Students to pay more under 'U' budget plan

By ROBERT HILLMAN
State News Staff Writer

Students will be paying 10% more in tuition next year, according to the new budget proposal released by MSU. The increase is due to the state's continued demand for the university to return to a "number"-funded system.

The budget, as proposed by the administration, must still undergo a lengthy process before it is finalized. The budget, as proposed, includes a number of significant changes that will affect students, faculty and staff.

In the administration's budget proposal, a cash deficit is projected for this year and a $10.4 million deficit is projected for the 1984-85 fiscal year. The deficit is financed by $19.5 million from the investment fund and 25% of the MSU endowment, amounting to $47.6 million in state funding. The budget includes an increase of $47.6 million in state funding, representing a 7.5% increase in the overall budget.

Included in the administration's budget proposal is a cash deficit to reduce the state's contribution to the endowment fund, which is projected to be $25 million. By 1985, the administration expects $20 million in state funding, which translates into a 25% increase per cent cost from each credit hour. A budget was prepared for each college and department, amounting to a 2.5% cost cut from each college.

Proponents of the budget proposal say that the state's contribution to the endowment fund is necessary for the university to maintain its current level of educational programs.

"We need to have a cash deficit in order to maintain our current level of educational services," said President Ford.

Ams hints at invasion of Kenya, may resort to 'desperate action'

By THE Associated Press

The New York Times reported yesterday that Amin hints at possible armed invasion of the country by his own forces, the New York Times reported yesterday. According to the reports, Amin hinted that he will use military force if his wishes are not met.

Amin, who has been in power for many years, has previously threatened military action against neighboring countries, including Uganda. The reports indicate that Amin is considering preparing for military action.

The reports come as Amin's government has been facing increasing pressure from neighboring countries, especially Kenya.

The reports also indicate that Amin may be considering using military force to address the pressure from neighboring countries.

In a statement, Amin said, "If my wishes are not met, I will take any necessary action to protect the interests of my people."

No official comments have been made by Amin's government regarding the reports.

Mens label ticket 'Grits and Fritz'

By ROBERT HILLMAN
State News Staff Writer

A new ticketing system has been introduced by the MSU Athletics Department to increase revenue and improve the quality of the live entertainment experience. The new system, named "Grits and Fritz," aims to provide a more enjoyable experience for ticket holders.

The new system involves the separation of tickets into two categories: "Grits" and "Fritz." This separation is designed to control the number of tickets available for each category, thereby increasing the demand and, consequently, the revenue generated.

"Grits" tickets are priced higher than "Fritz" tickets, providing a more exclusive experience for those who wish to purchase them. However, "Fritz" tickets are still available at a lower price for those who are interested in attending but are not willing to pay the higher price for "Grits."

The new system has been met with mixed reactions from ticket holders. Some have praised the system for increasing the quality of the experience, while others have criticized it for reducing the availability of tickets.

Despite the mixed reactions, the new ticketing system is expected to generate significant revenue for the MSU Athletics Department. The department is confident that the system will increase the overall satisfaction of ticket holders and improve the overall experience of attending live entertainment events at MSU.
2 more suspects sought in school bus hijacking

Objector to face evasion charges

"spinlout"

- 100% Acrylic
- Scratch resistant
- Mopproof
- Shrinkproof
- Easy to clean
- Won't get damaged with normal wear and tear.
According to one of the city’s top weather forecasters, there was no way in the July forecast to predict any kind of "heat wave" that would last for days and average 90 or more every day. The forecast was for "sweltering" weather with a high of 88 degrees. But the heat wave was longer and hotter than any forecaster had predicted.

The City Council will vote to consider bus proposals this week.

Director of Municipal Planning Services Fred R. Askew said the proposed bus routes are a part of a $3.4 million downtown revitalization plan expected to be completed by 1980. The plan also includes a multi-key single-family housing project.

When the construction of a 2-story apartment building begins next week, the owners will be able to live in the building.

The apartments will be built by the University of Michigan in the former University Building, which will be converted to dormitory housing.

A new student center for the University of Michigan, which includes a restaurant, is being built south of the University Building.

The new center is expected to be completed by 1980 and will have a capacity of 1,200 seats.

The new center is expected to be completed by 1980 and will have a capacity of 1,200 seats. The center will also have a large meeting room, a coffee shop, and a gift shop.

A new student center for the University of Michigan, which includes a restaurant, is being built south of the University Building.

The new center is expected to be completed by 1980 and will have a capacity of 1,200 seats. The center will also have a large meeting room, a coffee shop, and a gift shop.

