WILL NOT PROHIBIT FUNDING

House keeps neutron option

By TERENCE HUNT
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Wednesday to prohibit spending for development of the neutron warhead. Carter has postponed development of the weapon but wants to keep his option for later development. Wednesday's vote will keep that option alive. Carter said he would not go ahead with the weapons system and instead would seek arms concessions from the Soviet Union.

Also rejected, by a vote of 54-12, was a proposal to give Congress veto power over a presidential decision to produce the warhead. Under the amendment, production could have been blocked if both the Senate and the House voted against the weapon within 45 days after Carter decided to go ahead with it.

The moves to kill the neutron warhead or restrict the president's production decision were proposed as amendments to a bill authorizing $2.9 billion in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 to maintain and modernize the U.S. stockpile of nuclear weapons.

The overall bill was approved 348-46 and sent to the Senate.

Under the bill, Carter would have authority to produce neutron warheads for Lance missiles and artillery shells if he certifies they are in the interest of national security.

Neutron warheads are designed to kill primarily through radiation. The weapons have smaller blast and shock effects than older nuclear weapons. Military planners say neutron weapons could be used against a Soviet tank assault against Western Europe.

In his April 7 announcement, Carter said the ultimate decision on production of neutron weapons will be made later and "will be influenced by the degree to which the Soviet Union shows restraint in its conventional and nuclear arms programs and force deployments affecting the security of the United States and Western Europe."

Congressional leaders and key members of the Senate and House Armed Services committees had urged Carter not to scrap neutron weapons without a Soviet arms concession.

Arguing against the amendment to cut off the funding authorization, Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., chairperson of the Armed Services investigations subcommittee, said, "We're being asked to restrict the president of the United States, to tie the hands of the president of the United States."

Stratton said the Soviets already have signaled they will not make a reciprocal arms concession, and that Carter "may well change his mind" about neutron weapons. He and other supporters of the neutron warhead argued it "is the only weapon system the Russians are really afraid of."

Rep. Theodore Weiss, D-N.Y., leader of the move to cut off neutron weapon authorization and a similar, unsuccessful campaign last year, said neutron warheads blur the distinction between neutron and conventional weapons, thus increasing the likelihood of nuclear war.

Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., said that with the neutron warhead, "we are making nuclear war thinkable, possible, inevitable."

Weiss said his amendment to delete neutron weapon authorization would not deprive the president of the option, but would require him "to come and ask" Congress for authority.

Gov. William G. Milliken and Todd DePrel, Holland, lead the parade of street sweepers at the opening of the Holland Tulip Festival in Holland, Mich. About 250,000 people are expected to visit the festival which lasts for a week and will have parades, bands, Dutch dancers and, of course, tulips.

Draft of job description for president approved

By DANIEL HILBERT
State News Staff Writer

The search and selection committee approved the final draft of a job description for MSU's presidential candidate Wednesday.

The document will be for the MSU Board of Trustees at its regular board meeting to elect the president.

The document, as prepared by Julia Falk, professor of linguistics, emphasizes the dedication of the president to the MSU community, alumni, people of Michigan and the world.

The document begins with a statement of the MSU philosophy of the University and the commitment of both the state and the University to equal opportunity.

The document outlines the academic and administrative responsibilities of the president and the chief executive officer of the University.

The document also describes the administrative skills and particular responsibilities of the president.

The president serves as chief spokesman for the University's diverse constituencies, both internal and external, and represents the University at a variety of public, cultural, public service and other programs, participating in organizations and activities related to these pursuits.

The document describes the administrative skills required of the new president and the necessary management abilities and responsibilities.

The president assumes leadership in the University and articulates the basic decisions, communicates priorities and oversees the implementation of the document.

in relation to outside constituencies.

Finally, the document addresses the representative role of the president in acquiring finances for the University.

"The president establishes and nurtures positive relationships with the governor, legislators, officers of state and federal agencies, foundation officers, private and public associations, corporate and individual donors," the document states.

After lengthy debate, committee members decided not to submit the document to the trustees next week for approval, but to wait until the June board meeting when they may be able to present the board a three-document package.

Included would be the job description, which the committee has completed, a rating scale to evaluate and compare candidates, the next task of the committee and a preamble to the job description consisting of a statement setting forth the land grant philosophy and future problems facing the University.

Trustee John Bruff, D-Fraser, a committee member, said more careful consideration of the job description by the trustees could take place if it were evaluated with the other two documents.

They also discussed ideas for the construction of a rating scale to be used for ranking candidates.

In other action, the committee discussed the replacement of the Steering Committee representative when another is elected in September.

After discussion the committee decided to go to the Steering Committee and seek advice on the situation.

The next scheduled meeting of the committee is from 2 to 5 p.m. May 31 in the Linton Hall conference room.

Department discards E. L. transport study

By CHRIS KUCZYNSKI
State News Staff Writer

A study designed to support the city of East Lansing's proposed plan to renovate Grand River Avenue met an untimely death at the city council meeting Tuesday night.

Before the council could vote to accept the study, City Manager Jerry Coffman informed council members that the Department of State Highways and Transportation rejected its recommendations.

The plan would have converted Grand River Avenue from six narrow lanes to four wider lanes. It would have also expanded other routes through the city to help alleviate traffic congestion.

However, the state, which is footing a large portion of the costs of renovation, would like to see Grand River Avenue with six wider lanes. That would entail narrowing the median.

"It looks like we're back to ground zero as to what to do with East Grand River," Coffman told the council.

City Councilmember Carolyn Stell expressed dismay over the highway department's action and said she was surprised at the plan's flat rejection.

"It is a tremendous disappointment," Stell said. "I really don't know where we are going to go from here. We are at a beginning point again."

In a letter addressed to Coffman, Department of State Highways and Transportation Director John P. Woodford said the plan was unacceptable because it could not accommodate existing traffic and does not make adequate provisions for future traffic conditions.

Stell said the council has rejected the state's six-lane plan because it would not improve safety and would detract from the street's attractiveness.

In other action, the council put the final stamp of approval on the 1979 budget.

The budget represents a 9 percent increase over the previous year, but provides for no additional services, programs or employees. There will be cutbacks in capital improvement projects and capital outlay expenditures, but no increase in property tax rates.

Councilmember Larry Owen said he is "somewhat proud" of the finished budget because it "holds the line on taxes." It is the third consecutive year the tax rate has remained the same, he said.

However, since the assessed value of property has increased, property owners can expect to pay more property taxes.

Owen attributed the budget's 9 percent increase to insurance costs, salaries and pensions.

Social Security tax rollback voted down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee reversed itself Wednesday and stilled an election-year effort to roll back Social Security taxes for 106 million workers and their employers.

"I have decided that I cannot live with a vote" to undo the tax increases enacted last December, said Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairperson. His position, and the committee's turn-about, defies a mandate from the House Democratic Caucus, which last month instructed the panel to write a tax-cut bill.

Ullman had cast the tie-breaker last week when the committee voted 19-18 for a rollback. He and four other members switched their positions Wednesday, resulting in a 21-16 vote against a reduction.

Ullman said that vote probably settled the question for the year. That would mean higher Social Security taxes starting next

Jan. 1. But Rep. Fortney Stark, D-Calif., indicated an effort will be made to write a Social Security tax cut in the House Rules Committee and on the House floor. "Power politics is the only way this bill can be stopped at this point," Stark said.

The plan rejected by Ways and Means would have reduced to 1977 levels the Social Security taxes paid in 1979 and 1980 by most workers and their employers. It would have cut by as much as $123 a year the taxes paid by higher-income workers and their employers.

Every covered worker and his or her employer would have benefited from the rollback. The $14.6 billion cost of the two-year reduction would have been paid out of income tax revenues.

