Byrd: one more slip and Young must go

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Saturday that U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young, who has been widely believed to be the candidate for the post, said he would not run if he "embarrassed the Senate." Young, who was a Democrat, said he would not run if he "makes a mistake one, I think he should go."—Robert Byrd

"He (Young) has made several irresponsible statements. His behavior is not consistent with the Senate's great tradition in the history of the Senate." Young said that he had run for the presidency of the Senate, and he was not up for re-election. Young, the senior senator from Georgia, says the Senate has been too lenient in dealing with the issue of the ambassador's resignation.

Young's comments were made in response to a statement by Robert Byrd, the Senate minority leader, who said he would not run if he "embarrassed the Senate." Young, who is a Democrat, said he would not run if he "made a mistake one, I think he should go."—Robert Byrd

"He (Young) has made several irresponsible statements. His behavior is not consistent with the Senate's great tradition in the history of the Senate." Young said that he had run for the presidency of the Senate, and he was not up for re-election. Young, the senior senator from Georgia, says the Senate has been too lenient in dealing with the issue of the ambassador's resignation.

Yrigoyen into position at the starting line during Sunday's Bayview-Mackinac boat race. The first-place finisher was arriving in Mackinac Island yesterday.

OFFICIALS REFUSE TO REVEAL DETAILS

Sadat offers new ideas

By LARRY THOMSON

Sadat offers new ideas for the Middle East peace process. He said that the only way to achieve peace is through direct talks between the two sides. Sadat also said that the United States should play a more active role in the peace process.

Sadat's new ideas are a departure from his previous stance in the peace process. He has been a vocal opponent of direct talks with Israel, and has called for indirect negotiations. However, Sadat's new ideas are seen as a sign of compromise, and could pave the way for direct talks between the two sides.

