Carter: sacrifice for conservation's sake

SHINGTON (AP) — President Jimmy Carter asked the Monday night to make sacrifices and support what he called inful, unpopular programs to conserve energy because "the tive may be a national catastrophe."

ative may be a national catastrophic.

th the exception of preventing war," Carter said in a ion address, "this is the greatest challenge our country will furing our lifetimes. The energy crisis has not yet helmed us, but it will if we do not act quickly." helmed us, but it will if we do not act quickly." her warned that the nation's oil and gas supplies are running her spoke from his Oval Office desk, looking directly into ion cameras, a slight frown on his face. Former President Truman's "The buck stops here" sign was on the desk in

Wearing a presidential dark blue suit and a light blue shirt, Carter told reporters beforehand he would rather have worn the sweater he donned for his informal fireside chat earlier this year. "But I couldn't," he said, apparently referring to the m rious nature of this address. Carter told the nation his energy proposals "will cause you to put up with inconveniences and to make sacrifices. Many of these sals will be unpopular."

However, he stressed, the energy crisis "will get worse every Carter declined to unveil the details of his program. The chief executive plans to do that when he addresses Congress on Wednesday. Instead, he cited specific goals to be achieved and the principles used to formulate his program.

"We must be fair," he said. "Our solutions must ask equal sacrifices from every region, every class of people, every interest group. Industry will have to do its part to conserve, just as numers will. The energy producers deserve fair treatment, but we will not let the oil companies profiteer."

To meet the energy challenge, Carter set seven goals to be met by the nation by 1985

• Reduce the growth rate of U.S. energy demand from its 3.5 per cent or 4 per cent a year to less than 2 per cent.

• Cut gasoline demand 10 per cent below current levels.

Cut oil imports, currently close to 9 million barrels per day, down to about 6 million barrels a day.

 Establish a stragetic petroleum reserve of one billion barrels, enough to keep the nation going through at least a six-month interruption of petroleum supplies.

Increase coal production by about two-thirds to more than one

• Insulate 90 per cent of American homes and all new buildings. Use solar energy in more than 2.5 million houses.

A draft of White House proposals obtained by news media showed that Carter was seriously considering a "standby" gasoline tax reaching as high as 50 cents a gallon, taxes ranging from $412 to $2,500 on gas-guzzling automobiles and price hikes on oil and natural gas in general.

MAYOR GIVES REZONING REACTION

Vote called 'premature'

By GEORGIA HANSHEW State News Staff Writer

An unexpected vote last week by the East Lansing Planning Commission to recommend rezoning land for the proposed Dayton-Hudson Mall has been labeled "premature" by Mayor George Griffiths, and he will ask City Council tonight to send back the commission's recommendation.

the planning commission jumped a month or two ahead of its expected timetable to recommend rezoning Dayton-Hudson property in northwest East Lansing from agricultural to Griffiths said he feels the commission needs "at least another three months" to consider the effects the Dayton-Hudson project would have on the north sector of East Lansing.

"I would hope they (commissioners) could be convinced that their vote on the matter was premature," Griffiths said.

He said he would like to see the planning commission table the issue until more commissioners are in agreement.

"When it does come to us again," he said, "I hope it's not by another 5-4 vote. Paula Johnson, planning commission chairperson, defended the commission's vote and objected to Griffiths' proposal to return its

He said May or June should be the earliest date for such a decision by the planning commission.

'U' fails to meet hiring goals for women faculty

By KRISTIN VAN VORST

State News Staff Writer MSU has failed to meet its hiring goals for women since its affirmative action program was implemented in 1970, according to University affirmative action statistics. In 1973 a goal of 15.7 per cent women in the tenure stream faculty for 1977 was set but women now make up only 12.7 per cent of

In 1970 a goal of 14.7 per cent for 1973 was projected, but women still made up only 12.3 per cent of the faculty under tenure rules in

As a response to the dismal figures, the University has scuttled the percentage method of evaluating affirmative action success and will instead focus on the number of actual appointments into the tenure stream in developing future goals. During the last academic year, for example, the goals for appointments were revised, but the percentages were ignored.

Under this new policy, the number of women in the tenure stream is viewed as more important than their percentage in relation to the number of men.

Susan Hughes, assistant to the vice president for University and federal relations, said percentages are not a good way to look at goals because they do not take into account turnover and losses within depart-

Hughes said the original projection predicted an increase of 19 appointments into the tenure stream but was increased to 28 in 1975. Twenty-three appointments were actually made. Hughes said the revision was made because the percentages predicted for 1973 were off and because openings and turnover were higher than

However, a major reason cited in past years for not reaching affirmative action goals was the lack of turnover in the tenure stream opening new positions to be filled by

Goals for the 1976-77 academic year were originally set at 19 appointments but changed to 32 in 1975. Hughes said future goals would be worked out on the appointment basis for the next three-year plan.