The tax increase was voted last December in an effort to rescue Social Security (continued on page 14)

Rebels gaining ground in Zaire

By SERGE S. CHMEMANN

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Rebel tribe members were reported gaining ground Wednesday in southern Zaire, stranding 2,500 foreigners behind their lines, but a surprise ground-and-air rescue mission mounted by a U.S. firm managed to evacuate most Americans from the embattled area.

In this capital city, more than 100,000 dancing and chanting Zaireans rallied in a stadium in support of President Mobutu Sese Seko's pro-West government and to denounce alleged Cuban and Soviet support for the rebels.

The central government and rebel invaders, meanwhile, accused each other of murdering whites in the war zone.

"Foreigners are being hunted in Kolwezi," Foreign Minister Henri Simonet told the Belgian Parliament in Brussels. He said this was the last message Belgian officials received from the rebel-held town in this Central African nation's southeastern copper belt.

Belgian Foreign Ministry spokesperson Alfred Cahen described the 2,000 Belgians, 400 French citizens and assorted other foreigners in the Kolwezi area as hostages of the rebels.

Some reports here said the secessionists in mineral-rich Shaba Province were breaking out of their Kolwezi salient and moving toward the government's important air base at Kamina, 130 miles to the north. Other reports said rebel forces were moving west toward Angola, where theoretically they could link up with comrades based there.

The reports could not be officially confirmed. No news correspondents have been allowed into the area.

Zairean government officials said their troops had intercepted urgent rebel radio messages saying they would be forced to retreat if they did not receive reinforcements immediately.

The Kinshasa government dropped several hundred paratroopers around Kolwezi earlier this week to join ground forces in a drive against the rebels. But apparently the counter-offensive had not yet begun.

There has been no word on military casualties.

Various reports from diplomats here and from Belgian sources said between five and nine Europeans have been killed in the Kolwezi area — apparently all Belgians, except for one Italian.

In a statement issued in Brussels, the rebel Congolese National Liberation Front denied its forces had killed foreigners in the five-day-old invasion, said they were protecting civilians and blamed any civilian deaths on "barbaric" government forces.

U. S. citizens evacuated from Zaire battleground

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A civilian rescue operation plucked most of the Americans from Zaire's battle-scarred Shaba province Wednesday, and Pentagon sources said it was unlikely U.S. paratroopers would be sent to rescue the 11 still trapped there.

The rescue convoy was organized by Morrison Knudson, a Boise, Idaho firm which is building an electric transmission line from a dam at Inga on the country's west coast to Kolwezi in the southeast.

Without encountering fire, the convoy of trucks and helicopters reached a compound eight miles from the rebel-held town of Kolwezi on Wednesday morning, State Department spokesperson Rodding Carter reported. He said the convoy took 65 Morrison-Knudson employees and dependents out by truck and rescued another 12 by helicopter.

Left behind were 11 Americans caught in the midst of renewed fighting in which some 4,000 exiled Lunda tribe members from Angola crossed northern Zambia and seized Kolwezi, 25 miles from the Zambian border.

Nonetheless, Defense Department sources here said it was "highly unlikely" that Army paratroopers, still on alert Wednesday, would be sent to Africa. A Pentagon source said "the situation seems to be sorting itself out."

Meanwhile, legislation was introduced to ease congressional restraints on President Carter's authority to ship arms and equipment to Zaire without prior approval from Capitol Hill.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., submitted a bill that would repeal a section of the Security Assistance Act prohibiting the shipment of military aid to Zaire unless the president declares that such assistance "should be furnished in the national security interests of the United States."

Dole also introduced a bill that would modify the so-called Clark Amendment which prohibits U.S. shipments of military equipment or aid to Angola. Dole said his modification "would make it absolutely clear" that the Clark Amendment in no way restricts U.S. assistance to neighboring Zaire.

Family feuds over Callas' estate

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A family feud among heirs to the estate of opera star Maria Callas has been settled by an agreement to auction the diva's valuables and share the profits. Callas family friends in Athens disclosed Wednesday.

The contestants — the soprano's ex-husband Giovanni Battista Meneghini on the one hand and her mother and sister on the other — have agreed to an auction on June 24 at the George V Hotel in Paris, the friends said.

Informants said most of the items in the singer's Paris apartment would go on the block including her personal piano, a collection of valuable Italian and French Renaissance paintings, furniture, clothing and even kitchen equipment.

The hotel in Paris confirmed it was booked to hold the auction.

The accord came after six months of wrangling that followed the 53-year-old Callas' death in Paris after a heart attack Sept. 16.

American tourists back in Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — American tourists are back in Cuba in force for the first time in 20 years.

More than 150 Yankees sailed into Havana Harbor in a steady stream of yachts and fishing boats to join 200 or more of their countrymen who began arriving at the beach resort of Varadero over the weekend.

"I have lived in Key West all my life and I thought I would never get to visit Cuba," said an ecstatic Greg Sherertz.

It's closer than Miami, but I never thought I'd make it, he said as he checked into a Havana hotel for a six-day stay. Sherertz was among the first arrivals of an American group invited to participate in an international marlin fishing tournament sponsored in memory of the late American novelist Ernest Hemingway, who once lived in Cuba.

"A lot of people back there (in Florida) are waiting to see how it goes with us here," said John Vorton. "I wish I could tell them right now to come on over."

UN forces wound gunman in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — French paratroopers of UN peacekeeping forces in South Lebanon wounded one gunman and arrested three others in a shootout south of the biblical port city of Tyre Wednesday, the French contingent reported.

Witnesses in Tyre reported an Israeli gunboat intercepted an incoming cargo vessel, searched it and then escorted it away in a southerly direction toward Israeli territorial waters.

Officials in Tyre said they could not obtain an explanation for the interception of the vessel. Nor were they able to identify the ship or ascertain its cargo.

The two incidents occurred as UN officers continued negotiations with little progress to avert a showdown with radical Palestinian guerrillas insisting on penetrating UN lines into Israeli-occupied South Lebanon.

Women's guard debuts at White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A women's honor guard debuted at the White House on Wednesday, months after a few Air Force women wrote to first lady Rosalynn Carter protesting the all-male ceremonial contingent.

Five women, representing each branch of the military, were among a 21-member cordon forming a line from the front door of the White House to the East Room to greet Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda.

About 10 women originally were scheduled to participate. But the White House lawn was soggy after several days of rain, so the ceremony was moved indoors. That meant a smaller cordon replaced the normal contingent of about 225.

As he escorted his guest past the honor guard President Carter stopped and pointed to the women, then walked up to Catherin N. Pehnke, who was standing at attention and asked her how she liked it.

Behnke, a Navy seaman apprentice from Reedley, Calif., told reporters later she was surprised that the commander in chief had stopped to chat.

Inflation erodes spending gain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The combined personal income of all Americans increased 1.4 percent in April, a further sign of strong economic growth, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

Rising personal income means consumers have more money to spend and often encourages merchants and factories to step up production and hire more workers.

The 1.4 percent increase was the largest since a 1.45 gain in October 1977 and followed a 1.36 percent gain in March.

However, about half of the increase may have been eaten up by rising prices, which have gone up an average of 0.7 percent each month this year.

Overall, personal income rose at an annual rate of $23.3 billion in April to $1.68 trillion. That would mean an average annual income of about $7,706 for each adult and child in the United States.

Wages and salaries rose $18.1 billion in April after rising $17.5 billion in March.

Americans say crime not increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time since 1967 a majority of Americans feels crime is not increasing, pollster Lou Harris told Congress Wednesday.

He said polling results show that "it is fair to conclude that the public feels less anxious, certainly more at ease, less worried about safety on the streets in this country than it has felt in over a decade."

And he said residents of small towns, not the large cities, report the largest increase in crime.

Harris said also that if the trends shown by his polling continue, "it would not be long before small towns in the South and in the West were the places where people are most apprehensive about crime."

