You can close your eyes and feel the cold air, and it reminds you of death, maybe . . . and then you can open them again and notice that the COLORS are warm, like the glowing spiral-tops of stoves where you'd put your hands up for warmth after coming in from the blizzard-daze of your green childhood. This is the strange blessing of autumn, the mark it leaves on your soul: with each year it becomes easier to hear the sallow ghost of winter humming in your ear--his voice is seductive, yet terrifying, like the devil's. It becomes easier to overlook the burbling splendor of glowing leaves, the gently yawning of Earth whistling through the half-bare trees.

Committee tells energy secretary to sell stock

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee told Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger on Tuesday to sell more than $33,000 worth of stock he and his wife hold in an energy-related company. The panel said the holdings pose a possible conflict of interest.

The committee action came as a House-Senate conference committee began work on a compromise energy bill and as President Jimmy Carter declared that the reputations of both Congress and of his first year domestic program hinge on the energy bill to come.

The energy committee gave Schlesinger nine months to dispose of 2,100 shares of stock in the Newhall Land and Farming Company. The stock is worth about $33,000.

The unanimous committee vote followed Schlesinger's own disclosure to the panel that "there are some 90 producing wells, mostly natural gas" on 150,000 acres owned by the company.

Carter, in an Oval Office meeting with Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, D-Ohio, predicted that Congress eventually will enact the bulk of his energy program, despite numerous major setbacks in the Senate.

"I think what we do on energy will determine the success or failure of the year of congressional work. I think, in the minds of the American people," Carter told Ashley.

"I think it's legitimate to measure the success of Congress and my own administration, at least in domestic affairs, on what happens to energy," Carter added.

Ashley predicted the final bill will be one that Carter "can take some pride in and we can as well. And we're going to do that." The Ohio Democrat is co-chairperson of the conference committee that will reconcile House and Senate differences on the energy legislation.

Carter's meeting with Ashley was one of several sessions he has been holding with key members of Congress on the energy legislation as the conference committee begins its work.

He also scheduled meetings for Tuesday with Sens. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas. On Monday night, he met for an hour with Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairperson of the Senate Finance Committee.

It was Long's panel that approved billions of dollars in energy tax incentives for the oil industry but rejected every energy tax proposed by the president. The rejected proposals called for taxes on crude oil, industries and utilities that use natural gas and on cars that get poor gasoline mileage.

Both Long and administration officials hope some of these taxes can be revived by the conference committee.

Earlier Tuesday, Carter told congressional leaders at a White House breakfast that largely because of the action taken by the Finance Committee, the Senate version of the energy legislation could wreck his hopes of achieving a balanced federal budget.

According to participants, Carter told the leaders that the energy tax incentives approved by the Senate panel and expected to win full Senate approval would create a budget deficit of $55 billion.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told reporters there was also optimism expressed at the leadership breakfast that a compromise could be drafted to continue price controls on natural gas as Carter

ALLIES EXERT PRESSURE AT BELGRADE

U.S. to restrain rights campaign

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON

E. Yugoslavia (AP) — The United States, under pressure from its NATO allies, apparently agreed to exercise restraint in reviewing the human rights records of the Soviet Union and Communist East Germany, sources reported Tuesday. The U.S. State Dept. review committee is still examining the issue with NATO allies, officials say. Diplomatic sources reported that for the first time, at least, the United States is not in front of the allies.

The review is whether to cite countries by name when reviewing implementation of the 1975 Helsinki accords. The review is being held in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, at a summit meeting of the United States, Canada and 32 European countries. The review is being held in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, at a summit meeting of the United States, Canada and 32 European countries. The review is being held in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, at a summit meeting of the United States, Canada and 32 European countries.

West views as promises of greater human rights in the Communist countries.

The United States came to the Belgrade follow-up conference prepared to document 1,500 cases involving a total of 5,000 persons who had been blocked from joining relatives in the West in alleged violations of the accords on family unification, the sources said.

But its allies in the North Atlantic alliance are said to fear that naming names will provoke harsh reaction and be counterproductive if any commitments from the East bloc are to be gained.

U.S. restraint would have three aims, the sources reported: to preserve allied unity, to avoid a confrontation with the Soviets so a full review can be carried out, and to ensure that further review conferences can be held after Belgrade in order to keep pressure on the East.

So far, the United States has directly criticized the Soviet Union only once during the two-week old conference, accusing it of tampering with mail from the West.

West Germany on Monday mentioned high exit visa fees in the Soviet Union, Bulgaria and Poland and complained that East Germany was blocking cases of families seeking to be reunited.

In concert with its 14 NATO allies, however, the United States is still undecided at what point it would single out specific cases and countries. Some countries have proposed this be done "in response to attacks" from the east, the sources said.

U.S. officials emphasize that differences among the allies aren't serious and only concern degree on tactics.

Nevertheless, one source described Goldberg as an "isolated figure" among the NATO delegation chiefs, with virtually every NATO country insisting the West take a more cautious approach.

One NATO ambassador, confirming there are differences on tactics, explained, "We live next to the Soviets and the United States is across the ocean."

Another West European diplomat, whose country is not in NATO, suggested that when pointing out a failing of the Soviets "It's important not to rub their face in it" or the dialogue will stop.

When the conference closes — it may last until early next year — the West hopes to obtain agreement on new proposals further committing the Communist East to permit the freer movement of people and ideas. These would include promises to ease roadblocks to family reunification and facilitate visas for businessmen and journalists.

Nelson opts against re-election campaign

By DAN SPICKLER
State News Staff Writer

After he completes his eighth year in the Michigan legislature, Sen. Earl Nelson, D-Lansing, will be calling it quits.

Nelson made the announcement Tuesday at a midday meeting of the Lion's Club in Lansing.

The 24th district senator made special speeches before the House and the Senate announcing his decision not to run for re-election in 1978.

"I'm not mad at anyone, I'm not trying to say anything about our system of government," Nelson told lawmakers. "I'm happy and proud to know you all."

He explained that at the start of his career in the House he had planned to serve about eight years and then leave the job for someone else.

"I think it is our job to go to the people and urge others to serve," Nelson said. "We cannot very well allow that to happen unless we get the hell out."

Nelson declined to say what his future plans are. He said he had a lot of options, but had not made a final decision. "I was gainfully employed before I took office and I suspect I will be gainfully employed in the future," he said.

Nelson served for two terms in the Michigan House representing the Lansing area before defeating Republican incumbent Phillip Pittenger in 1974 for the 24th district senate seat.

Some of the likely candidates to replace Nelson on the 1978 democratic slate are Rep. H. Lynn Jondahl, D—East Lansing, 59th district; Rep. David Hollister, D—Lansing, 57th district; and Rep. Tom Holcomb, D—Lansing, 58th district.

Jondahl, who has served two years longer than the other two representatives, said he would definitely discuss the matter with other Democrats, but declined to state if he would run for the Senate seat.

During his eight years in the Senate, Nelson has battled for a restructuring of the state's higher education system, pushing for centralization.

Academic Council debates authority clause

By JIM SMITH

State News Staff Writer
Amendments designed to clarify the "delegated authority" clause of the Academic Council at Tuesday's meeting. The amendments, which were eventually raised discussion of the overall issues of Academic Governance as constituted.

A. Ferency, associate professor of justice, rose in opposition to the amendments and broadened the issue to "what are we doing here at Academic Council?"

Referring to provisions in the proposed bylaws which would give faculty's "delegated authority" directly to Academic Council committees, Ferency said abuses of committees circumventing Academic Council on important issues had already occurred.

He specifically opposed the wording which gave the steering committee the power to determine what items would be brought before the Academic Council.

In later clarification, he said he was concerned that the steering committee might view the complaint of a single student or faculty member as a minor complaint and not forward it to Academic Council.

James B. McKee, professor of sociology, also opposed the amendments on grounds they would constitute governance by committee rather than legislative body.

McKee, a steering committee member, said he believes the bylaws, if approved, would give to the steering committee decisions which should be made by Academic Council.

Gerald R. Miller, professor of communication, spoke in favor of the amendments, saying committees often spend hours researching a subject only to have Academic Council send them back after being "nit-picked."

McKee, expressing sympathy for committee problems, said "if all we (Academic Council) do is rubber-stamp them (committees) we will have hit a new low."

Ralph E. Taggart, associate professor of botany, arguing against the amendments, said issues of great importance have been taken up in committees without adequate Academic Council awareness.

C. Patrick "Lash" Larowe, faculty grievance officer, described the meeting as the most useful Academic Council meeting he has ever attended.

Larowe, crediting Ferency for raising the issue of confusing governance roles, said he felt in the long run a substantial bylaw review would result in a greater voice in University affairs for faculty and students.