Though there have been 773 tenure stream appointments since July 1971 with 188 of them women, the total number of tenure stream faculty has not grown by that amount.

Robert Perrin, vice president for University and federal relations, said the 773 figure indicates losses and gains within departments and turnover.

A total of seven women have been added to the tenure stream since 1972, according to affirmative action reports. And out of 2,204 faculty members now under tenure rules, 283 are women. In 1972 there were 276. The fall 1976 affirmative action report to the MSU Board of Trustees stated, "The total number of tenure stream faculty in fall 1976 was precisely the same in fall 1971."

However, the report failed to mention that the number of faculty in the tenure stream steadily increased until 1974 when it peaked at 2,282.

The largest period of growth since 1970 was in the first two years. In 1970 women made up 11 per cent of the tenure stream faculty. In 1971 they made up 11.6 per cent of the faculty and in 1972 the figure reached 12.3 per cent.

Since 1972 the percentage of women at MSU under tenure rules has risen .5 per cent - less than the increase between 1970 and

"The figures are accurate. But there are an awful lot of variables," Perrin said. He added that people do not realize "the rate you have to hire to nudge the percentages up. It is a valid point to consider that is overlooked a lot of the time.

"The University's commitment to affirmative action is solid," Perrin said. "Overall, MSU has made a reasonable effort. There have been no instances of deliberate resistance to affirmative action.

Within the tenure stream ranks, less than 9 per cent of the tenured faculty are currently women. Only one out of seven tenure appointments since 1969 has been a

Three hundred and fifty-two faculty members were given tenure with 308 of them men and 44 women, according to the Compilation of Data on Faculty, Staff and Students at MSU done by the Office of Institutional Research.

Fifty-three per cent of all women under tenure rules are tenured, while 81 per cent of the men are.

The difference in percentages of tenured men and tenured women has actually increased since 1969 — the year before affirmative action was implemented. In 1969, 67 per cent of men under tenure rules were tenured and 48 per cent of the women were. The difference in the percentages between men and women was 19 per cent then, but it has now grown to 28 per cent.

'Our units have to do a lot better," Perrin said. "We hope in setting our goals we will be able to get more realistic appraisals from the

Officials push for delay

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter Administration urged on Monday that tougher controls on automobile pollution be delayed at least one year.

At the same time, the administration asked Congress for standby authority to impose a tax of $65 to $120 on 1983 model cars that fail to meet tough nitrogen oxide standards which may be imposed in that model year. The tax would go into effect only if the tougher standard is imposed and would remain in effect only until the cars were able to meet it. Journalist impels minorities to utilize mass media power

After delivering an impressionable lecture to a group of communication students Sunday evening, Vernon Jarrett, syndicated columnist of the Chicago Tribune, spent most of Monday talking with students in his room at Kellogg

Appearing just a little annoyed with his seventh floor heat trap, Jarrett discussed the importance of black communications students securing a vital academic preparation.

The four-time Pulitzer nominee told students it is vital for black students to learn to sharpen and practice over and over their skills in communications and writing.

"Black journalists must become accustomed to gathering the facts, understanding them and putting them in order," Jarrett said. He also stressed the importance of being well read and researching current subjects.

According to Jarrett, the future of black

Americans rests on the ability of young black communicators to utilize the power of the media and project a more positive image.

The press ignores the successes of the ordinary people, projecting the idea that blacks cannot move without a messiah to guide them," Jarrett said.

Jarrett disclosed that the tide is turning around for this country's black citizens. He pointed to pending reverse discrimination suits as an example of the blacks' chances of losing hard-gained civil rights:

"Everywhere you turn there are court cases pending to reduce affirmative action. Unless there is a new level of awareness, we (blacks) will have to fight again for what we supposedly had already gained," he said.

ACLU to join county in appeal of decision birth control info

The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) will join Ingham County in filing an appeal to the court decision ruling that the Family Planning Cenmation without parental consent or knowledge.

The ACLU will file a friend of the court brief in support of the appeal filed by Ingham County in Federal District Court in Grand Rapids Friday. Ingham County corporation counsel Peter A. Cohl said the grounds used by the county to challenge the ruling will be based on the constitutional rights of minors and the privilege of the physicianpatient relationship.

"Minors have a constitutional right to privacy," he said. "We're also claiming doctorpatient privilege. The physician, in conjunction with the patient, should decide whether the parent should be notified concerning contraception."

