

Lockheed payoff trial continues

TOKYO (AP) — A second group of defendants indicted in connection with the Lockheed payoff scandal went on trial on Monday at the Tokyo District Court.

The eight defendants are former Transport Minister Tomisaburo Hashimoto, 75; former Parliamentary Transport Vice Minister Takayuki Sato, 48; Tokujii Wakasa, chairperson of All Nippon Airways (ANA), and five other ANA executives.

Former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka was in the first group at a trial that opened last Thursday. Those being tried with him are his secretary and three executives of Marubeni, a major trading company and promotion agent for Lockheed in Japan.

Hashimoto was indicted Sept. 10 for allegedly accepting a $17,000 payoff from ANA in November 1972. He is charged with using his position to push the sale of Lockheed's Tristar jetliners to ANA.

Sato was indicted on the same day as Hashimoto and is accused of accepting a $6,900 bribe in the Tristar deal.

Newspaper reports Daoud's arrest

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Officials of the Palestine Liberation Organization here would neither confirm nor deny Monday a report that guerrilla leader Abu Daoud, focus of an international controversy, was arrested by Syrian authorities.

But a PLO source acknowledged that the Palestinian leadership was "in contact with Syrian authorities on this subject."

The report was published in Rabat, Morocco by the newspaper L'Opinion, which cited a "well-informed source."

The newspaper said it did not know why the Palestinian would have been arrested.

Sources here speculated that Daoud's purported arrest by the Syrians might be connected with his denunciation of Jordan in a recent interview with a Columbia Broadcasting System television crew in Damascus.

Daoud charged in the interview that Jordanian security police planned his Paris arrest in collusion with Zionist organizations.

Official issues tanker safety rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling the recent rash of tanker accidents "intolerable," Transportation Secretary Brock Adams Monday directed that all tankers operating in U.S. waters be equipped with a variety of navigational and safety devices.

In his first major action as secretary, Adams also established a top-level Marine Safety Task Force to create a maritime safety policy for the depart-

"The safety regulations I am issuing today will take a big step toward reducing these accidents and the casualties and pollution they cause," Adams said in a statement.

The task force will review maritime safety regulations to determine what measures can be taken at the earliest possible date to reduce the potential for oil spills," he said.

Judge orders FBI to surrender tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge Monday ordered the FBI to turn over all tapes and transcripts gathered in the wiretapping of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. to the National Archives and directed that they be kept there under seal for 50 years.

A suit for damages had been brought by Bernard Lee, former assistant to the slain civil rights leader, and by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which King headed until his death in 1968.

They charged that the FBI tape recorded King's conversations in a room at Washington's Willard Hotel between 1963 and 1968. Both Lee and the SCLC asked for monetary damages and that records of the overheard conversations be destroyed or impounded.

Longet sentenced in Aspen

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Claudine Longet, pleading with a judge to have mercy on her as the mother of three children, was sentenced Monday to serve 30 days in jail "at a time of her own choosing" in the killing of her lover.

District Judge George Lohr, moved by Longet's plea, expressed compassion for her and her family but said he felt releasing her with no jail time "might undermine respect for the law." He also put her on two years' probation.

Electric rates may be increased

LANSING (UPI) — Consumers Power Co. has asked the state Public Service Commission to allow it to raise electric rates by $164.2 million.

If granted, the increase would boost the monthly bill for a residential customer using an average of 500 kilowatt-hours of electricity by $4.26.

The latest request, filed Monday, came less than a year after Consumers was granted a $33.9 million rate hike. The commission allowed Consumers to boost its electric rates in April, 1976.

Coalition asks utilities for moratorium

LANSING (UPI) — The head of the Michigan Welfare Reform Coalition has asked Michigan's largest utilities to declare a moratorium on shutting off services to customers with outstanding bills until the excessively cold weather breaks.

Tom Bergeson, who also is director of the Michigan Catholic Conference, said

Monday he has asked the presidents of Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., Detroit Edison and Consumers Power to make certain that "none of your customers will be deprived of service."

"The double effect of rapidly escalating costs and increased usage has adversely impacted the limited budgets of many welfare recipients," he said.

House committee modifies plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Commerce Committee Monday modified President Carter's emergency natural gas bill to include price ceilings while the Senate neared final action on the bill in nearly the same form as the president proposed.

The Senate was expected to approve the bill Monday night and a House vote was scheduled for today.

The House panel sent the bill to the floor under a speeded-up procedure that allows no further amendments but which requires a two-thirds vote of House members.

In the Senate, all major efforts to amend the bill were voted down after leaders urged that such changes could seriously endanger the chances of prompt action on the measure.

The ceiling amendment adopted by the House committee would apply to the price of intrastate gas going into interstate system under new contracts in accord with the emergency provisions of the bill.

Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., author of the amendment, said it would probably result in ceiling prices ranging from about $2 to about $2.22 per 1,000 cubic feet, depending on the state of origin. Without the amendment there would have been no limit on the price of intrastate gas sold to add to interstate supplies. Recently such emergency sales have drawn prices as high as $2.25 per thousand cubic feet. Interstate gas would remain regulated at $1.44 per thousand cubic feet.

The effect on consumer prices is hard to estimate as the amount of higher priced gas will vary from pipeline to pipeline. It is, however, expected to be only a small percentage of the total gas sold.

The House provision would allow the President to approve above-ceiling sales if these were necessary to get the gas for interstate use.