"It is entirely conceivable that small towns will inherit many of the apprehensions that have beset the cities for over a decade now," Harris told the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

"It took close to 15 years for the cities to build a reputation for being havens of crime," Harris said. "And it will take some further time, even if the crime rate for cities is declining in fact, for the cities to outgrow that reputation."

'JUST DIDN'T WANT TO RUN'

Wallace retiring from politics

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Lacking the drive that thrust him into the national spotlight as a lectern-thumping firebrand, Gov. George C. Wallace is calling it quits after 32 years of political life.

Almost 15 years after he burst onto the national scene as an arch segregationist with his "Stand in the schoolhouse door" at the University of Alabama, Wallace announced Tuesday night that he is withdrawing as a candidate for the U.S. Senate. By law, he is unable to run for a third straight term as governor.

At a news conference Wednesday afternoon, Wallace, looking relaxed and fit with a newly-acquired tan, said his decision to withdraw from the Senate campaign is final. But he shed little light on the reasons behind the action.

Although he declined to acknowledge in specific terms that he is retiring from politics altogether, he told reporters, "I don't intend to be involved in any campaign at all."

"I just decided I didn't want to run," Wallace said in response to repeated questions from reporters crowded into his Capitol office.

Wallace discounted speculation that his health may have been a factor in the decision, saying, "my health is in good shape. I'm all right."

In a joking use of campaign rhetoric from earlier days, Wallace added, "maybe thinking about being around that many 'pointy heads' at one time" had something to do with his decision not to go to Washington. "I don't know whether I could take it," he said with a grin.

Wallace said he is relieved at not having to face another campaign, but still regrets not being in a race "I could have won."

Press aide Billy Joe Camp said the 58-year-old governor, newly divorced and confined to a wheelchair with paralyzed legs, will probably return to "private life" in Montgomery after leaving office next January.

Why did Wallace decide to abandon almost the only life he has ever known?

"He just didn't want run," said Camp.

He's not "the George Wallace of old," said the governor's ex-wife, Cornelia, whose exit from the governor's mansion last September led to a divorce settlement four months later.

Others said that Wallace, who enjoys being surrounded by political cronies, was reluctant to abandon his home turf for life among strangers in the nation's capital.

All these factors, and others, were probably in Wallace's mind as he closed the door on a political career that began with his election to the Alabama House in 1946.

Elected three times as governor of Alabama, Wallace seemed to enjoy most his four whirlwind campaigns for president, as he taunted the establishment and its "pointy-headed" intellectuals.

From Maine to California, he plumbed the fears and expectations of the nation's middle class, the "silent majority," generating a wave of support that was at its peak on May 15, 1972, when he was cut down in

Dominican arm stops vote count

SANTA DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Dominican armed forces stopped tabulation of presidential election results Wednesday, at least temporarily, after the opposition opened a wide lead. The military denied it has seized the government.

Reports received in Washington said the vote count resumed in this central bean nation, which shares an island of Hispaniola with Haiti and that the action to stop it was taken by national forces.

Earlier reports said forces invaded the quarters of the Central Electoral Board at 4 a.m. and stopped the vote count. Broadcasting of results intervention came as Antonio Guzman, a candidate over incumbent President Balaguer.

Sources at the Office of American States in Washington said the OAS election observers reported Balaguer retained control of the government. The transfer power to the opposition should be election.

Tenthorey, who directed the two-and-a-half month investigation, declined immediately to give any more detail about the recovery, including the identification of the suspects.

There has been no mention that the Soviet and supported Marxist government in Addis has launched a new offensive in Eritrea Province and stop what he called the government's "genocide campaign" against the Eritrean people.

Charlie Chaplin's stolen body found, authorities shown coffin in cornfield

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The body of Charlie Chaplin, stolen from his grave 76 days ago in a macabre theft that seemed to have stumped international investigators, was found Wednesday in a shallow hole in a cornfield near Lake Geneva. Two alleged grave robbers were arrested.

Authorities said they picked up the pair — a Pole and a Bulgarian — after they allegedly called the Chaplin family lawyer demanding a ransom for the return of the remains of the famed comedian.

Examining Magistrate Jean Daniel Tenthorey said the call was traced, the two men were tracked down and the body, still in its oak coffin, was found early Wednesday near Ville neuve, a small town at the eastern tip of Lake Geneva.

was buried in the village cemetery Dec. 27.

Police sources said the arrested men led officers to the site.

Congress budget allows tax cut of $19.4 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Wednesday approved a congressional budget allowing for a tax cut of $19.4 billion and projecting a $50.9 billion federal deficit for the next fiscal year.

The 201 198 House vote was the final action on the budget resolution, which now will serve as a guideline until Congress adopts a second, binding budget resolution in September. The Senate had approved the preliminary resolution Monday.

The resolution calls for revenues of $447.9 billion and spending of $498.8 billion.

The deficit is about $10 billion under President Carter's original estimate.

Head of Eritrean rebel asks outside intervention

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — An Eritrean rebel commander appealed Wednesday for international intervention to halt a purported new Ethiopian offensive in Eritrea Province and stop what he called the government's "genocide campaign" against the Eritrean people.

There has been no mention that the Soviet and supported Marxist government in Addis has launched a new offensive in Eritrea Province and stop what he called the government's "genocide campaign" against the Eritrean people.

Former 'U' student Weeks denied degree

By JOY L. HAENLEIN
State News Staff Writer

A 26-year-old ex-MSU student from Turkey is still fighting for a degree he claims to have completed requirements for six years ago.

Ustay asked Lewis in the letter to grant him his degree because he had completed all the requirements, including three course deficiencies which the business college said had prevented his graduation in 1971 and 1972.

But the business college's reply to the Jan. 29 letter stated Ustay had failed to complete advanced degree requirements within the five-year period stipulated in the Graduate Rights and Responsibilities document.

Ustay claims the time restriction is not "applicable, since this has not been made known to me," at the time of first enrollment, as detailed in the document.

Ustay claims the issues go deeper than failure to meet MBA requirements, as the business college has "something personal against me."

Ustay also said he has been denied access to his personal file, which supposedly contains "derogatory letters," according to MSU professor of marketing William Lazer.

"I was told that letters of recommendation are confidential," Ustay said. Associate Dean of the College of Business James Rainey later removed these letters from his file, Ustay said.

He said he faced discrimination in a required class when Lazer advised all foreign students to choose another instructor.

Lazer, who is out of town, was unavailable for comment. After being denied his degree again in February, Ustay submitted an application for re-admission to Rainey.

"I enclosed the application out of courtesy," Ustay explained. "I had already completed the required courses."

Lewis said the application was denied because Ustay had not completed the requirements for his degree within the required five-year period.

While the business college can extend the deadline, Lewis said the school does not feel that Ustay's record "supplies some significant justification for such an exception."

FESTIVITIES CONTINUE TODAY

Greeks 'stuff it' in VW

By PAULA DYKE

And you thought Volkswagen stuffing went out with raccoon coats and goldfish-swallowing.

Tuesday night at Landon Field, Greeks turned out by the housefuls to revive the old tradition as part of Greek Week.

But the tradition has been updated. Rather than using the old-fashioned "beetle" model to fill up with Greeks, participating groups crammed into a brand new Rabbit borrowed from Williams Volks wagen.

As the groups shed their shoes and coats in preparation, they psyched themselves up with cheers of "Let's get small! Let's get small!"

Alpha Phi sorority stuffed a record-setting 35 women into the car for the first place trophy. Sigma Kappa and Pi Beta Phi tied for second place among the sororities with 34 each.

"All I could feel was stomachs and ribs," Alpha Phi's Catherine Jones commented later.

"The first thing I did was find myself an air pocket," Leigh Ann Winn from Delta Delta Delta said. "Everybody was suffocating."

Among the fraternities, Theta Chi took the first-place trophy by cramming 29 warm bodies into the car. Second was Alpha Tau Omega with 23, while Delta Tau Delta finished third with 21.

