Committee granted power to bar freshmen from JMC

by PATRICK LATROCE
State News Staff Writer

Sherry Brody and Jeff Zalasiewicz, members of the newest class of JMC students, have been granted power to bar incoming freshmen from entering the university. The power is a result of a series of events that led to the committee's formation.

On March 2, the campus was in the midst of protests against the university's handling of a incident involving a member of the JMC staff. The protests were sparked by allegations that the staff member had engaged in inappropriate behavior with students.

In response to the protests, the university created the Committee to Review Academic integrity and student conduct. The committee was tasked with investigating the allegations and making recommendations for future action.

The committee's power over incoming freshmen includes the ability to bar candidates from entering the university. This power was granted to the committee as a result of the protests and the university's desire to prevent similar incidents from occurring in the future.

The committee's decision to bar incoming freshmen is a significant step in the university's efforts to address the issue of academic integrity and student conduct. The university hopes that this action will send a clear message to incoming students about the importance of maintaining a high level of ethical standards and professionalism.
Sakhivor's embroiled in new conflict

WASHERS (AP) - Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov has a new conflict with the authorities - over an apartment he needs for family to move in.
Sakharov went to the Moscow People's Court Wednesday to press his attempt to move into a two-room apartment to one-room apartment occupied by the state.
Sakharov was freed because one of the seven people in the apartment he wants to move into has not been officially removed.
The Cheryomushki district housing office said last month that the seventh person - an elderly woman - was released to her home Tuesday, leaving him the apartment.

Broken leases possible under Senate bill

By BILL NOVEMBER

Fears that the rent problems in Lansing could be duplicated in other parts of the state prompted State Senator Alan Silverstein of Dearborn Heights to introduce Senate Bill 65, which would provide a two-year moratorium on the eviction of tenants to pay rent for at least two years. Silverstein said the bill was introduced in response to complaints from landlords and tenants about the high cost of renting.

"U' to get parking fine revenue

By JOAN MACKY

The establishment of a campus parking violation committee, to take effect today, will generate revenues for the University of Michigan and Elson Student Center, according to the University. The committee, which was established by the Board of Regents, will be responsible for collecting parking fines.

According to a statement from the University, the committee will be composed of representatives from the Student Government, the University Parking Office, and the樓 described as "institutions representing different views on the issue." The committee will be responsible for setting fines and procedures for collecting them.

Parking violations will not be subject to appeals.

Over the last few years, the Wolverine has been charging a parking fee for students, parking in the staff parking lots. The fee has been set at $2.50 per day for those who wish to park in their cars for the entire month. However, the fee will now be charged only to those who park in the staff parking lots.

Despite the increased costs, the University parking office has been able to maintain the same level of service, according to the statement. The parking office has also been able to reduce the amount of staff needed to operate the system.

Amin's reign of terror must be opposed

By JAMES M. RAMSEY

Vol. 31, No. 32, May 31, 1977

He acted power in January 1971 to survive. He has killed over 200,000 people. The regime that rules anyway, the regime that rules in Iran, is the regime of terror as told by British journalist David Martin, and it has indeed shown this to be true.

Since the successful coup against the former Egyptian leader Anwar Sadat, Amin has ruled his country with an iron hand. The executions and arrests of political opponents, both domestic and foreign, continue to this day. The regime has also been accused of human rights abuses, including torture and extrajudicial killings. The regime's actions have been condemned by the international community.

Divers spring into Big Ten game

Four icers bid farewell in Saturday U-M game

BY MIKE LENTH, Sports Writer

Four divers have announced that they are leaving the Michigan swimming and diving team this year. The divers are John Norton, Jim Griffin, and Steve Stiner. The divers will be replaced by a younger group of divers.

John Norton

John Norton was the team's top diver last year. He was a three-time All-American and a two-time NCAA Champion. Norton was also the team's captain and a leader on and off the pool deck.

Jim Griffin

Jim Griffin was the team's top back diver last year. He was a two-time All-American and a two-time NCAA Champion. Griffin was also a leader on and off the pool deck.

Steve Stiner

Steve Stiner was the team's top 1-meter diver last year. He was a two-time All-American and a two-time NCAA Champion. Stiner was also a leader on and off the pool deck.

The divers have announced that they will continue their education at the University of Michigan. They will all be majoring in engineering.

Michigan swimming and diving head coach Kim Griffin

"It is bittersweet to see these three divers leave the team," Griffin said. "They have been a huge part of our team and have helped us achieve so much success."

Street closure to be continued

East Lansing City Council voted Tuesday night to continue the closure of Center Street for an additional six months and approved a preliminary budget that included no cuts to some city services.

The closure of Center Street, which was closed in Sept. last year, was re-opened in Oct. and has since been closed again.

The Council of Great Streets, which voted to close the street three months ago, said the street needed more time to determine whether traffic can operate in the area.

Councilman John Anderson said the street was closed to a tree planter, and the area will be landscaped once the trees are purchased.

Councilman John Carter said the street will be closed to another tree planter, and the area will be landscaped once the trees are purchased.

Communist influence called positive

Journalist attacks 'distorted media coverage'

By BILL RUDEN

In a bombshell unbridled by traditional media coverages, our esteemed reporter, Mr. Fessler, has leveled a withering attack on what he calls the 'distorted media coverage' of Communist influence. In an article published today, Fessler has charged that the media are systematically underestimating the influence of Communist forces on world events.

