grad student aids Dehoco inquiry

By CARL PARIS

LaFollette Center for Urban Research

After the death of Dr. Philip DeHoco on April 1, 1975, graduate student Philip B. Philip, a political science major, began a study of marijuana use in Wisconsin. The study was funded by the University of Wisconsin Foundation and was supervised by Dr. DeHoco. The study's purpose was to educate the public on the effects of marijuana and to ensure that the state's laws are fair and just.

After the study was completed, Philip decided to publish his findings in a book called "Marijuana in Wisconsin: A Study of Use and Abuse." The book was published in 1978 and became a best-seller.

Philip's research showed that marijuana use was widespread in Wisconsin and that the state's laws were not effective in controlling the problem. The study also showed that marijuana use was associated with a number of negative outcomes, including decreased academic performance, increased rates of crime, and decreased productivity.

Philip's findings were supported by a number of other studies conducted in the United States and around the world. These studies showed that marijuana use was associated with a number of negative outcomes, including decreased academic performance, increased rates of crime, and decreased productivity.

Philip's research and findings have been used by politicians, educators, and public health officials to develop policies and programs to address the problem of marijuana use.

The study's findings have also been used to support the development of new drugs that can help people with addiction issues, such as addiction to alcohol and other drugs.

The Netherlands' war with Britain

Two groups took credit for the Miami bombings in recent days, but the government was no closer to identifying the perpetrators, it was reported Tuesday.

"We've got it, but we don't want to make a public announcement," a source close to the investigation said.

This was the first official confirmation that the bombings were linked to the two groups.

The first bombing, on Tuesday, was in the city of Miami, and the second was in the suburb of Coral Gables.

The two groups had been operating independently, but they had agreed to work together.

The first group was identified as the "Miami Reds," and the second as the "Miami Nazis.

Both groups had been linked to the anti-war movement in the United States.

The Miami Reds had been responsible for several bombings in Miami in recent months, while the Miami Nazis had been responsible for several bombings in Coral Gables.

Dairyman recounts years

New MSU Extension to be named after former Extension Director

A dairy farm in Union City, Michigan, has been the scene of some interesting events. The farm was once owned by the late Ralph Good, who was a pioneer in the dairy industry. The farm is now owned by his son, John Good, and his daughter, Mary Good.

The farm has been the site of several dairy-related events, including a dairy contest and a cheese-making contest. The farm was also the site of a dairy auction, which was held to raise money for the local dairy industry.

In addition to these events, the farm has been the site of several dairy-related projects, including a dairy research project and a dairy education project. The farm is also the site of a dairy museum, which is dedicated to preserving the history of the dairy industry.

The farm is located in Union City, Michigan, and is easily accessible to dairy farmers in the area. The farm is open to the public, and visitors are welcome to come and see the unique dairy farm in action.

Couple tell of changes in Vietnam since American pullout last spring

By FRED NEWTON

The couple met in Vietnam last spring and have been married since then. They are now in the United States.

The couple met while they were both working for the American Embassy in Vietnam. They fell in love and decided to get married.

They were married in a small ceremony at the embassy, and then they went on to spend their honeymoon in Vietnam.

They say that the American pullout from Vietnam has had a profound impact on their lives. They say that the pullout has left them feeling empty and lost.

They say that they are now at the beginning of their lives together, and that they are excited about the future.

Summer jobs seek to reduce law suits

The city of Chicago has approved a plan to create summer jobs for teenagers. The plan is designed to reduce the number of law suits filed by teenagers each year.

The plan will provide summer jobs for teenagers in the city's parks, libraries, and other public facilities. The jobs will be paid minimum wage, and the teenagers will be given training in various fields.

The plan is expected to reduce the number of law suits filed by teenagers by 20 percent. The city hopes that the plan will also provide the teenagers with valuable work experience.

Computer date service successful for ASMSU

The ASMSU computer date service has been successful, according to the ASMSU president.

The service was launched earlier this year, and it has been widely used by students. The service is available 24 hours a day, and it is free to all students.

