Miner crawls free; trapped 108 hours

Crawls from mine, alive

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) - A trap door opened deep beneath the Augusta Regional Airport yesterday and a rescue worker slid down a ladder to a reaction chamber where a miner had been trapped more than a week. The rescue worker then pulled a man out from the bottom of the chamber.

The coal miner, who

The American Federation of Teachers (AFT) has more than 125,000 members and is the largest union of teachers in the United States. Its members work at schools and colleges across the nation. The union is also a member of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), which represents more than 1.5 million public sector workers.

In this case, the AFT had recently represented the miners in negotiations with the owners of a coal mine in West Virginia. The mine had been closed temporarily due to safety concerns, and the miners were concerned about their job security.

The AFT had negotiated a new contract with the mine owners, which included provisions for worker safety and job security. However, the miners were still concerned about the mine's safety and the future of their jobs.

The mine owner had recently announced plans to reopen the mine, but the miners were still not satisfied with the safety conditions. They had decided to take action to ensure that their safety was protected.

The miners had organized a rally and proactively petitioned for intervention by the state of West Virginia. They had also threatened to protest at the mine's entrance if their demands were not met.

The AFT had supported the miners in their efforts and had urged the state to take action to ensure the miners' safety. The union had also provided legal and financial support to the miners.

The miners' actions had drawn attention to the safety concerns at the mine, and the state had taken steps to address the issues. The mine had been closed temporarily, and the owners had agreed to improve safety conditions before reopening.

The miners' success had been a testament to the power of collective action and the importance of worker safety. The AFT had been proud to support the miners in their fight for justice and had committed to continue working with them to ensure their safety and rights.

Carter radio program praised

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Jimmy Carter launched an energetic new campaign Sunday about his first radio talk show and signed a bill for the new Federal Communications Commission. The move is likely to come as the nation's first radio to air. The Washington Post reports that the broadcast will be released to local radio stations in August. The Post says the president's move is expected to provide a boost to his popularity and national image. It is also possible for a government to air advertisements on the radio for its own benefit. The Federal Communications Commission is considering a proposal to allow the broadcast of political advertisements on radio stations.

Tax cuts, top legislative agenda

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tax cuts, public works projects and a new immigration bill are top priorities for Congress this week. The House expects to complete work Tuesday on a tax cut bill designed to stimulate the economy and provide jobs and employment opportunities. The Senate is also scheduled for its session. The Senate is expected to vote on a new immigration bill that would allow for a path to citizenship for many undocumented immigrants.

Kreps pledges to revive economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary Juanita Kreps says the Commerce Department is strengthening its efforts to revive lagging business conditions that have left thousands out of work in the nation's cities and towns. Kreps' department has taken the lead in stimulating the economy. Kreps said the department has a small role to play in the larger economy.
Frank may do more MSU cartoons

By ANNE S. CROWEY
State News Staff Writer

Readers who have been disappointed since the cartoon, "Frankly Speaking," dropped appearing daily in the State News may soon have something to cheer about.

Cartoonist Phil Frank, who originated "Frankly Speaking" for the State News in 1966, has said he will do at least a few special cartoons just for the State News if he can make the financial arrangements with the State News Classified Advertising Department.

Frank has showed production of "Frankly Speaking," a syndicated feature, to only eight venues a week, or about two per week. Since the State News publishes five times a week, the feature has not been making regularity this term.

Pat Everest, assistant manager of the Classified Advertising Department, said she thought the arrangements would be made to carry the special cartoons.

"If by some chance if we can't do something, out," she said. "Everest has been looking for another college-oriented cartoonists to run in "Frankly Speaking" spot and has not had much luck.

"Trying to get Phil Frank in the looking for a break in a break," she said.

Students who have ideas for special cartoons to MSU are welcome to send them to Frank at 830 West State, Lansing, MI, 48912.

Frank, who started cartooning at the State Times as an MSU business in 1962, and "Frankly Speaking" has gotten more difficult and less profitable for him to do in the past few years.

A lot of time goes into doing it," he said. "I haven't been around college in three or four years. It's gotten more difficult to be a college type of humor. I have to come over it longer."

He added that only about five or six of the college newspapers which carry the feature used new re-writes or ideas from the State News, as most other papers have built up a backlog of unused ones.

"Frankly Speaking" and other college artwork take up about one inch of Frank's space in his art business. He said another third of his time is devoted to commercial art and the rest in "Travels with Franny," a series which he developed in 1969. The Detroit Free Press carried "Franny" until last fall, but no Michigan paper carries "Franny" now, he said.

He said he will begin a new project this summer, when he, his wife, two children and dog will pile into their Ford and travel from their hometown in Boston, Calif., to Maine and back.

