in HALL, it is major fire

At the United Farm Workers (UFW) rally Thursday, 3000 area union members gathered to show their support for the farm workers. The rally was organized by the UFW to show support for the farm workers and to protest the proposed land transfer to the Michigan Basketball Association.

"We are in the process of an unfair labor practice where the Michigan Basketball Association has proposed to build a new basketball arena in downtown Lansing," said Edward Youman, president of the Michigan Farm Bureau.

The rally was attended by a variety of speakers, including UFW representatives, farm workers, and community members.

"The UFW has been in the forefront of this issue since the proposal was first announced," said UFW President John P. Conti. "We are very concerned about the impact of this proposal on the farm workers and the community as a whole."

The rally included speeches from various speakers, including John P. Conti, UFW President; Edward Youman, president of the Michigan Farm Bureau; and community members.

The rally concluded with a large march through downtown Lansing to show support for the farm workers and their cause.
Feathers should keep hands off

Going to an MNU concert is much like walking through New York's Central Park at night — there are always people hanging around eager to riff your pockets, clothes and purse. The only difference is that the people drooling over your person in the MNU are the ones who are supposed to protect you from this action. It requires little more than a vague awareness of Constitutional law to realize that the arbitrary search of individuals without any- thing even distantly resembling probable cause for the search is a mockery of civil rights.

And for the Department of Public Safety to compound that by conjuring up a parade of probable cause and defining it according to the whims of officers shows the need for a comprehensive, codified, legal policy for the behavior of public safety officials at public events. One must realize that the DPS has had a virtually blank check, granted by All University Policy.

to conduct security at public meetings as they see fit.

But in a meeting Thursday with representatives from AAMU, the DPS, the University Press and Pop Entertainment, DPS, the original paper tiger, took the necessary plunge by taking a written policy on searches.

It is from this written policy that the solution will appear. One cannot count on the whim of the DPS to protect you from situations such asconcerts, where officers feel the need to seize upon whatever means necessary to do their job.

A workplace policy must impose and enforce a stringent check of the exact nature of probable cause — such as the make of a white bottle protruding from a pocket. Should they feel the urge, however, concert-goers should do their drinking or smoking prior to the function to minimize the need for searches.

But there is no policy, and since they are so clearly outside of the constitution, DPS officers should have the human decency and the legal propriety to keep their hands off.

Federal election time is rolling around again. You can tell, be- cause the politicians are again talking about tax cuts.

President Ford is pushing a $28 billion tax cut in the next term to individuals and business. Demo- crats in Congress seem deter- mined to slash the amount.

The difference, this time, is that the politician, both Republican and Democrat, are also talking about spending cuts to go along with the tax cuts.

Maybe the folks in Washington have seen that the folks at home would rather spend their own money than have it spent for them by government bureaucrats.

The trouble is that most of the talk about spending cuts is just that — talk. The procedures and procedures in establishing bud- get cuts make it virtually impossible for federal spending to be cut significantly next year.

But tax cuts are almost certain, and will be wise policy this year. They will interpret new spending power into our still lagging econo- my. Moreover, it will be natural of national income back to the public instead of their supposed servants.

Some of the specifics of the tax cut, however, should be ques- tioned. In particular, the con- tinued high investment tax credit, a strange policy. This credit is supposedly an anti-recession tax cut, based on the theory that businesses will invest in new equipment, and thus stimulate the economy. The theory, however, does not hold water.

The problem during recession is not a lack of capital equipment — it is underutilization of existing equipment. In fact, in the short run, an increase in capital expenditures is likely to depress rather than increase jobs.

The best form of tax losses is increased employment. Tax cuts would subsidize the salaries and wages of workers during the recession, probably in the next year, and thus increase employment.

Thus, the cutting talk about three days in just part madness. The rest, however, will be welcome.

Cherries, cherries and more cherries

Cherries, cherries, cherries! Of course, with a yield of the numerous bunches, it's no surprise that President Richard Nixon of the 40th Annual Cherry Festival declared, "For those who are unfamiliar, cherries are a State fruit of Michigan."

After the last harvest and the festival had died down for the season, we asked several of the cherry pickers what they thought made Traverse City the cherry capital of the world. "It's the climate. It's the soil. It's the water," they all said in unison. A true tribute to the city's success.

Cherries, cherries, cherries! Traverse City is the cherry capital of the world, and Traverse City is the place to be for cherry lovers everywhere. The cherry season is here, and Traverse City is the place to be to enjoy the sweet, juicy cherries that are grown here.

Special prosecutor issues final report

The proceedings were adjourned after a 19-hour session, during which the prosecutor and the accused were separated for approximately 10 hours. The key element in the case was the celebration of the 2.01 p.m. event, which the prosecutor described as "the most important part of the trial." The prosecutor stated that the event was a significant milestone in the case and that it would help the jury understand the defendant's actions.

TV series studies women's struggle

By ELIZABETH EISENHAM
State News Reviewer

"Shudder to Shoulder" recounts the struggles of the women's suffrage movement in Great Britain. It follows the fortunes of the Pankhurst family, who were at the vanguard of the suffrage movement and were among the first women to be arrested for their actions. The series is a compelling story of the women's struggle for equality.

The PBS TV series does an admirable job of bringing the story of the suffrage movement to life. Many events are portrayed in dramatic and often breathtaking fashion. The movement was a violent one, with women being arrested and even killed for their beliefs. The series does an excellent job of capturing the passion and determination of the suffragists.

The series is recommended for anyone interested in women's history and the struggle for equality. It is a powerful reminder of the sacrifices that were made and the bravery of those who fought for their rights.

Wilkinson's responsibilities go beyond formal decision-making, though. He is also in charge of the management of campus housing and food service, as well as the maintenance and operation of campus buildings.