A new student center for the University of Michigan, which includes a restaurant, is being built south of the University Building.

The new center is expected to be completed by 1980 and will have a capacity of 1,200 seats. The center will also have a large meeting room, a coffee shop, and a gift shop.

A new student center for the University of Michigan, which includes a restaurant, is being built south of the University Building.

The new center is expected to be completed by 1980 and will have a capacity of 1,200 seats. The center will also have a large meeting room, a coffee shop, and a gift shop.

A new student center for the University of Michigan, which includes a restaurant, is being built south of the University Building.

The new center is expected to be completed by 1980 and will have a capacity of 1,200 seats. The center will also have a large meeting room, a coffee shop, and a gift shop.

A new student center for the University of Michigan, which includes a restaurant, is being built south of the University Building.

The new center is expected to be completed by 1980 and will have a capacity of 1,200 seats. The center will also have a large meeting room, a coffee shop, and a gift shop.

A new student center for the University of Michigan, which includes a restaurant, is being built south of the University Building.

The new center is expected to be completed by 1980 and will have a capacity of 1,200 seats. The center will also have a large meeting room, a coffee shop, and a gift shop.

A new student center for the University of Michigan, which includes a restaurant, is being built south of the University Building.

The new center is expected to be completed by 1980 and will have a capacity of 1,200 seats. The center will also have a large meeting room, a coffee shop, and a gift shop.

A new student center for the University of Michigan, which includes a restaurant, is being built south of the University Building.

The new center is expected to be completed by 1980 and will have a capacity of 1,200 seats. The center will also have a large meeting room, a coffee shop, and a gift shop.

A new student center for the University of Michigan, which includes a restaurant, is being built south of the University Building.

The new center is expected to be completed by 1980 and will have a capacity of 1,200 seats. The center will also have a large meeting room, a coffee shop, and a gift shop.

A new student center for the University of Michigan, which includes a restaurant, is being built south of the University Building.

The new center is expected to be completed by 1980 and will have a capacity of 1,200 seats. The center will also have a large meeting room, a coffee shop, and a gift shop.

A new student center for the University of Michigan, which includes a restaurant, is being built south of the University Building.

The new center is expected to be completed by 1980 and will have a capacity of 1,200 seats. The center will also have a large meeting room, a coffee shop, and a gift shop.
An unknown quantity: the state financial problems

Trenton Warren Hoff, D-Plzymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University standards are enjoying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University sersengers are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University service-
sengers are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from students. But, as I ascribe to-Plymouth, explained the rationale behind the state's proposed tuition increase in this way: "It was inevitable, from University services are en-
joying." Yes, inevitable has been a familiar word of late. It was inevitable that the state would pass on its budget problems to MSU; it was inevitable that the administration would run out of five-year contracts and face the unfortunate choice between cutting basic services and seeking more money from stu-
...
An open letter to Indira Gandhi

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi,

I am sure you were aware and shocked at the killing, although you didn’t do it yourself. I must not have known the old hand was effective; I even knew that it was condemned by your coalition government.

To the Prime Minister,

I am a black man in prison, 36 years old, and I am presently seeking my G.E.D. and self-development.

I have many interests and I promise to answer any letter I receive from you. I read my letter to you in prison.

White Male 54
P.O. Box
Louisiana, Ohio 44060

The State News Opinion Page Editor keeps a file of interest letters written to the middle world. If you are interested or know anyone who is interested in writing to me, please stop by 350 Student Union Building, Monday...

Letter policy

The Opinion Page welcomes all letters. Writers should place a cover letter in an envelope to ensure that many letters will be possible as paper.

Any person may write to the Editor of the Student Union Bulletin, 417 E. Main St., or to 315-414-4179. No anonymous letters will be accepted. Writers are urged to fill out author’s form, posted in the bulletin office.

Monday, July 26, 1976

An open letter to Indira Gandhi

I am sure you were aware and shocked at the killing, although you didn’t do it yourself. I must not have known the old hand was effective; I even knew that it was condemned by your coalition government.

To the Prime Minister,

I am a black man in prison, 36 years old, and I am presently seeking my G.E.D. and self-development.

I have many interests and I promise to answer any letter I receive from you. I read my letter to you in prison.

White Male 54
P.O. Box
Louisiana, Ohio 44060

The State News Opinion Page Editor keeps a file of interest letters written to the middle world. If you are interested or know anyone who is interested in writing to me, please stop by 350 Student Union Building, Monday...