Eckhardt said he did not think this would occur in many cases, but that it might be necessary if intrastate purchases bid up the price of gas.

The ceiling would be computed at 115 per cent of the price of gas sold within the originating state in the second quarter of 1976.

Eckhardt said the Texas price then was $1.75, so the new ceiling would be about $2.02. An additional 10 per cent could be added for transportation charges if the gas was sold by the producer to an intrastate pipeline which in turn sold it interstate.

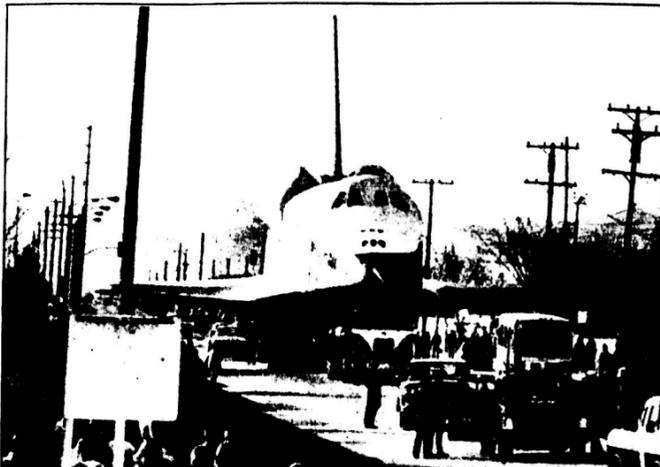

later approved the House consideration by vote.

Despite warnings from Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd that efforts to amend the bill could kill it and spark the cold-spawned gas crisis, the Senate became embroiled in attempts to broaden the legislation.

It rejected, 58 to 42, an amendment by Sen. J. Abourezk, D-S.D., that would have expanded the President's power to allocate natural gas beyond what he is seeking.

Attempts to change the legislation were also made in the House Commerce Committee.

Carter is seeking authority to allocate gas among interstate pipelines to get it to the areas that need it the most. He also would allow the price to buy gas at market prices through Aug. 1.

REMARK REPORTED IN COMMITTEE SESSION

FTC official denounces Nader

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Trade Commissioner Paul Rand Dixon called consumer advocate Ralph Nader "a son-of-a-bitch and a dirty Arab" at a recent appearance before an industry group, according to sources who attended.

Dixon, when asked by a reporter on Monday about the incident, would not deny making the slur and declared "I don't intend to apologize to Ralph Nader."

Nader countered that "He owes me and his chief, President Carter, and many other Americans an apology. And he will give me one."

Meanwhile, it was understood that the National Association for Arab Americans was drafting a formal protest to the White House. It was likely to be delivered today.

Dixon's remarks were made in a question-and-answer session with a technical committee of the Grocery Manufacturers Association of America. The meeting, attended by about 50 people, was held at a hotel in nearby Arlington, Va., Jan. 17 to discuss consumer issues and the industry's dealings with regulatory agencies, including the FTC.

Dixon acknowledged to The Associated Press that "I made some remark, and I don't imagine I said anything complimentary about Nader. He's never said anything complimentary about me."

The AP learned of the incident through participants at the business meeting. They asked not to be identified.

Asked specifically if he had called Nader "a son-of-a-bitch and a dirty Arab," Dixon replied that "I would not deny a remark...saying that's my attitude about Ralph Nader, no."

Dixon did say that one industry official of Arab descent had written to him later to complain about the ethnic slur. This man "felt that I had offended him, and I apologized if it was any offense to him."

Dixon, 63, has been a member of the commission, the federal agency most responsible for protecting consumers against unfair business practices, since the early 1960s and served for several years as chairperson. He has long been noted for his saltiness of expression. He and Nader have been steady foes. Nader issued a report in 1969 which attacked Dixon's role as chairperson, saying the FTC was lethargic, pro-business, wasteful and insensitive to consumer needs.

"He's told some awful lies about me," Dixon told the AP. "I don't think he's quite what he's cut out to be."

Asked to be specific about what "lies" Nader had told about him, Dixon replied "You ought to read the book," meaning the 1969 report.

Nader, of Lebanese descent, said that "It's sad to see Dixon communicate bigotry in front of a big business group that he loves to court instead of grappling with the issues."

Jail term given to ex-U.S. rep

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. James F. Hastings, R-New York, was sentenced Monday to serve 20 months to five years in prison for accepting salary kickbacks from two men on his congressional payroll.

Hastings, who resigned a year ago to become president of a trade association, was given a week to clean up his affairs before reporting to prison.

Where he will serve his term will be decided by the Bureau of Prisons in the next few days.

Hastings was convicted Dec. 1 by a jury of 20 counts of mail fraud and eight counts of making false statements to the House Finance Office. The maximum sentence on each count was five years in prison.

U.S. District Judge June L. Green said she received many letters to the effect that Hastings served his district well, that he and his family suffered enough already and that "since everybody does it, it is unfair to make an example of you."

She said she had considered all that but added, "You were elected to a position of honor with grave national responsibilities. The conduct for which you have been found guilty constituted a violation of that public trust."

"The allegations that your actions in receiving kickbacks was standard procedure denigrates the vast majority of honorable public officials."

And, she added, "The present prosecution and sentence will put on notice those few whose actions do violate the law."

"We feel a double standard should not exist where a person who commits a crime gets a heavy sentence and a person who commits a collar crime gets a light sentence," Kotelly said.

Hastings, 50, had had a judge "to view my private life...the success I achieved."