Fessler begins his piece by noting that the media have tended to ignore the rapid growth of Communist movements in recent years. He points out that the media have been slow to recognize the significance of events such as the fall of the Berlin Wall and the rise of the Chinese Communist party. Fessler argues that the media's failure to cover these events adequately has been a deliberate attempt to downplay the role of Communist influence in world affairs.

Fessler's article is particularly scathing in its criticism of the U.S. media, which he accuses of being particularly beholden to the interests of powerful corporate media conglomerates. He cites examples of media outlets that have been reluctant to report on events that might be seen as threatening to corporate interests, such as the rise of Communist parties in Europe.

Fessler concludes his article by calling for a more nuanced and accurate portrayal of Communist influence in world affairs. He argues that the media must begin to acknowledge the reality of Communist influence if they are to fulfill their role as sentinels of democracy.

While some may view Fessler's article as an extremist outlier, his claims are supported by a growing body of evidence that suggests that Communist influence is greater than many in the media are willing to admit. As Fessler notes, the media have a responsibility to the public to provide a balanced and accurate depiction of world events, and it is clear that the current state of media reporting falls far short of this standard.

This article provides a vital contribution to the ongoing debate about media accuracy and accountability, and it is to be hoped that the media will take Fessler's concerns seriously and begin to address the issues he raises.
Candidates seek more effective board

By ANNIE SCHEFFER

There are strong indications that upcoming ASMSU election will bring a change in the ASMSU administration, and the reason is the same as with any other electoral process: the people have decided that the way the board is running the Student Government is not the way they want it to run.

Camille Vassant, a junior majoring in psychology, and political science, said she will be voting for two students who are running against the incumbent board because they believe the ASMSU board is not performing its job properly.

"If I vote for the candidates that are running against the office, I feel like I have a voice in the future as well as the present," she said.

She said she has not been very involved with the ASMSU board, but she wants to make sure that the board is doing what it is supposed to do, which is to represent the students.

"I think that the ASMSU board has done a good job," she said.

She said she was disappointed with the way the board handled the student referendum on the dormitory issue.

"I think that the board did not handle it well," she said.

She said she would like to see more involvement in the ASMSU board by the students, and she would like to see the board be more transparent.

"I think that the board should be more involved in the decisions that they make," she said.

She said she would like to see the board be more accessible to the students, and she would like to see the board be more responsive to the needs of the students.

"I think that the board should be more available to the students," she said.

She said she would like to see the board be more open to new ideas, and she would like to see the board be more willing to listen to the students.

Mercury poison consequences possibly fatal to Ojibways

'There's no poison problem; they just want more welfare'

(March 3, 1971)

By William M. Apgar

Mercury poison consequences possibly fatal to Ojibways.

The recent difficulties which have arisen over mercury pollution in the Chequamegon Bay area have been under investigation by the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources and the State Department of Health and Social Services. The investigation has revealed that mercury levels in the food chain are at dangerous levels, and that the Ojibway Indians who live in the area are particularly at risk.

The Ojibways are a Native American tribe that live in the northern part of Wisconsin, and are known for their rich cultural heritage and their ties to the land. They have a long history of living off the land, and are dependent on fish and other wildlife for their subsistence. The mercury pollution has caused serious concerns among the Ojibways, who are concerned about the safety of their food sources.

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources has advised the Ojibways to avoid certain types of fish, particularly those that are known to be high in mercury, such as lake trout and whitefish. They have also advised the Ojibways to limit their consumption of other fish, particularly those that are caught in areas with high mercury levels.

The Ojibways have been working with the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources to address the mercury pollution issue. They have organized workshops and meetings to discuss the problem and find solutions. They have also worked with the local governments to create policies and programs to reduce mercury pollution.

The Ojibways have also been working with the local communities to raise awareness about the mercury pollution issue. They have organized events and activities to educate people about the dangers of mercury pollution and the importance of protecting the environment.

The Ojibways are working hard to address the mercury pollution issue and to protect themselves and their way of life. They are committed to finding solutions and to protecting the environment for future generations.

They have organized workshops and meetings to discuss the problem and find solutions. They have also worked with the local governments to create policies and programs to reduce mercury pollution.

The Ojibways have also been working with the local communities to raise awareness about the mercury pollution issue. They have organized events and activities to educate people about the dangers of mercury pollution and the importance of protecting the environment.

The Ojibways are working hard to address the mercury pollution issue and to protect themselves and their way of life. They are committed to finding solutions and to protecting the environment for future generations.

If your savings account isn't at Michigan National Bank, you may be losing money.

If your bank pays quarterly interest, you're losing money.\(^1\)

When you put money in a savings account, you're lending money to the bank. So you should earn interest on that money for every day it's on deposit. But if your bank pays only quarterly interest on savings, you don't get a penny's worth of interest until they've held your money for 90 days.

If you make withdrawals before the quarter ends, you're losing money. Let's say you withdraw money from a quarterly interest savings account midway in the quarter. Instead of receiving interest for the time your money has been on deposit, the money you withdraw earns no interest at all for the entire quarter.

If you make deposits after the quarter starts, you're losing money. Let's say the quarter begins on Oct. 1 and you make a deposit on Oct. 15. At many banks your deposit wouldn't even begin earning interest until the new quarter starts on Jan. 1. That's seventy-five days without interest.

If you have a Michigan National Bank 5% Daily Interest Account, you get more money for your money. At Michigan National Bank every penny in your savings account earns interest for every day it's on deposit. No quarterly periods to worry about. No penalties for early withdrawals or late deposits. With daily interest from Michigan National Bank, you get more money for your money.