Letter policy

The Opinion Page welcomes all letters. Writers should place a cover letter in an envelope to ensure that many letters will be possible as paper.

Any person may write to the Editor of the Student Union Bulletin, 417 E. Main St., or to 315-414-4179. No anonymous letters will be accepted. Writers are urged to fill out author’s form, posted in the bulletin office.

Monday, July 26, 1976

An open letter to Indira Gandhi

I am sure you were aware and shocked at the killing, although you didn’t do it yourself. I must not have known the old hand was effective; I even knew that it was condemned by your coalition government.

To the Prime Minister,

I am a black man in prison, 36 years old, and I am presently seeking my G.E.D. and self-development.

I have many interests and I promise to answer any letter I receive from you. I read my letter to you in prison.

White Male 54
P.O. Box
Louisiana, Ohio 44060

The State News Opinion Page Editor keeps a file of interest letters written to the middle world. If you are interested or know anyone who is interested in writing to me, please stop by 350 Student Union Building, Monday...

Letter policy

The Opinion Page welcomes all letters. Writers should place a cover letter in an envelope to ensure that many letters will be possible as paper.

Any person may write to the Editor of the Student Union Bulletin, 417 E. Main St., or to 315-414-4179. No anonymous letters will be accepted. Writers are urged to fill out author’s form, posted in the bulletin office.

Monday, July 26, 1976

An open letter to Indira Gandhi

I am sure you were aware and shocked at the killing, although you didn’t do it yourself. I must not have known the old hand was effective; I even knew that it was condemned by your coalition government.

To the Prime Minister,

I am a black man in prison, 36 years old, and I am presently seeking my G.E.D. and self-development.

I have many interests and I promise to answer any letter I receive from you. I read my letter to you in prison.

White Male 54
P.O. Box
Louisiana, Ohio 44060

The State News Opinion Page Editor keeps a file of interest letters written to the middle world. If you are interested or know anyone who is interested in writing to me, please stop by 350 Student Union Building, Monday...

Letter policy

The Opinion Page welcomes all letters. Writers should place a cover letter in an envelope to ensure that many letters will be possible as paper.

Any person may write to the Editor of the Student Union Bulletin, 417 E. Main St., or to 315-414-4179. No anonymous letters will be accepted. Writers are urged to fill out author’s form, posted in the bulletin office.

Monday, July 26, 1976

An open letter to Indira Gandhi

I am sure you were aware and shocked at the killing, although you didn’t do it yourself. I must not have known the old hand was effective; I even knew that it was condemned by your coalition government.

To the Prime Minister,

I am a black man in prison, 36 years old, and I am presently seeking my G.E.D. and self-development.

I have many interests and I promise to answer any letter I receive from you. I read my letter to you in prison.

White Male 54
P.O. Box
Louisiana, Ohio 44060

The State News Opinion Page Editor keeps a file of interest letters written to the middle world. If you are interested or know anyone who is interested in writing to me, please stop by 350 Student Union Building, Monday...

Letter policy

The Opinion Page welcomes all letters. Writers should place a cover letter in an envelope to ensure that many letters will be possible as paper.

Any person may write to the Editor of the Student Union Bulletin, 417 E. Main St., or to 315-414-4179. No anonymous letters will be accepted. Writers are urged to fill out author’s form, posted in the bulletin office.

Monday, July 26, 1976

An open letter to Indira Gandhi

I am sure you were aware and shocked at the killing, although you didn’t do it yourself. I must not have known the old hand was effective; I even knew that it was condemned by your coalition government.

To the Prime Minister,

I am a black man in prison, 36 years old, and I am presently seeking my G.E.D. and self-development.

I have many interests and I promise to answer any letter I receive from you. I read my letter to you in prison.

White Male 54
P.O. Box
Louisiana, Ohio 44060

The State News Opinion Page Editor keeps a file of interest letters written to the middle world. If you are interested or know anyone who is interested in writing to me, please stop by 350 Student Union Building, Monday...

Letter policy

The Opinion Page welcomes all letters. Writers should place a cover letter in an envelope to ensure that many letters will be possible as paper.

Any person may write to the Editor of the Student Union Bulletin, 417 E. Main St., or to 315-414-4179. No anonymous letters will be accepted. Writers are urged to fill out author’s form, posted in the bulletin office.
Hillsdale College resists Title IX, HEW sex discrimination codes

By SARAH BRIDGES

Unlike MSU, which has just completed a full study of the complaints with the Title IX Office of Civil Rights, Hillsdale College has not fully cooperated with the officials of the Dept. of Health, Educa tion, and Welfare (HEW). The college has continued to deny that its policies maintain discriminatory practices.

