NCAA linked with credit card conspiracy

By RALPH PENRODSON
State News Staff Writer

Formerly called the University of Mississippi, the university now known as the University of Central Florida (UCF) made the NCAA's list of schools that were allegedly involved in a credit card conspiracy.

The NCAA has charged that the university violated its rules by providing credit cards to student athletes as an incentive to perform well in the classroom.

The university has denied the charges and has appealed the decision.

The case involves a former student of the university who claimed that he was given a credit card by the university in exchange for a promise to maintain a high grade point average.

The NCAA has also charged that the university failed to properly report the transaction to the NCAA enforcement office.

The university has asked the NCAA to reconsider its decision and to reinstate its membership in the NCAA.

The case is still under investigation.

House approves probe order

HOUSE APPROVES ORDER TO INVESTIGATE ACCOUNTING:

The Michigan House of Representatives has approved a resolution that asks for an investigation of the Michigan State University fiscal and accounting practices. The resolution, introduced by Representative John Smith, alleges that there have been discrepancies in the university's financial records. The investigation will be conducted by a special committee of the House. The resolution now goes to the Senate for approval.

Michigan Department of Human Services: New Program

The Michigan Department of Human Services is launching a new program to assist low-income families. The program, called the Michigan Family Assistance Program, will provide financial assistance to families in need. The program will provide cash assistance, as well as help with utilities and other essential expenses. The program is designed to help families move towards self-sufficiency and improve their financial stability.

MPLA orders troops removal

The MPLA has ordered its troops to withdraw from Angola. The order was given by MPLA leaders in response to international pressure to end the civil war in Angola. The MPLA has been fighting against South African forces in Angola for several years, and the international community has called for an end to the conflict. The MPLA's withdrawal is seen as a positive step towards a peaceful resolution of the conflict in Angola.

Surrender of Namibian leader

The leader of the MPLA, Jonas Savimbi, has surrendered to the Namibian government. Savimbi has been fighting against Namibian forces in the Angolan civil war for many years. His surrender is seen as a significant development in the conflict, as it is likely to bring an end to the war in Angola.

Birth pill for men on its way

A birth control pill for men is on the horizon. Scientists have made significant progress in developing a male birth control pill, which could revolutionize family planning. The pill, known as the male equivalent of the oral contraceptive, has been in development for several years. The pill is designed to work by blocking the male reproductive system. Preliminary studies have shown that the pill is effective in preventing pregnancy.

Pardon investigation defeated

A pardon investigation aimed at former President Gerald Ford was defeated in the House. The investigation was introduced by Representative Jane Doe, who accused Ford of misconduct during his presidency. The investigation was opposed by many members of the House, who argued that it was a political move to undermine Ford's legacy. The investigation was defeated by a vote of 104-0.

Peron won't seek re-election

Peron, the current president of Argentina, has announced that he will not seek re-election. Peron has been in power for several years and has been accused of corruption and human rights abuses. His decision not to seek re-election is seen as a significant development, as it is likely to bring political change to Argentina.

Cod War fears relations

The Cod War has strained relations between Britain and Iceland. The dispute over fishing rights has been ongoing for several years, and the two countries have been unable to reach a resolution. The Cod War has been a source of tension between the two countries, and it is likely to continue to be a source of conflict in the future.

The calculator pen... a miracle of miniaturization

The Calculator Pen, an innovative device in the field of portable calculators, is an indispensable tool for anyone who needs to perform calculations on the go. Its compact size and ease of use make it ideal for students, engineers, and anyone who needs to perform calculations quickly and accurately. The Calculator Pen is a testament to the power of miniaturization, and it is sure to be a hit with anyone who needs to perform calculations on the run.
Grand River beautification gets no action

By RAY MARSHALL

The idea of beautifying the Grand River has been floated ever since construction of the old bridge, said Mayor Dick Pieper of Lansing. "But nothing has ever been done."

Mayor Pieper's idea of beautification of the river included lighting the river at night. "I want the river to look like a river," he said. The idea of beautifying the river was put on the Grand River Beautification Committee, which is still in existence, but has done nothing. Mrs. Pieper said that the idea of beautifying the river was not only his, but everyone's. "I think the river could be beautified," she said. "But I don't know how to do it."
There have been smarturnings of information lately in the State News and various other media regarding our troubles to obtain the means to produce a quality newspaper and at the same time maintain the quality of the paper.

Recent events, however, have made it necessary to inform our readership directly about the controversy. As always, the opinion of the State News newspaper itself. We will make sure that today's paper is unedited. How far in the future we would forecast, unedited paper, however, is a large question.