By not objecting to the involvement of Cohl's office in the appeal, the Ingham County Board of Commissioners gave tacit approval to challenging the ruling, according to County Commissioner William A. Sederburg, R-East Lansing.

"The curious thing about the case," he noted, "is that there hasn't been very much contro-of the rights of parents by supplying minors with contra-ceptives and birth control infor-

Though he said he agrees with the constitutional rationale behind the county's involvement in the case, Commissioner Jesse Sobel, D-East Lansing, said he feels that the major issue in this case is one of dealing with adolescent sexual activity in as rational a manner as possible.

"We can either dispense contraceptives to minors, or we can have abortions going on,"

"I don't think a minor should have to go through the trauma of having an abortion if she doesn't have to," he said.

ACLU Michigan Executive Director Howard Simon predicted the appeals would eventually lead to "a major statement on the constitutional rights of minors."

Hands off of Zaire

President Carter should be extrememly wary of entangling alliances in Zaire. Already, his approval of $13 million of "nonlethal aid" is too close for comfort.

It is indeed unfortunate that United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young reneged on his laissez-faire attitude about Zaire and recently ascribed his approval to the U.S. funding.

We cannot afford to be drawn into an ostensibly civil matter with international economic ramifications. About the only thing Carter should be commended for is his apparent unwillingness to snake around for secret aid, a la Henry Kissinger during the Angola affair.

We must avoid a Vietnam-like quagmire that already appears to be swallowing up countries such as France, Belgium, and South Africa. On the surface, the conflict is a civil matter. Political descendants of the separatist Kantangese which fled Zaire in the middle 1960s are fighting an effective guerilla war to capture the province of Shaba and depose Zaire President Mobutu Sese Seko. Beyond the pall of civil war, the battle takes on international implications. If the rebels take over the key mining town of Kolwezi, they may have effectively swept away Mobutu's already shaky economic underpinnings. The trouble is, other countries have interests there.

The inevitability of another countrywide factional war would bring instability to the world's largest exporter of industrial diamonds and

If Mobutu had his way, the United States would get sucked into the conflict. Of course, it is his head on the block and he can continue to rave about American apathy towards an alleged Marxist and Communist takeover of Africa.

This rhetoric by Mobutu cannot disguise his insensitivity on human rights. For instance, he suspended religious training in 1975 and promoted the secular "Mobutism" by advancing veiled comparisons between himself and Jesus Christ.

There have also been reports of political torture, starvation and imprisonment.

Mobutu is equally offensive to Carter's sense of international free trade. His country, along with Peru, Zambia and Chile, conspired in late 1974 to drive up the falling price of copper.

Now, with his fortunes declining, Mobutu is berating the U.S. government for not militarily defending that same copper and involving itself in other economic factors. We should stay out and let him, and the other countries, fight this battle on their own for once.

Appointment startling

Gov. William G. Milliken's appointment of Capt. Gerald L. Hough (subject to almost certain Senate approval) as new director of the Michigan State Police came as a startling and not altogether pleasant

With all the publicity surrounding the state police Red Squad it appeared certain that Milliken would pick someone outside the department as new director. But he chose to go with a "product of a proud tradition of trust and professionalism.

It is our hope that this tradition of trust and professionalism be displayed when dealing with the Red Squad scandal. It would be criminal to obstruct disclosure of wrongdoing and an injustice to allow those responsible to go unpunished.

For too long illegal surveillance has plagued the citizenry on both the local and national level. Such activities must stop, and their perpetrators must be exposed.

It will be Hough's job to prevent such practices from ever occurring again. He is taking over at a very sensitive moment. The Red Squad investigation must be pursued, and the responsibility for cooperating with this investigation falls on Hough and the man who appointed him — Gov. William G. Milliken.

Prisons need reform

When too many people are confined in a hot room, tempers rise when too many people are commended in a not room, tempers risk mercury in the thermometer. Add bland food, inadequate recent and desperation and you have — a prison riot.

id desperation and you have — a presult flow.

Gov. William G. Milliken projects that Michigan prisons, by the 1977, will contain 2,500 more inmates than they were built to hold a overcrowding spells trouble for correction officers who must rectangly men during the searing summer months ahead. Unfortunately and the searing summer months are a search of the search the problem of overcrowding in prisons does not fluctuate with weather. States, in the past, have been sued because the condition their prisons were intolerable. And Milliken admits that the level Michigan's overcrowding leaves the state open to such charges,

One such suit has recently been filed by the Human Rights per (HRP) which hopes to relieve some of the abusive conditions cause overcrowding. Zolton Ferency, the attorney for the HRP, said primare forced to sleep in solitary confinement when the are forced to sleep in solitary confinement when they're not punished because there is no place to put them.