He was given 10 days to appeal the sentence. His lawyer, Jacob A. Stein, would not appeal.

Hastings resigned seven years in Congress to become president of American Industries of New York, a trade association. At the time he had accumulated a debt.

He was convicted of counts involving payments to David C. Walden, a Bay Lake, N.Y., merchant who worked for him part-time as a driver. Walden testified following directions from congressmen, he used payments from the government to pay Hastings' bills at a marina.

Hastings also was convicted on all counts of false statements involving Leonard J. Wellsville, N.Y., auto dealer who was a representative for him in his congressional district.

He also was convicted of counts of mail fraud in checks to Jones that immediately followed payments in identical amounts.

Prosecutors said he probably would serve 20 months — at a minimum — in a federal penitentiary institution such as Wood, Pa.

Ill requires notification case of utility shut-off could be no bigger surprise in the recent subzero degree than to wake up in the morning and find the heat shut off, the senator is doing his part to see that utility customers shut off without personal notification.

The Lansing Board of Water and Light's policy on shut offs varies according to the case, a spokesperson said. He added that he was certain the overdue client would be talked to in person before utility service was cut off.

The Board of Water and Light usually issues three or more warnings to nonpaying customers. There are special credit arrangements available, the spokesperson said, to help clients meet payments.

Otterbacher's legislation would also require local welfare agencies to be notified of pending power shut-offs. Welfare officials would also be required to visit customers to make sure no health problems interfered with payment.

If a person's ill health prevented him from payment, the utility companies could grant an extension of up to 21 days before cutting off service.

Perry said the legislation was not intended to hamper the utility companies. The Board of Water and Light said it would not cause them any additional burden, since it often sends collectors to visit customers before shut-offs take place.

Perry said the bill's main focus was on senior citizens with fixed incomes who sometimes have problems meeting high utility bills. He added that the senator's office had received mail from senior citizens asking for help with utility problems.

The aide said the measure was a high priority for Otterbacher, and added that it seemed to have wide legislative support.

Equipment to assist equal-handicappers

By JUDY PUTNAM
State News Staff Writer

On the weekend bus ride home, copying notes from a class, using the card catalog or catching a few chapters of a book, these habitual routines, taken for granted by students, were once tedious barriers for the sightless.

With the recent purchase of $22,000 worth of sophisticated equipment by the Office of Programs for Handicappers, 25 visual-handicapper students will find the world of books easier.

The equipment will assist in equal educational opportunity for handicappers at MSU," said Mike Ellis, director of Library for visual-handicappers.

Set up in a small office in the fourth floor of the Library, Ellis braille titles on recorded magazines he just received in his office is surrounded by the various-sized machines which he uses in their classes.

One device out of a locked cabinet. Encased in a plastic, the Op-ta-con is about the size of a thick law book with the amount of a small car. A tiny camera attached to a video printer reads printed letters and transmits tactile sensations to a box.

By placing a finger inside the Op-ta-con, one can feel vibrations of the printed material and since the device is used by students can now read card catalogs, tests, maps, or anything in print where before it would have to be read by a student.

Other equipment now available from the office are a talking calculator, a typewriter, braille duplication and TV magnifiers.

The equipment was purchased from a grant, 20 percent of which was from MSU and the remainder in matching funds from the state.

Walden has a master's degree in rehabilitation counseling, and his primary area of service from his office is the production of cassette tapes which can be recorded and duplicated on cassettes using a new tape duplicator machine. Students used to have to go to the office and listen to the textbooks on a reel-to-reel tape.

Board has nothing on its agenda

Nothing is likely to come up at tonight's ASMSU Student Board meeting, Michael Lenz, Student Board president, said.

"There's not a damn thing going on," he said. "That's why I didn't want to have a meeting this week."

Members of the budget and space allocations committees said they might not make recommendations on any bills.

"You never know, though," said Comptroller Jim Haischer. "Things seem to pop up."

Kirsten Frank, policy committee member, said she did not know what bills the policy committee would report out to the Student Board.

WIDENING PLAN TO BE PRESENTED

Hearing to focus on road issue

By GEORGIA HANSHEW
State News Staff Writer

East Lansing residents will have the chance to give their points of view tonight on the proposed widening of Lake Lansing Road this summer, at a public hearing to be held at 7:30 before the regular City Council meeting.

The engineering department will present its plan, based on a 1963 recommendation by the city planning commission that the two-lane Lake Lansing Road be widened to four lanes.

The engineering department's proposal to the council calls for a divided, four-lane highway from Marfitt Road west to U.S. 127, and for a four-lane, undivided highway from Marfitt Road east to Abbott Road.

These two sections comprise one mile of Lake Lansing Road. Plans for the divided highway include a landscaped median.

"Lake Lansing Road handles 50 per cent more cars now than it's designed to handle," Planning Director Scott Radway said.

A 1976 traffic court showed an average of 11,000 cars driving on Lake Lansing Road between Marfitt Road and U.S. 127 each day. It was designed to accommodate about 7,450 cars.

Lake Lansing Road runs along the southern edge of the proposed Dayton-Hudson mall site, and would be the main artery to the mall. The mall to start after the cigaret was lit, but Gingerich said that this is nothing unusual.

"It's not unusual for a fire to ignite in that amount of time," he said. "She was fortunate that she woke up when she did, especially since she was alone."

Gingerich also said that cigarets are second only to candles as the major cause of fire on campus.

location would greatly increase traffic on that stretch of Lake Lansing Road.