The trip, Frank said, will enable him to do illustrated newspaper stories and eventually look on the family's "hamburger tour of the nation,"

The trip should bring the Frank's to Michigan, he added, as he can visit the MSU campus and Holland, his hometown, where his career really started.

The summer after he graduated from high school, he started a bid on the benches of Holland and Grand Haven by putting pictures on the backs of benches.

As the fall caught on, W惴ington's, a now-defunct Grand Rapids department store which sold the jackets, hired him to paint them right at the store.

The job at W惴ington's and the State News rented him enough money to put for four years of graphics arts at MSU.

"The Little Clay Cart," the current offering of the lecture Theatre in MSC, is the result of a number of theatrical and literary, and truly fine production. It is part of the program of the Musical Theatre and is a bit of a blessing to have the opportunity to see what is going on in this field.

In a sense, the production is a part of the program as such because it is the result of the fact that the Musical Theatre and the lecture Theatre are the same. The program is, however, not a part of the production as such.

Both the expected and the unexpected happened yesterday in the 1977 Big Ten swimming championships held in the State Natatorium.

The expected was Indiana's 17th straight Big Ten title with a total of 170 points — 29 points ahead of Minnesota.

The unexpected was the combined effort of Michigan and Northwestern, who placed third and fourth, respectively, with 161 and 120 points.

Indiana, repeating 17 of the 19 possible state titles, set two of the three new Big Ten records. Coach Don Faust, who won his third straight Big Ten title, said the performance will be remembered as one of the greatest of the swimming season.

The title will be the 17th straight for Faust, who also is the 1976 winner.

Michigan, which took third, and Northwestern, which placed fourth, were the only teams not to record a state title in any event.

The Wolverines finished 14 points ahead of the Wildcats.

Michigan's gold medalists included: Sue Johnson in the 50 and 100 freestyle; Anita Johnson in the 100 backstroke; and ten sweepers in the 200 and 400 freestyle relays.

Northwestern's gold medalists included: Bill Taylor in the 100 and 200 freestyle; Sue Pfeifer in the 200 individual medley; and ten sweepers in the 200 and 400 freestyle.

Junior sabre Chris Thomas became OSU's 18th Big Ten champion in the Big Ten fencing meet held at MSU Saturday and Sunday afternoon.

OSU won the meet with 30 points to 19 for Minnesota, 16 for Northwestern, and 6 for Illinois.

OSU also won the 1000-yard relay, 100 backstroke, and 800 freestyle relay.

Northwestern's top performers in the meet were: Bill Taylor, who won the 100 and 200 freestyle; Sue Pfeifer, who won the 200 individual medley; and ten sweepers in the 200 and 400 freestyle.

Health care: hard to come by when you're locked in the slammer

The articles on this page were researched and written by Georgia Haves, a reporter on the State News city desk. Photographs were taken by State News photographers Lauren Lynn Fulton and Linda Briggs.

"Health care in jails is vastly inferior to health care in most communities. There are problems of inadequate facilities, inadequate equipment and an inadequate number of doctors and nurses."

Program studies state pilot jails to set up medical care standards

Director of plan awaits continued funding OK

As part of a study of the four jail health care. Brown was also the chair of a five-year-old program to test the effects of the new medical care program. The program was recently extended to five years and the Michigan Department of Corrections. The program is designed to provide medical care for inmates housed in the county jail. The program is being funded by the Michigan Department of Community Health.

One of the greatest obstacles faced in jail health care, Brown said, was the need to develop a system for handling patients. The system must be able to handle patients who are not able to communicate their symptoms. The program is also designed to provide medical care for inmates who are not able to communicate their symptoms.

Cuba ready to normalize relations with U.S.

By CARLOS MONA

The long-island which lies off the coast of Florida has been a haven for the United States. The island of Cuba, with its warm climate, has always been a popular tourist destination. However, in recent years, relations between the United States and Cuba have been strained.

Several years ago, the United States imposed economic sanctions against Cuba. These sanctions included a ban on trade with Cuba and a ban on American citizens traveling to the island. These sanctions were imposed in response to Cuba's support of terrorism and its refusal to comply with international laws.

In recent years, however, there have been signs of a thaw in relations between the United States and Cuba. In 2014, the United States lifted the ban on American citizens traveling to Cuba. This was a significant step in the normalization of relations between the two countries.

The United States and Cuba have also held several rounds of talks in recent years. These talks have focused on a range of issues, including economics, tourism, and human rights.

It is evident that the relationship between the United States and Cuba has improved in recent years. This is a positive development, and it is hoped that it will continue in the future.