After disposing of the amendments, the council members voted to send back the Council's request that the Committee on Academic Governance review not only the unresolved question of "delegated authority," but also the question of the steering committee role, what constitutes a major or minor matter and communication between committees.

The Council delayed action on other agenda items until the Nov. 1 meeting.

Amnesty International presented at lecture

Representative of the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize-winning organization Amnesty International will speak at 7:30 tonight in 169 Anthony Hall, sponsored by the ASMSU Issues Lecture series.

Rubenstein will attempt to provide students with an understanding of the issues where people are denied their rights due to political ideologies, according to Issues Director Fred Jones.

(Amnesty International) can inform students which countries' human rights are violated in," Jones said. "It is sort of a state of the world address."

Amnesty International is a worldwide organization fighting for the rights of political prisoners in various countries. Members have written many heads of states in their efforts to help alleviate alleged injustices.

He had been reading about Amnesty International before the Nobel prizes were awarded and decided a speaker from the organization would be good to have in our series.

Amnesty International's main headquarters is in London but it has others around the world, with U.S. headquarters in New York City. The organization's lecture is free.

Amnesty International has been in operation since 1967 and has sponsored a number of speakers, and plans about nine other programs this year.

Hijack hostages, rescuers return to homes and emotional welcomes

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West German commandos and the hijack hostages they rescued flew home to emotional welcomes Tuesday as the government announced the suicide of three terrorists whose freedom the hijackers had demanded.

"The worst thing was shooting the pilot before our eyes. It was terrible," a bearded German in his 20s said of the five days during which he and 86 other hostages were held captive.

He and others returning to Germany said pilot Juergen Schumann, the only hostage to die during the hijacking, was executed by the hijack leader in front of the passengers at South Yemen after he allegedly tried to escape and was brought back by Yemeni authorities.

The pilot's body was dumped from the jet at the Mogadishu airport in Somalia, where commandos finally rescued the living hostages.

Eighty of the passengers, many looking haggard and fatigued, stepped off a backup Lufthansa jet at Frankfurt International Airport and were led to a nearby canteen for reunions with relatives. Then they went to a large hangar to hold a memorial service for Schumann.

Among the returnees were the only two American hostages — Christine Santiago, 44, and her 5-year-old son Leo. U.S. sources said Santiago, who suffers from a heart condition, was hospitalized for a checkup and Leo was taken to an uncle's house.

Lufthansa officials said six rescued hostages remained at Mogadishu, apparently unable to travel.

The scene was more jubilant at the Bonn-Cologne airport, where another jet brought home about 80 members of the German commando squad.

A brass band played the German anthem, crowds cheered and Interior Minister Werner Maihofer declared: "We are proud of you. We thank you in the name of the entire German people."

Then the commandos rushed to embrace their wives and girlfriends.

Acting with surgical precision in the predawn darkness at Mogadishu airport, the commandos stormed the hijacked Lufthansa 737 through emergency exits, rescued all 86 hostages aboard and killed three of the Arabic-speaking hijackers. The fourth, a woman, was seriously wounded.

Hours after reporting the raid, German officials made the surprise announcement that three terrorists held in a German jail had killed themselves and a fourth had tried and failed.

Officials said Andreas Baader, 34, and his mistress Gudrun Ensslin, 37, were found dead in their cells at the Stammheim maximum security prison near Stuttgart. Jan-Carl Raspe, 33, died in a hospital, and Irmgard Moeller, 30, was rushed to a hospital, they said.

The four had been among 11 jailed German terrorists whose freedom was demanded by the Lufthansa hijackers along with two Arabs held in Turkey and $15 million in ransom.

In the flurry of developments, there was no word on the fate of Hanns Martin Schleyer, the German industrialist kidnaped in Cologne Sept. 5. His kidnapers had vowed to kill him Sunday unless the hijackers' demands were met.

Many of the freed hostages disembarking at Frankfurt airport still wore the tans they picked up on the holiday isle of Majorca before they were hijacked on the flight home.

But most seemed exhausted and some emerged from the plane wrapped in airline blankets against the autumn chill. Several refused to talk to reporters.

One woman who declined to give her name said Schumann, the 37-year-old pilot, left the plane to check for damage after making a rough landing at South Yemen. She said it was then he allegedly tried to escape and was brought back by Yemeni authorities.

Another passenger said the hijack chief, who identified himself as Capt. Mahmoud, ordered the pilot to kneel and shouted: "Do you plead guilty or not guilty?" She said Schumann avoided a direct answer, and suddenly the hijacker shot him dead.

A Finnish passenger interviewed by Swedish television said: "The kids screamed when the captain was shot before our eyes but they soon calmed down. . . I thought this will be the end. But a couple minutes after the coldblooded murder the terrorist said, 'Now let's have a smoke.'"

Other passengers said Mahmoud changed moods constantly. "He was probably crazy," said a middle-aged man.

Recalling the raid, a woman passenger said: "I was luckily sitting at the emergency exit. I didn't hear a thing, not even a scratching or anything. Then somebody fell on top of us."

"All I heard was, 'Heads down!' Somebody was covering us with his body and all we hear was 'Heads down, don't be scared.'"

German officials, announcing the suicide of jailed terrorists, warned that German terrorists may now try another raid.

Children flee their rural school near Managua, Nicaragua, Monday as a guerrilla ambush of Nicaraguan soldiers was taking place only 100 yards away. Apparently all 450 children escaped injury during the attack in which leftist Sandinista guerrillas killed at least four soldiers and wounded others.

Israelis accused of exploiting Arabs in occupied territories

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli authorities routinely suppress the cultural and political life of Arabs living in the occupied territories, exploit them for cheap labor and detain them without trial or deportation, three Arab intellectuals said Tuesday.

The three testified before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee headed by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., who is himself of Arab descent.

Dr. Salim Tamari, a professor of sociology at Birzeit University, near Jerusalem in the occupied territories, complained of Israeli-imposed censorship on publications and theatrical productions.

"My students are subject to harassment, night arrest, interrogation and administrative detention," Tamari said.

He said one professor was held without charge for three years under "administrative detention."

He said a large number of Arabs living in the occupied West Bank area formerly controlled by Jordan were deported to Jordan on grounds they are Jordanian citizens, an excuse he called "a very sick kind of rationalization."

Tamari said one of the results of Israeli policies is that thousands of Arabs, especially those in the professional class and young males, have left the country.

He estimated that 60,000 to 80,000 of those who remain provide a source of cheap labor for Israel. He said their pay is 40 percent less than that received by Israelis and is subject to large deductions for social benefits which never are forthcoming.

He said there is special pressure applied to intellectuals and so-called opinion leaders, especially those who support the establishment of a separate Palestinian state independent of both Israel and Jordan.

The armed forces radio said Begin also began drafting a reply to a cable he received Monday from President Jimmy Carter on U.S. efforts to reconvene the Geneva peace conference.

Begin was admitted to a hospital Sept. 30 suffering from an inflammation of the membrane surrounding the heart, an after-effect of a heart attack last March. He was released Oct. 11 and has been resting at home.

Nicaraguan security entrenched

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaraguan security forces searched cars and positioned soldiers behind sandbags in this Central American capital Tuesday after suffering heavy losses in recent guerrilla attacks.

At least 24 persons have died in the last six days in confrontations between guerrillas and the national guard, including 15 military men, six guerrillas, and three civilians, government sources said.

The Sandinista National Liberation Front guerrillas have staged five surprise attacks including two assaults in the capital Monday.

Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza has frequently claimed the Sandinistas are financed and armed by the Communist government in Cuba. They take their name from Cesar Augusto Sainco who fought against the occupation of Nicaragua by U.S. marines early in this century.

Government and Red Cross sources reported eight persons were killed and 20 injured in a day-long battle Monday in Masaya, 15 miles east of Managua, and in a three-hour gun fight on the highway between the two cities. The dead included five and three guerrillas.

Roger Bermudez, a retired general who is President Somoza's press secretary, said one guerrilla was killed Monday when his companion fired from a moving car on a National Guard headquarters in downtown Managua.

Bermudez said the other guerrilla escaped, and that his killed a young woman and injured two other persons.

Bermudez also reported a raid on a "terrorist" base in Managua, but he had no details on casualties.

The Sandinistas have conducted a drive since 1964 to overthrow the Somoza regime, which they accuse of corruption and rule by terror. They have said their aim is to eliminate U.S. influence in Nicaragua and establish a Socialist government.

Over the years they have been blamed for bank robberies, kidnappings and various terrorist attacks throughout the country.

Bermudez said the government has the current situation under control and believed the guerrilla activity would be subdued by a "clean-up" operation by National Guard forces.

Ingham County may sue for grant funds

By SCOTT WIERENGA
State News Staff Writer

Ingham County Board of Public Works has made a recommendation that the county sue the federal government for $1.3 million in grant funds. The government says the county could not use the funds for the Lansing cleanup project.

