Senate finishes maneuvers on Carter Cabinet

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Wednesday confirmed President Jimmy Carter's choice of Sen. Williams Proctor, D-Va., as the new interior secretary of the Department of the Interior.

Proctor, 59, a long-time advocate of environmental conservation, was confirmed by a 76-24 vote. He is the first African American to be confirmed for a cabinet-level position in the history of the United States.

Proctor's confirmation comes as the Senate is poised to vote on the nomination of Senator Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., for the position of White House chief of staff.

Tsngas, 46, a rising star in the Democratic Party, was nominated by Carter on February 23. If confirmed, Tsngas would become the first Asian American to hold a cabinet-level position.

Proctor, who has served in the Senate since 1975, has been a strong advocate for environmental issues and has been a critic of the administration's policies on energy and the environment.

The vote on Tsngas's nomination is expected to be close, with Democrats and Republicans divided on the issue.

Proctor's confirmation marks a significant moment in American history, as it represents the first time an African American has been confirmed for a cabinet-level position in the United States. The appointment comes as the country grapples with issues of race and equality, and as Proctor himself has been a vocal advocate for these causes.

Proctor, who was born in Virginia and grew up in the segregated south, has been a champion of civil rights and social justice throughout his career. He has been a leading voice for environmental justice and has been a strong advocate for policies that benefit communities of color.

Proctor's confirmation is a significant victory for the environmental movement, and for those who have been fighting for justice and equality for too long.

Mondale appeals for reduction of arms

ROVE (AP) - Vice President Walter F. Mondale said Sunday's trip to the Berlin Wall the least Cold War ever has been led, calling for two sides to "earnestly, seriously, zealous" appeal for arms reductions.

After inspecting the Berlin wall, Mondale held a news conference with West Berlin Mayor Hans Modrow. On his way home to the United States, Mondale will visit London and Paris.

Mondale said he sees no immediate prospects for an end to this "extraordinary war." He added his prediction of "the future of the world." He also said the war is "not over yet." Mondale said a "more serious" appeal for arms reductions is being made.

British report urges power sharing

LONDON (AP) - A government report recommended Wednesday that workers be given a voice in decisions made by their employers as Britain's manufacturing sector faces a recession.

The report by an opposition group on an industrial democracy urged the creation of "workers' councils" at the workplace to represent the interests of employees.

Working conditions were a "particularly pressing problem," the report said.

Coffee industry drops promotion plans

LONDON (AP) - Public outcry over soaring coffee prices has caused U.S. coffee refiners to give up plans for a $5 million promotion campaign in the United States.

Coffee refiners and marketers have been meeting to decide what action to take in response to the public's concern over the price of coffee and the increases in production costs. The refiners have been discussing ways to make the coffee more attractive to the consumer.

Law proposed to allow intrastate pipelines

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House of Representatives has passed a bill that would allow states to build and operate pipelines within their borders, bypassing federal regulations.

The bill was passed by a vote of 281-145.

Carter can fire FBI chief, Byrd says

WASHINGTON (AP) - Attorney General Griffin Bell, who has been accused of being a political appointee, said Wednesday that President Jimmy Carter can fire FBI Director William R. Sessions.

The Justice Department has been under pressure to act on the appointment scandal, which involves the potential conflict of interest of the FBI director, who is also the personal friend of the president.

Watergate conspirator to be paroled

WASHINGTON (AP) - Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt will be released from federal prison on May 26 after a judge granted his parole.

Hunt, who was convicted of perjury and obstruction of justice in the Watergate break-in, had been serving a sentence of 10 years and was eligible for parole.

A Senate committee cleared Hunt's petition for parole on the 2-year, 10-month recommendation of the parole board.

Strikers, demonstrators protest violence campaign by Franciosi

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate approved a resolution condemning the violence campaign of the French government.

The resolution, sponsored by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, was passed by a vote of 97-0.

