Angolan war may escalate

By RALPH FRANKS

A new report calls for a humanitarian truce in the war between government forces and the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, or NITA, a Maoist guerrilla force supported by Cuba. The report, released by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, says that the conflict has caused widespread suffering and displacement of people. It calls for a negotiated solution to end the war and allow for the return of refugees.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The House Appropriations Committee on Monday approved a $2 billion spending package for the Department of Agriculture, including $1.5 billion for the Food and Nutrition Service, which administers the food stamp program and the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC). The bill also includes funding for the Rural Development and Natural Resources programs.

The bill was passed by a bipartisan majority, with support from both Democrats and Republicans. It will now move to the full House for consideration.

Bowling college grading called sexist by some

by MICHAEL SANDBERG

A study of college grading practices found that women tend to receive lower grades than men for the same level of performance. The study, conducted by researchers at the University of Michigan, looked at data from more than 200,000 students at 100 colleges across the country.

The researchers found that women were more likely to receive lower grades than men for the same level of performance, even when controlling for factors like academic performance and preparation. The study suggests that there may be systemic biases in college grading that favor men over women.
Ford appoints new adviser

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford on Thursday named Secretary of the Interior James Watt to replace Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who resigned two days earlier.

Watt, 51, is a leading figure in the Republican party and was known for his opposition to the Vietnam War.

Kissinger, 70, had been Secretary of State for 10 years under President Nixon and had been in the position since 1971.

Ford had been under pressure to name a new Secretary of State for some time, as Kissinger had been at the center of a number of controversial decisions during his tenure.

The move was seen as a bid to shore up support within the Republican party, which had been rocky due to the high inflation rates and economic problems.

The appointment was made at a press conference where Ford said: "I am confident that James Watt will bring a fresh perspective and new vitality to the Department of State."

Response to terror

It is often remarked that “Oma’s” terroristic behavior is the farthest thing from the German character.” And now, it is ever more characteristic of an example, a Frenchman who named the United Nations, it presents against the Germans in the Popular Freedom League (PFL) in a Middle East debate. Shortly after a campaign of Arab wars, the United Nations was to be attacked by the United States and other allies.

This essential world peace that all groups recognize the destructions of terror, regardless of its opposite nature. Perhaps, after the kidnapping of the DEC ministers in 1902, the month, the world will be ready to take sides on the problem of terror — and perhaps the new and found recognition of the PLO will

A better guidebook

Anyone who has tried to piece together a schedule from this last course description found in the schedule book will be heartened by the current project the present student’s offer.

An expanded Course Information Book is being prepared for printing in the Spring. The new edition will include a larger description of the course and its goals. It will have texts, assignments, and assignments, and the typical enrollment patterns.

This should enable the student to choose courses which will fill into a schedule not only because of the time they require, but also because the subject matter fits the student’s interests and needs. The required texts look interesting, and the work is well with the rest of the schedule.

While preparing the project I am tentative for the high cost of preparing the book. The administration plans first to survey the student population to ensure that the book meets a real need — that students take it seriously.

Students should respond favorably — it will be well worth the trouble.

Pet Rocks abandoned by cold, cruel world

“With a will it would happen, but we never dreamed it would hit the bed,” says Corven, one of the world’s top animal conservationists. “We didn’t expect the Pet Rock to be such a popular item, and we have been so blessed with sales. We don’t know what to do with the money. We’ve just decided to give it to the National Wildlife Federation.”

Corven’s statement was released yesterday in response to the withdrawal of the Pet Rock from the market. The Pet Rock, a small, round, stuffed object resembling a pet, has been a popular item on the market for several years.

“Was it the Pet Rock we were being told or that the Pet Rock was being killed?” Corven asked. “We are trying to figure out what to do with the money. We have received offers to buy the Pet Rock, but we haven’t decided what to do yet.”

Is Reagan on the stump for Ford?

Mary McGory

When he avoided his confrontation last week with the Democratic Convention of Chicago, a Republican political analyst said, "Reagan is very much the candidate."

When he learned that the convention was going on in a building named after himself, the President is reported to have said it would be "nice to be around but I have other functions." Sci-fi show not too comprehensive

"In the future..."

"Tell Mr. Spock that the 'why' must not be more..."

This quote, taken from "Star Trek" is not the most pertinent of Sulu's lines, and yet the effect of the words spoken by the half-Vulcan, half-American has been a lasting one. The reason lies in the way that the words were spoken, the dramatic musical score that accompanied them, and the way that the audience was mentally set for the words to take effect.