County attorney said the county has recommended that the county sue the government for "money damages" and injunctive relief.

The county will argue the case in federal district court in Grand Rapids if the Ingham County Board of Commissioners votes to go ahead with the action. They are expected to take a decision within the next two weeks. The money came from the federal Economic Development Administration as part of a $1.4 million grant. The county believed it could use the money as a local share to match $1.3 million from the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

A problem came when a federal Commerce legal advisor said money could not be used for dredging a natural watercourse. Lake Lansing fits the definition, according to the advisor. The board argues the term does not apply to such as Lake Lansing. "Natural watercourse" is a term applied to a flowing body of water with defined banks, Cohl said. Lake Lansing, he said, has no outlets.

Board member Fred Postill said the county could win on the issue of "natural watercourse," but would be a very lengthy suit despite the point of contention. The federal government would try to make it as lengthy as possible, he said.

Stabenow, chairperson of the board of commissioners, said she has some doubts about going through with a suit. She wanted to get more facts before she would support a move to go to court.

Postill said there was a chance of the funding the suit might be worthwhile. It would not be worthwhile, he said, to pursue the case just to prove the county was right about the "natural watercourse" definition and not get additional money.

Rep. Robert Carr, D-East Lansing, said the county is appealing the decision it could outside the courts, but was to change the ruling.

County attorney said the grant money has been diverted to other projects which fit the Commerce Department. The money is being spent on projects such as remodeling the courthouse and a new pediatric intensive care center at the community hospital and animal hospital.

Plans are already out on these projects so if the Commerce Department changes its ruling the county would have to transfer the funds back to the project, the spokesperson said. There is a possibility the county would sue for additional funding in the form of "money damages." Sode said even if the county were to lose the suit, it might be considered a victory because it would stop the "bureaucrats" from making the decisions more responsible government officials are supposed to make.

Criminal justice school to upgrade jails

By KY OWEN

In an effort to "make jails constitutional" the MSU School of Criminal Justice will conduct a year-long program of seminars for managers of large correctional institutes. The program will begin in November with a $131,000 grant from the National Institute of Corrections (NIC).

Project coordinator will be Fred Postill, MSU assistant professor of criminal justice and former Washtenaw, Co. sheriff. Five MSU faculty will be instructors at the seminars. They are David Kalinich, instructor of criminal justice; Gilbert Skinner, assistant director of the personnel management program service, School of Labor and Industrial Relations; Robert Trojanowicz, Dean of the College of Social Science and professor of the criminal justice; and Marvin Zalman, assistant professor of criminal justice.

Other instructors for the seminars will include corrections consultants from Colorado and New York.

George Felkenes, chairman of the School of Criminal Justice, said he chose Postill to direct the project because "he was involved in preparation of the (NIC) grant, he had a good reputation, and is thought of as a progressive thinker." Postill was Washtenaw County sheriff from 1972-1976.

Postill said the purpose of the project is to upgrade conditions in local correctional facilities in order to meet present standards. He claimed most jails are violating the Eighth Amendment (cruel and unusual punishment) and Fourteenth Amendment (the right to due process under the law).

Many corrections managers are asking "How do we change?" and the seminars will help answer this, Postill said, by giving them ideas on jail management. The program will also provide management skills in human service delivery and correctional programming, within the limits set by each community. Also, consultants will be sent to those local jails with poor facilities to provide on-site technical assistance in crisis situations.

Postill said most problems in correctional facilities basically involve overcrowded cells and a lack of medical, recreational, and library facilities.

Most jails were built years ago, Postill explained, and the cell areas are like "cages" with the inmates losing their privacy.

Some inmates die in jails due to inadequate medical facilities, he commented. He said he believes paramedics should be on duty in jails.

To alleviate the problem of inmate inactivity, Postill initiated programs at the Washtenaw jail such as counseling, medical help and educational and vocational planning.

Protection of overnight inmates is also needed, since many are young first offenders Postill said. Some look up to the old-timers and become criminals, while others may be sexually harassed.

Another important area in upgrading correctional facilities is recruitment of employees, Postill continued. Institutes need to be staffed with professionally trained corrections officers and psychologists instead of police officers, Postill said, adding that most jails are now used for "dumping or training police officers."

Community relations hinders jail improvement because of the political problems involved, Postill said, and another problem is that most counties do not have adequate funding. Most counties do not have enough money for renovation projects, so federal and state funds are needed. Postill added that "without the NIC funds, not all of the jailkeepers would be able to come to the program."

Postill said that he began upgrading the Washtenaw jail with the help of federal monies, but once he started local funding was provided. "It was a lot of work, but I proved to myself it would work," Postill said about his work there.

The Washtenaw and Ingham County jails are national models, for correction facility programs.

Felkenes said, "people always paid attention to prisons," but there are probably 1,000 times the number of inmates in jails than in prisons.

Jails are small, local pre-trial detention centers, whereas prisons are large state and federal facilities for convicted felons.

Felkenes added that the public has taken a greater interest in the status of local jails since more court suits against jails are being filed. In these civil suits, the county is often found to be violating jail health standards and is liable for personal damage. He added that one sheriff was inviting public law suits to expose the conditions in his jail.

Postill said that before steps can be taken to upgrade correctional facilities, the public must be exposed to the situations in jails, but added, "it should have come to the public's attention years ago."

DRAWNS NO DEBATE Porn bill passed

By DAN SPICKLER
State News Staff Writer

Almost as soon as the Michigan Supreme Court struck down local obscenity standards last week, the Michigan House passed a bill Monday night that bans the distribution of pornographic materials to minors.

HB 4965 was overwhelmingly passed 87-4 by the House without any debate. The bill's sponsor, Rep. Paul Rosenbaum, D-Battle Creek, predicted the measure would easily pass the Senate.

Material cited by the bill as harmful to minors is patently offensive to minors and is considered lacking in serious literary, artistic, political and scientific value for minors.

While the bill removes the need for local standards, it still has as part of its provision the qualification that certain materials can be considered harmful to minors if they "appeal to prurient interests of minors as determined by local community standards."

If found guilty of distribution, exhibition, or dissemination of obscene materials, the state could charge a person with a misdemeanor, punishable by not more than two years or a fine of not more than $10,000 or both.

Heavier penalties would go persons convicted of distributing obscene materials. Displaying or misrepresenting oneself as a parent or guardian, to a minor to see certain matter would carry less penalty.

The bill authorizes the courts to take into account the "scope of the defendant's commercial activity," in assessing and imposing fines.

Rosenbaum said he sees nothing wrong with the bill that would restrict teaching sex education in public schools. He also finds nothing wrong with the bill in the general area of librarians distributing books to minors.

Rep. H. Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing, opposed the bill with the support of only three other representatives.

"No one really debated the issue of whether or not such materials are harmful, no one debated or considered how to set standards that are not vague enough, and no one was sensitive to the issue of freedom of speech," Jondahl said.

Data Processing to reorganize

By PATRICIA LACROIX
State News Staff Writer

Give me six months at the most and I'll pit these guys (data processors) in the country. There is a lot of potential here that is just waiting to come out."

are the words of Col. James J. Lennon, newly-appointed of the MSU Data Processing Dept. The department has been the object of severe criticism and allegations of departmental waste and mismanagement in the past year, and has not had a permanent director for over two years.

Lennon said that he was aware of the problems that may come with the position, but warned that these would take time to solve.

"I told them (the rating committee charged with recommending a new director) that they could not expect someone to come in here with a magic wand in their front pocket and a bag of miracles in the back one," he said.

But don't talk to Lennon of past problems. He said that when he was interviewing for the position — along with 108 other hopefuls — he refused to hear about the problems that the department had been experiencing in the past.

"People in this department call it (last year's) reports of waste and mismanagement 'The Great Investigation.' There have been a lot of fingers pointed at this department, both rightly and wrongly. But I said, 'Just let me take a look at these guys,' he said. "We've got a lot of talent here.

Lennon said the main work of the University Data Processing Dept. should be to process programs with the students' needs as a top priority.

"For the past five years, there has been a running battle between University researchers and the students. I say let the bean counters wait," he said. "If you can't see the academic side of this University, there's no point in us being here, is there? People too often forget that the product of this University is the student."

One of the biggest problems with the department as it now functions, Lennon said, is that people from other University departments are coming to them with work to be done, and yet furnishing incomplete directions.

"How are we supposed to read their minds? Someone comes to me and says 'work up a plan for an on-line registration system.' Fine. Where are we supposed to go from there? We don't know exactly what these people have in mind," he said.

"If someone is working as fast as he can on one thing, and someone else comes up to them and shoves another job in their face, how do you think they are going to react? You can just see the frustration here, the internal tension," he said. "They've just beaten these poor dogs until they can't get up anymore."