"There have been direct financial costs, that's something we think," said Wilkinson. "I speak not only on my time with people and looking at various problems, but also another type of evaluation." Wilkinson often finds it a useful exercise to look into the spending of the state and the campus.

Despite the fact that he has been either arranging deals or providing for several years, the department has not maintained a balanced budget. Having energy costs have been a major factor in the increased cost of student housing, but the university has been trying to keep utility expenses as low as possible.

For his part, Wilkinson has tried, fail, and not to spend too much on the state budget. If the budget is not balanced, it would create a major problem for the university. Under the current proposal, the state would pay all utility expenses after two years' experience.

CONE makes fabrics people live in

You're invited to join the world's largest university credit union — and keep your membership for a lifetime!

Anyone employed on campus — including students — is eligible to join the MSU Employees Credit Union. Your credit union is a non-profit financial institution dedicated to doing just one thing: serving its members. Loans cost less and savings earn more at your credit union.

Payroll deduction makes saving and repaying loans easier. Your credit union even offers a host of low-cost group insurance plans through payroll deduction.

Instant Cash revolving credit provides you with fast, pre-approved borrowing power. You can even phone for an Instant Cash loan.

Come in and get acquainted today. Credit union membership is the most valuable "fringe benefit" of working at MSU — and you can keep it for a lifetime!
Coed halls a success at MSU

Keith Ol'ad, 6th W. Wilson, hall, one of the floor's RA's, offered his opinion: "Being on the coed floor cute a lot of the big problems of being as a student, Hailsham, and things. It's an easier environment to live in. I really enjoy living in it."

Coed Hall manager Jack Rourke noted that the only problem he had noticed in a coed housing situation is the "fact that residents are not as aware of the advantage to the environment as prospective boys are."

These arguments were echoed by members of the coed floor on campus as well. Mark Patek, 20th Floor, the floor's RA, was problems resulting from the living arrangement on the floor, and feels that "everything is more natural and at ease."

A student who lived in the coed hall last year said to try out the new coed floor. This student, 20th Floor, said, "As a coed floor, there is a lot of things that are unique and different."

Problem, and chalked it down to the coed floor, dwelled on the "idea of living on a coed floor."

Another RA, Sue Park, 50th Floor, emphasized that this idea of the coed floor living "takes away the concerns of male and female factors."

"I've never seen the policy being implemented in the past, so I think it will be a success," said another resident. "I think it will be a success."

Coed residence hall floors were born to live up to the expectations of students and administrators alike, and there will be a permanent housing option in the future and they are now being offered.

LUNCH TIME, OR ANYTIME AT THE CAVES...

An intimate dining experience

For a welcome change from the crowded, heavy street known as Grand River, why not walk down the flight of stairs to 100 Albion Road to the Cave of the Caves? You will be immediately enveloped in the rich and secluded atmosphere far removed from the din of streetnoise. The lounge and restaurant area transports the feeling of intimacy and warmth, with the numerous nooks, crannies, and nooks in which to dine and drink.

Why not enjoy this intimate dining atmosphere today, for lunch? "Lunchtime at the Cave features such items as eggs benedict, quiche lorraine, various salads, and always a lunchtime special, for something different. A fine array of sandwiches and complete dinners are also available for lunch. The service is quick and efficient, and the food is prepared with the care the Cave is noted for. Make lunchtime a special time, and dine at The Cave!"

The Cave of the Caves for dinner has always been a treat. Appetizers include such delicacies as escargot, blue point oysters, New England clam chowder, and Caesar salad for two, to name a few. Entrées include live lobsters (fished in fresh dirty, vats, steaks, roast Long Island duckling, and an offering of seafoods, fresh fish, fresh fruit and vegetables. There are also dinners for two. A white towel is at your service to aid on white objects, to complement your meal."

Perhaps you might like to try The Sunday Brunch at The Cave. The brunch runs from 10:30 A.M. to 2:30 P.M., featuring different types of eggs, fresh fruit and quiche lorraine. You might also like to try a score at The Cave Lounge, with delicious bar of service in environment starting at 6:00 p.m.

M.S.U. tries to end Gopher jinx

By LARAE MORGAN

Sports News Service

If M.S.U. can improve its defense, the Spartans will get back to. the winning column next week. The Spartans, who have been beaten in both games under new coach, Don McClure, this season, face the University of Minnesota Saturday in Minneapolis.

The Spartans had their first taste of victory Saturday when they smashed Northwestern, 73-69, in an exhilarating game at State arena.

Although the score was M.S.U.'s lowest, contact with Alex Taylor billed other than a home game against the world's finest, the Spartans are still in the running for the championship. They want to do it, they said. The Spartans have the chance of making a great comeback in the next game.

Taylor said that several freshmen players performed well against W.N.U., thus giving the Spartans a chance at the top of the league. Taylor said the team will not let up and will make every effort to win the game.

Lines at the sidelines

The Michigan State University women's golf team, as expected, is re sponding to the loss of its top two players. The team has two o share the same fate of having two of its best golfers leave for the professional ranks.

The women's golf team finished third at the NCAA championships last season, and with the graduation of co-captains Marge Seitz and Liz Seiter, the team will have to rely on its younger players to fill the void.

The team has high hopes for its younger players, especially freshman Cassie Thompson and sophomore Sarah Rice. Thompson is a talented player who has shown promise in her first season, and Rice is a solid addition to the team.

The team is looking to the future and has its sights set on the upcoming season. With the return of a few key players and the addition of Thompson and Rice, the team is confident it can compete for a national title.

The women's golf team will be back in action this fall, and fans are encouraged to come out and support the team as it works to build towards another successful season.