Ironically, the show was a success. The production was in competent, the special effects were outstanding, and the audience was eager for more. The show was a hit, and it is no wonder that the producers felt that they had found something special.

The show was never allowed to age. It was revived in every aspect, and every little thing was doing something. There is no bat of show that would do, making it a highly entertaining show. The point drawn is worth the price of a ticket. The attractions are varied and ever-changing.

The essential message of the show's success was the effect of the middle of a large literature market. The audience was wowed by the special effects, and the result of the words was both to its aesthetic and emotional effects.

Actually, the program does a good job in developing the development of science fiction up to about 1940. It shows science fiction back to its roots in fascination, appealing to the older popularizers like Robert A. Heinlein, and in the process, it offers an excellent description of the inordinately large amount of time that science fiction has been trying to popularize for about 60 years. The show also indicates the vast amount of potential in the audience for science fiction, which is something that is often critical. For instance, it has limited influence from which the words would be. Even the most limited influence of "Star Trek" can not possibly be a large amount, since such a large amount of information and fact alone, and only the word would mean to one world.

Perhaps the best part of the show was in how well-made it was. But there was a large amount of science fiction that were important to the development of science fiction after 1940. Perhaps the most important was John Candel, a legend of science fiction. In 1940 there was no one who would publish good science fiction. There were the pulps like the "Tales of Science Fiction" and the better, such as "Astounding Science Fiction" which published the first that was done into the outer planets. In the late 1930's, Robert Silverberg, former Laborite, began to publish science fiction. Other important people were those mentions of future, such as Robert Silverberg, and A. C. Clarke, and those of the "Fiction".

Also neglected was the place of science in the development of science fiction. Fantasy writer such as Al H. Lerox, were the most important. People such as Alan K. Todd have had so much effect on us, on John Varley and Isaac Asimov.

But the most important point missed was the nature of science fiction. Here, the program explained the place of science fiction in the development of today's science and technology, and rightly so. Science fiction did not necessarily mean the most of the present technological survival.

This success has gone too beyond that. The science is yet to come, yet the emphasis is on the science fiction of today and not of the future. Will with politics, will with the science fiction of today, will the emphasis be on the science fiction of the future? Will with politics, or will the emphasis be on the science fiction of today?

Grievance hearing underway

By JOHN CRISPINO
State News Staff Writer

A judge is expected today to rule on whether to resume the grievance hearing on charges that the Department of Management and Budget, under then-State Auditor General Condon Helweg, illegally withheld state funds from the Michigan Film Office.

The hearing, which was heard in Muskegon last month, is expected to be continued today.

The hearing was held in connection with a lawsuit filed by the Michigan Film Office, which is seeking to recover the state funds.

The hearing was ordered by a federal judge in April, who ruled that the department had violated the state constitution by withholding the funds.

The hearing is expected to last for several days and is expected to be lengthy.

"This is a very hard case to talk about because it involves many people," said Helweg, who has been charged with the illegal withholding of the funds.

"We have a responsibility to ensure that the state funds are used properly," he said. "We are working to resolve this issue in a way that is fair and just for all parties involved."
Women's gymnastics team together again

by Ann Williamson

Senior News/Staff Writer

Remember that historic dual gymnastics meet that was held in the MSU Fieldhouse last Saturday? Well, the women's gymnasts were back at it again this past Saturday when MSU faced off against Illinois. The event was held in the MSU Fieldhouse at 5 p.m. and the crowd was again packed to capacity. The MSU gymnasts dominated the competition, scoring a total of 191.250, while Illinois scored a total of 186.750. This was the first time in over 20 years that MSU has defeated Illinois in a gymnastics meet, making it a historic victory for the team.

The meet was a celebration of the MSU gymnastics team's hard work and dedication. The team has been practicing intensively for weeks in preparation for this meet, and it paid off in a big way. The MSU gymnasts were able to showcase their skills and talent, impressing the crowd with their routines and precision.

The meet started off with the vault, where both teams were evenly matched. However, the balance beam was where MSU really shined. The MSU gymnasts performed flawlessly on the beam, executing their routines with precision and grace. Illinois was able to keep up on the bars, but the MSU gymnasts were able to pull away on the floor exercise. The meet ended with the beam, where both teams were once again evenly matched. However, the MSU gymnasts were able to pull away, scoring a total of 47.875, while Illinois scored a total of 46.450.

This is a huge win for the MSU gymnastics team, as they have been working hard for weeks to prepare for this meet. The win is a testament to their hard work and dedication, and it is a huge accomplishment for the team. The MSU gymnastics team should be proud of their performance, and they should be looking forward to more great things to come.