Lennon said that he has hired a number of students in an effort to ease some of the work load, but a strained budget has limited the numbers.

But all in all, Lennon predicts a bright future for the Data Processing Dept.

"I see a lot of enthusiasm, a lot of good stuff coming out of here," he said. "I took this job because it represented a challenge; something that I wanted to accomplish."

Before coming to MSU, Lennon was the director of management information systems for the Army Training and Doctrine Command at Fort Monroe, Va. Among his responsibilities was the supervision of 18 data processing centers throughout the country, employing 800 persons.

Reform effort set back

LANSING (UPI) — The final portion of an internal rule reform effort that occupied most of the state Senate's time early this year has suffered at least a temporary setback.

After Republicans and ruling Democrats met in separate and lengthy closed-door caucuses Tuesday, the upper chamber decided to return the final rule to the Senate Business Committee, where it has emerged before the summer recess.

The measure would restrict pre-election mailings by Senate members at public expense, ostensibly to prevent an incumbent senator from using its mailing privileges to saturate his district with literature and put his opponents at an unfair disadvantage. It would have limited mailings to 3,000 pieces for the 60-day period prior to a general or primary election. That amount was considered the average amount of mail issued monthly by each Senate member.

The measure came up for action, but Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, offered amendments that would have made an already unpopular suggestion even more so by limiting committee mailings as well.

There was no action on Geake's proposal, and no indication when the measure may again come up for action in the Business Committee.

The earlier reform effort brought approval for rules requiring public disclosure of the amounts Senate members spend on travel and the sums committees spend to hire staff and other expenses.

No charges against hat wearer

Charges were dropped Tuesday against Phil Bellfy, who was arrested in September after he refused to take off his hat while sitting in the gallery of the Michigan House of Representatives.

Dan McLellan, Ingham County chief assistant prosecutor, said the charges against Bellfy were "stupid."

"I don't think criminal law has any business telling a person when to take his hat off," McLellan said.

Bellfy was arrested on a trespassing charge Sept. 27 while waiting to speak with Rep. Charles Varnum, R-Manistique.

The hat in question was a worker's cap from the Peoples Republic of China, and carries a red star.

While sitting in the gallery, which surrounds the House Chamber, Bellfy was requested to remove his hat. Bellfy refused, and was escorted out of the chamber by three assistant sergeant-at-arms. While in the hallway, Bellfy insisted that the hat remain on his head as a symbol of free speech, and was promptly arrested for trespassing by State Police.

There is a House rule that says a man or a woman, out of respect, should not wear a hat while on the House floor or in the gallery, said Tom Klunzinger of the House Republican staff.

"It's part of long-standing House rule," Klunzinger said. "It's like the old 19th century tradition of a gentleman taking off his hat. If he didn't want to comply with House rules, he was liable for criminal trespass."

Klunzinger said the exception to the rule would be when the hat is a required part of uniform.

Bellfy is pleased that the charges against him were dropped and today is headed back to his farm in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

League assists ERA

The Lansing area League of Women Voters is sponsoring a "Silent Auction" fund-raising event Thursday at the League's general meeting as part of a nationwide effort to assist in the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment in other states.

The meeting will be held at Edgewood United Church, 469 N. Hagadorn, East Lansing. Antiques, artwork and baked goods are some of the items that will be auctioned off. The meeting also includes a potluck supper at 6 p.m., a program on Michigan's juvenile justice system and a current proposal for major changes in the system.

The amendment must be ratified by 38 states before it can become the 28th amendment to the Constitution. So far 35 states have approved the amendment.

Over the summer the League raised $1500 for ERA and hopes to raise $350 more by Dec. 1. All the money will go to the National League, which will decide how to allocate the funds. The National League hopes to collect one million dollars from leagues around the nation.

Although there is no precedent, the White House legal staff is exploring ways to extend the seven-year time limit, which expires March 22, 1979, for states to ratify the amendment.

Bea Sousa, president of the League in Lansing, said the League is going on the assumption that the deadline will be 1979.

"We will be focusing all our efforts on raising the money by that time," she said. "Most of the states will only consider it one more time. There aren't going to be any second chances."

"It's going to be tight and we're going to need a lot of money." Members of the community who would like to contribute to this fund may send their donations to Doris Sutherland, 1667 Linden St., East Lansing, 48823.

The hero had circuitry

 know about the influence which communications media have in our minds of many people in the world. Some would claim that television is the most powerful medium. Walter Cronkite may not be in the league with Idi Amin, but media has swung elections, deposed leaders, and destroyed reputations and products. Suppose a television (or holographic television) news program were the basis of a novel. This is the basis of the novel by Algis Budrys.

Michaelmas is the top news story of 1999. He also happens to run with the assistance of his friend a self-aware computer. Fortunately the novel is more significant than suspect form the premise.

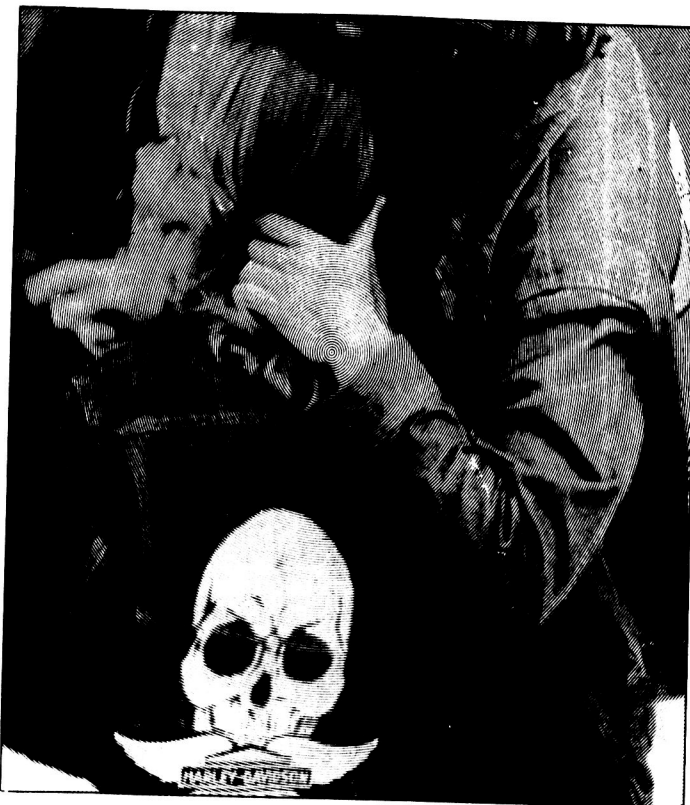

Michaelmas exerts his power through a called Domino, who can manipulate computers around the globe. The novel is more significant than suspect form the premise.

command tremendous power. Even today, computers and relay satellites tie the industrial nations together in one vast electronic network.

Banks use computers to transfer funds and calculate account balances. Governments use computer data banks to store records. Telephone and broadcast communications systems now use sophisticated computers to route messages. Soon most homes and automobiles will have computers built into them to control fuel consumption and electrical appliances. If you could manipulate such computers, then you could control the world without anyone's knowledge, as Michaelmas does.

The novel is well crafted. Domino is an intriguing character as Mike, the self-aware computer in Robert Heinlein's novel The Moon Is a Harsh Mistress. It is unfortunate that George Lucas did not pattern his robots in Star Wars after these substantial examples.

The fatal weakness in this book is the ending. Budrys sets us up for something more than we receive. Perhaps the reader should be satisfied with the excellence and insight of the novel, but the disappointment which comes when you read the final page still hurts.

"Beam us down, Mr. Scott"—
 "Oops, wrong planet, again"

Planet of Judgment
 By Joe Haldeman
 Bantam Books
 $1.75

By Lori Chapek-Carleton

The U.S.S. Enterprise is carrying Dr. James Atheling toward his assignment as the new dean of Star Fleet's College of Science but changes course to investigate the phenomenon of a rogue planet orbited by an artificially constructed miniature sun. The planet's geography itself shows signs of having been artificially modified, yet sensor readings show no signs of life more intelligent than that of a low primate.

The Captain and the landing party are stranded. Spock leaves a Star Fleet cruiser with a crew of 500 in orbit around the planet, with orders to proceed to the Space Academy if he does not return. He takes a small hand-picked crew with specialized skills for survival in a primitive environment, and gets stranded along with the Captain.

From here on in, it's animated Star Trek with a bow to James Blish. The Arvine are testing the landing party members because their thought processes are similar to those of the Irapina, an association of races who are invading the galaxy, and are due to arrive in a thousand years. The Irapina look like a cross between a huge insect and a centaur. The first test the Arvine had given the Enterprise people was to test the concept of decision-making. The second test deals with betrayal, as the landing party members are again forced to relive past events in their lives.