Radway raised questions recently about whether an undivided four-lane highway would be able to accommodate these high levels of traffic.

Another issue involved in the road-widening project is the right-of-way, or the width of land owned by the city for the road and sidewalks.

The planning department originally recommended that the city purchase a 100-foot right-of-way, but complications involving property owners along Lake Lansing Road have resulted in city ownership of no more than 80 feet of right-of-way. A 100-foot right-of-way would bring sidewalks within 20 feet of some homes.

The City Council will end months of hearings, project-shuffling and discussion when it finalizes plans tonight for the expenditure of its $602,000 Community Development (CD) funds.

The CD funds, administered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, were granted to the city for the improvement of housing, living environment and economic opportunity for persons of low and moderate income.

Also at the meeting the planning staff will present its recommendation for street lighting of Grand River Avenue for the council's review. The $40,000 project will be funded jointly by East Lansing and MSU.

The CD funds, administered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, were granted to the city for the improvement of housing, living environment and economic opportunity for persons of low and moderate income.

Human rights issue gaining importance

U. S. support of repressive regimes may cause Capitol Hill showdown

By BOB BARBER
Pacific News Service

WASHINGTON — President Jimmy Carter may find his first policy hot potato lurking in recently disclosed State Department reports on human rights violations by U.S.-backed regimes.

The reports assert that such violations — including torture — in Argentina, Haiti, Peru, Iran, Indonesia and the Philippines, they urge that U.S. aid continue to these countries over overriding geopolitical interests.

The conclusion places the State Department on a collision course with the growing "human rights lobby" on Capitol Hill: a coalition of congressional liberals, refugees from Latin America and former antiwar lobbyists determined to stop such aid.

There are hundreds of millions of dollars in loans and credits, arms purchases, police and military training and economic aid flows from the U.S. taxpayer to foreign governments — more than a dozen channels, including the Defense Department's Foreign Military Sales program, the Justice Department's Drug Enforcement Administration, the U.S. Export-Import Bank and such international lending agencies as the World Bank.

The State Department advocates continuing the aid in the name of national security, which it defines as maintaining the military apparatus of the countries in question. Support refers to Argentina's 1,000-mile border along the Atlantic, for example, and states, "Our assistance orientates military professionals toward the U.S., exposing our technology and methods."

In the case of Iran, the department cites its strategic location, Soviet Union; and with the Philippines, it cites U.S. bases in the prime concern.

In each country, the United States asserts that local U.S. personnel have had lengthy discussions with the governments about the necessity of observing human rights and that continued aid provides the leverage for positive action on requests.

Critics of this policy, however, contend that the aid serves mainly to buttress regimes practicing brutal repression — such as torture, prolonged detention without charge or trial, kidnapping and assassination — that by association damage the reputation of the United States in the eyes of the world.

Thus far their efforts have succeeded in cutting off military aid to Chile and Uruguay and in delaying for several weeks, though not stopping, two large World Bank loans to the Santiago Junta in the past 18 months. Backed by legislation passed last year and a mounting flow of documentation of abuses from abroad, these activists promise quick action on the Hill and grassroots pressure from around the country to make further cuts in the aid that reaches such governments.

Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., who heads the House international organizations subcommittee, has said he will try to hold the first human rights hearings of the new congressional session in mid-February, on Argentina. And Rep. Edward Koch, D-N.Y., has begun seeking support for legislation to remove loopholes in the military aid law that still allow Pentagon training and weapons to be sold overseas for counterinsurgency or "internal security" purposes.

Carter himself faces a decision on whether to request aid or not to request aid by the March budget deadline.

Last year President Ford chose not to request military loans for Chile after Congress cut them off the year before. Pressure is already mounting on Carter to follow that same course in the coming months, a position that would be consistent with his own campaign statements and the recommendations of a recent study by the private Commission on United States-Latin American Relations. This commission has seven members closely associated with Carter foreign policy advisers.

Given the headline conclusions drawn by the State Department, however, the new President likely will request aid for at least some of the countries in question and thereby provoke a confrontation with Congress.

The human rights lobby's immediate tools are two new and as yet barely tested legislative clauses that prohibit aid from being granted to countries showing a "consistent pattern of gross violations of internationally recognized human rights." Congress can continue the aid, however, if it determines it directly benefits needy people.

These clauses are themselves the product of several years of battling in Capitol Hill that began with revelations of U.S.-financed tiger-caged prisons in Vietnam and were given impetus when the U.S. role in the bloody overthrow of Chile's Marxist president Salvador Allende was uncovered.

In the past two years, a nucleus of House liberals led by Fraser has held extensive hearings on the human rights situation in a number of countries that receive U.S. aid.

Cyrus Vance: U.S. will speak out on violations, but not in every case

By KENNETH J. FREED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said Monday that violations of human rights are of "fundamental importance" to the United States, but he does not "intend to be strident or polemical" in criticizing the practices of other countries.

In a cautious discussion of the subject, the secretary said, "We will speak frankly about injustice at home or abroad." But he added that the issue is "very complex ... we will not speak out in every case."

Vance, making the remarks in his first formal news conference since assuming office a little over a week ago, also strongly attacked the white supremacist government in Rhodesia.

Reading from a prepared statement, the secretary said Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith must realize "that under no circumstances can they count on any American support to prevent majority rule."

He criticized Smith for breaking off British-sponsored negotiations to arrange a transfer of power from the whites to four black-nationalist groups. The breakdown creates "a new and more dangerous situation" throughout southern Africa, he said.

