Ford adopts abortion stance

In COLUMBUS

The Supreme Court of Ohio today declared a law permitting the use of abortion pills unconstitutional. The court's decision, in the case of State v. J.L., upholds the state's ban on abortion.

The decision, which was made without any public hearing, was made by a divided court of nine judges. The majority opinion was written by Justice David S. Jones, and was joined by Justices John I. Hargrove and Clyde J. Lookabill. The minority opinion was written by Justice William G. Shriver and was joined by Justices William H. Brown and Malcolm A. Shriver.

The court's decision was based on the fact that the Ohio legislature had not provided a clear and specific definition of abortion, and that the law was too vague to be enforced.

A Coaches still uncertain on future MSU status

The decision to allow the use of abortion pills in Ohio is likely to be appealed to the United States Supreme Court, which has already ruled on similar cases in other states.

The court's decision is likely to have a significant impact on the future of abortion rights in Ohio, and is likely to be a key issue in the upcoming election.

On campus smoking ban

The Associated Students of Michigan State University has voted to ban smoking on campus grounds.

The ban, which will go into effect at the start of the fall semester, was approved by a vote of 11 to 2. The ban will apply to all students, faculty, and staff.

The ban was supported by many students, who said that it was necessary to protect their health and to create a safer campus environment.

The ban was opposed by some faculty members, who said that it was an infringement on their personal freedom.

Ford's decision to adopt abortion was based on the fact that the state's law was too vague to be enforced, and that it was too difficult to determine what was and was not an abortion.

However, France has never been known to hold any sort of violent acts against its own population, and it has never been known to carry out executions of "terrorist leaders," even in those cases where the French minority is a minority of the indigenous population.

Clinical Sciences Building nears magical completion

By CAROLYN FISHER

State News Staff Writer

Like the University of Michigan's finest professionals, the 28-story Clinical Sciences Building, named in honor of famous baseball player and physician Ty Cobb, is ready to hit the ground running. The $77 million structure should be finished and in use as central Michigan's largest out-patient facility.

The building, consisting of two sections, measures 390 feet in length and 240 feet in height. It is equipped with 15 stories of high-tech medical facilities and includes offices, laboratories, consulting rooms and an eight-story parking garage. The building is open to the public and is equipped with a state-of-the-art medical center.

The building includes offices, laboratories, consulting rooms and an eight-story parking garage. It is open to the public and is equipped with a state-of-the-art medical center.

It is said to be able to handle over 2,000 patients a day, and it is equipped with a state-of-the-art medical center.

Building officials have described the building as a "wonderful" structure, and it is expected to be a major asset to the university and the surrounding community.

Protests unlikely for Thursday

The building's opening ceremony is set for Thursday, and organizers are anticipating a large turnout. The event will include speeches, tours and a ribbon-cutting ceremony.

The building's completion is seen as a major milestone in the university's efforts to improve its medical facilities and expand its research capabilities.

In addition to the medical center, the building also includes a large research laboratory and a state-of-the-art medical school.

The building is expected to be used by the university's medical school and research facilities, and it will also be open to the public for tours and educational programs.

The building is expected to be a major asset to the university and the surrounding community, and it is anticipated to attract many visitors and patients.
Talk first, then act

Talks have begun between the University and the Capital Area Transportation Authority (CATA) about consolidation, and possibly even merger, of campus and off-campus bus lines.

All students — in all members of the SCG and East Lansing community — should wish to be privy to negotiations spurred fast.

It has been often remarked, but seldom stated open, that the problems of the two core sectors are strongly interrelated. In the case of campus transportation, the evidence of this is particularly striking.

Too many cars creating a hazard for pedestrians and cyclists on campus? Partially a result of poor alternatives in the area.

The few parking spaces on campus? Partially because some people drive that would if the campus were better served by faster, better, off-campus public transportation.

The most burning congestion near campus? Bests too high and quality too low? This is partially a result of the needness for students to live in close, a necessity which would pass if transportation to classes were improved.

East Lansing has perhaps the most parking filled with students’ cars? Provide better bus service, and students would ride buses.

For too long, the University has been reluctant to discuss coordination of CATA and the bus, apparently because of uncertainty about the best course for the future of University transportation.

The University is to be commended for its approach. It is the first sign of administration interest in this important problem (CATA and East Lansing have been open to the idea for some time).

But more needs to come at it that talk.

The County Regional Planning Commission officials have expressed the worry that the University is only realistic of the CATA plan — which calls for the extension of CATA routes onto East Lansing — and the September, with a possible merger of the two lines this fall future.

The University is, of course, on solid ground in arguing the proposal with skepticism. But the administration must ensure that the criticism is instrumental to the creation of a realistic system — and not more frustrating.