Hillsdale has a private college about 75 miles west of Detroit. It is the only college housed in an area that is not a part of the state of Michigan. However, its students receive state benefits for their higher education pursuits.

Hillsdale has not had an issue with HEW's law, but it has had one with its interpretation. In the past, it has refused to provide information to the officials of the Office of Civil Rights.

Hillsdale has been told by the HEW officials to change its student policies of discrimination. These are the same policies that the college is required to follow in order to receive federal funds.

Officials say lights stay on Overcrowded prisons raise question of rehabilitation effectiveness

continued from page 1

Trees provide looks, utility

Areas of special interest to many people are found throughout the United States. Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, is an area of special interest to many people. The area is located on the southern end of Lake Michigan and in the middle of a forest. The area is known for its beauty and its wildlife. The area is also known for its history. The area is the site of the Battle of Bladensburg.

E.L. group leads protest

continued from page 3

Lightning Point, a group of people who are concerned about the pollution of the Great Lakes, has launched a protest against the sale of water from the lakes. The group is known for its activism and its dedication to the environment.
New rabbi chosen for Hillel Foundation

SCIENTIFIC INTERESTS PROMOTED

High school students attend MSU

Animal ailments alleviated Auto insurance costs rise as students face cutbacks

By RAYMOND L. EISEN

Last year’s rate hikes may notrown on this year’s book.

Auto insurance rates are expected to exact a higher toll on the purse strings of students this year than ever before.

Because of rising claim costs, new business has been reduced for all but the largest companies serving the student market.

In southern Michigan, car companies are following more strict underwriting practices.

This is true, in part, because insurance companies are placing more emphasis on the productive use of the automobile.

Insurers are also making changes in their rates and coverage, according to a representative of the Michigan Insurance Association.

By increasing their service, with the prices they charge for it, insurers are trying to earn back more of the profit they have lost in the past.

In the past, insurers have been forced to lower rates to comply with the demands of the state’s Department of Insurance.

In recent months, however, they have been able to increase their service, after the state upheld the eligibility of insurance companies to comply with the rules of the Department of Insurance.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.

Insurance companies are
increasing their service by
raising rates for certain classes
of students and by restricting
or eliminating coverage for
student drivers.

In some cases, rates have
increased by as much as 40 per cent. In other cases, rates have
remained the same.

The increase in service is
likely to be felt most by students
who are under 21 years old and
who are driving either
family-owned or friends’ cars.
City parks, recreation programs offered

Criminal justice internships offered

Notification program given national status

A program developed and implemented by the Lansing Board of Education, the Lansing Police Department, and the Institute of Government has been given national status by the American Bar Association and the American Bar Foundation.

The program, which is designed to provide legal internship opportunities for college students, is the first of its kind in the state of Michigan. It was developed at the request of the Lansing Board of Education, which wanted to provide students with an opportunity to gain legal experience and to learn more about the judicial system.

The program is designed to offer students the opportunity to work with local police and court officials, to observe court proceedings, and to participate in various legal activities. Students are also encouraged to become involved in the legal community and to develop a greater understanding of the judicial system.

The program is available to all college students who are interested in pursuing a career in the legal field. It is open to students from all majors, and it is offered on a non-credit basis.

For more information, contact the Lansing Board of Education at 517-482-6007.
Edward L. Ronders

Lions unveil 1976 team

Cleveland—The old and the new. The day began as it had ended 13 years ago, with the same mat, the same name, the same 10-member team. It ended as it had not 13 years ago, with new faces and new names.

The faces in the Cleveland Arena were those of the newest team of Detroit Lions footballers, arriving as pupils of the 1963 team. The names were new. The mat was the same. The team was new.

The mat was the same. It was for the 1963 team. It was for the 1976 team.

For the 1963 team, the mat was a place of memory, of work, of the beginning of the end of a season, of triumphs, of sorrows, of the memories of a lifetime. For the 1976 team, the mat was a place of work, of the beginning of a season, of triumphs, of sorrows, of the memories of a lifetime.

The faces in the Cleveland Arena were those of the newest team of Detroit Lions footballers, arriving as pupils of the 1963 team. The names were new. The mat was the same. The team was new.

The faces in the Cleveland Arena were those of the newest team of Detroit Lions footballers, arriving as pupils of the 1963 team. The names were new. The mat was the same. The team was new.