"My head was just kissing the windshield," Mark Davis of Theta Chi said.

"It was like trying to get into the Button in Fort Lauderdale — wall-to-wall bodies," Mike Depatie of Alpha Tau Omega said, referring to a popular Florida bar.

At the same time, the body of the Rabbit was also taking some abuse. After two chrome trim strips broke off and the rear window popped out from the internal pressure, announcer Greg Noack became a little concerned. As one group of hefty Greek men squeezed into the Rabbit, he instructed them, "Please do not put a sunroof into the car..."

Meanwhile, a fierce Greek tug-of-war championship was in progress. Their hands wrapped with tape or packed safely in heavy gloves, teammates grimaced as they planted their feet in the grassy field and tugged in rhythm to chants of "Pull, Pull!"

Sorority teams were made up of 10

he receives a decision, Ustay said, he will be "pressingly and imprisoned" in a motel room. But he is "determined to see the matter until it is resolved as promised in writing, and every one of my points are either accepted or duly noted," he said.

Ustay said he has spent the past two-and-a-half months in East Lansing pursuing his degree, financing his trip from Turkey and paying expenses out of his own money.

Ustay said he has been denied access to his personal files given to the State News by Ustay, Associate Dean Richard J. Lewis said in a letter to graduate school Dean Herbert J. Oyer that Ustay had applied for his degree during the summer term of 1971, fall term of 1971, and winter term of 1972.

Ustay said the letter Ustay was denied certification each time he applied for graduation requirements.

Ustay said he had applied for his degree during the summer term of 1971, fall term of 1971, and winter term of 1972.

Ustay explained that during his six-year absence from MSU, he had worked for different companies before setting up his own business in Turkey. He said he did not have the opportunity to discuss his academic status.

Protesters back Iranian clashes

MSU Iranian students and faculty members participated in a vigil and rally on Tuesday and Wednesday in solidarity with demonstrations in Iran.

The MSU protest, led by the Iranian Students Association, began Tuesday with a rally and march around campus, ending at the Union where teams of sympathizers continued to march next to Grand River Avenue throughout the night. The rest of the demonstrators spent the night in the Union lobby.

Sign-carrying protesters shouted "mass uprising in Iran shakes the fascist system down" and "armed struggle in Iran breaks the fascist system down."

The protesters ended their vigil with a rally at Beaumont Tower at noon Wednesday.

The campus protest was sparked by several days of demonstrations and violence in Iran's major cities. The worst violence occurred in Qum, a city southeast of Iran's capital, Teheran, and the site of a famous shrine.

Muslim extremists touched off the demonstrations May 6 when several hundred theology students held a peaceful protest. By last Thursday, Iranian soldiers were being personally commanded by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, who postponed his scheduled Eastern European trip to deal with thousands of Moslems demanding his ouster and the return to strict Islamic rule.

Several persons have reportedly been killed in the clashes with police, and hundreds injured.

Today, the Organization of Iranian Moslem Students in East Lansing will lead a demonstration at 11 a.m. at the International Center to protest the crackdown on demonstrators in Iran.

The national Organization of Iranian Moslem Students will hold simultaneous demonstrations on Friday in Chicago, Atlanta and Houston.

Arab students at MSU are also asking support for several students who were arrested during a protest at Portland State University in Oregon.

The Arab students said an Israeli flag was raised during Israel's 30th anniversary by the university's Middle East Study Center. When this action was protested the police were called, they said, and students who had not left within five minutes were arrested.

African calls for continued investment

A representative from the South African consulate in New York told the University Committee on Academic Environment Wednesday that American investment is necessary to keep South Africa economically stable.

Speaking at a regular meeting of the committee, Deon Erasmus, an information officer from the consulate, said the consulate sees divestiture as a counterproductive action. The University Committee on Academic Environment has been charged by the MSU Board of Trustees to draw up guidelines for monitoring withdrawal of American investments from South Africa.

The trustees voted in March to divest all MSU stock in companies with holdings in South Africa if the companies have not shown evidence of withdrawal from the country by Dec. 1.

The committee has prepared the guidelines but has not yet voted to approve them to trustees. At Wednesday's meeting, the committee reviewed a rewritten set of guidelines but did not discuss approval or take a vote.

Erasmus spoke to the committee on consulate concern about campus politics affecting South Africa.

"We are very concerned about some of the actions we have been seeing. We see divestment as counterproductive," he said.

Divestment from South Africa "will affect the livelihoods of many, particularly black people," he said.

Erasmus also stressed the importance of South African economic stability. "We are dealing with a very unstable situation," he said. "We need all the positive energy we can get."

Erasmus also spoke on the reasons the consulate is concerned with student protests at American corporations in South Africa.

South Africa is a rallying point for campus politics," he said.

Erasmus added the issue is a high point on campuses because of its connection with the arms industry.

"Big business and multinationals have always been the target of anti-establishment protests," he said.

Hurrell, committee chairperson, said he would reserve time for observers to attend to Erasmus' speech at the committee's next meeting.

The special committee meeting will be held at 1 p.m. today in 443A Administration Building. An acting United Nations representative of the African National Congress will be present.

The next regular committee meeting will be held May 24, and responses on divestment guidelines and rationale will be discussed.

Business women's club thanks bosses at lunch

By ANNE MARIE BIONDO
State News Staff Writer

The image of springtime in the park was recreated in the Kellogg Center Big Ten Room Wednesday, with replicas of colorful flower beds and kites setting the scene for the 23rd annual Bosses' Luncheon.

Sponsored by the Business Women's Club, the traditional luncheon is held to give MSU women an opportunity to express appreciation to their bosses, said Lorraine Demorest, club president.

"We want to say 'thank you' for the times you've been supportive and helpful," she said, addressing the bosses on behalf of the members.

"And we want to say thank you to those who have encouraged the MSU Business Women's Club and recognized our existence," she added.

Demorest explained that many of the bosses have spoken at the club's monthly luncheons and provided leadership assistance at workshops held by the club.

Among the special guests welcomed to the luncheon was MSU President Edgar L. Harden, accompanied by members of his office staff.

Fashion models clad in stylish spring and summer apparel strolled through the aisles of tables while guests enjoyed swiss steak and green beans. Outfits shown ranged from swimwear to evening gowns.

Following the fashion show, vocalist Landy Rich sang "Memories," "Kiss Today Goodbye," and "Spring and a Song in Your Heart," accompanied by pianist Carol Wilson.

Between Rich's performances, door prizes were given away, and the club's new officer for 1978-79 were announced.

'Anything goes' relay: wackiness helps win

By MICHAEL MEGERIAN

They donned oversized slippers and stuffed six water balloons each inside their long overalls.

And then they were ready. Six sororities and 19 fraternities took part in the "Anything Goes" contest Tuesday. The contest involved running an obstacle course of six tasks, most designed to be an embarrassing to participants.

The event, sponsored by Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, was part of MSU's annual Greek Week.

Bound at the wrists, participants stumbled through the course in pairs to the cheers of the crowd. Isolated in Yakeley Hall before the races, the contestants were not told in advance what would be expected of them.

The events seemed to surprise the first few contestants, but as the relay wore on, later participants hung out the Yakeley Hall windows, curious about the source of all the laughter.

The relay, held at Landon Field under gray skies, involved several pairs of two member teams competing against each other.

One contestant from each team was required to wear long overalls stuffed with water balloons and run in a pair of extra large slippers. The required tasks included knocking a ping pong ball into a coffee can with an oversized bat, stacking beer cans on a card table, jumping rope and discarding the unusual attire before ringing the bell awaiting racers at the finish line.

Some contestants were slow at first but picked up speed as they trudged through the course. However, accidents were unavoidable and many pairs of overalls were soon drenched by the broken water balloons.

Participants were also forced to battle with the wind when stacking beer cans, and some had trouble navigating their feet in the unfamiliar footwear.

