The Democratic presidential candidate said he would hold a "cool, calm, and collected" debate on Tuesday with his opponent.

In a letter to the editor, the candidate called for a "common-sense" approach to the issue, saying that "we cannot afford to let this debate define our campaign." He added that "we must remain focused on the issues that matter most to the American people."

Military foreign aid bill defeated

Washington—President Ford's veto of a $4 billion emergency foreign aid bill was upheld yesterday by the Senate, 71 to 22, without the needed two-thirds margin.

In voting the original bill last week, Ford accused the Senate of overreaching, but he said yesterday that if Congress would consider a compromise measure, he would act favorably on it. The act passed by the Senate without the needed two-thirds majority.

The bill would have provided $4 billion in economic aid to Pakistan, $2 billion to Jordan, $1 billion to Egypt and $1 billion to Israel. The president had said that every country should contribute to a solution of the Middle East crisis.

Secretary of Interior states rules protecting environment

Washington—With the signing of a new environmental law yesterday, Secretary of Interior James Watt said that the United States is on the verge of a new era in environmental protection.

The law, which Watt said would be the most far-reaching environmental law ever passed by Congress, is designed to protect the nation's natural resources from pollution and to ensure that future generations will have a healthy environment.

Watt said that the law would establish a comprehensive system of regulations and restrictions to protect the nation's air, water, and land.

The law also contains provisions to protect endangered species and to ensure that new developments do not harm the environment.

Watt said that the law would be a significant step forward in the nation's efforts to protect the environment.

Saudis attempting Russian oast

Saudi Arabia is secretly using the power of its petroleum dollars to pressure the United States and the Arab world into a more severe stance against Iran's nuclear program.

The Saudis have been working behind the scenes to persuade their Arab neighbors to take a harder line against Iran, and they have also been urging the United States to be more assertive in its dealings with Teheran.

They have been using their oil revenue to buy support from other Arab countries and to influence the opinion of the American government.

Local students involved in ‘racial’ melee

By ED LUND

State News Staff Writer

Two local students were involved in what they both said was a racially motivated melee over the course of two days.

The students involved were identified as a freshman student at Michigan State University (MSU) and a junior student at Eastern Michigan University.

The freshman student said that he was attacked by a group of students at MSU on Monday afternoon while walking to class. He said that he was punched and kicked while trying to defend himself.

The junior student said that he was attacked by a group of students at Eastern Michigan University on Tuesday afternoon while walking to class. He said that he was punched and kicked while trying to defend himself.

Coach Rogers seeks leader

By TOM HEARNE
State News—Walter Bigelow and Jerry Beiler were the only returning starters for MSU's No. 1 quarterback this year. Despite their returning status, the magazine article, "We'll be..." makes it clear the expectations for the offensive game plan.

Rogers has said that his quarterback doesn't have to be a great passer or rushing threat, but he must be able to lead the team. "Well, if he's not the man who can take the team up the field and run with it and make the right decision, so much the better," Rogers said.

The key for finding a quarterback is to observe the way he does things. Rogers says, "It's in his personality. If you want to see who's going to make the right call, you've got to watch him play. He'll do it."

In addition, Rogers also states that MI players should be ready to work with the coaching staff to make the right decisions. "They will find that right man," he said, "and I believe the team will have confidence in whoever is the quarterback, and they'll feel comfortable knowing who's the man." Rogers believes that by working together, the team can achieve success.

Women organizing initial varsity club

Until now, MSU has never had a women's varsity club, but this will change in their sport of choice, basketball. The new club, called the Spartan Lady Spartans, meets Monday nights at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held in the MSU Student Union, in the varsity club.

The club's only manager, Louise Jackson, explains that the women's basketball team will be involved in their sport, possibly even entering the program with them.

Advertising to men in attempts to attract, the club is interested in bringing together the men and women of MSU for a new club.

The group present at Monday's meeting will discuss whether they will continue to work with a team until they can make a decision on who will lead the team.

The upcoming women's sports season and the appeal of the team's new and unique sport will bring the club's population.