Sadat's new ideas are also likely to be welcomed by the United States. The U.S. has been a key player in the Middle East peace process, and has supported indirect negotiations. Sadat's new ideas could help to move the peace process forward, and could lead to a breakthrough in the negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are seen as a sign of compromise, and could pave the way for direct talks between the two sides. However, they are likely to be met with some resistance from the Israeli side. The Israelis have been reluctant to engage in direct talks, and have called for indirect negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are also likely to be welcomed by the United States. The U.S. has been a key player in the Middle East peace process, and has supported indirect negotiations. Sadat's new ideas could help to move the peace process forward, and could lead to a breakthrough in the negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are seen as a sign of compromise, and could pave the way for direct talks between the two sides. However, they are likely to be met with some resistance from the Israeli side. The Israelis have been reluctant to engage in direct talks, and have called for indirect negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are also likely to be welcomed by the United States. The U.S. has been a key player in the Middle East peace process, and has supported indirect negotiations. Sadat's new ideas could help to move the peace process forward, and could lead to a breakthrough in the negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are seen as a sign of compromise, and could pave the way for direct talks between the two sides. However, they are likely to be met with some resistance from the Israeli side. The Israelis have been reluctant to engage in direct talks, and have called for indirect negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are also likely to be welcomed by the United States. The U.S. has been a key player in the Middle East peace process, and has supported indirect negotiations. Sadat's new ideas could help to move the peace process forward, and could lead to a breakthrough in the negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are seen as a sign of compromise, and could pave the way for direct talks between the two sides. However, they are likely to be met with some resistance from the Israeli side. The Israelis have been reluctant to engage in direct talks, and have called for indirect negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are also likely to be welcomed by the United States. The U.S. has been a key player in the Middle East peace process, and has supported indirect negotiations. Sadat's new ideas could help to move the peace process forward, and could lead to a breakthrough in the negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are seen as a sign of compromise, and could pave the way for direct talks between the two sides. However, they are likely to be met with some resistance from the Israeli side. The Israelis have been reluctant to engage in direct talks, and have called for indirect negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are also likely to be welcomed by the United States. The U.S. has been a key player in the Middle East peace process, and has supported indirect negotiations. Sadat's new ideas could help to move the peace process forward, and could lead to a breakthrough in the negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are seen as a sign of compromise, and could pave the way for direct talks between the two sides. However, they are likely to be met with some resistance from the Israeli side. The Israelis have been reluctant to engage in direct talks, and have called for indirect negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are also likely to be welcomed by the United States. The U.S. has been a key player in the Middle East peace process, and has supported indirect negotiations. Sadat's new ideas could help to move the peace process forward, and could lead to a breakthrough in the negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are seen as a sign of compromise, and could pave the way for direct talks between the two sides. However, they are likely to be met with some resistance from the Israeli side. The Israelis have been reluctant to engage in direct talks, and have called for indirect negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are also likely to be welcomed by the United States. The U.S. has been a key player in the Middle East peace process, and has supported indirect negotiations. Sadat's new ideas could help to move the peace process forward, and could lead to a breakthrough in the negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are seen as a sign of compromise, and could pave the way for direct talks between the two sides. However, they are likely to be met with some resistance from the Israeli side. The Israelis have been reluctant to engage in direct talks, and have called for indirect negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are also likely to be welcomed by the United States. The U.S. has been a key player in the Middle East peace process, and has supported indirect negotiations. Sadat's new ideas could help to move the peace process forward, and could lead to a breakthrough in the negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are seen as a sign of compromise, and could pave the way for direct talks between the two sides. However, they are likely to be met with some resistance from the Israeli side. The Israelis have been reluctant to engage in direct talks, and have called for indirect negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are also likely to be welcomed by the United States. The U.S. has been a key player in the Middle East peace process, and has supported indirect negotiations. Sadat's new ideas could help to move the peace process forward, and could lead to a breakthrough in the negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are seen as a sign of compromise, and could pave the way for direct talks between the two sides. However, they are likely to be met with some resistance from the Israeli side. The Israelis have been reluctant to engage in direct talks, and have called for indirect negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are also likely to be welcomed by the United States. The U.S. has been a key player in the Middle East peace process, and has supported indirect negotiations. Sadat's new ideas could help to move the peace process forward, and could lead to a breakthrough in the negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are seen as a sign of compromise, and could pave the way for direct talks between the two sides. However, they are likely to be met with some resistance from the Israeli side. The Israelis have been reluctant to engage in direct talks, and have called for indirect negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are also likely to be welcomed by the United States. The U.S. has been a key player in the Middle East peace process, and has supported indirect negotiations. Sadat's new ideas could help to move the peace process forward, and could lead to a breakthrough in the negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are seen as a sign of compromise, and could pave the way for direct talks between the two sides. However, they are likely to be met with some resistance from the Israeli side. The Israelis have been reluctant to engage in direct talks, and have called for indirect negotiations.

Sadat's new ideas are also likely to be welcomed by the United States. The U.S. has been a key player in the Middle East peace process, and has supported indirect negotiations. Sadat's new ideas could help to move the peace process forward, and could lead to a breakthrough in the negotiations.
Peace talks move from London

LONDON—British and Egyptian officials said Monday that the so-called London talks have reached an "equilibrium" stage and that they will work "towards greater talks on a London level to a monitored truce in the Egyptian-Israeli area." The talks were attended by representatives of Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Syria, and Palestine, and were called to discuss the situation in the Middle East. The only access to the talks was a "reporter." Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Foreign Minister Mohamed Badr of Egypt, whose countries are divided by the Suez Canal, both said after the talks that an "essential" step was taken to end the "violent" situation in the Middle East.

Backers foresee ERA extension

WASHINGTON—Backers of a constitutional amendment to the Equal Rights Amendment are preparing to mount a "final" push to have it ratified by the states, and they say they are taking advantage of a "window of opportunity" to have the amendment passed by Congress in the next few weeks. The amendment was introduced in Congress last week by Rep. Mildred B. Kramer, D-N.C., and is expected to be debated and voted on by the Senate this week.

Backers of the ERA say they hope to have it ratified by the states before the end of the year, and they have been working to secure the necessary two-thirds majority in both houses of Congress. They say they are confident they can achieve this goal, given the current political climate.