Relay coordinator Becky Wenzler said her sorority staged the event because the members wanted to do something for Greek Week and also "just for fun."

First place for the women went to Alpha Gamma Delta and Sigma Phi Epsilon grabbed first place honors for the men. Each winning house was awarded a trophy.

. . . the dollar Meany grumbles, Carter frowns

George Meany, the long-entrenched, crusty old chieftain of the AFL-CIO, last week aggressively rebuffed President Carter's plea for restraint by unions in wage demands as a means of combating inflation. Carter is seeking voluntary union compliance with wage guidelines that would keep wage hikes below the 7.5 percent average of the last two years. Carter hopes big business will impose similar strictures on price increases.

Meanwhile, the average consumer is still trying to stretch a dollar that is buying less and less.

Meany rules his union with an iron fist, and more progressive labor officials have for a long time been agitating for his ouster. Meany supported Richard Nixon's Vietnam policies and withheld the influential support of his organization's vocal and financial apparatus from George McGovern in 1972, because he felt McGovern embodied radical-left interests. Meany has, we believe, outlived his usefulness to American's labor movement and should resign his post.

But in his confrontation with Carter the labor leader has a point. America's unions were severely burned by their experience with wage-price controls in the early 1970s, and over the long haul prices increased faster than wages. It is undiplomatic and even unseemly for the president to expect union support for a fixed level of wage restraint without first obtaining a similar pledge from big business to keep down prices.

Moreover, the AFL-CIO is but one organization; big business is fractious and diverse, ranging from oil barons to steel executives. Can this staggering array of competing business interests be persuaded to keep a lid on price hikes, especially when most business leaders hold Carter and his programs in such low esteem? We tend to doubt it.

Too, it is vital to note that inflationary pressures are not all attributable to the excess of business and labor. External factors, such as the whimsy of the Oil Producing and Exporting Countries, also play an important role. We fear that Carter's simplistic approach to the seeming intractability of inflation is calculated to win political brownie points with the public at large. Unions have always been a good villain. Carter may well feel he now has the opportunity to revitalize his flagging political fortunes with conservatives by casting George Meany as the bad guy in the administration's war on rising prices.

Perhaps the answer, ultimately, will be to impose selective wage-price controls on various segments of the public and private sector, and for the government to do a better job of putting its own inflationary house in order. Failing that, prices will continue to rise while government, labor and business officials keep pointing the finger of blame at one another in useless public spectacles that will solve nothing.

Business college and consumerism

The relationship of a student to his or her college is a highly debated one that defies precise definition to every satisfaction. But in a society where consumerism reigns and every purchase is a product from the college. The student is therefore guaranteed the same consumer protection that the average shopper receives.

The MSU College of Business, it would seem, does not adhere to the school of thought. College officials have been aware, at least for the three months, that the student-faculty ratio in the school is so low its accreditation is endangered. Yet the college leaders have continued to smile at new admissions prospects, opening the doors wider each year, never mentioning the possibility that an MSU business degree moves nearer to nothingness with each new crop of degree holders.

The college has been informed that if "good faith progress" is not placed on academic probation. This means hiring a substantial number of additional faculty member — professors and instructors as opposed to teaching assistants — or limiting enrollments into the college. The college is frowned upon by state legislators because of the public nature of the University and is therefore unlikely to be considered serious by college officials.

In the face of threatened probation, Dean Richard J. Lewis has called the first faculty meeting of the year for the college. Perhaps lack of communication between the ranks in the business college is one of its problems. Nevertheless, it is too late to hire additional faculty members for next academic year because the budget is up in the air at the prime recruitment time has passed. But the college must meet its obligations to its students and keep them informed of the efforts made to live up to the standards students think they are entitled to receiving.

Search panel: what function?

For the past few months Michigan State has been immersed in the process of selecting a new president, and several articles have appeared in the State News concerning the matter. We have been told about the size of the selection committee, the amount of money spent by the committee, and the decision to tape (or not to tape) the meetings. But never have we (as students with a vested interest in this University) been told exactly what it is that the selection committee does. How is the new president chosen? What are the required qualifications?

Jews supportive

It appears that Ed Lion doesn't read the news. American Jews are speaking out on Israeli Prime Minister Begin's policies, and the American Jew is in favor of the way Begin is handling the Mideast situation. Just a few weeks ago there was a gathering of Jews from all over America that met at the White House with Begin and President Carter, and the opinion of these Jews was that the prime minister is doing a fine job and that he should continue his stance on the peace negotiations.

I for one agree with Begin's policy on the Mideast and stand behind him on his West Bank position. With regard to Lion's column of May 10, I would like to know where he comes off saying "an Israeli withdrawal from the West Bank would not jeopardize Israeli security," when in giving up the West Bank Israel becomes a narrow eight mile strip from the West Bank to the Mediterranean Sea. As Lion says, the West Bank was in Arab hands from 1948-1967, but he forgets to point out that between that time there were three wars, that a war front was opened on the West Bank by the Arabs each time war broke out, and that their attempt in opening the front on that land is to cut the country apart at its weakest point.

Disarmament

With all this talk about "clean" neutron bombs, "disarmament" and what not, I feel moved to point out to your readers that ever since 1899 and the First Hague Conference, "disarmament conferences" have been religiously held (whenever there wasn't an actual war going on) and the human species has been religiously killing itself off with more and more efficient (!) weapons . . . and more expensive ones.

The United Nations Disarmament Conference scheduled to begin on May 27 should be no exception. Too bad. The reason is one known to all the members of the National Rifle Association (to mention one group): weapons are not dangerous by themselves. Their users are. I mean people like Jimmy Carter, Leonid Brezhnev, Lee Harvey Oswald, policemen, — "the Universal Soldiers".

The guy who — if he isn't "just following orders" — always has a great and noble reason for killing someone other than himself. But the remedy is based on a relatively simple premise: keep the kiddie-killers away from their killer toys.

How one manages to do this ought to be the main topic for discussion at any future disarmament conference. How to "limit" not the armaments but the people who use them.

Insulting, sad

Until the morning of May 15, when I read your letter, "Quit Your Crying," I thought the phrase "male chauvinist pig" was an over-used phrase created by a group of reactionary feminists for a group of men that could not really exist in this day and age. How naive I was! Obviously, it is "men" like you for whom this phrase was coined. I found your letter not only insulting, but sad. It seems to me that the reason the I.M. divided its softball leagues into A and B was so that those of us who wanted to simply go out and have a fun "uncompetitive" afternoon could do so, and those who wanted to get into hard-core competitive one-pitch could also do so. Being a member of a B league co-rec team, I agree with Joe Faraky that there's nothing worse than getting ready for an afternoon of "B league" one-pitch and coming up against a group of cut-throat competitive fanatics who would rather die than lose their Sunday afternoon co-rec game.

Protest coverage displays bias

Again the State News has shown its bias in reporting with its article, "Picketers at Kellogg protest Israeli event." Instead of saying anything about the talented Israeli singing group inside the Kellogg Center the paper chose to report on the relatively small group protesting the event outside.

Your bias becomes more insidious when the writer of the article, Joy Haenlein, allowed the mostly Arab protest group to use the front page of the paper to spread its propaganda. The article is full of the old, well known slogans and phrases used by those people who desire the destruction of Israel.

Its too bad the paper allowed itself to be used by a small group of people for their political cause. The fact that they could do it is an indication of the State News' bias.

Cambodia

Recent reports of atrocities committed against the Cambodian people by the authoritarian Khmer Rouge government, as acknowledged by columnist Jack Anderson in his May 3 and 4 columns, is a shock and infuriate any sensitive being. In his column Anderson cites accounts and confidential documents from the State Department, Justice Dept, CIA, and White House which claim as many as 2.5 million men, women and children have been executed in communist takeover in 1975. Americans, have not only ignored brutal slayings, but have also condoned such actions through silence — ironically, in stark contrast to recent outrages generated by "Ho As Americans, we must exert democratic right and fulfill our obligation to the preservation of human dignity by writing our representatives to demand national and international condemnation of the Khmer Rouge at Scott M.