The Irapina send two advance "champions" to fight Spock and Kirk. They actually send three, so McCoy is also drawn into the contest. The battle is fought on the level of illusion. Eventually, of course, all three defeat their Irapina counterparts, and the Irapina decide to change their course of invasion, gradually swinging toward the Romulan Empire instead.

Haldeman's novel is a refreshing change from the majority of STAR TREK fiction published lately. The emphasis here is on action, with a strong science fiction base from which to work. Haldeman pays a good deal of attention to details. When they first discover the miniature sun (actually an artificially created and maintained blackhole), Kirk holds a briefing session. What follows is a good scientific explanation of how black holes work.

Haldeman has evidently done his homework. His characterizations of Kirk, Spock, and McCoy (as well as his lesser use of other Enterprise regulars) are quite accurate. He knows and makes use of the fact that the Enterprise's turbo-lifts change axes from the vertical to the horizontal.

Haldeman is innovative, too, going beyond what was established in aired STAR TREK episodes. His landing party personnel wear body armor. His security personnel are efficient and well-trained. His characters have a sense of humor, and interact well with one another.

Oddly enough, Haldeman's climactic battle scene is very reminiscent of James Blish's Spock Must Die! Spock figures in both, and in both the battle is fought by illusion. There is a comfortable feeling of familiarity to Planet of Judgment. It doesn't constitute Great Literature, but could have been an interesting STAR TREK episode.

It is much more readable than The Price of the Phoenix and is enjoyable for its own sake. Unlike Spock, Messiah!, there are few Trekish inaccuracies to detract from the storyline. Haldeman does once refer to the "pale blue sky of Vulcan" (which is actually red), and some of his characterizations might slip just a little now and then, but I've read worse Star Trek fiction, and worse science fiction.

Planet of Judgment is a tad overpriced at $1.75 for 151 pages, but paperback books are getting more and more expensive anyway. The book'll give you an hour or two of good reading, and it's nice to read a new STAR TREK story. More, Mr. Haldeman, more!

"Property of": Cycle chained bondage

Hoffman
 Traus and Giroux

No, not games. For in the street world of these children grown old—incidentally old, incredibly quickly—it is very serious. It is all they know, all there is.

Honor. Respect. Manhood. All found in a fast car, leather against skin, the quick wrist at the end of a knife, dope, junk, a woman hanging on your arm—tough, also dressed in leather, but soft and warm at a steely glance and a cold touch.

The woman are necessary. For without them, there is no point to the madness, the survival. And what of the over-masculine (black, very black), leathery girl-women who accompany gang members—but not always; not when there's magic in the air and honor at stake—the "property."

Alice Hoffman's first published novel is an attempt to examine the street gangs and the role of their hanger-on women. Property Of is told from the perspective of a well-educated (both school and street) independent young woman, who wants the president of the Orphans—a gang that is continually at war with the street, drugs, and their rival gang, the Pack. She wants McKay without having to wear "Property Of" on the back of her leather.

McKay. "I forgot fear of alleys and the lyrics to all the songs I ever knew. And I remembered only how many girls in Brooklyn and Queens had carved McKay's name into their thighs with slick razor blades. His name in hearts on subway trains and in toilets. President Of. McKay. I could not help but turn."

Hoffman has woven a novel about the street that is not without pity, or love. She does not idolize; she presents from her heart observations of the street that should not be distilled. For with any attempt at civilization, her material—the street, the gangs—would become pap.

THE TM-SIDHIS PROGRAMME
 MAXIMUM COHERENCE During Flying
 Increased EEG Coherence during the Practice of the Flying Sidhi

What if you could levitate as a result of meditation? How would this effect your view of life? How would you explain such an occurrence from your present state of knowledge? What future implications would this have on society? These are precisely the questions some distinguished members of the MSU faculty and Jonathan Shear, Chairman of the Philosophy Department of Maharishi International University and a recent graduate of a one-year TM-Sidhis course will be concentrating on and discussing.

As a result of the TM Program many new breakthroughs in human potential are now taking place. Among these are the experiences of the TM-Sidhis programme (perceptions of higher states of consciousness, described by the yoga system of Patanjali) Subjects who reported frequently experiencing some degree of these special abilities, e.g. the ability to know the past and future, knowledge of other minds, ability to become invisible, levitation, etc. exhibited increased coherence and synchrony in brain wave patterns (EEG) during these performances (See the chart). And through the practice of the TM-Sidhis programme, basic perceptual, intellectual, creative and psychomotor abilities have been found to improve. These results indicate a significant landmark in the rise of an Age of Enlightenment.

For a good decade
 The furnace stood in the naked gully, fireless
 And vacant as any hat. Then when it was
 No more to them than a hulking black fossil
 To erode unnoticed with the rest of the junk-hill
 By the poisonous creek, and rapidly to be added
 To their ignorance.

They were afterwards astonished
 To confirm, one morning, a twist of smoke like a pale
 Resurrection, staggering out of its chewed hole,
 And to remark then other tokens that someone,
 Casily bolted behind the eye-holed iron
 Door of the drafty burner, had there established
 His bad crafty.

Where he gets his spirits
 It's a mystery. But the stuff keeps him musical:
 Hammer-and-anvilling with poker and bottle
 To his jugged bellowsings, till the last groaning clang
 As he collapses onto the rioting
 Springs of a litter of car-seats ranged on the grates,
 To sleep like an iron pig.

In their tar-paper church
 On a text about stake-holes that are sated never
 Their Reverend lingers. They nod and hate trespassers.
 When the furnace wakes, though, all afternoon
 Their willless offspring flock like piped rats to its siren
 Crescendo, and agape on the crumbling ridge
 Stand in a row and learn.

Birth-a home event E.L. names housing chief

NANCY CRESSLER
In many couples, giving birth at home is not an accident. It is a carefully planned event. Psychological effects of birth are just as crucial to mother and child as the physical effects. Midwife Tonya said at the International Birth Education Association statewide convention re-child only once." In her experiences as a midwife, Brooks said she has found that labor is shorter when a woman is comfortable and in familiar surroundings. "Doctors don't think a thing about moving a woman from her home to her car to a labor room to delivery room to a hospital room," she said, adding that so much motion might cause long-term psychological distress.

"We could deliver better care cheaper with midwives, OB-GYN (obstetric-gynecological) nurses as birth attendants and physicians as back-up in case of emergency," Brooks said.

The City of East Lansing announced Monday two appointments to city positions.

Bradford L. Pryce was named group manager of the Housing, Planning and Community Development Department and Georgella Bascom-Muirhead was named the new public information officer. The Housing, Planning and Community Development Department, was created last June from members of several existing departments.

It was created to streamline the operations of several related areas of municipal work.

The group manager, a city spokesperson explained, had to be skilled in all three major disciplines the department concentrated on.

Pryce was the director of planning and community development in the City of Bowie, Maryland, for the last four years. In that position he directed the comprehensive rezoning of a 60-square-mile region.

Prior to his post at Bowie, he served for two years as planning director for the City of East Orange, New Jersey. He has also been a member of the planning staff in New Rochelle, New York.

City Manager Jerry Coffman said he was particularly pleased with the selection of Pryce because of his skill in working with neighborhood associations and planning commissions. He is also able to relate to the situations occurring in an academic community, he added.

Bascom-Muirhead will be the city's new liaison with the press. She will also serve as secretary to the city's Cable Commission and prepare city publications and programs to be shown on the East Lansing's cable television stations.

She has been active in public relations since 1971 and served as public information officer for the City of Ann Arbor. One of her duties there involved coordinating the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair. She was also in charge of the city-wide complaint system.

Coffman said Bascom-Muirhead was chosen for the job because of her extensive work in public relations and her knowledge of the inner workings of a big city government.

House passes pornography bill for minors

"I happen to feel the issue of freedom of speech is a most important one. My colleagues, without a single word of justification, passed a bill that was taken for granted as 'a good thing,'" he said.

Jondahl said he felt the bill would make it difficult for teachers and librarians. He gave as an example a teacher getting students to subscribe to a magazine that one month might contain nothing pornographic, but may have something considered offensive in the next month's issue.

State News Robert Kozloff
Freshman tailback Steve Smith looks for running room against Indiana. Smith picked up 71 yards despite limited playing time against the Hoosiers.

FOLLOWS IN LEWIS' FOOTSTEPS

Smith impresses at tailback

By MICHAEL KLOCKE
 State News Sports Writer

The way Steve Smith was running the ball in MSU's only scoring drive against Indiana on Saturday it would have only seemed fair that he should score the game-tying touchdown.

But Smith fumbled the ball on the one-yard line and it looked as though MSU had their third consecutive loss — until tackle John Malinosky recovered Smith's fumble in the end zone.