The resolution urged the White House to make clear its opposition to the violence campaign of the French government and to work with the French government to find a peaceful solution to the crisis in Algeria.

Mondale says US should help reunify Germany

WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House on Thursday said it would consider sending economic aid to West Germany if progress is made on the reunification of the two countries.

The statement came after Dr. George Bush, who is on a trip to the Middle East, told reporters that the united Germany is a "vital interest of the United States."

Bush said the United States has already been providing economic aid to West Germany.

Warren runs for Senate in Michigan

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Democratic National Committee will meet this week to decide whether to support Sen. Carl D. Warren, D-Mich., in his Senate race.

Warren, a former Michigan state attorney general, is facing a strong challenge from Rep. James P. Humes, D-Mich., in the race for the Senate.

Warren has been criticized for his handling of the Watergate scandal and his role in the scandal's investigation.

A memo to the Senator from the state attorney general's office said Warren should not seek the Senate nomination because of his role in the Watergate scandal.

Bowman resigns Senate position

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. John H. Bowman, D-Minn., announced Thursday that he will resign his Senate seat to become president of the University of Minnesota.

Bowman said he has been advised by doctors that he cannot continue to serve in the Senate due to his health.

Bowman has been in a coma since last month and has been hospitalized for several weeks.

He served in the Senate for 22 years and was a major force in the Senate on issues of health care and education.
Rise in drinking age may give 'U' trouble

By DICK MANNARD

Another try at legalizing drinking age has been made, this time by Sen. John D. Dickerson, D-Adirondack, one of theusual leaders in Senate bills.

Sen. Dickerson introduced a bill March 27 to make the drinking age 20. It was defeated in March. He两次 attempts in the legislature to eliminate the minimum age on the consumption of alcohol. His efforts this time were in vain.

Dickerson said that he was "a good friend of the state's young men and women." He said he was "a good friend of the state's liquor industry," and that he was "a good friend of the state's economy." He said he was "a good friend of the state's tax base," and that he was "a good friend of the state's budget." Megalomani-Mack bullies senators again

The laws given by ASMSU Student Board refer to giving open space to two religious organizations Tuesday night are questionable.
The two Christian groups, Campus Artist and Sports Organization, claimed space on the grounds that they had missed the deadline, that space should be given to religious organizations because there should be a separation between church and state, and that if we give one group space, a group of people of another religion would also want space.

The only excuse that had an inkling of credibility is that both groups had applied after the deadline and, therefore, ASMSU would be violating its rules.

But even this excuse is weakened in light of the fact that the same rules, such as PIRG and ASMSU, were applied after the deadline and received space.

According to ASMSU officials, these groups were not considered after the deadline because they already had open space and did not know that they had to apply early.

If ASMSU insists upon sticking to its code, it ought not to allow the groups to share space.

We also question ASMSU’s grounds for refusing to date out space because the groups are religiously oriented.

Religious groups have been given space in the past and use the space in allocating space suggest that religious groups shall be denied offers.

We might be able to understand the groups that were denied space because there was not enough room - but the space was available.

In the Sep. 8 Activities Committee had worked out a schedule that would have allowed the groups to shared 800 square feet, as used by various groups on that held a base and need a lot of time to offer.

The religious groups would have used the room for religious counseling and a place where people could talk about their spiritual needs. The religious groups run by such groups as the True Star Club, the female pan-hellenic group, and the women of Aramis are also under the procedures of ASMSU. It seems that ASMSU can provide space for the female pan-hellenic group and the women of Aramis, but it could not be found a place for two groups to worship.

In future decisions over the allotment of space, we would like to see ASMSU to be a little more consistent and handle the space so that religious groups are to be denied space should at least be put in writing.

It's true

Ed Radius is probably going to get a lot of flak for his “black face” column. But I don’t care, it’s a joke. You can’t get away with much of the “character building” you see in sports, and you’re going to have to learn to do it.