VIEWPOINT: ASMSU

Student reps must have student input

By MIKE McCANDLESS

So here I am, a black, Chicano gay living in Snyder-Phillips, not able to decide whether I should move into the fraternity I've just pledged because they're all business majors and I'm a double major in interior design and physical education. Buy lo, I've found salvation — instead, I can control the ASMSU Student Board in one fell swoop! Bunk you say? Well, the present structure says I can.

Theoretical? Yes. Possible? Hardly. A problem? Definitely. The present board structure certainly leaves much to be desired, and the intentions of restructuring through a revamping of the constitution represents an admirable intention by a few concerned activists. But these intentions are somewhat misguided.

In order to achieve equitable representation of students, a system based on unilateral criteria is the only answer. The system currently proposed by Michael Lenz and Co. attains this to a degree, by utilizing the residence concept. But theoretically — as the State News editorial of May 12 points out — politically — motivated dorms or groups could easily upset the balance of representation. The design based on representation solely by college is a feasible answer — they are roughly equal in enrollment and only a very small number of double majors would be over-represented. The minority and residence groups should be encouraged as much as possible to participate, but their policy initiatives should be directed through the voting members, in much the same way interest groups exert influence over Congress.

Having an executive director paid and elected by his peers on the board only serves to disenfranchise the student community further from the activities of the student government. A 10 percent plurality is certainly better than none. Participation must be fostered by the constitution, not alienated. That "ideological, fractious gaggle" who were motivated enough to express their concern over who will preside over the ASMSU Student Board should be used as a springboard for the development of a more politically involved and aware student community.

A director elected by this small group might make for a more efficient development and implementation of policy, but who is more accountable to the student board, but does want to be represented by a person they didn't have a chance to express their direct opinions of at the polls? Also, it is the of "executive" power to sometimes undertake swift, proactive action in light of pressing problems. But will the new "executive director" have the freedom to initiate this kind of independent decision-making that is so essential to an active, responsive government?

In short, the ASMSU constitution must, for adequate efficient development and implementation of policy, desire to attain a balance of power and a voice for those who want to be heard. Efforts must be channeled in these directions to embroiled and embittered personality and character styles which plague the current student government scene while their apparent over any other efforts for worthwhile change.

Illegal law designed to cheat consumers

Every consumer is a "potential attorney general" who can bring charges against unfair business actions and receive compensation, according to an assistant state attorney general who spoke in Wells Hall Wednesday.

SUSAN M. FRIESS
State News Staff Writer

Edwin Bladen told an assembly of business law classes that under the new state consumer protection law, a consumer can be awarded at least $250 from any business guilty of deceptive practices. If damages exceed $250, the consumer may collect that amount.

Reasons for filing a charge have varied from complaints about auto parts which had not been replaced to a class action suit on behalf of restaurant patrons who weren't receiving an actual liter of wine, Bladen said.

Bladen said the law, which went into effect in April, is simply meant to discourage businesses from cheating.

"If businessmen know that every consumer is a potential attorney general, he will think twice about a violation," Bladen said.

The new law offers substantial tools for the enforcement of earlier consumer protection laws, Bladen said.

"The law supplies no inspectors with hard hats, no myriad of different color forms to fill out with 14 copies each," he said.

It is, he explained, the "commandment of Judeo-Christian ethics" for businesses to live by.

Bladen urged consumers with complaints to first notify the business in writing of the reason and to send a copy of that letter to the attorney general's office. Often that's all it takes, he added.

"We'll contact the business and say, 'Hey, we just got a carbon of a letter sent to you. Send us your response' . . . You'd be surprised how fast those responses go out."

Bladen said past complaints had even resulted in an attorney general's false advertising suit against Ollie Fretter Appliance.

"We gave him a deal he couldn't beat," Bladen smiled.

LCC prof demonstrates passive sun home design

By BETH TUSCHAK
State News Staff Writer

A passively designed solar home can offer more benefits than a conventionally heated home, a Lansing Community College professor said Wednesday at MSU.

C. K. Kline, an engineering technology professor and licensed building contractor, said in passive design, the whole house is built to be a solar collector.

"The house will receive, store and give up energy without using outside energy," he said. "The passive design does not involve the use of machinery."

Kline said he has been working on his own solar design house for three years, although he originally worked with an active design.

"An active solar design makes use of pumps and fans to distribute captured energy sources," he said.

Kline is now combining the two methods, and said he will end up with an "active-passive super energy efficient" house that he will be able to heat and cool for less than $100 a year.

"The equipment in my house will start paying for itself the first year." — C. K. Kline, LCC faculty member

"There are too many houses that are in competition with the natural environment," Kline said. "They are either too hot or too cold."

"To have an energy efficient house we have to build a house that cooperates with nature instead of conflicting with it."

One of the most important things to consider when building a house in the lot it is built on, Kline said.

"It should have trees, a southern exposure and hills in the back yard," he said. "It should run longest from north to south, have good drainage and a windbreak in the east or west."

"If you're going to build a house, start at the ground and build it up right."

Kline said most solar houses are built by the people who are going to live in them — people who are convinced solar is the way to go.

He said there are about 100 solar houses in Michigan right now, and he is predicting the solar building business is going to boom.

"Builders coming out of college who know how to build solar houses are going to have a tremendous impact on the market," Kline said. "People are beginning to realize that the good land, and good housing on that land, is the best investment you can make."

"The equipment in my house will start paying for itself the first year."

Kline said many people who use solar energy find their house has become a part of them and they feel much more harmonious with nature.

"The savings on utility bills will go a long way towards paying the mortgage," he said.

Kline pointed out that any solar energy system is going to have drawbacks — like when there is no sun — and they do need maintenance, but the benefits should outweigh the costs.

"As a person, homeowner, builder and teacher, I'm convinced we cannot wait for the government to solve our energy problems," Kline said. "We have the technology and knowledge right now to work with nature instead of in conflict with it."

Miss Liberty or Susan B. Anthony to appear on coin?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Before Congress has time to think about a new, present-dollar coin, it finds itself engaged in a heated debate with women's groups.

The Capitol Hill is this: If the coin is authorized, should it bear the image of Miss Liberty or the 49-year-old person, women's suffrage leader Susan B. Anthony?

halfway in size between a quarter and half dollar.

Initial testimony was overwhelmingly in favor of the notion of issuing a new dollar coin to reduce dependence on the dollar bill, to expand the merchandising potential of vending machines and, if accepted by the public, to cut the government's currency costs.

But the Liberty Anthony rivalry stayed close to the fore.

The Treasury came to the hearing touting its design proposal: Liberty on one side, an eagle on the other.

Noting that there are many distinguished Americans of both sexes who could be considered candidates for commemoration, Stella B. Hackel, director of the U.S. Mint, told the subcommittee:

"In our view, expanding the field of design selection beyond historical abstracts and U.S. presidents would set an unwise course in coin design, and invite a controversial debate which would tend to damage the overall success of the proposal."

But the caucus of women House members already has endorsed an Anthony design. Rep. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chair person of the Senate Banking Committee, has introduced legislation providing for the Anthony design, and a companion bill has been introduced in the House by Rep. Mary Rose Oaker, D-Ohio, a member of the House Banking Committee.

The Treasury proposal for the new dollar includes a provision for continuing to mint a part silver version of the big coin with the profile of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower. But it would be minted only as a piece for collectors, and would not be for general circulation.