"I was so hungry to get that touchdown," Smith said with an ever-present grin. "I wanted to get in the end zone so bad I really didn't concentrate on gripping the ball."

"When I was knocked to the ground all I could think of was that I had blown my chance. When I saw that Malinosky had recovered the fumble it made the long walk back to the bench a little easier."

But it wasn't Smith's fumble that really stood out Saturday; it was his running.

The 5-9, 183-pound freshman from Louisville, Ky. came into the contest with only three minutes left in the third quarter, and he still managed to gain 71 yards in 11 carries. Smith also picked up two crucial first downs on MSU's scoring drive.

"I was thankful that I was able to come up with the yardage," Smith said. "Of course I would have liked more, but I'm just glad I was able to help the team."

Before the Indiana game, Smith had seen only spot duty at tailback, but he does have a 5.9-yard average. He has also been returning kickoffs.

But after the way he played Saturday, Smith will undoubtedly get to see even more action.

"Steve responded very well; he's going to play a lot more as the season progresses," said MSU head coach Darryl Rogers. "He's not as quick as (Leroy) McGee, but he's faster."

The Indiana game had a little extra significance for Smith since it was sort of a homecoming. Louisville is near the Indiana University campus, so Smith's whole family made the short trip to see him play.

"My family saw the first game of the year against Purdue, but I didn't get to play too much," Smith said. "I was thankful for the opportunity to play against Indiana. I wanted to perform well with them watching."

Smith said the transition from high school to college football has not been that difficult for him.

"Running wise it's about the same. You've still got to read the defense and pick your holes, he said. "The big difference is the constant hitting. You get hit a lot harder."

In his prep days, Smith was named an All-American at Dupont Manual High School in Louisville. While playing there, he broke all the rushing records of Spartan defensive back coach Sherm Lewis.

After Lewis had graduated from Dupont Manual, he became a consensus All-American at MSU in 1963, despite weighing only 152 pounds.

Smith may have broken all of his records, but that didn't stop Lewis from recruiting him to play at MSU.

"Sherm had a great influence on me, and he had a lot to do with me coming here," said Smith, who wears the same number 20 that Lewis wore during his career at MSU.

"Sherm is not very big, but he gave me extra confidence in college," said Smith, who was exactly the biggest tailback in the Big Ten.

"It was kind of funny because I'm from around the neighborhood as Sherm, but I never knew him. . . . I started breaking his record in Spartan hockey history.

Long summer is over; Pat Betterly is ready

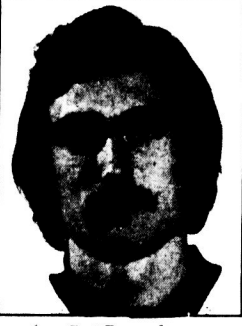

By JOE CENTERS
 State News Sports Writer

The MSU hockey team will open its 1977-78 hockey schedule this Friday and Pat Betterly is preparing for his senior season — for the second time.

At this time last year, the 6-foot 150-pound Betterly was getting ready to play his final year of hockey as a Spartan. But his season lasted only two games as a knee injury against Ohio State sidelined Betterly for the rest of the season.

"We missed him (Betterly) very much," coach Amo Bessone said. "He was the leading returning scoring defenseman and he was the smartest defenseman that we had."

Betterly did have a fine season two years ago. He finished the season with nine goals, eight on power plays and 30 assists to finish fifth in team scoring behind Tom Ross, Steve Colp, Daryl Rice and John Sturges. Ross and Colp were both All-Americans that year and the two of them hold every major scoring record in Spartan hockey history.

Pat Beverly

But that is all in the past and Betterly must now be content about this year.

"I've had no problems with the knee," Betterly commented. "I rested it all summer and I didn't work on it too much this back."

Even though Betterly's knee has healed, there still was fact that he hadn't skated in almost a year.

"At first I was lost on the ice," Betterly said. "The game weekend (last Saturday's exhibition game with Michigan) was my confidence up. It built up my strength and I'm not worried any more."

Betterly says that the biggest games for him are the ones against Big Ten teams.

"You've got to win the Big Ten games," Betterly commented. "You can feel the energy in the Big Ten games, I came because it was a Big Ten school."

Betterly also likes to play on the road.

"When you have away games you can get away for a while and you can forget about the books," Betterly said.

Betterly, a 1972 graduate of Bishop Borgess High School in Detroit, played three years for the Junior Red Wings before coming to MSU. He was named a Junior All-American in the 1973-74 season. He said that he came here because (Bessone) was interested in him as a person and that it was a business for the other schools."

Spartans host Cougars; four games left on slate

MSU soccer team will third undefeated opponent in the last four games as the Spartans entertain the Arbor Cougars at 7 p.m. today at the Spartan Field.

Spartans, with a 5-4 record, are coming off a third place finish in the Classic last weekend.

MSU lost in the first round of the tournament to Indiana but came back to down Ohio State in the consolation game.

The high-scoring Cougars, ranked fourth last week in the Midwest by the Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America with a 11-0 season record, have tallied 45 goals so far this season. All-American Howard Taylor leads Spring Arbor's scoring with 23 goals.

The Spartan offense will again be without the services of co-captain Robbie Back, who is definitely out for the remainder of the season after straining knee ligaments in the Spartans' loss to Akron Oct. 8.

Back's place in the starting lineup will be filled by freshman walk-on Carlos Diaz. Baum said that Diaz is an excellent forward who possesses good speed and moves with the ball, but who also needs to adjust to MSU's style of play, which will come with more playing experience.

Following the Spring Arbor game, the Spartans will travel to Mt. Pleasant Tuesday for a game with Central Michigan. Michigan will be here for a Saturday night game Oct. 29 if the East Lansing High School Field is available. A definite time and date of that game will be announced later on this week. The Spartans will finish their season Nov. 5 when they host Bowling Green State University.

Senior goalie Mark Gembarowski is having an exceptional season after spending his first three years at MSU as a back-up goaltender to Gary Wilkinson.

Gembarowski missed the Spartans' first two games this year due to an injury, but since his return the Spartans have won five games while losing only two. In the five wins, Gembarowski has allowed only three goals while shutting out both Calvin and Albion.

team is good," Betterly said. "The attitude has changed and here: Everyone is optimistic. If everyone stays healthy, we should be good."

Betterly says he has been through a lot this past year.

"I wouldn't want to go through another operation," Betterly said. "The hard part was to sit there and watch the games. It really takes a lot out of you."

The watching is over for Betterly and now when he wants to jump onto the ice to help his team — he can.

Cosell laughs at assault charge

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Daily News columnist Stan Hochman said Tuesday that he will file a complaint in California this week charging ABC sports commentator Howard Cosell with assaulting him aboard a commercial jetliner.

Cosell has labeled the charge a joke, saying he merely gave Hochman "a friendly chuck under the chin."

The incident took place aboard an American Airlines jet just before a late-night takeoff from Los Angeles to New York after Sunday's World Series baseball game.

According to Hochman, Cosell slapped him on the head "at least four times and maybe five" after a sarcastic verbal exchange between the two men.

"We looked at each other . . . I think I spoke first," Hochman said. "I said, 'It's a thrill to share this ride with you.' He said, 'Oh, how I wish I had your talent. Oh, how I wish I was making the money you're making.'"

Hochman said he retorted with, "I'd like to write home about this flight."

"By now he was standing along my seat. He reached over with his left hand and he slapped me hard at least four times and maybe five in the area of the top part of my ear and temple," Hochman said.

MSU lacrosse unit to meet Michigan

The MSU Weightlifting Club won the Spartan Powerlifting championships Sunday. MSU won the AAU event by totaling 17 1/2 points to Grand Rapids' power team, which scored 14 points.

MSU's Penny Jordan won the 114-pound class. It also marked the first time a woman had competed in the meet. Norman Venyah finished second for MSU.

Lee Green won the 123-pound class for MSU; Bill Lowe won the 132-pound class; Andy Grooten was third at 148-pounds; and Jim Hartmann finished second in the super-heavyweight class.

MSU's lacrosse team will meet the Michigan lacrosse club squad in a controlled scrimmage Saturday at 2 p.m. at Old College Field. There is no charge for admission.

MSU head coach Nevin Kanner and assistant coach Boku Hendrickson have 40 players out for the team during fall practice.

Kanner and Hendrickson are holding the first fall practice in three years at MSU in an effort to rebuild lacrosse at MSU. The U-M team will feature several former All-Americans.

Desk staffers answer obscure questions

By DANA FELMLY
State News Staff Writer
If someone wanted to find out why the musical talents of the Rolling Stones affect youth so deeply, he or she might begin at the reference desk in the Main Library. However, if someone wanted to know more specifically where to look for a copy of Rolling Stones Tour of 1972, not only would he or she get assistance from the revised information desk but would also learn whether the Rolling Stones would be in Lansing in the near future. Believe it or not, the desk staff can offer a lot more information than just where to find a book.