Policy for the State News, Inc., is set by a board of directors, composed of two faculty, four students, and two professional journalists. What a new board member is needed, it is the old manner. The new board member is a self-perpetuating board.

Early this week, the board received a letter from the President, which vindicated the decision.

We feel that the manner it was conveyed was most non-reprehensible. Little or no effort was made to have either student or_science or, perhaps, a faculty, in the revisions. When the revisions are being discussed of the staff, we are the first to agree that the decision was the usual caution of the editorial board regarding the board.

This quite deliberate delay of staff expression, according to the Board President Michael Dr., was due to the trend toward more "formal" and "desk" board meetings. The input of staff members may tend to initiate and head discussion away, be informed. The entire procedure was, at best, unwise.

Thus, according to demand that the State News Board formally adopt the past practice of including either the advertising manager as an official member of the board.

The entire revision procedure was prompted in the first place by initiatives4 generated last spring concerning the role of the general superintendent. We asked for a definitive stand.

The General Manager has now taken it upon himself to remove any of my staff that he feels is "in the past" implying passive deletion to the State News. In addition, he is now an advisor. Under any other arrangement we would relatively harmless; but given the present circumstances, we can only view this with little faith.

We therefore request that the State News Board formally adopt the past practice of including either the advertising manager as an official member of the board.

We recognize, however, that the substantial cuts to the student newspaper results from the personalities within management, but from the structural members.

K.K. protesters
In response to the above charges against the State News Board, I wish to call attention to the fact that State News Board members function under the supervision of the State News. The State News Board is responsible for the content of the State News, not the...

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

The Kickback also has special navigational equipment which makes it more accurate and reliable. It is also equipped with a D-control system which can be used for this or other tasks. The system is designed to improve the accuracy of the missile and its ability to hit its target. The system is also designed to be able to work in various weather conditions.

By the close of the play I would willingly have repaid the admissions in order to hear the entire three hours of it once more. The cast was spectacular, the setting beautiful, the music more than excellent.

If you only see one play this year, "Camelot" is definitely not the one.

By Sherry Scott
FORTUNE Interview

Interviewer: Can you elaborate on "Camelot," Please?
Kettke, Student: It is the story of King Arthur and his court. The play is set in the Winter of 525 A.D.

Interviewer: How did you become involved with the play?
Kottke: I was chosen by the director, Dr. Abraham, to be the King, and I have been working on the play for the past three weeks.

Interviewer: What is your role in the play?
Kottke: I play King Arthur, the leader of the Round Table. I am responsible for making important decisions and leading the knights in battle.

Interviewer: What have you learned from being involved in the play?
Kottke: I have learned a lot about leadership and responsibility. I have also had the opportunity to work with some very talented students.

Interviewer: Do you think you will continue to be involved in theater in the future?
Kottke: Yes, I do. I think that theater is a very important part of education and I plan to continue to participate in it.

Interviewer: Thank you very much for your time.
Kottke: You're welcome.
STATE OF 'U': beset by trials...

University students and faculty members were recently notified by President M. Anderson that the University of Michigan is under investigation by the U.S. Justice Department. The investigation is focused on alleged violations of federal civil rights laws. Faculty members at the University were told that the Justice Department is looking into allegations of discrimination based on race, gender, and sexual orientation.

President Anderson assured the faculty that the University is committed to providing a safe and inclusive environment for all students. However, many faculty members expressed concern that the investigation may lead to a loss of funding and resources for the University.

In response to the investigation, many faculty members have called for a more transparent and inclusive process. They have also urged the University to take action to address the allegations of discrimination.

The investigation is expected to take several months, and it is unclear what the outcome will be. However, many faculty members are concerned that the investigation may lead to a loss of funding and resources for the University.

Citizen group intends to save historically valuable house

DeNANN ROBERTS

Two Detroit State University students

The Michigan State University Board of Trustees held four meetings March 20 to discuss the possibility of moving the house in keeping with its restoration plans. The house is valued at $17,000.

The house was originally the home of Capt. Charles H. Cook, who was a member of the Michigan State University Board of Trustees from 1908 to 1916.

The house was purchased by the state in 1935 and was used as a residence for the University President. It was later used as a residence for the Office of the Registrar and the Office of the President.

The house is located on the campus of the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

The house is a two-story frame structure with a hip roof. It has four gables and six dormers.

The house is valued at $17,000, according to the financial report of the Michigan State University Board of Trustees.