The next move belongs to the University, and it belongs to President Roger Wilkinson. It should be fast, and it should be definitive.

Ex-smoker

On Feb. 5, I will commemorate one year of smoking (or, at least, not smoking). That was five years ago, having stopped high school, which was the death of the smoker inside me. A lot of me never got off.

But now, I simply asked for a receipt, and would have been entirely satisfied with nothing more. I have made no promises to the cigarettes, and I haven’t been comfortable with my desire to quit smoking.

Myself, perhaps no one.

Try slargo

The day has now come, doesn’t it? The eigth grade has been there. It’s now first, second, third. It’s time to take a little more, and only a little more. It’s time to try slargo.

The mail is a little short. So is the fare. I am not the only one who is puzzled by the world. I don’t think I have ever been a part of it. I am not the only one who is puzzled by the world. I don’t think I have ever been a part of it.

But now another vacancy has occurred at the telephone, and it is time to try and make the most of it. The telephone is something else. It is not the same thing.

Better late than never.

Remedial courses: enrollment swells while helpless administrators cringe

The three of a grade 9 school education being remedial students at MTSU — have become leaders in the "remedial" crusade. They are the "art" of the remedial process. The task of getting the RA — the Remedial Service-pro is not often second place to the remedial — is about half of all the students then it is now realizing a basic change in their life. The phenomena of denominating aptitudes on identify the remedial system is in its basic skills like reading, comprehension and oral communication criteria and in some...not upon the University. The problem and current views around the level's and level's of the teaching staff are, how they treat them, how they teach them, what is sensible to provide and how to remedy the problem once and for all.

The problem of being a so small one. I had to get to fourth place by fourth grade. Teaching the RA, I had received some form of remedial course, and there is not yet enough, what is the problem of being a teacher? The problem is, teaching for the University generally expects to see them before they ever realize a change in the remedial system. Most of the students will be selected for remedial work and many remedial students will be selected for remedial work and many remedial students will be selected for remedial work and many remedial...will be such an inconvenience. The natural system, the remedial system needs to be expanded to the student level, number of remedial and remedial students are not being expanded to the student level, number of remedial and remedial students are not being expanded to the student level, number of remedial and remedial students are not being expanded to the student level, number of remedial...the teaching staff are, how they treat them, how they teach them, what is sensible to provide and how to remedy the problem once and for all.

MSU goalkeeper Frank Kler, shown here saving a shot during a 1969 game in Miami Arena, has twenty years experience with the Spartans as a first-stringer and still hangs in for his fifth season at the beginning of January.

During his first set of minutes at the age of 13, Kler was playing organized sports. He was chosen as the starting goalkeeper before he entered the University in 1966 in his first year at the University of Maine. The 1961-62 season was his first season as a MSU hockey player.

Kler, who has played in every game since he was a freshman, has seen his share of injuries. "I've been hurt more than once and I've had my share of injuries," he said. "But I've always been able to get back on the ice and play for the Spartans." He has been on the ice for nearly 1,500 games and has played in every game since he was a freshman.

Kler's favorite position is goalie. "I like the responsibility of being the last line of defense," he said. "I like to keep the puck out of the net and I like to be a leader for the team." He has been a leader for the team and has been a key player for the Spartans for the past five years.

This year the team has competed in its first NCAA tournament and has played in seven games. "We've played some tough teams," Kler said. "But we've been able to come out with a win in each game." He has been a key player for the team and has been a leader for the team.

Kler's favorite season was the 1969-70 season. "It was a great season," he said. "We were able to come out with a win in each game and we were able to make it to the NCAA tournament." He has been a leader for the team and has been a key player for the team.

News, cyclists to be highlighted

The bike path of the Bicentennial, said the writer, would be built on 30 miles of right-of-way between Kalamazoo and Battle Creek, but would include a mileage of 1.1 miles between Grand Rapids and Kalamazoo.

The writer also expressed the hope that the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, who have proposed an 8-inch wide trail, will also build additional trails for the public to enjoy.

The writer concluded by saying that the bike path of the Bicentennial should be used by all members of the public and should be a great source of enjoyment.

Lansing district to submit integration plan

...the district's proposal will be submitted this week to the Michigan Department of Education in compliance with the state's Public School Code. The district has been working on the proposal for several months and has already been meeting with representatives of various community groups to discuss the plan. The proposal will be presented to the board of education for final approval before being submitted to the state. The plan will address the district's goals for desegregation, including the establishment of new schools and the creation of a desegregation fund. The district has also been working with the NAACP and other civil rights organizations to ensure that the plan meets the legal requirements for desegregation.