"One weekend it was the Grenadier Guards," said Mary Duffy, library clerk. "A guy called and asked us if there were any tickets to the performance left. We called Fairchild, who told us they were going to open their box office at 7:15 p.m. to sell remaining tickets."

Besides keeping a weekend listing of bands in the Lansing area, they are also a good source to tap when wondering how many tickets might be left for a campus performance. Staff members usually call the Fairchild Theater box office around 5 p.m. to check the number of unsold tickets.

Though the desk staff constantly updates weekend entertainment files, it also keeps a permanent file of the more unknown items about MSU. For instance, who do you go to for body willing, or, donating your body to University research?

The desk files include a card on a cow with a glass window in its stomach. The cow's insides can be observed at the Dairy Research Center on College Road.

Other questions that intrigued students were the status of MSU's revised check-cashing policy (30-cent charge

And for students wondering how to get to campus buildings, information desk passes out campus too.

King bill passed

The Michigan Senate sent a bill to Gov. William Milliken Tuesday that declares the second Monday of each January "Martin Luther King Jr. Day."

Michigan will become the first state in the union to hold a legal and financial holiday in honor of a black American, if Milliken signs the bill.

Every year since King's death in 1968 Rep. Jackie Vaughn III, D-Detroit, has sponsored legislation which would honor King with a holiday.

Vaughn was obviously happy with the senate's overwhelming 35-1 passage. The House had earlier approved the bill in April.

"It is obvious that the bill has had strong bi-partisan support. Today Michigan has made history," Vaughn said. Vaughn recalled requesting the close of the Michigan House session on the day of King's death. From that time on he pushed for the holiday, only to have his efforts thwarted. Vaughn said a combination of education and strong support made his drive for passage successful.

Clean gas test facility dedicated

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — A $10-million test facility for clean-burning gas is dedicated Tuesday. The facility was dedicated Tuesday. Officials predicted it even would help utilities conserve dwindling supplies of natural gas and oil.

"We in this country have vast stores of coal on which to draw," said Gov. Ella Grasso. "What we seek is the best way in which to use this resource."

Coal accounted for 46 percent of electricity generated last year, while oil was used for 16 percent and natural gas 14 percent.

But officials predict that much more of the nation's electricity will be produced from coal within a decade as supplies of the other fuels become more scarce.

In addition, a large-scale switch to coal from natural gas and oil for utilities and other industrial plants is a cornerstone of President Jimmy Carter's energy program.

Because the use of coal—which accounts for more than 90 percent of total U.S. fossil fuel reserves—often is blocked by environmental concerns, various projects are underway to develop large supplies of coal gas, which burns cleaner than coal.

Coal gas once was in widespread use around the country, but increased production and use of cheaper natural gas several decades ago brought coal gas production to a virtual halt.

Now, several firms are gearing up to produce the gas again, and officials are looking for a method to produce larger supplies.

The project dedicated Tuesday is a pilot plant financed by the U.S. Department of Energy, Combustion Engineering Inc., and the Electric Power

"The only reason I can give for this reaction is that there is a new interest in clothing," he said.

Pasucci's tailor, Duro of Chicago, from whom he orders 20 suits a year, nominated him for the honor. Pasucci said he has been on the list "I think, about five times" previously. He wouldn't say how much he spends on clothes every year, but said it's "more than I should."

"I've always been interested in clothes," he said. "I'm a real bug on comfort and fit. The

Formerly a musical instrument repairman, Pasucci also played trumpet in Glenn Miller's band during World War II. He credits the band leader and G. LeBlanc, his French partner, with developing some of his ideas about

THE JVC KD15 CASSETTE DECK

Helping you to achieve the Musical Truth in cassette tape recording the KD 15 has these exclusive JVC features.

DUAL-BALL CASSETTE HOLD SYSTEM

Another JVC exclusive for better musical performance. The two rust-resistant stainless steel balls in the holder secure your tape with constant pressure. Cassette misalignment is impossible and stable tape transport is the result.

MULTI-POINT PEAK LEVEL INDICATORS.

JVC's Multi-Point Peak Level Indicators help you easily determine optimum recording-level settings by indicating the peak values at -10dB, -5dB, 0dB, +3dB and +6dB levels instead of average values as do VU's. Each LED (Light-Emitting Diode) indicator rises to the rated level almost instantly—within 1 millisecond as compared to the 300 milliseconds needed by a VU or the 10 milliseconds needed by ordinary peak meters. Thus you can avoid tape saturation during heavy level fluctuations which often are not reflected in VU's.

TIMER RECORDING FACILITY

This handy extra works like this. With the power cord of your JVC deck connected to a commercially available timer, and with the deck's power switch on, push the REC. PLAY/REC and PAUSE buttons. When the pre-set time arrives, the PAUSE button will be disengaged and recording starts. At the end of the tape, the mode is automatically switched to STOP. Since the pinch roller is held away from the capstan until the pre-set time, no damage is done to tape, capstan or pinch roller.

ADD TO THIS JVC HIGH PERFORMANCE HEADS AND THE DOLBY NOISE REDUCTION CIRCUIT, AND YOU KNOW THAT THE KD 15 IS A HIGH VALUE, HIGH PERFORMANCE DECK AT A BUDGET PRICE.

Endowed chairs debated

By PAM WEAR
State News Staff Writer

Debate on the selection of MSU Endowed Faculty Chairs was the major focus of the Faculty Council meeting Tuesday.

Initially, a goal of $1.75 million has been established to use for the endowed faculty chairs and professorships within the University's Enrichment Program.

The program is a fund-raising drive begun last spring to raise money for projects including a performing Arts Center and new MSU museum.

Administrators said they hope the establishment of the endowed chairs would attract distinguished leaders in various disciplines to the MSU campus.

The starting point of the faculty council debate was a proposal introduced by Mordechai Kreinin, MSU professor of economics.

Among recommendations in the proposal, Kreinin suggested the endowed faculty chairs be used to attract "members of the National Academy of Sciences or scholars of comparable quality and national standing."

He also recommended that a faculty/student committee be set up to develop procedures and recommendations for the chair appointments.

Kreinin moved that the council accept his proposal, but Edward Ingraham, associate professor of mathematics, questioned the feasibility of using memberships in the academy as criteria if the chair would be in a field not related to science.

"Also, the university gains much more by hiring a younger person who in 10 years would be hired into the academy," he said.

Ralph E. Taggart, associate professor of botany and plant pathology, cautioned the council not to lower its standards for a chair if a more qualified person was not available.

"The right kind of people (to qualify for the chairs) should be self-evident," he added. "The difficulty is getting them to come."

Kreinin explained that he meant to change the wording of the proposal slightly, but added that his major aim was to get prestigious faculty for the positions.

Rather than accept Kreinin's proposal, however, the council voted to establish a new committee to rewrite the proposal.

Gwendolyn Norrell, chairperson of the steering committee, appointed Taggart, Kreinin and Jack Steiber, professor of labor and industrial relations, as committee members.

Steiber suggested the formation of the committee, saying it would be better for the council to debate the general ideas and leave debates over the wording to the committee.

President Clifton R. Wharton Jr. noted that over 50 endowed chairs and professorships have been selected, with some dozen given top priority.

Drivers protest

A pair of semi-tractor trucks appears to surround the Capitol Tuesday as 25 independent truck drivers protest legislation which includes a fuel tax increase of two cents per gallon and a 30 percent hike in license fees. Four of the truckers met with an aide to Gov. William G. Milliken about the dispute.

Project supplements natural gas, oil supplies

Research Institute, an industry group.

Steve Barrett, a Combustion Engineering spokesman, gave this basic description of how the Hartford-area plant works:

Bituminous coal is pulverized into consistency like talcum powder and then injected into a gasifier. It is burned with a deficiency of oxygen, which produces a so-called low-BTU gas—a gas below the quality of natural gas but still usable by utilities.

Sulfur, a common pollutant in coal, is captured in the process and can be sold. The coal's ash is withdrawn from the plant as molten slag and is used as landfill.

The plant is designed to consume about five tons of coal per hour and produce 890,000 cubic feet of gas per hour. The gas produced in this pilot project will be incinerated in a nearby boiler.

Most of the other coal gasifiers being tested or planned depend on another method of operation, and their sizes are limited, Barrett said.

If this pilot plant successfully passes its 15-month tests, a larger demonstration plant could be completed by 1982, he said.

"Then, we'd be able to go commercial soon after that," he added.

"Once we're commercial, you ought to be able to do away with natural gas and oil as utility boiler fuels."