"In Vino Veritas (In Wine There Is Truth)," said the old Roman proverb, meaning the stuff brings out a certain dimension of real humanness not often enough found in soberlings. The Romans were aware of certain such subtleties altho they too had to thrust and scrounge to make a tolerable go of living under that slaver Fascist Caesar, yet still they had their bars and whores and wine and if you go to Pompeii you can even see the dirty graffiti on the 2,000 year old moldy historic stone walls.

Here in the 20th Century my old highschool buddy Ingo Schraft and I are still on the truthseek — curled up behind a couple of drafts at the table by the flashing jukebox, hashing over various of the world's crazinesses: Visions From The Bottom Of The Bottle as if you will, swimming in the mind stratum beneath all various facades and social protection tactics, as exposed by ole devil alcohol.

Ingo speaks: "A couple months back I was in Dooley's stoned listenin to the horn band don Top Forty and horn tunes for dancing, I was leaned over the railing hanging over a table with two women, three men. They were all pretty faced folks, y'know?"

"Well the one guy, six feet tall in a ski sweater, is puttin his moves on this blond goddess type, and she's givin him the encouraging smiles; but then there's her friend on the other side of him, a darkhaired woman trying to get Mr. Ski Sweater to notice her, she's laughing at his jokes and smilin the best she can but she just seems a bit desperate cause he ain't even lookin at her. The hell of it is that in the meantime, the two other guys at the table are tryin to be nice to her and she's just givin them the cold shoulder." He drains a slug and sighs, "Sad."

"That is," I say. "How come she coldshouldered two men for some guy who wouldn't even look at her?"

"I dunno. I s'pose you'd have to ask her that."

MAGICAL MYSTERY TOUR

Henning entrances Civic Center

Doug Henning

State News Debbie Ryan

By KIMBLEKIS
"Magic" has nothing to do with basketball... at least not for people who saw Doug Henning at the Lansing Civic Center Tuesday night. For these people "magic" is as much the skill of the performer as the illusions themselves.

Henning's skill, along with his unique style, has made him one of today's foremost performers. The Magic Show, which brought to the attention of the American public in May 1974, is still running on Broadway. Four years and two award winning television specials later, Henning is still creating wonder. His 36 American city tour is designed to bring that wonder to the stage again.

Reality took a holiday, and people got a chance to see the illusions they were familiar with from the television screen. Henning performed such feats as dividing a woman into four scrambling the pieces, then reassembling them — and making her appear and vanish into thin air.

He also performed "Metamorphosis," a personal favorite of First performed by Houdini in 1915, the illusion exchanges a woman, handcuffed, placed in a canvas sack, and locked in a box for the magician.

The finale was an impressive trick called "Things That Go in the Night." Henning produced two covered, person sized boxes from a box set toward the back of the stage. Just when you thought you had it all figured out, he produced a third dancing bump, a minute... how many assistants did he have? The bump forward, and throw the cloths off to reveal his two female assistants — and Henning. While you try to catch your breath after the his male assistants wheel the box forward. It pops open to reveal a big Bengal tiger.

The audience was awed.

The show was indeed impressive, even for perhaps especially those who had some idea about how it was done. In the end the auditorium was filled with people who had regained, momentarily, their innocence. You could almost touch the sense of wonder that, after all, was the real magic Tuesday night.

German Expressionism discussed at Kresge Art Center talk tonight

Late 19th century German expressionist art will be discussed by Alessandra Comini, professor of Art History at Southern Methodist University at Kresge Art Center Gallery at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Comini, widely known for her public lectures and writings, will speak on six German artists, three women and three men. Her presentation will be divided into three sections featuring the following artists: Kollwitz and Munch, Becker and Modersohn, Muntz and Kandinsky.

"She is one of those rare persons who can combine scholar and humor," Linda Standford, assistant professor of Art said, explaining that Comini is popular for her effective public speaking.

Comini, who received her doctorate's degree from Columbia University, was awarded Charles Rufus Morey Book Award in 1976 for Egon Schiele's Portraits.

Two thirty minute films will be shown beginning at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Kresge Art Center Gallery. The first film, "Louise Nevelson in Process," is about a 78 year old American sculptor known for her large-scale sculptures. The other film, "Alice Neel, collector of Souls," will feature another American woman artist who works with human figures. Neel's emphasis is on pictures and portraits of groups of people, Standford explained.

The lecture and films are sponsored by the College of Arts and Letters, Department of Art; Vox, the student organization of the art department and Women's Studies — Colloquia Series.

providing a very cohesive LP.

As disco goes, however, it is not bad. It does not suffer from

Perhaps this is due to Clarke's

Clarke also makes his singing

Regionals 'at-large' for women netters

By JERRY BRAUDE
State News Sports Writer

With an at-large bid to regionals, MSU's women's tennis team's season has been extended for another week. Yet coach Earl Rutz feels that the season may not end there.

"The favored teams there, Michigan and Northwestern, will be weakened because of injuries and Ohio State (the Big Ten Champs) could be weakened too," Rutz said. "But by no means are we getting cocky."

Like the state tournament, the regionals this weekend, which are in Muncie, Ind., will have three separate tournaments, team, singles and doubles. The top two finishers in the team tournament will go to nationals. The top four finishers in the singles tournament and the finalists in the doubles tournament will also qualify for nationals. An at large bid in the singles tournament will also be available.

Indiana, Wisconsin and either Purdue or southern Illinois will also be at the regionals. MSU already has lost to Indiana and Wisconsin, early in the season but Rutz feels that the team has come along way since then.

"We know we can beat Indiana," Rutz said. "It was a shock when we lost to them earlier."

"Early in the season, we were not playing well and Michigan crunched us, but last week, we gave them a real battle."

While the top teams in the tournament will be suffering from injuries, the Spartans will be going in at full strength, a rarity this season.

Top singles and doubles player Debbie Mascarin now has more than a week of practice behind her, including play in the state tournament last week.

"Her leg is still tender but it didn't seem to bother her over the weekend," Rutz said. "The biggest problem right now is getting her match tough. But she can win a lot of matches for us. She is just a winner."

Mascarin, along with Cindy Bogdonas, will also be participating in the singles tournament.

"Because she didn't play that much this year, she won't be seeded. But of any of the unseeded players, she will have the best chance of winning it," Rutz said.

In the team tournament, Rutz would like to have three or four singles victories because doubles haven't been playing that well lately.

"With Debbie in there, the players will be in different combinations than what they have been used to over most of the season," Rutz said. "Yet Jennifer Brielmaier and Heather MacTaggart have been playing a lot together and Mascarin and Diane Selke were surprised by a good team last weekend. The doubles play has tremendously improved over the course of the year, and we do look at it as our strength."

Rutz also feels that the middle of the line-up will be a key factor on how well the team does.

DAN SPICKLER

Just can't shake it...

Well, everybody's thinking about next fall. Football season and all. That's all quite proper for you people who know you will be at MSU taking classes.

But my buddies and I will, for the most part, be far and graduated and working and going to law school and all that. So I find it a bit strange that plans are already being made to return one Saturday afternoon or two or three to see Spartans.

Now, this never really was supposed to happen. Properly educated MSU graduates watch the Spartans on TV, they see the Spartans on radio — they may even go see one game or five years, or wait for a game to be played in the Silverdome.

Oh no, not us. We are going nuts already trying to figure out what the best way would be to get good seats. Should we sit in the bleachers or students, etc. . . .

One recalls seeing those funny looking youngish, but definitely older people invading MSU with all kinds of funny little things and white things dangling motley on football Saturdays. This was seen as an intellectual freshperson. This was regarded as absurd.

Today it is very important. I'm talking about Spartan football. Tigers, Lions, Red Wings, Pistons aside, I will have you doubt know the Rose Bowl is at stake after next season.

Then there's the trauma of selecting which bar we shall go to for the game at and which bar we shall go to after the game. We already been decided that we shall finish Saturday night ourselves off at the Silver Dollar Saloon — a very classy place.