The secretary also signaled a shift in the American attitude toward Cuba. "I don't want to set any preconditions" on normalizing relations between Washington and Havana, he said.

The Nixon-Ford Administration ruled out any normalization as long as Cuban troops remained in Angola.

Vance said, "The presence of any outside forces would not be helpful to any solution," but he declined to follow the old hard line.

Vance stood before the reporters and responded to questions on many issues. However, the clear focus of the 45-minute session was on human rights.

He said criticism of Soviet human rights violations will not damage U.S.-Russian relations, but avoided endorsing an earlier State Department complaint about Russian treatment of dissident leader Andrei Sakharov.

"I did not see it," Vance said of the State Department statement. "It was cleared at a lower level."

He added: "I respect Mr. Sakharov very much. I respect his principles and his pursuit of those principles."

Asked if the United States will speak out on all charges of human rights violations, Vance replied, "We will not speak out in every case. We will speak out when it is advisable to do so." On other matters, Vance said:

- In the next round of strategic arms talks with Russia, the United States will attempt to resolve the critical issues of the American cruise missile and the Soviet Backfire bomber.
- American expressions of concern against Brazil and Pakistan for trying to acquire advanced nuclear technology reflects "the general concern we have about the whole problem throughout the world."
- He hopes the process can begin in the near future on normalizing American relations with Vietnam.
- A review of American relations with mainland China should be completed in the near future, but no date has been set.

- The issue of Palestinian representation in any Middle East settlement "will be critical," and the United States is developing some thoughts on this issue. However, the secretary said as long as the Palestine Liberation Organization does not recognize Israel's right to exist "it is difficult to see how progress can be made."
- The Carter Administration has not yet developed a detailed program for reducing arms trade around the world. He said a mutual U.S.-Soviet agreement to ban arms sales in the Middle East "is a very constructive proposal."

nationwide service assists minorities

TRICIA LaCROIX
News Staff Writer

Minority students near and interested in bringing their education four years are eligible for nationwide service to assist them in conducting schools across the country.

MSU participates in the program by paying an annual fee, minority students are eligible to submit an application.

Salas, director of the Minority Programs, said the Records Examination in New Jersey estimates the information system in 1971, calling the graduate Records Examination Minority Student Service (MGSLSS).

colleges and universities are unable to recruit minority students to their (graduate) schools, so the Educational Service, (ETS), this would be a good service to provide," Salas said.

After that, the department convinced the graduate school that the program was a worthwhile activity, and MSU became formally involved.

Upon receipt of the lists, the graduate school at MSU distributes them to the various departments on campus.

Salas said the annual cost for a university to participate in the program is "between $350 and $400." However, James Hamilton, director of the program this year, said the cost was "about $200." This bill is paid by the graduate school, which, Salas said, "has money to do these kinds of things."

For this price, the university receives two lists of potential graduate students: one in the fall and the other in the spring.

Hamilton said the application form requires "mostly academic information," such as the student's major interest, grade point average and eventual educational objectives.

The program was first begun at MSU by the Human Relations Department, Salas said. At first, they simply recommended that interested students submit an application in order to be included on the lists.

After that, the department convinced the graduate school that the program was a worthwhile activity, and MSU became formally involved.

Meanwhile, in expectation of the coming showdown, many of the governments in question have already moved to undermine their critics and mobilize U.S. public opinion in their favor.

Chile released 300 political prisoners in a well-publicized move prior to Christmas. Other governments such as Argentina, Bolivia and Uruguay quickly announced they would follow suit. And shortly after that Argentina's Gen. Jorge Videla told a specially invited group of American journalists in Buenos Aires that continued U.S. aid was necessary to fight leftist subversion.

Correction

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Associated Press reported erroneously that confessed slayer John Harvey Adamson named Gov. Raul Castro in testimony at a preliminary hearing for two suspects in the June 2, 1976, car-bomb murder of Arizona Republic reporter Don Bolles.

Adamson did not mention the governor by name.

Peeping Toms

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's "Peeping Tom" law would become a "peeping persons" law under legislation introduced by Rep. Robert Jones and Sen. Katherine Sebo.

The Jones-Sebo bill would make it a misdemeanor offense for anyone to peep at anyone.

TOM SHANAHAN Recruiting time's here

A vital time in Darryl Rogers' football coaching career at MSU is rounding into view as the nation's high school seniors will begin announcing on Feb. 16 what schools they will attend.

Last season Rogers was hired after recruiting had been completed. This season he can begin building the type of team he wants instead of inheriting a team that played a different type of football than he likes.

And there's no question Rogers is after speed. And lots of it. "We need more speed, but if you have smaller, faster players you also need more of them to survive the season," Rogers said about the team make-up he'd like.

The biggest question marks are at tailback and the defensive secondary. With Rich Baes' and Leon Williams' eligibility terminated, there's even more room for a speedy tailback next year than there was last year.

The secondary will miss Tom Hannon, who turned in a sterling year, anchoring an otherwise weak secondary. If Tom Graves can recover by next fall it will solve a lot of problems in a secondary that has to be rebuilt.

Rogers also said the team is depending on Mike Imhoff's twice-injured leg regaining its strength so he can provide some valuable experience alongside Graves.

The linebackers, already strong with Larry Savage, Paul Ruzinski and Dan Bass, receive more strength with Kim Rowkamp's recovery from an injured knee.