The suit is designed on the model of school desegregation cases, would allow the courts to order the Michigan Department of Correct to submit a plan alleviating the overcrowding. The court could supervise the implementation of the plan.

With the compelling need for more space in prisons, a court plan better than no plan at all. One frequently cited deterrent to the mandatory sentencing, can only force an already overburdened system to break down.

There surely must be a continued emphasis on rehabilitation of criminal. We hope that more constructive programs in penology salvage some of the immense human resource being wasted in total

We agree with the HRP that overcrowding in prisons can aggravate the personal problems of criminals and harden them ag rehabilitation. We support their efforts to correct this herd psychologeven if it means a bitter fight between the courts and the correct department.

There will be no pat solution to this problem. It may mean built more prisons, with the accompanied rise in taxes and grumbling citizens. It may mean renting or leasing space to be converted prisons, despite the outrage and dismay of local residents. But it mean another Attica if something isn't done.

Nuclear energy

The State News editorial of last Wednesday dealt with a typically paranoid view of the future of nuclear energy in future U.S. energy needs. The reader witnessed an ominous vulture sitting on a cracked nuclear reactor. Obviously the writer is of the opinion, as are many misinformed individuals, that a nuclear reactor can "blow up like the nuclear bomb over Hiroshima." If the State News writer had any scientific background he would realize that a nuclear holocaust is absolutely impossible. There has never been even a close call in 25 years

In the editorial the State News indicates it hopes that President Jimmy Carter "will reject nuclear power as an energy source' in his upcoming energy policy. Primarily, Carter would look to coal for energy. However, one wonders what is more dangerous overall, limited mining and processing of nuclear materials, or savagely destructive strip mining; coal mine disas ters killing numerous miners each year, or additional smog from the combustion of coal jeopardizing the health of every American.

Men wanted

The letter written by Ann Lunder last Tuesday about Campbell Hall seems to represent a small percentage of the viewpoints of the women at Campbell. Her complaint (about which floors were set aside for the guys) seems inconsequential in light of the reasons to go coed.

We feel Campbell going coed is a smart and long-awaited move by the administration, for these reasons:

Censorship

Ms. Hayhow's letter to the State News articulating News Bulletin policy confirms that the organized faculty and the State News accurately perceived that policy. Simply put, it is censorship in violation of

The attempt to evade that issue is understandable, given the traditions of academic freedom the faculty at MSU has persistently supported. The News Bulletin refused to print our point of view on Justin Morrill College not because it was not "news. . . about the University," but on the grounds that our solution to the problem is ollective bargaining. The News Bulletin has carried other views of the Justin Morrill situation which suggest other solutions or no solution at all beyond more of the same. We demand the same right to address issues of current interest to faculty, staff and students, regardless of the solution we offer. Favoritism toward certain solutions belies the neutral posture the News Bulletin tries to assume.

The News Bulletin's specious argument concerning the use of the term "collective bargaining" fools no one. That opponents of collective bargaining do not lace their analyses with these terms is hardly surprising. They are more interested in demonstrating the positive qualities of their solutions — as they should be. Buddhists spend little time attacking Jesus Christ.

Finally, the News Bulletin continues to arrogate to itself the right to censor our material and to limit discussion of collective bargaining to a short period before an election. What faculty group established that policy? The answer is clear from the purpose of the News Bulletin Ms. Hayhow articulates: it is "a means of communication to faculty and staff." Since the University is the faculty and staff, clearly the News Bulletin is purely an administrative and not a University voice. And that is the pity.

DAVE MISIALOWSKI BOB OURLIAN

Andy, forget us not

Daniel Patrick Movnihan, that bellicose rhetoritician who used to embarrass the United States at the U.N., once proclaimed, as was the pomposity of his manner, that the most creative instrument of the 20th century was the multi-national corporation. In fact, he proclaimed it several times each time louder than the first, it seemed.

Those of us who despise Movnihan cite that particular little nugget of Moynihanese as one basis for our dislike of the man. After all, anybody who thinks African teeth rotting from Coca Cola is creative has to be at least misled, if not outright perverted in some sadistic sense.

So now along comes Andrew Young (Andy, we call him), a young black minister, a fresh, comfortably left-leaning Democrat, a former friend and aide to the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, a mover and a shaker in the Civil Rights movement who inspires meetings of local Urban Leagues to stand and sing "We Shall Overcome.