So in these final weeks, it can be observed that certain people, despite not so great seasons and NCAA probation, became four or five year collegiate stints — Spartan football fans, Ralph Young Fund suckers, etc.

Then I could talk about the band. Some of us will travel to Lansing from lands afar, not so much for the game, but for the band.

GO GREEN! GO WHITE! (I can't believe I'm writing that. I am I, brainwashed or something . . .)

Tighe Keating in MSU Open play today in the Big Ten tennis championship at Purdue.

Badgers challenge U-M for net title

Wisconsin could give Michigan one of its toughest challenges in years for the Big Ten tennis title it has held the last eight years. The 1978 tournament version opens today at Purdue and lasts through Saturday.

Wisconsin, 23-4 overall and 9-0 in the Big Ten gave Michigan, 14-5 overall and 8-1 in the conference, its only loss of the year in Big Ten dual play.

MSU enters the tournament a decided underdog with a 5-8 overall record and 2-7 Big Ten mark. The league wins came against Purdue and Illinois.

It is the last meet for seniors Tighe Keating and Kevin McNulty, who have been the Spartans No. 1 and No. 2 players all year in singles and have played together at No. 1 doubles.

Money guarantee may cause problems

EVANSTON, ILL. (UPI) — Big Ten faculty representatives Tuesday approved a rule amendment that forces member schools to provide a $100,000 guarantee to visiting conference football teams, effective with the 1979 season.

The $100,000 minimum rule was voted in by athletic directors in March. But one school requested a review before faculty representatives, who have the power to overturn the decision.

The amended rule states: "After payment of local and state taxes, the gross gate receipts of football games between conference universities should be settled at a minimum of $100,000 or shared equally 50-50 percent, whichever is greater."

Prior to amendment, the rule said the receipts would be split 50-50 among the schools. The amended rule assures the visiting team of at least $100,000.

The amended rule could squeeze the thin pocket books of Northwestern University and several other conference schools. If Northwestern continues to draw crowds of 16,000 to 17,000 to Big Ten games as it did last season, the rule could force the Wildcats to play on the road or squeeze them out of the conference.

Northwestern Athletic Director John Pont said the new rule does not panic him.

"After adding and subtracting, it probably would have cost us about $80,000 for last season," Pont said. "When you start talking dollars and cents, we could be hurting, but not as much as a lot of people think."

Indiana and Minnesota would be affected, too, by the 100,000 rule and Purdue would be affected for at least two of their games."

Also at the Big Ten meeting Tuesday, the size of basketball traveling squads was increased from 13 to 15 players, and Big Ten basketball players cannot participate in summer basketball camps unless the camps are NCAA approved and they have the permission of their athletic director.

SHORTENS TWINBILL

Spartans down Oakland

MSU baseball team defeated Oakland, a rain-shortened game at Kobs Field.

In five innings in the first game of a twinbill, the rain started coming in and it was probably a good thing for the Spartans.

MSU gave another win and the Spartans' record to 32-18, about all that was given Danny Litwhiler a real first inning, Kirk Gibson scored from on a sacrifice fly, but the Spartan came up limping.

Gibson out of the game and had a play. Fortunately for MSU, the injury was nothing more than a bruise on the shin.

Third baseman Tony Spada led MSU's hitting attack with three hits, including a double. Rodger Bastien and Joe Lopez were the only other Spartans with two hits, as Litwhiler cleared his bench.

Eric Rosekrans overcame a touch of wildness to pick up the win. The East Lansing junior gave up only a two run roundtripper to Oakland's Jim Dieters.

The Spartans were scheduled to play a twinbill with Central Michigan today, but the game has been canceled. It's the third time the CMU doubleheader has been called off.

The stage is now set for the showdown with intra-state rival Michigan this weekend. The Wolverines hold a two-game lead over MSU with two games remaining. Saturday's game will be at 1 p.m. at Kobs Field while Sunday's contest will be at Ann Arbor.

MSU gymnasts honored; Rudolph named MVP

Jeff Rudolph was named the MSU men's gymnastics team's outstanding gymnast at the team's annual banquet, held recently at the University Club.

Rudolph was also given recognition for his fifth place all around finish at the Big Ten meet. Doug Campbell's second place finish in the horizontal bar competition at the Big Ten meet was also acknowledged.

Charlie Fanta was named the captain for next year's team.

E. L. transportation study rejected

earmarked for traffic enforcement during football games. The amendment was made at the request of Jack Broglin, MSU executive vice president. The council also passed a resolution requesting citizens to boycott products manufactured by the J.P. Stevens textile company.

Owen introduced the measure and outlined a list of grievances against the company, which he said is the second largest textile company in the United States.

Owen said the company has been found guilty of violating the National Labor Relations Act 110 times since 1963.

The council also passed a temporary ordinance that restricts new construction in areas that are prone to flooding.

Bradford Pryce, East Lansing group manager for planning, housing and community development, said that before new construction can take place in these areas, the approval of the city engineer is necessary.

Greek Week activities

Chi third. "I had to bite the rope to hang in there," one contestant gasped after his victory. "All the strength in my arms and legs was gone."

Today from 3 to 6 p.m., Sigma Kappa will sponsor Greek Games at the auditorium field. Activities will include canoe races, zip and strip, hoala hoop contest, wrist wrestling, tri-cycle races, musical tubs, and pyramid building.

Student denied degree

(continued from page 3) Lewis characterized Ustay's record in a letter as "very poor." The re-admission application was denied due to "a careful review of his entire record here," and not personal discrimination, he added.

While Lewis said he is unable to discuss personal records with anyone but the student involved, he also said the ruling on the case could form a precedent for use in similar situations.

(continued from page 3) shops and monthly luncheons featuring lectures by various women active in the business world, the club often takes "mini-trips" to various theaters in the Lansing and Detroit areas, club member Patricia Eisele said.

The Business Women's Club is also celebrating its 50th anniversary this year. It was organized by a few MSU secretaries in 1928 as a social club for the women to meet and play cards. "There were about 35 members then and the annual dues were 25 cents," Eisele added.

Today, about 400 MSU women in clerical, technical and professional fields make up the membership of the club, paying $4 per year in dues. Women interested in joining the club can contact chairperson Virginia Ross.

U. S. citizens evaluated from Zaire

(continued from page 1) However, Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, for whom the amendment is named, said it applies only to Angola. "I find it difficult to believe they want to go back into Angola," he said.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., said earlier that Congress will reassess restraints on the president's power to send U.S. military aid abroad.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said there is growing concern about the constraints on the White House and "that concern may manifest itself in some kind of action."

When Carter met with congressional leaders on Tuesday, he complained about restrictions on his ability to take decisive action to combat Cuban-Soviet involvement in Africa. The only specific constraint mentioned at the White House meeting was the Clark Amendment.

The Americans evacuated from the Kolwezi area were taken to Munsioni, about 60 miles north of Kolwezi in the copper-rich Shaba province. Plans called for the evacuees to be flown to Kananga later Wednesday, the State Department spokesperson said.

The 11 missing Americans included two missing Morrison-Knudson employees and one of their dependents, six missionaries, a tourist, and an employee of Geac Mines copper company in Kolwezi, he said. He added that there were no reports indicating they had been hurt or captured.

Tax rollback reversed

Although the increases have not yet gone into effect, many members of Congress began feeling pressure from voters, who were surprised by a smaller increase, enacted in 1972, that went into effect this year.

Ways and Means rejected a number of proposals for reducing Social Security taxes before settling last week on the two-year plan. The idea of the proposal was to reduce the tax burden temporarily to give Congress time to come up with a long term solution.

One factor in the committee's about-face Wednesday was that Congress traditionally has considered Social Security as an insurance program, under which each worker's future benefits have some relation to how much that worker paid in Social Security taxes.

Use income taxes to pay for a part of Social Security, the argument goes, and the huge system will be turned into another welfare program, in which benefits are based not on taxes paid but on need.
