WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Intelligence Committee voted Wednesday to end a Federal Bureau of Investigation letter seeking cooperation by legislators in the investigation of any futurode or past U.S. Intelligence Agency from the agency's personnel. The agency said it would comply with the request "as an act of good faith and or for neutrality with any American departments or agencies." The letter said the FBI's policy was aimed at "to the extent practical and to the extent possible, to proce with our intelligence operations," and that the FBI was searching for "any evidence or indication of anything in our records that might be useful to the intelligence operations." The FBI also said it would not disclose to members of Congress any information on whether the FBI had been involved in any such operations.

Federal judges file suit for cost of living boost

WINDSOR, Mass. — Federal judges have filed a lawsuit against the U.S. government to challenge the government's failure to adjust the judges' salaries for cost of living increases.

Judge Michael E. McGarry and Judge Robert D. T. C. McFarland, who is chief judge of the U.S. District Court for the District of New York, filed the lawsuit today in U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York. The lawsuit seeks to adjust the judges' salaries to reflect the increase in the cost of living since the last adjustment in 1989.

The lawsuit is the latest in a series of lawsuits filed by judges in recent years to challenge the government's failure to adjust their salaries for cost of living increases. In 1989, the government last increased the judges' salaries by 15%. The government has argued that it cannot adjust the salaries without a congressional vote. The judge's current salaries are about $130,000.

McGarry said in a statement that the judges are "very concerned about the lack of action by the government to adjust the judges' salaries. We are committed to our duty and to the Constitution and the rule of law, and we will continue to seek a fair and just resolution to this matter."

The recent ending of a highly publicized primary election in East Lansing will be in the hands of the state government because legislation appropriates such governmental responsibilities to the state.

The law states that the primary elections shall be administered by the state government. However, there is a need for revision of the legislation so that it can be more effective in handling the election process.

A legislative committee is currently studying the primary election process and is expected to present recommendations to the legislature in the near future.

The committee's recommendations are expected to include measures to improve the administration of primary elections, such as the use of electronic voting machines and the implementation of a statewide voter registration system.

The state government has also reported that it is working on a plan to expand the use of same-day voter registration, which has been found to be effective in increasing voter turnout.

A recent study showed that same-day voter registration increased voter turnout by 10% in the last primary election, compared to previous years when only advance registration was available.

The state government is also considering proposals to increase the use of early voting, which has been shown to be an effective way to engage voters who cannot vote on election day.

In addition, the state government is expected to continue its efforts to improve voter education, with a focus on increasing voter awareness of the importance of participating in the political process.

The state government is committed to ensuring that every eligible voter has the opportunity to cast a ballot in the primary election, and it is working towards this goal by providing accessible voting locations and making voting as convenient as possible for all citizens.

The state government is also committed to promoting a culture of civic engagement and encouraging all citizens to participate in the political process, regardless of their party affiliation.

Cover-up in ASMSU

Strange things are stirring in the ASMSU Legal Services office. The office is closed for three days. The director is normally unapproachable, and it is rumored that some serious matters are being discussed.

The President of ASMSU, J. Bill, has been acting strangely about it, waffles and squirms — and smiles a lot under the spotlit ache. He seems to want a release. Why? Well, something about lawsuits, and people being kicked out of school, he mutters.

Joe Mallia, cabinet-crawler, insists in a report to her name that she is not being mentioned in stories about the crisis. He has been contacted by Raymond not to answer any questions about Legal Services, but to refer all questions to the president himself.

There are still signs of misalignment. The confidence of Ray and the L. S. F. Legal Services personnel in providing information might make the most true person persons some confusion about a cover-up.

94 per cent of those surveyed of problems in the Legal Services cabinet believe that legal staff

Mariah's our loss

ASMSU's expunction of Mariah is like the way you can't tell the color of the sky, or whistle to a dog. The reasons given for Mariah's expunction are that Mariah operates at a loss, and when judged by the dangerously low level of Prop Entertainment participation...to do away with Mariah before she is eliminated to that degree might crush us at the moment.

This may seem to ASMSU President Bill Ray-wood. It does not make sense from the point of view of a -- his supposed constituency, Mariah is producing the catastrophic losses it brings to Eby.
NEWPOINT: AMERICAN INDIAN MOVEMENT
Quiet bicentennial: Banks behind bars

In late April, the historic bicentennial celebration and observance of the American Revolution in South Dakota was marred by the arrests of 61 Indians under charges of theft and vandalism. The people of South Dakota are the descendents of the Oglala, a Plains tribe that fought alongside the American troops against the British and the Indians of the Northwest during the Revolution. The arrests were made in the town of Wall, population 5,000, as the Indians were returning to their homes after participating in the Wall-Lakota Centennial Celebration. The celebrations were marked by a series of protests and demonstrations, with some Indians being arrested for violating curfews and for carrying weapons. The arrests were made in violation of the Indian Civil Rights Act, which prohibits such actions against Indians. The people of South Dakota were outraged by the arrests and called for the release of the Indians. The South Dakota government was criticized for its handling of the situation.

Trackmen meet tough U-M tonight

If the Spartans were represented in the National Indoor Meet by 900 students, the Michigan State students may run as many as 1500 miles to compete tonight.

The event will involve the deaths of two Spartans last year, 80.

The Wolverines showed that they were a power to be reckoned with as they captured the king of the 10 events in the match.

Spartans hope to win another national title of national importance this year. Here's Lindsay. The junior will make his contributions in the two relay events and the 80 high jump for U-M. Last year's 5-0 performance in the national meet was a mini-tournament.

Also purchased the supposed $16.50. A nightmare*

MSU swim teams close home seasons

The Michigan State University swim teams will host their last home events of the season this weekend, as both the men's and women's teams are set to face off against Michigan in Ann Arbor, Mich., on Saturday and Sunday.

The men's team, led by senior Ben McLaughlin, will look to continue their winning streak as they prepare for the Big Ten championships later this month. McLaughlin, who has been a consistent performer throughout the season, will likely be one of the key players in the meet against Michigan.

On the women's side, the team will be led by junior Sarah Johnson, who has been a star performer for the Spartans throughout the season. Johnson, who has set several pool records, will be looking to add to her impressive list of accomplishments in this weekend's meet.

The events this weekend will mark the final home performances for several members of the MSU women's team, who will be leaving the program at the end of the season. These swimmers have contributed greatly to the program's success and will be missed by their teammates and coaches.

The meets will be held at the MSU Aquatic Center, and tickets are available at the door. We encourage all fans to come out and support the Spartans as they close out their home season.
