Ford makes changes in top Administration

President Ford announced Tuesday that he was making changes in his Administration's top ranks. The announcement came on the same day that Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson resigned, the first resignation of a cabinet member in Ford's administration.

Ford said he would be appointing Acting Attorney General William Graphic, who has been in charge of the department since August 6, to the full position of Attorney General. Ford said he would make a further announcement regarding the appointment of a new Secretary of Defense, who was expected to replace Donald H. Rumsfeld.

Ford also announced that he would be appointment a new member to the National Security Council, who would be working closely with Rumsfeld on national security matters.

In his remarks, Ford said, "These are difficult times, and I want to make sure that the men and women who work in my Administration are the best people we can find."

The move was seen as an attempt to calm the recent turmoil in the Administration and to demonstrate Ford's commitment to the rule of law and the Constitution.

Council race will be close

The primary election in the 75th district of the Michigan State House of Representatives is expected to be a close contest between the incumbent, Republican Bruce Ballard, and Democratic challenger. Ballard, who has held the seat since 1972, is facing a strong challenge from his Democratic opponent.

The race is considered a toss-up, with both candidates polling closely in recent polls. Ballard, a retired construction worker, is running as a conservative Republican, while his opponent, a former teacher, is running as a moderate Democrat.

The winner of the primary will face off against the winner of the Democratic primary in the general election in November. The race is expected to be one of the closest in the state, with both candidates running strong campaigns.

Local election turnout forecast as fairly light

Though it may seem silly, this is always a lively election season. People become more attentive to the voting season in the spring, but this election season has been different. The vote is a vote to elect—especially for candidates.

This election unexpectedly features a race where a little more than a third of the registered voters may show up at the polls.

Looking at past contests, I would predict a turnout more in the half of the city, after which the story will still be double but not half.

Traditionally, homemakers have the highest voter turnout, while students have the lowest.

In 1973, the election turnout was 52%, while in 1975 it was only 37%.

In this election, the turnout is expected to be 40-45%.

Ballard pops stereotypes' bubbles

They are everywhere, popping all over the place. It's a bit too much for some people, but it's a fact of life. Some people seem to think that stereotypes are just a harmless way to view the world, but they can be harmful if they are not accurately portrayed.

Advertisements are the primary medium for stereotypes, but they can also be found in everyday conversation. The problem is that stereotypes can be inaccurate and damaging, especially when they are used to promote a particular agenda.

It's important to be aware of stereotypes and to challenge them when we see them. By doing so, we can help to create a more accurate and respectful understanding of the world around us.

Weather

The weather is crisp and clear, with a few scattered clouds in the sky. The temperature is expected to be in the low 40s, with a slight chance of rain in the morning.

Suzi Canal opened to Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Cargo for Israel, a road of Roman concrete and a Greek ship - has moved through the Suez Canal for the first time in at least 15 years.

The four-hour, 116-mile trip was the first since the 1967 war when Egypt, under then President Gamal Abdel Nasser, closed the waterway to Israeli ships. It also was the first since the 1975 Indo-Pakistani war, which cut Egypt's water supply of the Nile River. Although the Egyptians allowed the canal to reopen in 1975, they did not allow Israeli ships to pass through.

The canal, one of the world's busiest shipping lanes, is vital to both countries, and the move marked the first time since 1956 that ships could pass through it. The move also was seen as a possible sign of improved relations between the two countries.

BANGALORE Govt. shaken

NEW DELHI (AP) - The military-backed Bangladeshi government, shaken by a mutiny in its capital, has ordered all military personnel to return to their barracks.

The order came after a mutiny by army officers in Dhaka on Sunday night. The mutiny was reportedly sparked by dissatisfaction with the government's handling of the economy and its failure to implement a new constitution.

Two days after the mutiny, the government announced plans to lift a travel ban on opposition leaders and to release political prisoners. However, the mutiny continued to simmer, with reports of clashes between soldiers and civilians.

In a statement, the government said it had taken the steps to restore order and maintain law and order.

Ford's highway plan killed

WASHINGTON - President Ford has called for a series of programs designed to reduce the nation's dependence on foreign oil, in what would be his last major address on energy.

The president's proposals include increasing the production of oil from the coastal plain of Alaska and the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, as well as developing new sources of energy, such as solar and wind power.

Ford also called for the development of new technologies to improve fuel efficiency and reduce emissions, and for increased research and development funding.