The ERA was introduced in Congress in January 1972 and was subsequently ratified by 35 states, which is the number needed to ratify it. However, it has not yet been ratified by the required three-fourths majority of the states, which is 38. The ERA is currently under review by the U.S. Supreme Court, which is expected to rule on it in the near future.

CIA involvement in Angolan War questioned

WASHINGTON—The Senate Intelligence Committee has been asked to investigate whether the CIA was involved in the Angolan War, which has been raging in that country for several years. The committee will look into allegations that the CIA was supplying weapons and training to both sides in the conflict, including the Soviet-backed MPLA and the U.S.-backed FNLA.

CIA officials have denied any involvement in the war, but the committee is expected to hold hearings to investigate the allegations. The committee is headed by Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., and includes members from both parties.

The Angolan War has been fought between the MPLA and the FNLA, with the support of various international actors. The war has caused significant human suffering and has been a source of tension in the region.

New weapons being used in terrorist war

STAMBOUL, Turkey—Turkish and Jordanian soldiers have been spotted using new weapons, including American-made M16s, in the conflict in the region. The weapons are reportedly being used by the Muslim Brotherhood, which has been fighting against the government in Turkey for several years.

The weapons are said to be more effective than the previous models, which were of Soviet made. The Muslim Brotherhood has been using these weapons to launch attacks against the government, including bombings and assassinations.
Tax proposals necessitate voter knowledge

Michigan property taxpayers have some serious studying to do between now and Nov. 8. Just how much they can expect to pay in local millages in the future will determine how much they vote on Proposition 13

The tax proposals, the second Tisch amendment and Headlee amendment, were designed to stop the property millage spending sprees that are taking place around the state. The Tisch amendment was passed by a Democrat-sponsored state legislature and was signed by Gov. Jerry Hurley. The Headlee amendment was proposed by Republican state legislators and was signed into law by Gov. Milliken.

The Tisch amendment, which was a direct response to the soaring millage spending that has increased over the past 10 years, is designed to limit future millage spending to a maximum of 100 mills. Although the amendment restricts millage spending, it does not reduce existing millage spending.

The Headlee amendment is designed to limit millage spending to a maximum of 1.1 mills per $1,000 of assessed valuation. This means that if a property taxpayer has a $100,000 assessed valuation, the property taxpayer can expect to pay no more than $110 in millages. The maximum millage spending is designed to equal the state's share of property millage spending.

Remember that the tax proposals are not the final word on property millage spending. They are only a starting point for the state legislature to consider future property millage spending.

Michigan property taxpayers should study the tax proposals and make an informed decision on how much they are willing to pay in local millages in the future.
Young’s blunt honesty: ill-timed and refreshing

Andrew Young just does not seem to be the kind of politician who can handle criticism. He just seems to be the kind of politician who will take it in stride. The thing is, Young is not really a politician. You can see that in the way he talks about his work. And you can see it in the way he talks about his family. And you can see it in the way he talks about the country. And you can see it in the way he talks about himself. And you can see it in the way he talks about the world.

But there are many among us who are not so fortunate. They have not been able to see the same way of thinking, or the same way of seeing, or the same way of feeling. They have not been able to see the same way of understanding, or the same way of knowing. They have not been able to see the same way of responding, or the same way of saying it.

Shcheiinsky a martyr for freedom of dissent

The Soviets have sentenced prominent dissident Alexander Shcheiinsky to 13 years in prison and labor camps on charges of "counter-revolution, conspiracy, and anti-Soviet agitation," and what are we to do about it? Talk about a feeling of failure! The U.S. government is looking to get those released from the U.S.S.R., or else get its stance restored. But the real likelihood of this move appearing gets very dim indeed.

Now that the charges which the Soviets have levied against Shcheiinsky, the real reason he seems to have been hanged in the public interest in the eyes of the Soviet people in order to get to the core of the suppression, demands, for the sake of the preferences of his demands, or for the creation of an SALT-type organization. What we are faced with generally the effect that Shcheiinsky is imprisoned, for any purpose, and that the Soviet charges against him are false — suggest that is again that Carter is unwilling to modify his human rights stance for the sake of international political relations ever could.

