FRENCH PRESIDENT SPEAKS AT U.N.

Giscard calls for disarmament

UNITED NATIONS (AP) -

Calling the world disarmed in the "afterglow" of the hostage crisis, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing proposed in the United Nations General Assembly meeting on Tuesday that the world "anticipate and plan" for the day when the last weapon would be removed from the earth.

He accused those nations who denied the arms assist "moral responsibility" by blocking or preventing world disarmament efforts. He told the body that the "time is ripe" for the world to abandon arms assistance and consider a "global consilium" to limit war to "exclusive warfare.

FRENCH PREMIER SPEAKS AT U.N.

De Gaulle calls for disarmament

PARIS (AP) -

In what is the first visit by any French leader to the United Nations in New York, French President Charles de Gaulle will address the world's leaders to call for world disarmament on Tuesday.

The premier is expected to press the need for world disarmament and the need to cooperate in the future in the United Nations.

HIGH COURT REFUSES TO DELAY EXECUTION

ALABAMA (AP) -

The Alabama Supreme Court refused to order a stay of EXECUTION Thursday in the case of a man convicted of murdering a woman in 1977. The court's action followed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by the man's attorneys.

The petition sought a stay of execution to allow the man to pursue additional legal remedies. The court's denial of the petition means that the execution is scheduled to proceed as planned.

Zaire in flux

Zaire. To many of the millions who live in that resource blessed land, the very name evokes images of Mobutu Sese Seko. To him is his name. When they hear the name "Seco" spoken in reference to that country, they remind of just how deep their hatred for the man goes.

To the inhabitants of Zaire, the only thing worse than the white atrocities they suffer from in their land in a war of uranium is that "the people" gives these wrongheads a few bare hands in negotiation to give us a war of Seco.

Under the rug...

"MSU continues to sweep its dirt under the rug..."

With the promotion last week of Brian Burr and Ken Krieger to the position of radio station managers, Michele Whalen, a University student once again has aired issues of stewardship and ethics at WKAR, the radio station currently undergoing needed reorganization.

We do not doubt the qualifications of either of these two people to take over Richard Estell's position July 1. What is disturbing is the method chosen to find Estell's replacement.

With recent revelations of alleged overcharging on expense accounts, nepotism and personal opinions of Wolke, editor in chief, it is clear that WKAR is in need of a reorganization.

But this reorganization must not stop with the opening manager's position. There must be steps taken in house individual who happens to be the President of Zaire to effectively prevent the production of a new Seco-statist is now suffering. It seems that University officials are reluctant to overlook Munene because good knowledge just as they fear opening the present position of the Cult. Perhaps this behavior is just as informed and well informed. It is difficult to understand why such a situation has come about in a university that prides itself on traditional standards. No, an anti-oppression statement made at one time or another, in whole or in part, to the flawed, cracked writing that I contributed at one time or another, in whole or in part, the State News, written more than 20 years ago, is not always the same.) Grasping At The Horns by the horns

The Michigan law is a modified form of the tuition tax credit and loan and grant expansion programs that have been bandied about at the federal level. There is some skepticism about the potential impact of this legislation. The measure to give parents a tax credit, most of which the family will save, will not be taken until 1977, and may not fully alleviate the burden. However, some of the potential for the Michigan system may be seen in a Michigan State University program that provides full-tuition grants of $500 for money spent on rising college costs. The program was explained by Kenney as the desire to make tuition more accessible to low-income students.

Kenney, associate director of Student Financial Aid at Michigan State University, said that the program, which is part of the state's tax credit and loan and grant expansion, will be used to provide full-tuition grants to students who demonstrate financial need. The grants will be available to low-income students who would otherwise be unable to afford the full cost of tuition. Kenney said that the program will be administered through the university's financial aid office and that students will be notified of their eligibility for the grants.

Kenney said that the program is designed to help low-income students by providing them with financial assistance to cover the full cost of tuition. He said that the program will help to ensure that low-income students have the opportunity to continue their education and that the university is committed to making higher education accessible to all students. Kenney said that the program will be available to all low-income students who meet the requirements for eligibility. He said that the program is expected to be implemented in the fall of 1977.