Tailors Guild suits many

All of his clothes, with the exception of ties and underwear, are custom made.

"I usually go twice a year to the tailor and we pick out the fabrics," he said, adding that his shirts are made in Paris and Japan as well as the United States.

Noting that he became interested in custom clothing as a way of concealing having one hip slightly higher than the other and one arm a trifle longer, Pasucci said there are other benefits as well.

In addition to Pasucci, Rickles, Mondale, Namath and Denver, the other names on the list were Burt Reynolds, motion pictures; Dallas attorney Percy Foreman, law; Monty Hall, philanthropy; Frank Gorshin, nightclubs and Mel Boldt, head of a Chicago industrial design firm, in industry.

Program head needed

Applications for chairperson of the ASMSU Programming Board are now being accepted, according to present chairperson Sherri Gatto.

Gatto said the term of office for programming board chairperson runs for one year, beginning in January. The new director will be chosen four weeks before fall term ends.

The job largely entails coordinating administrative procedures, Gatto said. A management background would be helpful but is not required, she said.

"From my personal experience, I would say the job is challenging, worthwhile and a definite learning experience," Gatto said.

"It can take up to 20-30 hours a week.

Applications for the job are being distributed and accepted at 324 Student Services Building. Open petitioning will last until 5 p.m. Nov. 21. Regular interviews will be held at Programming Board meetings and will run until the board votes on a new chairperson Jan. 2.

The ASMSU Programming Board helps support and organize various student programs, subsidizing some through the programming board fund.

ENGINEERING GRADUATES, WORK IN A PLACE WORTH WRITING HOME ABOUT.

In Saudi Arabia you'll be near the cradle of civilization.

You'll see awe-inspiring sights such as the carved cliff tombs of Madain Salih, created over 2,000 years ago some 600 kilometers north of Jiddah.

You'll have plenty of time to explore, too, because you'll have a 40-day paid vacation and 12 paid holidays each year.

You'll have money enough to travel in style. Your base salary will be competitive with what you can earn in the States. Plus, you'll receive a generous tax-protected expatriate premium.

That means your Saudi Arabian take-home pay will be approximately equal to your gross pay in the States.

In addition, you'll be close to the world's top vacation spots. Travel throughout the Middle East. Or fly to Rome, Paris and London. Or visit India to the east, Africa to the west.

We'll even fly you back to the States, free, while you're vacationing.

You'll be working for the world's largest oil producing company, and one of the fastest growing. Currently, we have over $20 billion worth of projects under way in Saudi Arabia, and advancement opportunities are exceptional.

We're looking for Mechanical, Geological, Chemical, Electrical, and Petroleum Engineers with bachelor's, master's, or Ph.D. degrees. If you're graduating this fall, spring, or summer, we'd like to talk to you.

Additional information is available now in your career planning office.

Halperin, former member of the National Security Council, will speak on "Controlling Political Surveillance: On and Off Campus" at 11:30 a.m. Thursday at the Lansing Center for Civil Liberties (ACLU) in Red Cedar Hall of the Kellogg Center.

can be made by sending five dollars to Stan Kaplowitz, Secretary of Lansing ACLU, 629 Marshall St., East Lansing. Halperin is best known as the man who successfully sued former President Nixon for wiretapping Halperin's phone while employed in the Nixon administration. After leaving government, Halperin became a Senior Fellow with the Foreign Policy Division of the Brookings Institute and later directed a study for the Twentieth Century Fund on "Information, National Security and Constitutional Procedures." Halperin is currently chairperson of the Campaign to Stop Government Spying Steering Committee. The committee has targeted MSU and 44 other colleges in a nationwide campaign to adopt guidelines for controlling CIA activity on university campuses. Halperin is also directing the Project on National Security and Civil Liberties jointly sponsored by the ACLU Foundation and the Center for National Security Studies. This project tries to prevent false claims of "national security" from being used to undermine the Bill of Rights. He has also testified before a number of Congressional committees on covert intelligence operations and has published widely in this field.

Jonathan Shear will speak on levitation; 'U' professors will discuss program

Jonathan Shear, chairperson of the Department of International University at Fairview, Iowa, will discuss his experiences with levitation at 8 p.m. in Erickson Kiva. Shear will talk about the Transcendental Meditation (TM) program and how his teachers claim to levitate. Shear is a member of the one-year TM course.

The panel will consist of professor of family medicine Robert Ward, professor of education Max Raines, professor of biomechanics Irvin Korr, associate professor of biomechanics John Upledger and associate professor of American Thought and Language Courtney Johnson. Levitation is a documented fact but its existence is a relatively new concept to the western world according to Phil Rogers, a local TM teacher. Sidhis' obscurity, Rogers said is due to the fact that the consciousness of the Western world has not been ready for levitation until now. The level of consciousness is rising though, so levitation should become a recognized fact. Levitating, according to Rogers, is not a floating experience, but rather "a little hon" where the body rises and quickly falls. "The experience is very exhilarating," Rogers added. The lecture and discussion are sponsored by the Students for International Meditation Society.

Special troops to battle against hijacking and terrorist activities

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States would act against hijackers or other terrorists in the Middle East "irrespective of the U.S. role in promoting an Arab-Israeli peace settlement, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski said Tuesday.

"There is no doubt that the United States would be prepared to take whatever action it had to, or was capable of, against hijackers," Brzezinski said in answering a question after a speech on U.S. foreign policy.

Brzezinski, President Jimmy Carter's chief adviser on national security matters, refused to give details of any potential U.S. action against terrorists or to reveal U.S. preparations for such a situation.

But as he spoke, the Pentagon revealed the existence of a special force of American troops and equipment from each branch of the armed services, assembled and trained to cope with terrorist activities.

The Pentagon statement was made in response to questions raised after a West German commando unit staged a raid on a terrorist-held airliner in Somalia in East Africa. The commandos killed three of four hijackers aboard the plane and rescued 86 hostages.

A Pentagon spokesman refused to answer questions about the U.S. commando force other than to say the team has conducted training exercises.

Brzezinski apparently was unaware of the Pentagon statement at the time he discussed the U.S. attitude toward terrorism.

"We absolutely have no tolerance for international terrorism," Brzezinski said. "We believe that international terrorism is a form of outlaw activity that strikes at organized human behavior and that all nation-states, irrespective of their ideological or political coloration, have an obligation to collaborate against such activity."

In discussing U.S. policy in the Middle East, Brzezinski said there are "elements" within the Palestine Liberation Organization which have been involved in terrorist activities like the hijacking of the Luftansa jetliner.

However, he did not directly link any PLO faction to the incident. "There are elements in it (the PLO) which are of a very radical political coloration and there are elements in it which are qualitatively more moderate," Brzezinski said.

In trying to promote a Middle East settlement, he said the United States would never threaten the security of Israel, even indirectly.

"I think any morally sensitive person cannot forget what has happened in the last 30 or 40 years in the world and I think this, in itself, ought to condition our conduct," said Brzezinski, himself a Polish Catholic immigrant who fled Nazi aggression.

However, asked whether the United States would consider "squeezing" Israel to negotiate with the Palestinians, he replied: "The fact of the matter is that all military or economic arrangements between Israel and the United States are negotiated between the two parties."

Doctor to discuss childhood

Dr. Karl Menninger, an author and psychiatrist often called one of the nation's foremost authorities on mental health, will speak on "Preventive Aspects of Child Care" at MSU Thursday.

His lecture will begin at 7 p.m. in B108 Wells Hall, sponsored by the MSU School of Social Work and Continuing Education Service. Registration for the speech begins at 6 p.m., and there is a $5 admission charge.

The 84-year-old head of the Menninger Foundation has long championed preventive psychiatry in dealing with problems of mental health. Bert Thomas, coordinator of continuing education for the School of Social Work, said Menninger's lecture will be of great value to all parents and prospective parents.

"The greatest problem facing our country today concerns the raising of children. We must learn to teach them how to cope with a complex society, and still enjoy life," he said.

Menninger's best-known books include Love Against Hate and Man Against Himself. He was a leading force in the establishment of The Villages Inc., near Topeka, Kan., where dependent and neglected children from the age of six to 16 are cared for in a home environment. The Villages Inc. also serves as a training center for persons caring for such children.

Founder of the Topeka Menninger Foundation, which includes hospitals, a school of psychiatry and research facilities, Menninger has been given credit for upgrading treatment conditions in state mental hospitals across the country and has crusaded for prison reform.

After years of treating patients and writing, he is currently devoting his energies to the prevention of violence, which he says begins with children.

"People repeat in adult life emotions they experienced in childhood. Many of the people whom I spent the last 10 years treating at so many minute wouldn't have had any treatment at all if they had the right kind of childhood," Menninger said in a recent Parade Magazine interview.