To those of the Urban League, the NAACP, most Democrats and no doubt most blacks, Andy Young represents a distinct shift in U.S. foreign policy. Rather than berate the third world, he tries to see their point of view. Instead of fueling State Department idiocy with thunderous pro-clamations, he speaks as if the State Department didn't exist. When Andy Young sings "We Shall Overcome," know he's also talking about overcoming the idea that foreign policy spokespersons must shut up and toe the line of the same old reactionary foreign policy that has been around since the days of Teddy Roosevelt. So Andy, why are you copping out?

You see, Andy has developed this bizarre idea — which he laid on a befuddled group of presumed Civil Rights veterans at the 12th annual dinner of the National Urban League a week ago — that multinational corporations "marshal the world's resources to meet the needs and desires of the people."
Well, now. That's a mouthful.'

Surely Andy could not have learned this lesson at Martin Luther King's knee. Hearing Young utter such Moynihanese and listening to all the jaws drop just after he did - one is inclined to believe that CIA-hired doctors have been messing around inside his head.

Multinational corporations do not marshal the world's resources for any productive end other than producing piles of money for company stockholders and directors - and Young knows it.

Altrusim? Simply scads of it. Listen to Dow Chemical Chairman Carl Gerstacker: "I have long dreamed of buying an island owned by no nation, and of establishing the World Headquarters of the Dow Company on truly neutral ground. . . rather than being governed in the prime by the laws of the United States." Altruism unseen since the days of Ghenghis Kahn. The reason why Gerstacker hasn't done something like thi has nothing to do with patriotism, world development or building roads in Upper Volta. It's strictly dollars and cents because the tax problem is insurmount-tionals; the multinationals are in the market for a sucker. Perhaps they are suitably matched with one another.

Young expects a partner in the multina

The legacy of the multinational has been one of manipulation, monopolism, economic concentration and price gouging. If Young believes the profit motive is harmonious with world development and love, he must have been wearing a blindfold in the marches through Selma and Montgomery. Andy gleefully related the story of the Kentucky Fried Chicken stand he saw in Nairobi. Apparently Young feels that the Colonel's insipid gravy somehow meets the "needs and desires" of starving, barefoot, culturally-deprived Africans, to whom, no doubt, the white-clad Colonel with the wisp of a white beard must certainly stand as a towering edifice of inspiration. Sorta like a plantation owner.

Such foul logic echoes not only of Moynihan, but of politicians and generals going back to the 60s and well before who asserted that one benefit of our presence in Vietnam was that it was Westernizing and uplifting the natives. It took almost twenty years, as Andy Young well knows, count less thousands of lives, tons and tons of bombs and defoliants and brain-numbing flapdoodle by four Presidents before we ized that the Vietnamese people particularly care to be Westernized or uplifted, thank you very much. Young's statement is already being parroted by the likes of East Lansing City Councilperson Mary Sharp, who has used it to buttress her conviction that the a should refrain from passing a residurging a boycott of U.S. corporations holdings in South Africa. When Mary and Andrew Young can get together something, those who are conspirated minded have a right to keep looking their beds.

This is not the first time that Your opened his yap to the detriment credentials with Liberal America Tail York Times, in their solemn manner, "hasty and pernicious" Young's that a law should be passed banning press from covering activities which deemed to be "violent." Woo Wooooooooooooooo And now, presenting the Grand and Glorious mid-Michigan Galaxy of Clowns, Alley 44.

Though they lacked a calliope on wheels, enthusiasm was certainly abundant as clowns of all sizes stumbled and shuffled, then lurched and flailed in every direction in an effort to gracefully keep the beat of the disco music at Rollerworld Sunday night.

Clad in everything from floppy hats with birds perched on top to canes made from toilet plungers and bike horns, clowns from Detroit, Grand Rapids and the Lansing area entertained kids of all ages and themselves while raising money to sponsor two children who will be sent to camp.

"We'll send two kids to either a cystic fibrosis or a crippled children's camp with the money from tonight's 'Skate with a Clown' rally," said Whistles the Clown, coordinator for Alley 44. "If this one is successful we'll plan more, and from the looks of the turnout tonight,

"Our alley is the largest of three in the state with 78 clowns and our membership includes eight or nine who are full time and who have performed in circuses at one time or another. Part-timers like Tick Tock, alias Bob Danials, is a microbiologist with the state; Jerry the Clown, alias Jerry Campbell, is a photographer with the Kalamazoo Gazette; six or seven work at Oldsmobile; three are undertakers and one drives a hearse," he said.

Approximately 40 clowns turned out for the festivities and clowned around with 200 patrons who smiled and shrieked with delight at their shenanigans.
