In surprising move, MUCC official urges

By NANCY LARSEN
State News Staff Writer

In a move surprising many environmentalists, the executive director of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) has called for the approval of 30 permits to drill in the Pigeon River sites.

"The Pigeon River Forests provide recreation, and to deny the permits to drill would be:self-interest," Tom Washington, executive director of MUCC, and as a public hearing held by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Tuesday.

The drilling was denied in accordance with the Pigeon River Forests Management Plan. The specific task must be reviewed by the State of the DNR, the Michigan Environmental Review Board and the public.

Washington's comments surprised a group of reporters and citizens who followed him into the Hall of the Land Building. Many members of the public were concerned about the Northwest Pigeon River Forests being of oil company interests. Washington said that the permits are needed in order to maintain the environmental conditions.

"We are an environmentalist," Washington said. "We are not saying no to drilling, but we are saying no to drilling without the environmental conditions.

The drilling permits are being reviewed by the DNR. It is not clear if the state is going to lift the permits or if the state will change the conditions of the permits.

"We are in the process of reviewing the permits," said. "We need to have a realistic approach. We need to assess the environmental conditions and the drilling permits. We need to have a realistic approach and the permits should be reviewed by the environmental conditions.

Cold blamed for trade deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A minor winter trade deficit showed up and the biggest drop in the nation's trade surplus was reported for the month of January, according to data released Monday by the government.

The Commerce Department's report showed the trade deficit, which had been in the range of $1.2 billion to $1.3 billion for the past few months, fell to $1.17 billion in January from $1.35 billion in December. This was the largest decline since a drop of $1.2 billion in January, 1975.

Because of the drop, the nation's trade surplus for all 1975 amounted to about $3 billion, making it the biggest in the nation's history.

The drop in imports was due to a decline in the value of the dollar, which reached a 15-year high in January as a result of a worldwide monetary crisis.

Vance urges proposal to bolster American boycott complaints

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vance H. Baker, assistant secretary of state for economic affairs, said Monday that he favors a proposal to bolster American boycott complaints in the U.S. government's efforts to penalize nations which do not cooperate with American efforts to control the flow of armaments and other items to the Soviet Union.

Baker said the United States should consider a proposal to impose economic sanctions on nations which do not cooperate with American efforts to control the flow of armaments and other items to the Soviet Union.

The proposal was made by a group of American professors and economists who have been working on the problem of how to control the flow of armaments and other items to the Soviet Union.

The proposal would be based on the idea that the United States should impose economic sanctions on nations which do not cooperate with American efforts to control the flow of armaments and other items to the Soviet Union.

Wharton must abandon Brazil Project

Amid the controversy over MSU's participation in the Brazil project, the university has decided not to proceed with the project. The university was among those that received a letter from the Brazilian government requesting the university to participate in the project.

The Brazilian government has been encouraging universities to participate in the project, which is aimed at improving the quality of education in Brazil. However, the university has decided not to participate due to the cost of the project and the potential impact on the university's resources.

The university has been working closely with the Brazilian government and has been discussing the project for several months. However, the decision to abandon the project was made after careful consideration of all factors.

Policy revisions inadequate

The MSU Board of Trustees has approved a policy to address the concerns raised by the students. The policy includes measures to improve the university's practices in the areas of research and governance.

The policy revisions are inadequate as they do not address the fundamental issues that have led to the controversy. The university has been accused of failing to provide adequate oversight and accountability in the areas of research and governance.

The policy revisions are also inadequate as they do not address the concerns raised by the students. The students have been demanding more transparency and accountability in the university's practices.

Prison overcrowding becoming critical

By JOHN CHILINGAR
Detroit Free Press Writer

Prison overcrowding has reached an all-time high in the state of Michigan, leading to a desperate situation at both maximum and minimum security institutions across the state.

Inmates are being housed in dormitories and other facilities not designed for such use, and the problem is expected to worsen as the population continues to grow.