In conclusion, the Michigan law is a modified form of the tuition tax credit and loan and grant expansion programs that have been bandied about at the federal level. The measure to give parents a tax credit will not be taken until 1977, and may not fully alleviate the burden. However, some of the potential for the Michigan system may be seen in a program that provides full-tuition grants for rising college costs.

Almost enough... Grant, Scholarship $8 don't reach everybody

It is important to note that the programs are not designed to benefit all low-income students. The programs are intended to help low-income students who demonstrate financial need. The programs are not designed to benefit students who do not demonstrate financial need.

Kenney said that the programs are designed to be as effective as possible. He said that the programs are intended to provide financial assistance to low-income students who are in need of it. Kenney said that the programs are designed to be as effective as possible and that they will be administered in a way that is fair and equitable.

In conclusion, the programs are designed to help low-income students by providing them with financial assistance to cover the full cost of tuition. The programs are intended to be as effective as possible and to be administered in a way that is fair and equitable.

Tuition can be lowered but answers are not easy

It has been estimated that enrollment in colleges and universities is projected to increase by 25 percent over the next several decades. There are many reasons for this increase, but the most important is the need for more college graduates. The costs of going to college are higher than they have ever been before, and there is a great demand for college graduates.

Financial aid is a major factor in the decision to attend college. Many students need financial aid in order to continue their education. Financial aid is provided in the form of grants, scholarships, and loans.

Grants and scholarships are provided to students on the basis of need. These programs are intended to help low-income students who demonstrate financial need. The programs are not designed to benefit students who do not demonstrate financial need.

Loans are provided to students who demonstrate financial need. These programs are intended to help low-income students who demonstrate financial need. The programs are not designed to benefit students who do not demonstrate financial need.

Carter. Hope trade quips at White House reception

WASHINGTON - Bob Hope had some questions for President Carter at a White House dinner last night. Hope asked Mr. Carter if he had any plans for tonight, what is his favorite flavor ice cream, and would he like to ski at the Olympics?

Mr. Carter replied that he planned to attend a party at the State Department. He said he liked chocolate ice cream and that he had never been to the Olympics.

Hope then asked Mr. Carter if he had any plans for tomorrow night. Mr. Carter said he had a meeting with his staff in the morning and a speech at the University of Michigan in the afternoon.

Hope then asked Mr. Carter if he had any plans for the weekend. Mr. Carter said he planned to visit his family in Georgia.
New volunteer system planned

CHICAGO — Universities are looking for ways to combine volunteer work with other activities on campus to keep students interested and involved in the volunteer process.

"We are trying to do it in a way that is realistic and in a way that meets the needs of the students," said John Jackson, assistant director of volunteer programs at Northwestern University.

Jackson said that by combining volunteer work with other activities, students can gain a sense of fulfillment and satisfaction.

"We want to provide opportunities for students to engage in meaningful activities that make a difference," Jackson said.

Jackson also noted that combining volunteer work with other activities can help to encourage students to continue their involvement in the volunteer process.

"We believe that by providing opportunities for students to engage in meaningful activities, we can encourage them to continue their involvement in the volunteer process," Jackson said.

Fountain born of sweat

The gray cement slides into the form, already set nice and round in the hole of the old fountain. Worn gloves don the slab. Work straight through the morning. Students, passing by between class, stop to wonder, gawk. Wonder what you're doing.

Prive the mixer right up the walk, hook the hose up to it. Empty it in the troughs and slog it in. Smooth it cementing your hair to your scalp, wiping it down nice with a trowel on the sides and off involuntarily with your arm — you learn big scraper in the middle.

The sun hot. Hottest day here since last year. But you don't care. You get used to it after a little while. Pon't even notice the sweat rolling down your brow, soaking into your under cement on you.

Lunchtime. Grab some drinks and head under the trees. Something cool from a Thermos or a can to put back some of the moisture you've been robbed of today. Too soon it's over, and back under the sun...smoothing down the concrete. More students stop. You grab water, feel it slide down your throat — wet. Lucky this stuff will dry before someone Else steps on it.

And it's supposed to be hot this August!