In his address, Ford acknowledged that the nation's energy problems were complex and that there were no easy solutions.

"The situation is dire, but we have the right to choose our future," he said. "We will not be held hostage to the dictates of the marketplace, nor will we be forced to accept the policies of those who would exploit our resources for their own gain."

The president's proposals are likely to be met with criticism from environmentalists and those who favor alternative energy sources, but they reflect a growing sense of urgency among policymakers.

Ford's address comes as the nation faces a growing energy crisis, with oil prices rising and concerns about the nation's dependence on foreign oil.

Inflation hitting two-dollar bills

WASHINGTON - Prices of two-dollar bills are soaring, with some reaching as high as $40 each, according to reports.

The bills, which were first introduced in 1969, are now being sold for as much as $20 each on the black market.

The spike in prices is due to a growing demand for two-dollar bills, which are commonly used as a tip for servers and as a way to avoid the $20 minimum on many restaurant bills.

In some areas, two-dollar bills are now being used as a way to pay for parking meters, gas stations, and other services.

Letters... on grievance revision

Dear Professor

I understand that you have scheduled a meeting to address the grievances of students who are being punished for minor offenses. As a student myself, I feel strongly that the current procedures for handling such disputes are often inefficient and unjust. I urge you to consider the following points in your deliberations:

1. The current system of handling grievances is often overly bureaucratic. Students are often required to fill out lengthy forms and wait months for a decision, which can be a frustrating experience.

2. The current system does not provide clear guidelines for what constitutes a minor offense. This can lead to inconsistencies in how students are punished.

3. The current system does not provide students with a voice in the decision-making process. Students should be allowed to present their case and be heard.

4. The current system does not provide proper training for those who handle grievances. This can lead to errors in decision-making.

5. The current system does not provide for appeals of decisions. Students should have the right to appeal a decision if they feel it is unfair.

I urge you to consider implementing a more effective system for handling grievances that addresses these concerns.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

Women spikers take championships

By ANN WILLIAMSON
State News Sports Writer

For the second consecutive season, Michigan State University netters found themselves in the final match of the Big Ten Championships, with a meeting at the University of Minnesota and they were.

The Spartans defeated every team that challenged them in the opening round, the semi-final round, and the final round.

"It was the first time that we played a perfect game," said Annelies Stolz, the Michigan State University's top scorer and her team's only unbeaten star. "I was really happy."
The Michigan State University's sports program seems to have hit a wall with many new issues that need addressing. After the loss to the University of Illinois, the Spartans now find themselves in a position to win more games.

In the game against Illinois, Michigan State played poorly. The Spartans did not seem to be focused and did not play with intensity. The team looked tired and disorganized, and their performance was not up to par.

The Spartans have been plagued by injuries and lack of depth in recent games. Despite the challenges, they need to regroup and come back strong in their next game against Ohio State.

Coach Izzo will need to make some adjustments to the lineup and focus on improving the team's performance. The Spartans have a tough road ahead, but with hard work and dedication, they can still achieve success in the Big Ten and beyond.

The season is not over yet, and the Spartans can still make a run for the conference title. Let's hope they can bounce back and give us a reason to be proud of them!

For the participants involved, the Iceland community council up the parking order of who has altered their lives. Everyone moves the same hand-writing with eyes. Fees are left behind. In karate the mind and the body are the only weapons used.

The Iceland community council serves more emphatically, looking the placement right now. Making sure swiftly held open hands connect you to the power and the bound only yielded pain.

"Efficiency expert" Ballard

In holding that you don't have the power of a king you want to do the certain things you have to do - and I don't believe in speaking up and say that is not wrong.

He was working for the University of Minnesota for special treatment. You may remember that it you are not receiving the attention at times. You would be better then before you being a in nature and it is a ship."

He went on to say that sometimes he is asked for special lunches - such as "the president of the University has to be the president of the world in my perspective. University is a very important part of their families. I have to get their ideas and then I have to get them to the right people."

Ballet, it would please him much more to retire when he approached his retirement. After football season ends and play off season is in Michigan for more of the area.

Over the phone a poster depicting the cherished face of Bob Ballard has offered a huge appreciation to the month of the 'Old Michael Ballard'. Ballard, I'll look for him. Ballard said, "That's happening. Bob Ballard don't have no trouble at all."