MSU is set at quarterback with the record-breaking arm of Ed Smith. Even with all the achievements on paper, Smith is still expected to be better next year.

I suspect we'll see more West coast influence from Rogers injected into MSU football. The California native, voted second in the Big Ten Coach of the Year balloting, has already given the Midwest a taste of what a passing game is.

After watching another supposedly unbeatable Big Ten team lose in the Rose Bowl, Rogers said he wasn't surprised. He said he felt that USC was bigger, quicker and stronger or just plain had better people.

This is the type of team Rogers is accustomed to, and is the type of team MSU fans will be seeing.

Rogers says his primary recruiting grounds will be in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and western Pennsylvania. He said a few contacts will be made in California and other long-distance areas. But he emphasized that the closest areas are the more logical areas to recruit in.

But nevertheless, with his West coast roots, I've heard that he has been able to grab a couple of superstars from California and another in Florida. The official signing date isn't until Feb. 16th, but supposedly they are prepared to sign tenders at MSU.

I've also heard that Rogers and his staff wasted no time filling primary needs as two of the players are the type of tailbacks MSU wants.

Another top recruit is a junior college transfer. Junior college transfers are heavily employed in USC's successful football program.

Rogers' personality should make him a successful recruiter. He is strongly liked by his players. One player told me football was more fun under Rogers and his staff because, "these coaches are human, not animals like some of the other old ones."

Get these two years of probation over with and I'll wager you'll see MSU in the Rose Bowl in 1980. Why? Mostly because Rogers promised it.

Diane Spoelstra, No. 14, takes a 12.8 scoring average into tonight's game with Eastern Michigan. She has hit on 23 of 55 shots from the field this year.

Women cagers to meet Eastern Hurons tonight

By CATHY CHOWN
State News Sports Writer

The women's basketball team is finding that perhaps some of its toughest competition this year may be coming from teams in Michigan.

Tonight the squad takes a 5-2 record to Eastern Michigan, in what coach Karen Langland expects to be a tough game.

"EMU recently downed U-M by 10 points," Langland said. "I don't think that we will run away with the game, but we have had some rest after a tough schedule and I think it will be a big difference in the game," she added.

The Spartans squeaked by U-M last week, 63-62. The following day, however, Western Michigan broke up a five-game winning streak for the Spartans, beating them 66-63. And next Monday MSU faces Wayne State University, which beat Western.

Langland hopes to have Kathy DeBoer, who injured her ankle last week before the U-M game, back by then. Langland planned to have DeBoer practicing Monday but would like to give her some rest from games, until next week.

"We have a really rough schedule coming up, and I'd like to let Kathy rest so she can be at full strength."

DeBoer is currently leading the Spartans in scoring with 16 points a game. She is also second on the team in rebounding, with a 10.3 per game average.

Lori Hyman has the second highest scoring average, with 14 points per game. She also has the highest point total, with 98 points in seven games.

Karen Santoni is tops in scoring percentage, shooting at a .588 clip. Diane Spoelstra, who also has committed the fewest personal fouls on the team, is averaging 12.8 points per game. She scored 24 points last week, in a losing effort against Western.

Tonight MSU needs to improve its team shooting percentage of 37.7 per game. At free throws, the Spartans have been making an average of 65.2 percent. The squad has hit on 103 of 158 charity tosses, while holding its opponents to 49 of 68.

After the Spartans face Wayne State next week, they move on to the Big Ten championships Feb. 11 and 12, which they finished second in last year. Following that, MSU has three more away games, before returning to their home court Feb. 19 against Central Michigan.

Pistons' Brown, Porter reach an understanding

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Pistons, hoping to shed their "cantankerous crybabies" image, have reached "an understanding" with discontented guard Kevin Porter and assured Herb Brown he will be back as coach next season.

General Manager Oscar Feldman gave Brown the good news Monday just prior to a special news conference called to show the Pistons are trying to reunite the fractious elements on the club with the sixth best record in the league.

"There will be no trades," Feldman said, noting Detroit has no first-round choices in the next two drafts. "I have never given any of those players any indication they would be traded."

Porter has merely been the most vocal of Detroit's four guards, each of whom wants more playing time and each of whom has been a starter for the Pistons or somebody else within the past season.

Chris Ford has been the least spoken, but he's also been starting and playing better than he ever has before. Eric Money took over when Porter suffered the knee injury that kept him out most of last season and Ralph Simpson was an ABA All-Star with Denver.

Feldman had Brown, Porter and the guard's agent, Bob Fenton, over for "Sunday brunch," after which they had a long talk.

"My wife's cooking did it again," Feldman said. "We had Marvin Barnes over earlier and now Kevin. Both times we reached an understanding."

"He (Porter) understands my problem," said Brown, who learned five minutes before the press conference he would be back next year — "I'll reach a mutually satisfactory agreement on terms," he said.

"My moves a lot of things predicted on what's going on the ball game," Brown said. "We've got a combination there that's going good for them in."

"We understand each other position," Brown said. "I'm very intense, high-strung individual. If he feels we're playing well and he's on the bench, that upsets me

Cold weather blitzes states

The energy adviser told the Carter Cabinet on Monday that temperatures now are running 5 to 15 degrees below normal rather than the 10 to 20 degrees below normal that the eastern half of the nation had been experiencing.

