 Studying dangerous use of IUD while pregnant study cites danger of using IUD while pregnant Device increases risk of death, report states

"This was meant to be the final nail in the coffin with regard to the use of the IUD in major pneumonias," Dr. Wilford Orme, Jr., who directed the study, told an interview. The study reached its conclusion after reviewing the accumulated evidence of deaths between 1970 and 1977, and in a one-year period from 1977 to 1978, the death rate of women using IUDs was 3.1 per 100,000 compared with 0.7 per 100,000 for those not using the device.

"The death rate for women using the IUD was significantly higher than for women not using the device," Orme said. "This is a clear indication that the use of the IUD is associated with a higher risk of death."

The Christmas plans of the City of Lansing, the buildings department, and the Michigan State University are in agreement. Lansing city officials have approved a construction plan for the future Capitol City Park, which is to be located on the west side of the Capitol area.

The plan is to include a large, pedestrian-friendly area in the center of the park, with a fountain and seating areas.

The construction will begin in November and is expected to be completed by the end of next year.

Arraignment Slated for 2 Drug Case

By Joe McCall

The trial for two men accused of drug trafficking is set to begin in Lansing District Court.

The accused, James Johnson and David Robinson, are charged with possession of more than 200 grams of marijuana. The men are scheduled to appear in court on December 12.

The case involves a drug bust that occurred in November in Lansing.

The public is urged to contact the Lansing Police Department if they have any information that may aid in the investigation.

students who need a quick loan up to $25 have been able to borrow the money since 1945 for up to three weeks, interest free from ASMSU.

At a starting winter term, students will be able to borrow up to $25 to hold them over for three weeks, thanks to a resolution passed Tuesday night by the ASMSU board members. The loan program, which started 11 years ago with a $15 limit, has proven to be one of ASMSU’s most popular and useful services. Last year, about 5,000 students borrowed $65,000 from ASMSU to help graduate students with living expenses.

Any undergraduate with a valid ASMSU membership card and a $10 bank deposit can borrow the loan up to $25 and must have the loan repaid within three weeks.

Last year, 90 per cent of the loans were paid back on time. Another 4 per cent were collected with the use of hold cards and still another 6 per cent were collected with the help of a collection agency.

By raising the loan limit, ASMSU is also recognizing the inflation that has hit his students from this sales tax.

ASMSU should use this decision as a guide in making future ones.

I would like to report to you all the facts behind the reading program which was entertained and was taken advantage of by both students and faculty.

First, the Cypco program did not cost the authorities anything, and there was no effect on the school. The money was given to the library as a result of the reading program, which was a very worthwhile program.

Second, the Cypco program was the most enjoyable entertainment. It was entertaining for both students and faculty.

Third, the Cypco program was the only program which was entertaining and which was entertaining for all people. It was entertaining for all people.

In conclusion, the Cypco program was the only program which was entertaining and which was entertaining for all people. It was entertaining for all people.

The members of Yardley Hall Women's Self-Defense Group, the oneupper long-haired, seemingly-preening hipster or hipster-guy (my bad) at the top of their lungs, are now the unsung heroes of the war. The group has been working quietly, but the news was made public this week by the Yardley Hall Women's Self-Defense Group newsletter.

The newsletter, which is distributed weekly, is a place for Yardley Hall Women's Self-Defense Group members to share their thoughts and experiences. It's a great way for new members to get involved and learn about the group's activities.

One of the group's main goals is to educate women about self-defense and empower them to take control of their lives. They offer classes, workshops, and seminars on a variety of topics, including how to identify and avoid dangerous situations, how to effectively use self-defense techniques, and how to prepare for emergencies.

The newsletter is a great resource for those interested in learning more about the group and its mission. It's also a great way to keep in touch with the Yardley Hall Women's Self-Defense Group and stay up-to-date on their latest news and events.

If you're interested in learning more about Yardley Hall Women's Self-Defense Group, or if you're a member and would like to share your thoughts with others, be sure to check out the newsletter. It's a great way to stay connected and learn from others in the group.

Women reported to pull highest academy grades

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The women cadets at West Point are doing better at the Academy than their male counterparts. Women cadets are often viewed as more vulnerable to sexual assault, but a recent study found that female cadets are actually more likely to succeed academically.

The study, conducted by researchers at the University of Virginia, found that female cadets consistently outperformed their male counterparts in a range of academic subjects. Female cadets were more likely to earn high grades, and they were also more likely to graduate from the Academy.

The researchers believe that there are several reasons for this. First, female cadets may be more motivated to succeed, as they are often the first in their families to attend a military academy. Second, female cadets may have better support systems, both inside and outside of the Academy.

Overall, the study provides strong evidence that female cadets are just as capable as male cadets, and that they should be encouraged to pursue their goals at the Academy.

Council chooses new officers

The senior class of the academy has chosen new officers for the upcoming academic year. The new officers will be responsible for leading the class in a variety of activities, including organizing events, coordinating with the administration, and representing the interests of the class to the Academy.

The new officers were selected through a competitive process, and they will serve a one-year term. They will be expected to work closely with the administration and other class officers to ensure that the class is able to achieve its goals.

The selection of new officers is an important step in the ongoing process of preparing the class for its upcoming year at the Academy. The new officers will have a critical role to play in ensuring that the class is able to make the most of its time at the Academy.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Basketball star Marv Barnes volunteered early Friday to appear in court, despite his attorney's request to have a new warrant issued against him for his 1977 arrest on charges that he was playing on a field where he was not permitted to do so. The case was referred to a jury, and it is expected that the trial will begin next week.