The president says that the service has been well-received, and that it is helping to reduce the number of sought-after dates.

Committee approves tenant rights bills

The Michigan Senate has approved a package of bills that would protect tenants' rights. The package includes bills that would establish a tenant's right to a safe and habitable home, and to receive prompt repairs when needed.

The bills are expected to be signed into law by the governor. The governor is expected to sign the bills as soon as possible.
View against the tax increase

Any time student government makes tax money available, the student government must explain why the student must pay for the privilege. Why will students be made to support the merchants' budget, and not their own? Why will students be made to support 10 per cent of the vote of student student in these organizations.

Admittedly, proponents of the tax increase make a good case by extra money to pay for Legal Services, Pop Entertainment and Great Issues — among others — a benefit to the student. However, a tax increase has brought to the campus.

There is no argument that these issues and popular student services would receive money. The question before us is whether the ASMSU budget would receive the full amount of the increase. Whether these issues and popular student services would receive more money is a question of whether the student body is willing to pay for these services.

On the other hand, those who are against the tax increase say that the ASMSU budget should receive no more than a 5 per cent increase. They say that the ASMSU budget is already in excess of what is necessary to support the services it offers.

The students are clearly divided on this issue. Those who are against the tax increase believe that the student body is not willing to pay for the services offered by the ASMSU budget.

What should we give them for Xmas?

Oh, dear, it’s time for the State News to play Santa Claus. For all those people who are wondering what to give those who are not looking forward to the holidays, we have a few suggestions.

For the student who is not looking forward to the holidays, we suggest that you give a copy of the State News. It is sure to please everyone, regardless of their interests.

ASMSU responds to SN editorial stand

By BARBARA PAOLE

ASMSU’s all university student governing body, its position on editorial stand is no different than that of any other student organization. That is to say, we do not support the editorial stand.

However, we do believe that the student body should be given the opportunity to vote on the issue of editorial stand and that the vote should be based on the number of students who are members of the student organization.

Marathon dancers can help MSU

By FRED NEWTON

Ann Arbor News Staff Writer

Shadie of Fred Newton and Ginger Ruger

It's now again that time of the year for the break-up on these cold days as the February and March months arrive. The weather is improving and the snow is melting, and the dancers are back on the scene. The MSU Dance Marathon Club is still heavily involved in their fund-raise efforts, and the dancers are looking forward to a successful year.

The reason is at this point in time the Medal of Honor dance marathon which is less than two months away. This will be the third year this fundraising effort has been held to raise funds for multiple sclerosis research. In its first year, the event has raised over $2,000 in pledges. Supporters pay a certain amount of money per hour to dancing and the couple who get the most money in pledges after dancing 24 hours (not consecutive) will win.

The prize this year will be all expenses paid trip for two to Jamaica. Other prizes include MSU gear,违纪 and other fun-oriented items.

This year's marathon will be held on Friday, Feb. 27, 28 and 29 in the Michigan Union and the Michigan Ballroom.

It seems that students are more involved now. The Ann Arbor News staff writer for the Michigan Union has no idea what happened.

The weather seems to be getting better and the students are looking forward to a successful year.

Holiday homeless get help in soothing vacation blues

While most MSU students hurl their legs into the menus of the last day of the term, many students are unable to do so.

Most of these are foreign students who will be left in town until the spring term begins. The winter holiday will be spent in their home countries.

A national organization based in New York, Project Runway, has been fundraising for the past two years to raise money for foreign students who would otherwise be unable to afford the cost of living in their home countries.

These programs have been established in all the universities in their vacation plans.

Employes in State Room find solace in job, wages

By JUDY GALLAGHER

Three people have found an answer to the problem of making the wages MSU pays students employed at the State Room turn a profit. By turning an area in the State Room into a small sushi bar, they have not only improved their chances of making enough to pay their bills, but have also found a place to meet friends and relax.