MSU begins tournament

In MSU's second year in Big Ten play, the Spartans will face the tough challenge of Michigan and Ohio State, who are both solidly in the top echelon of the conference. This tournament, which is being held at the East Lansing campus, will test the mettle of MSU's young team as they strive to improve on last year's disappointing finish.

The tournament will feature three games, with the Spartans hoping to advance to the championship round. Michigan and Ohio State will meet in the first round, with the winner advancing to the semifinals against the third-place finisher from the Big Ten regular season standings.

MSU isaturing a young and promising team, led by sophomore Brian Wolcott, who has been named the top pitcher with a 9-2 record. Another key player is Duane Evans, who batted .318 with 53 runs batted in during the regular season.

The Spartans have high hopes for the tournament, and coach Lloyd Ventle said, "I've been very proud of the team. We've faced many challenges this season and I think we've come out stronger as a result."

Milliken says state must
and handicapper blocks

Gov. William G. Milliken, told reporters at a meeting with representatives of handicappers.

"We must do everything we can to assure that state services and facilities are accessible to handicappers," Milliken said. "The changes recommended today will help us do that. We have made significant progress in recent years toward a barrier-free environment."

The report recommended:

• Making the state fairs accessible.
• Creation of a statewide central clearing office for handicapper concerns.
• Putting handicappers on all state decision-making bodies.
• Devising techniques to make historic buildings accessible without damaging their architectural integrity.
• Compiling historical records of the state's handicapper movement and its leaders.

"When I look at you and I wonder how it all began, without any plan, without any plan, I remember your love."

City catches up, OKs cohabitation

Detroit Free Press

The city council today unanimously approved a change in the city's cohabitation ordinance with a 5-0 vote, which will take effect on the next Monday.

The council voted unanimously in a special session at City Hall to approve the change, which had been introduced by Mayor E. D. Conley.

The change permits cohabitation
among persons related by marriage, blood, guardianship or adoption.

The new ordinance allows for cohabitation in unrelated single family residential districts.

The council also approved a change in the city's tax code, which will increase the city's tax rates.

The changes were described by Councillor James W. Johnson as an attempt to modernize the city's cohabitation and tax laws.

The ordinance will affect all single family residential districts in the city.

The new tax code will increase the tax rates in the city by 20 percent.

The ordinance and tax code will become effective on the first day of the new fiscal year on July 1.

The changes were described by Councillor James W. Johnson as an attempt to modernize the city's
cohabitation and tax laws.
If you've always thought of Jim's Tiffany Place as a restaurant that was too expensive, or too formal, think again! Yes, even a student budget can afford the good food served at Jim's Tiffany Place. Located one block east of the Capitol on Michigan Avenue, Jim's Tiffany Place has been famous since 1946 for their good food, reasonable prices, and excellent service.

Sure, you could spend twenty dollars on a dinner - a dinner for two that is - a special offered every evening. The "Dinner for Two" special allows you to choose anything from the "Athenian Feast" or the "Beefeaters' Feast" to satisfy a taste for Greek or American food. These dinners include a glass of wine, Saganaki appetizer, salad, choice of beverage and homemade dessert.

Jim's Tiffany Place offers a "Roast Prime Rib" special on Monday and Tuesday and their "Greek Feast" on Wednesday and Thursday. So, almost every day brings something different in dining to meet even the most extravagant appetites.

Next time, think of Jim's Tiffany Place. There's plenty of free parking every evening after five. They're open 11 a.m. - 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday, 11 a.m. - 9 p.m. Sunday. Call 372-4300. Treat yourself to good American and Greek food at a reasonable price!

don't think loving my country means to aggress or even to picket. I don't think it means to interfere with others' lives and beliefs. I think it means to be a friend to all people, to help them wherever they are. If there's a war, I don't think it means to join in it. If there's a peace movement, I don't think it means to support it. I think it means to be neutral, to look at the facts, to listen to all sides, to think before you act. And I hope we can all try to learn from this experience and grow stronger together.

But in the end, I believe in the power of love and compassion to change the world. I believe in the power of justice and truth to prevail. And I believe in the power of the people to make a difference. So let's work together to create a better world, a world where everyone is respected and valued, where everyone has a voice, and where everyone is free to live as they choose. Let's create a world where love wins.