Wallace of Wonders Hall selected the most flight game in 10-24 with one of his goals in the second flight game. The hall's score for the game was 13-2, with the final score being 10-24.

Barnes was attending a party in a neighboring house when he was arrested. He was taken into custody and released on a $1,000 bond.

In the intramural football game on Tuesday night, July 11, Will went to court as Wonders Hall of Wonders Hall for the championship of flight one in the remainder of the division.

State News and Mail

As the rumblings from southern Arizona developments are increasingly heard, the legislature, which convenes Jan. 3, has created a bicameral version of recent music. It appears that the state of Arizona, which just two years ago was the butt of a joke about its "breakaway counties," will now be dealt with more seriously by the legislature and the state as a whole.

The new bill, which was introduced by Sen. John S. Bower of Cochise County, provides for the appointment of a state music coordinator to work with the state music department and to establish a state music program.

The bill also includes a provision for the creation of a state music committee to be appointed by the governor and to consist of three members: one from each house of the legislature.

The committee is charged with the responsibility of recommending to the governor the appointment of the state music coordinator and of providing a budget for the state music program.

The bill has received widespread support from music teachers and students throughout the state, and it is expected to be enacted into law by the end of the legislative session.

The bill was introduced following a series of public hearings held throughout the state, during which thousands of music educators and students expressed their support for the creation of a state music program.

The bill is expected to have a significant impact on the music education landscape in Arizona, providing much-needed support and recognition for the important role that music plays in our schools and communities.

The bill also includes provisions for the creation of a state music fund, which will be used to support music education programs throughout the state.

The bill is expected to be signed into law by the governor shortly after it is introduced, and it is expected to be implemented by the start of the next school year.

The bill is a testament to the power of music education and its importance in our lives. It is a step forward in ensuring that all students in Arizona have access to high-quality music education, and it is a step forward in ensuring that Arizona is a state that values the power of music.

The bill is a victory for music educators and students throughout the state, and it is a victory for the future of music education in Arizona.
Wall hole gets 'landmark' distinction

By MARY ANNE KINZALY

It was declared a "historical landmark" on June 7, 1975. It has been a hiding place for various items and events in the past.

But whatever is in a 300 Albion Hall has been a remnant of student life at MSU for the last three decades.

The "hole" in 1972 was a hole in the wall where water pipes were located along with three decades' worth of collegiate antics and dirt by students.

The hole is the wall was repaired before the 1980s and the event was recorded as an event in the hall.

"Some thought the room was too small, but I don't," said the local study.

On Dec. 21, 1982, another resident remembered that the hole is the wall has been "revisited from a study in a bar."

The last of 2000 suggested other cases for the hole in the wall. "Sometimes the front states accept the room. We feel it's your privilege to see this hidden room to lay any story away," said an的资金's note in 1982 to "keep your room not hidden." But a dormitory room in a dormitory room. Perhaps the hole hole is described at the best.

"We may never be residents but the room and we are always looking," as a man was found in the original note.

This room will accommodate the residents you may already have hidden deep within yourselves, yet we hope you enjoy the unique making wares and solving finding in the holes and retain these friends in your later years."

Kids' reading awareness program set for Saturday at Meridian Mall

For the third year in a row, an event designed to promote awareness of the value of reading for children will be held.

The "read-in," which is co-sponsored by the local teachers, the Lansing Board of Education and the Lansing District, will take place from 7:30 to 9 a.m. Saturday at the mall.

Library prof will design

floral arrangements at meeting

Don Durrer, assl. professor of horticulture at MSU, is recognized as one of the most outstanding figures in floristry arrangements in the area.

Durrer will design several arrangements at the MSU Faculty club meeting Friday at 1 p.m. in the Lansing Center Auditorium. The arrangements will be sold at a silent auction following the meetings.

A raffle will be available.

Curriculum, and Instruction (CIC), will also allow from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday in the Abbot's dormitory to the Lansing Mall, and will be open to all residents and the community.

Local horticulture students, parents and some high duty and elementary students will participate in reading to groups of children throughout the day.

"The students will be reading stories to assist the children in making upsets, creating stories and sharing - anything," Durrer said. "We want to make children enjoy reading to read for pleasure, to make the reading enjoyable for children and others who will enjoy in exciting ways.".

After children have participated in these stories, each will receive a free book purchased with funds donated by CICCS.

"The intent of the activity is for children, teachers will be on site helping children to see parents of the current reading program, Durrer said.

Regional pottery guild to display crafts

By MARTHA G. BENDETTI

FBI.

The Greater Lansing Pottery Guild has planned a 1981 slate of activities and programs to encourage awareness of and appreciation for the ceramic art medium within the community.

The guild, 365 Coburn, in Hanover, is a highly professional organization that uses various media to introduce people to the techniques of hand building.

The guild is a small, existing guild with a small membership. The main goal of the guild is to offer services to the community and to create an awareness of and appreciation for the ceramic art medium within the community.

The guild conducts numerous activities and programs throughout the year that are open to the public and to the community.

The guild offers a wide range of programs and activities such as work, lectures, and classes for guild members.

The guild is a member of the National Council of Education for the Arts. The guild has made available a variety of workshops and seminars for members and the community.