However, a report following the conclusion of a Big Ten investigation stated, "The University has already taken certain remedial actions with regard to its football program, including dismissing its head football coach and three assistant football coaches..." The remedial action cited in the report was taken at the discretion of MSU and the Select Committee (MSU's investigative body that looked into the alleged violations) studying the various improprieties and not the conference itself.

In addition, the judiciary may notify the student's parents of the probationary status, and may withdraw any or all of the following privileges: the operation of a car on campus, the holding of an office in a campus organization, the representation of the University in any inter-university events.

Carter sends Congress economic plan

(continued from page 1) Carter said the two-year program would help create one million new jobs by the end of this year, which would leave the nation's jobless rate at about 6.8 per cent. The unemployment rate in December was 7.8 per cent.

Schultze of the President's Council of Economic Advisers held open the possibility that tax rebates for Americans could be increased, especially if the severe winter worsens and Americans spend their rebate for extra fuel.

But the President warned Congress against trying to move faster to create jobs, as some lawmakers have said they will try to do. "To force more money, faster, into the system would risk poor administration," Carter said.

The chief components of the program had been outlined by administration officials in recent days. They include $50 tax rebates for nearly every American this year, with the total rebate cost estimated at $11.4 billion.

However, he said the program is flexible enough to be adjusted upward or downward to meet specific needs of the economy in the future.

Other features are: Permanent tax reductions totaling $4 billion each year for taxpayers in low and middle-income brackets, up to an income level of about $17,500 annually for a married couple.

Boo-Boo bear

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Once upon a time three little bears were born at the Philadelphia Zoo.

rate to about 4.5 per cent by the end of his four-year term in office. He said shortly after his election that he hoped to reduce it to 6.5 per cent by the end of this year, though it now appears he may fall short of this goal.

Mama and Papa bear gave them the snub, so a 5-year-old German Shepherd attack dog took over.

But Carter told Congress, "Our program only promises what can realistically be done."

The female cubs were born Jan. 16 to Boo-Boo, who in 1966 came to the zoo with her mate, Yogi. Boo-Boo and Yogi had been orphaned in Turkey.

Carter said that tax rebate checks can be in the mail within five weeks after Congress gives its approval. Persons on Social Security would get special payments of $50 each.

Zoo veterinarian Wilbur Amand says he became concerned about the cubs when Boo-Boo left them unattended in the den the day after they were born.

The permanent tax reductions for low and middle-income persons would be accomplished by raising the standard deduction to a flat $2,800 for married couples and $2,400 for single taxpayers, throwing out the more complex deduction schedule that now exists.

By chance, the German Shepherd, Deva, happened to be nursing a two-week old puppy. Zoo officials decided to see if the dog would accept the cubs and nurse them.

Carter said the changes would remove 3.7 million low-income taxpayers from the tax rolls and make it more advantageous for 4 million more taxpayers to use the standard deduction, rather than itemize deductions.

The dog's owner, zoo employee Gwen Cassel, said Wednesday that Deva displayed immediate interest, sniffing each cub and licking all three after they were placed in the whelping box with the puppy to nurse.

Carter said his program "will restore consumer confidence and consumer purchasing power; it will encourage businessmen to invest in long-term growing economy; it will pave the way for a balanced federal budget in fiscal year 1981."

Zoo officials expect the cubs - like most infant animals toothless, blind and helpless at birth - to live happily ever after.

He put the cost of the program at $31.2 billion, which would be divided almost equally between fiscal 1977 and fiscal 1978. Partially offsetting these costs, he said, would be an increase in federal revenue of $3 billion this year and $8 billion in 1978 as a result of the economic growth.

Storage system helps state avoid natural gas shortages

DETROIT (UPI) - An unusual 30-year-old storage system, pessimistic forecasting and a study of history are the main reasons why Michigan has avoided the natural gas shortages that are devastating surrounding states.

The state's two major natural gas suppliers, Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. and Consumers Power Co., are keeping homes and businesses heated despite record cold because of massive storage areas that most other states don't have.

After World War II, storage fields were developed that now hold up to 440 billion cubic feet of gas. Most other states, meanwhile, are dangerously dependent on more common gas sources.

Both utilities said they look at long-range forecasts prior to deciding how much gas to set aside for winter. Consolidated collects enough gas for a 12 per cent colder than normal winter, while the Consumers' figure is 10 per cent.

Trends over the past 50 years and a look at the coldest winter on record, 1937-38, also go into the projections.

This winter, however, could wreck even those cautious plans. So far the state has endured a winter that is 25 to 30 per cent worse than the average.

"Other areas are more dependent on straight pipeline supplies," said Robert J. Ollevak, executive manager of gas production and transmission for Consumers.

"When it gets colder and people are drawing from that line, the amount available is less. But we take advantage of storage capabilities to fill fields in the summer time so we can pick up a bigger percentage of our load in winter."

The remedial action cited in the report was taken at the discretion of MSU and the Select Committee (MSU's investigative body that looked into the alleged violations) studying the various improprieties and not the conference itself.

"The ad hoc committee take a close look at the academic dishonesty Renaud said. "It also has to look at all systems in relation each other to see if the judicials on campus or if they are compatible."

'Panther' slinks into gagland abyss

By BYRON BAKER
State News Reviewer

The very clever, beautifully animated opening and closing credits for "The Pink Panther Strikes Again," were designed and executed by England's Richard Williams Studio. The Richard Williams Studio has become something of a haven for animators from around the world who wish to work in a creative, stimulating environment, and their output is consistently top-notch.