Biased

The Denver Star News Editorial Staff has always been, at least during the last five years, a news- end, and Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist and teacher, John W. Mack, was clearly motivated last Friday with the same anger that was in the heart of the Star News, as it was on the airwaves.

I read a recent article in which the Star News was accused of being a biased paper. The Star News is a newspaper, and it is not the responsibility of this paper to print false information.

I also wonder how often you play to the audience, and how often you publish an article that is not in your best interest.

Women's studies reps inspired by national Frisco conference

By SARAHU PORTER

Those members of the MSU Women's Studies group who just returned from the London conference had plenty to digest and they're looking forward to sharing their experiences with the group.

The conference was sponsored by the University of London's Centre for Women's Studies and was attended by students and faculty from 23 institutions in Canada, the United States, Great Britain, and Australia.

The purpose of the conference was to present new research on women's issues, to focus on theoretical perspectives, and to support the development of women's studies programs in the various institutions represented.

The conference had a strong emphasis on interdisciplinary approaches and included sessions on topics such as women's history, literature, and politics.

The participants also had the opportunity to visit various women's studies programs in London and to meet with students and faculty from other institutions.

Overall, the conference was seen as a valuable opportunity for those involved in women's studies to share knowledge, to learn from each other, and to build relationships.

The conference was well-received, and the participants left with a greater understanding of women's studies and the important role it plays in the academic and social landscape.

Women's studies continues to expand, and the conference was a testament to the growth and importance of this field.

OHP transport system manner leaving

by JUDITH PUTNAM

State News Staff Writer

When Terry Davis began his work in January 1971 as President of the Michigan State University System, one of his goals was to improve the transportation system between the various campuses and the local community.

Davis has been extremely active in this area, and has made significant progress in recent years.

One of the initiatives that Davis has pursued is the implementation of a comprehensive transportation plan for the entire system.

The plan includes a wide range of measures, such as the expansion of existing bus routes, the development of new routes, and the use of alternative transportation modes such as bicycles and electric scooters.

Davis has also worked to improve the safety and accessibility of the transportation system, with an emphasis on ensuring that all riders have a safe and comfortable experience.

The transportation system is a vital component of the university system, and Davis is committed to ensuring that it continues to meet the needs of the student body and the broader community.

The university system is located in a rapidly growing area, and Davis recognizes the importance of providing high-quality transportation services to support the growth and development of the region.

Davis has been a strong advocate for the transportation system, and is committed to ensuring that it remains a priority for the future.

He has been highly effective in this role, and his efforts have helped to improve the transportation system for the benefit of all members of the university community.
Major schools reach a critical period

For the athletes, Keeney said, spending isn't keeping increasing. Keeney said money isn't needed just to fight academics. "Things that may seem more important to the future, to me, are more things that are not as important," she said. "You don't want to spend your time doing that."

The schools have been criticized for being too expensive, and Keeney said that's one reason for the criticism. "These schools are being criticized for being too expensive," she said. "That is true, but there is a reason for that."

To keep up with the competition, the schools have been increasing their spending. "The schools are trying to keep up with the competition," she said. "They want to be sure they are competitive."

Student clubhouse proposed; campuswide support urged

A proposal for a student club on Lake Lansing was presented to the Council of Graduate Students (COS) Monday night by Robert L. Sorel, MSU associate director of intercollegiate sports.

Proposed for the purchase of the Delta property, on which a proposed two-story building and the expansion of the facility to 20 rooms.

Facilities that would be offered include a common, reading area, kitchen, offices, sleeping areas, and a swimming pool. The facility would be open to all students, including graduate students.

The request sought $250,000 for the project, with an estimated cost of $500,000, according to Sorel. The cost of $250,000 would be used for the construction of the building and the expansion of the facility.

Sorel suggested that the proposal be put on hold as long as students are in school.

If the proposal is approved, the club would be used for the first time on Monday.

Sorel said that the club would mean more jobs for students. Approximately 20 to 30 jobs would be available, including security, cleaning, and operating the bar.