The overcrowding has resulted in a lack of space and resources for inmates, leading to issues such as poor sanitation, inadequate health care, and increased violence.

In response, the Michigan Department of Corrections is working on expanding facilities and increasing focus on parole and probation programs to reduce the inmate population.

The department is also exploring options for housing inmates in other states, as the overcrowding issue continues to grow.

Inmates are calling for action to address the crisis and improve conditions for those in custody.

Utilities board to have money surplus in 1978

by FRED W. SIMPSON
The Detroit Free Press

The Detroit Edison Company is projecting a revenue surplus of $6.6 million for the year 1978, with an expected surplus of nearly $15 million in 1979.

This surplus will be used to reduce rates or to provide additional services for customers.

The company is also expected to have a surplus of $1 million in 1977, bringing the total surplus for the past three years to nearly $24 million.

The board of directors will discuss the surplus at its next meeting, and a decision on how to use the funds will be made at that time.

Raksin's best film scores released

By DANIEL BREEMAN
State News/Review

David Raksin conducted his Great Film Scores New Philharmonic Orchestra — RCA Red Seal KSL-1480

Among the top rate film music composers, David Raksin is one of the most neglected in terms of available motion picture soundtrack albums.

Raksin has also been somewhat overlooked for Scripted because of the fairly deserved reputation of being brash and outspoken. Though several segments of Raksin's scores have been made available over the years, definitive and authoritative performances have been virtually in terms of a representative-quality assortment until now.

This treasury has been created with the release of Raksin conducted Leonard's best scores: "Laura," "The Bad and the Beautiful," and "The Night of the Hunter.

The first of these, "Laura," is perhaps the composer's most famous work. "Laura's Theme" appears as a mood concerning a repressed girl whose innocent beauty is the distinctive who is replaced in the wonderful Otto Preminger's film. This theme has an interesting effect.

The set on the album is completely performed and conducted by Raksin. It is interesting to note that "Laura's Theme" was written in one night to meet Preminger's deadline.

Following "Laura" is an extended suite from Vincente Minnelli's controversial 1954 Hollywood disaster directed by Kirk Douglas, "The Bad and the Beautiful." The score is filed with "Americanism" which might easily be confused with something Aaron Copland wrote. The orchestral writing of "The Bad and the Beautiful" is very similar to that of "Laura" and the arrangement of these two sides on the album makes a very comfortable transition.

The entire second side is filed with Raksin's music for the historical novel "Pearl Arthur.

The music is written in a 19th century English vein. Again there would be shocker to the mind. It is very effective, and in some cases poignant. The recorded sound is excellent, and this recording is as all-around success.

The recording is a must for every film music collector, and it is the addition to the ranks of motion film music.
Ugandan leader postpones meetings

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) - President Idi Amin has postponed a scheduled meeting with American officials at the Embassy in Kampala, according to a broadcast monitored here, neither date for the meeting with American missionaries, teachers and others in the East African country will be announced.

The announcement explained that the President is currently on a two-week tour of Africa and experienced missionaries who were present in Kampala during the civil war in Lebanon, he was to have gone to the Ugandan capital to discuss American interests in Washington.

The Ugandan government has been criticized by the United States government and other Western governments for its human rights record.

Amin has been reportedly seeking to improve relations with the United States and other Western countries.

The trip is expected to be a significant development in the ongoing efforts to improve relations between Uganda and the United States.

The meeting with American officials is expected to address issues such as human rights, economic development, and trade.

The delay in announcing the meeting date is likely due to the ongoing discussions and negotiations with the Ugandan government.

According to reports, the meetings will focus on human rights issues, including the treatment of political prisoners, and economic development, particularly in the areas of agriculture and trade.

The meeting is expected to be an opportunity for American officials to discuss their concerns with the Ugandan government and to seek ways to improve relations between the two countries.

The postponement of the meeting is likely due to the complex nature of the issues and the need for further discussion and consultation.

The situation in Uganda remains tense, with reports of human rights abuses and political instability.