The motif for the studio's work for the credits for the new "Pink Panther" movie involves the familiar animated panther befuddling the inept inspector by posing in scenes from famous motion pictures. In one sequence, the panther stands before a house, and the inspector waddles over to accost him. The entire front frame of the house suddenly falls forward, presumably crushing the inspector. But not so the panther, who was conveniently standing in a position corresponding to an open window of the house. The frame simply fell around him.

This is taken from Buster Keaton's classic "Steamboat Bill Jr.," one of the most inventive and hilarious of his comedies (a malt liquor firm recently borrowed the same gag for one of its commercials). The late comedian might have had some advice for Blake Edwards, the producer-director-coscripter of "The Pink Panther Strikes Again!"

"You've got promising gags here," he might say. "But, you don't do your background — prepare your audience. You're giving away the gag before you show it. It gets to be that if you see a rake, the audience knows your lead fellow's going to trip on it. You've got to build your jokes — not just dangle them in front of your audience and suggest that they laugh."

Keaton might also have advised Edwards and his script collaborator Frank Waldman that he had no story. The "Pink Panther" movies usually revolve around the efforts of a bumbling Inspector Clouseau (played by Peter Sellers) to recover that perennially priceless diamond, the "Pink Panther." There is no gem here, and the unifying purpose which somewhat enlivened last year's "The Return of the Pink Panther" is also missing.

The yarn this time involves Dreyfus, (Herbert Lom) Clouseau's former superior, now crazed by excessive exposure to the incessant stupidity of Clouseau. He resolves to destroy Clouseau and plots a scheme encompassing world-wide proportions to eliminate him. "Fun's fun," Keaton might say, "but what's your picture about? Your leading fellow is very funny, but his silliness can't carry the whole picture. He's got to have a good, strong story to fall back on."

There are some nice moments: the opening encounter between Clouseau and Dreyfus, in which Dreyfus is driven over sanity's brink, has its points, and an authentic laughing gas sequence, in which Clouseau, posing as a dentist, becomes as intoxicated as his patient (Dreyfus) and pulls the wrong tooth, is a routine unseen for so long it seems fresh. Most of the other scenes are just unfinished exposure for comedy, featuring poor structuring, slack timing and lack of originality.

Granted, it's hard not to laugh when Sellers unleashes his fracturing of French and English ("There is a bimp on your head"; "I would like a room"), but this is overly exploited. Hasn't Edwards ever informed Sellers that "less is more"?

Four jazz artists craft fine release

By JOHN CASEY

ART LANDE: Rubisa Patrol — (ECM — 1081)
"Rubisa Patrol" is a beautifully created improvisational album featuring four talented musicians. With Art Lande on piano, Bill Douglas on flugelhorn and soprano sax, Bill Cronkite on drums and percussion; and Bill Douglas on flute and Ti-Tzu, the album creates a thoughtful and relaxed mood, a menagerie of eclectic movements.

The album is introduced with a Chinese track, "Celestial Guests," performed by Bill Douglas on the bamboo flute. "Guests" is an airy piece, setting the pace for the rest of the album.

"Many Chinas" is a Mark Isham composition containing many changes — the author's fine trumpet lead segues into Lande's tasteful piano runs, laced with a nice pattern of Cronkite's cymbals and back again to flugelhorn. The musicianship is outstandingly first-rate.

A duet of piano and flute entitled "Jaimi's Birthday Song" is a slow, melodic number created by Art Lande.

The album's first side ends with the international theme — a quick tempoed "Bulgarian Folk Theme."

The four songs on the reverse side follow the same pattern as the previous four — nonstructured playing of high caliber. This side is a focus on Art Lande's piano solos, notably the lengthy "Monk in His Simple Room" and a different take with the same instruments of "Jaimi's Birthday Song."

"Rubisa Patrol" is a union of four contemporary jazz artists sharing one goal — good music. (Album Courtesy of Disc Shop)

MTB, Sea Level to offer diverse Southern sounds

The Marshall Tucker Band

Two diverse directions in Southern music will be displayed Saturday at 8 p.m. in the MSU Auditorium. Opening the winter season for Pop Entertainment will be two Capricorn recording groups — the Marshall Tucker Band and the newly formed Sea Level.

Not a typical Southern-based "get down and boogie" band, the Marshall Tucker Band consists of six musicians from Spartanburg, N.C.: brothers Toy and Tommy Caldwell, Doug Gray, George McCorkle, Jerry Eubanks and Paul Riddle. They incorporate rock, jazz, country, rhythm and blues and Western swing into an MTB stamp on audiences and a cult of album buyers.

In early spring of 1973, the band presented its first Capricorn release with little or no critical acknowledgement. In 1974, the band expanded its base with two releases, "A New Life" and "Where We All Belong," continuing to tour.

"Searching for a Rainbow" was the album which caught critical notice two years after the group's inception. The fifth effort for the Macon-based company — "Long Hard Ride" — put its musical creativity into focus.

Saturday's concert will feature the band's most recent effort, "Carolina Dreams."

Lending a jazz-oriented flavor to the concert will be Sea Level, composed of three former ABB members — Jai Johanny Johanson, Chuck Leavell and Lamar Williams. Guitarist Jimmy Nalls rounds out the foursome.

The three former ABB rhythm section members constantly jammed to fill the time lags between tours and studio rehearsals. In Washington, D.C., the four played together for the first time, liked what they heard, and made the transition to Sea Level when the Allman Bros. broke up in 1976.

Tickets for Saturday's concert are sold out.