The sushi bar is the work of Trudy Meade, Katharine Trowbridge, and Mary Curtis, all three of whom are 20-year-olds majoring in English.

"It was a way for us to earn a little extra money," said Meade, who is the owner of the restaurant.

Meade, Curtis, and Trowbridge ran the sushi bar for about six weeks, from the end of the fall semester to the beginning of the spring semester.

The three women worked every day from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., and were open seven days a week.

"We were open on weekdays, weekends, and holidays," said Meade.

The women had to pay for the ingredients they used, and had to keep track of their costs. They also had to pay for the sushi bar's equipment, which included a grill, a sink, and a refrigerator.

Despite the challenges, the women were able to make a profit. Meade estimates that they made about $500 in six weeks.

"We were able to make a profit, but it was difficult," said Meade.

The women say that they enjoyed working together, and found it rewarding to see their hard work pay off.

Crime inside prison walls

By Callie L. Parks

The prison guards avert a number of minor altercations from breaking out into violence that could claim the rights of the incarcerated. However, they are unable to forestall a number of disturbances that are entrenched in the prison system itself. Especially, disturbances are being met with by the administrators of the Michigan Department of Corrections while they are trying to deal with the problems of overcrowding and lack of facilities that are faced by the inmates.

The guards, who are being involved in a number of disturbances, are working overtime in order to maintain order in the institution. They are constantly on the lookout for any signs of unrest among the inmates, and are ready to act quickly to prevent any major outbursts.

The guards are also working closely with the inmates themselves, trying to understand their problems and needs. They are also trying to work with the inmates to find solutions to these problems, and to help them overcome their difficulties.

The guards are working under difficult conditions, and are faced with a number of challenges in trying to maintain order and safety in the institution. They are working long hours, and are often subjected to verbal and physical abuse from the inmates. However, they are dedicated to their work, and are determined to do their best to maintain order and safety in the prison.

The guards are also working closely with the inmates' families and the community, trying to build bridges of understanding and trust. They are also working with the state's Department of Corrections and the Governor's Office, trying to find solutions to the problems that are faced by the institution.

Philippines hope to talk trade during Ford's Manila stopover

MANILA (AP) — President Ford's stop of less than 45 hours to Manila this evening is expected to have little immediate impact on the major issues between the U.S. and the Philippines, although a military agreement is expected.

The Philippines' ties to the U.S. have been untied by President Ford's expected stop at the Philippines.

Ford, who is expected to announce a military agreement at a joint news conference with Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, has been expected to try to improve the relationship between the two nations.

The Philippines have been a major trading partner for the U.S. for years, and Ford's visit is expected to further strengthen the relationship.

Analysts say the agreement could have significant implications for the Philippines, which has been struggling to maintain its economy and political stability.

Ford is expected to visit the Philippines for several days, during which he will meet with Marcos and other officials.

Ford's visit is expected to be a significant boost for the Philippines, which has been struggling to overcome a series of problems, including political instability and economic difficulties.

Ford is expected to discuss a variety of issues with Marcos, including trade, defense, and security.

Ford is expected to arrive in Manila on Thursday evening and will leave on Saturday morning.

The Lansing Metropolitan Fine Arts Council is sponsoring a "Play with the Press" photo contest and is co-sponsoring the "Window" photo contest at the Lansing Center Club. Entries for two divisions—black and white and color—will be postmarked by March 1.

The contest is open to all residents of Clinton, Eaton and Ingham counties. Photographs will be displayed on Jan. 31 and Feb. 1. The exhibit location is not definite yet, but the Center for the Arts and Meridian Mall were suggested.

The competition is open to all residents of Clinton, Eaton and Ingham counties. Photographs may be entered in either division, including both black and white and color photos. The entry fee is $2 for each division entered and $4 if both black and white and color photos are submitted.

All photographs must be no smaller than 5 1/2 by 7 and presented in a frame 8 by 10. A maximum of five photographs per person is permitted. A reception and an exhibition will be held February 8 at the Center for the Arts.

Crane population rising

WASHINGTON (AP) - Birders at the Audubon Society's annual December counts have reported a major increase in the world's population of whooper cranes, with over 470 seen in the United States alone. This is the highest number ever recorded for this species.

The whooper crane, the world's tallest bird, is native to the U.S. and Canada, where it breeds in the Great Lakes region and winters in the Pacific Northwest. The birds are known for their distinctive whooping calls and large size, with some reaching over 5 feet in height.

This year's counts, conducted by volunteer birders across the U.S., showed a 20% increase compared to last year. The most significant increase was recorded in the Great Lakes region, where 150 whoopers were counted, up from 120 last year.

The increase is attributed to a combination of factors, including improved conservation efforts, better habitat management, and reduced hunting pressures. "The conservation work of organizations like the Audubon Society has paid off in the form of a growing population," said Dr. Elizabeth Miller, a leading ornithologist.

The whooper crane is classified as a "near threatened" species by the International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN). Despite this classification, the species continues to face threats from habitat loss, climate change, and poaching.

The Audubon Society calls for continued efforts to protect whooper crane habitats and reduce threats. "This population growth is encouraging," said Dr. Miller. "But it is important to remain vigilant to ensure their long-term survival."

Stables to open Jan.

The Stable at East Grand River Ave. is to open Jan. 9 with a special opening celebration. The new stable, which was designed and built by architects and engineers with years of experience in the horse industry, will be the home of the new East Grand River Ave. Horse Show.

Located near the entrance of the new East Grand River Ave. Horse Show, the new stable will feature accommodations for up to 100 horses, as well as a large arena for training and competition. The stable will also include a fully-equipped tack room, a wash area, and a viewing area for spectators.

The opening celebration will include a ribbon-cutting ceremony, a horse blessing, and a performance by the Stable's resident equine performers. Attendees will also have the opportunity to tour the new stable and learn more about the facility and the services it offers.

For more information, visit the Stable's website or call (555) 123-4567.

What price happiness?

$249  More than anything else you could buy yourself for the Holidays, a good music system will make you very happy.

And, happily, the price can be less than a color tv. Especially right now, during Tech HiFi’s Holiday Sale. Take one of our $249 systems, for example. You’ll hear more accurate sound reproduction from our quality components, than from any “compact” or “furniture console” near its price.

The $249 system shown here includes the Cambridge Audio 1500 am/fm stereo receiver, two KLH acoustic-suspension loudspeakers, and the light tracking Glenburn 2110B automatic turntable equipped with a Shure Magnetic cartridge. (Our Holiday Sale price of $249 is $40 below our Buyers’ Guide price!)

Other systems are on sale this week starting as low as $199. And up to $3500.

$503  At Tech HiFi you can select from among 100 name-brand components! One example of the kind of quality system you can put together for $500 is shown in the picture above. It features the renowned Largen Advent loudspeakers. According to High Fidelity they “span the audible range with ease and authority lending virtually no coloration to the music...”

The power for this system is amply supplied by a Kenwood 2400 am/fm stereo receiver. And the Kenwood gives you the kind of clean FM reception that makes listening to the radio such a pleasure.

The turntable is a Philips GA 427 belt-drive semi-automatic. It comes with an Audio-technica 90E Dual Magnet cartridge that makes your records sound great, with minimum wear.

You’ll find our holiday spirit so strong during our Holiday Sale that we’ll include a pair of stereo headphones when you purchase this system! (This offers expires this Sunday).

Free  The 1976 Hifi Buyer’s Guide is now at the Tech HiFi store near you. It contains 80 pages of helpful shopping tips, explanations of technical aspects of high fidelity, and new product information.

You’ll find a 10 page article on the creative uses of tape recorders. There are money-saving coupons, good for discounts on loudspeakers, headphones, tape, and accessories.

If you have any notion at all of getting yourself a music system for the holidays, be sure to get your free copy of this fact-filled shopping guide.

*Prices in effect this week at our Holiday Sale.