In a good way, I'd like to thank our viewers for your consistent support. As we enter the summer season, we seek your continued support in the form of donations. Your generosity helps fuel our ongoing efforts to share important information with the world. Thank you for your continued support.

Schnheit's Let it be Longenbrau

Kim Shannaham's Let it be Longenbrau is a popular U.S. brand of beer that has been around for over 150 years. It is known for its smooth and slightly hoppy flavor. The brewery, which is located in Longenbrau, Wisconsin, prides itself on using the finest ingredients and maintaining traditional brewing methods. Let it be Longenbrau is available in a variety of styles, including amber ale, lager, and porter. It is a beloved beverage among beer enthusiasts and is commonly enjoyed at family gatherings and social events. Give it a try and let the flavor of Wisconsin shine through.

VIEWPOINT: Taxation

Taxes to the point where the last straw is the point

By JAMES WAGNER

Who wouldn’t like to know that the corporate tax rates for my own firm are going to be slashed? I don’t know about you, but to me, that would be a real plus! I mean, I can’t think of any situation where having tax rates shaved back wouldn’t be a good thing. It’s a little like getting a raise. It’s nice to have more money, and it’s nice to have more money. It’s nice to have more money.

Migdaliki hit the nail on the head!

The term "Migdaliki" refers to the Soviet government’s practice of occupying or annexing other countries’ territories, often through military force or economic pressure. This practice has been criticized by many as a violation of international law and has been a source of tension in international relations. In 1978, Migdaliki hit the nail on the head when it referred to the Soviet Union’s occupation of Afghanistan as an example of this practice.

I'd really love to see the day when we could phase out taxes. I mean, really, why should we have to pay for government services? Why not just let the taxpayers do all the work? It’s not fair to have to pay for services that are supposed to benefit everyone.

Let’s work together to phase out taxes and make government services more efficient and fair for everyone.

But the point is, we have some huge problems to deal with. The idea of trying to phase out taxes is not realistic. We need to find a way to fund government services and keep them running smoothly.

So let’s work together to find solutions and make the tax system work for all of us.
'Indexation' proposed to fight inflation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Second-hand store operators in St. Paul want legislative measures to raise the cost of their goods, just as stores do, but to do it so that the inflation rate is not "translated" directly into higher prices. The operators hope to substitute a system of "indexation," which would mean a legal agreement that when prices rise, the cost of goods should rise in proportion to the rise in prices.

"If the government could guarantee a certain percentage of income for goods, then we would be able to have a certain percentage of income for the cost of living," said Bruce A. Johnson, owner of the Midway Drug Co. in St. Paul.

The idea is to "index" the cost of goods, which means to guarantee a certain percentage of income for the cost of living. This would allow the government to control the inflation rate, rather than having it translated directly into higher prices.

It is hoped that this system will be implemented on a nationwide basis, rather than just in St. Paul. However, the proposal has not yet been accepted by the government.
New recruits give early show

By JERRY BRADSHAW

The Detroit Pistons apparently intend to recruit the same nucleus as a part of the basketball team for next fall. Head Coach Bob Business, who recently announced that he was leaving the Pistons to take over the coaching reins at Davidson College, said that he would like to bring in some of the younger players from the MSU team. He said that he had talked with several of the players who had been with him at MSU, and that he believed they would be good additions to the team.

Mrs. Davidson, who recently hired Bob Business, agreed with him. She said that she had already talked with several of the players who had been with him at MSU, and that she believed they would be good additions to the team. She said that she was looking forward to working with the young, talented players who had been with him at MSU.

The Pistons have been very active in recruiting this summer, and have signed several top prospects. They are hoping to build a strong team for next fall.

---

Michigan State News, East Lansing, Michigan

State News Network 208-0023

STARLINE

Trickling' into "Highball"... the word is there -- and the way they do it. It's available.

Bourbon, Scotch, Rye, Whiskey, Gin.

"Brother Brother" is the word.

---

RAINBOW RANCH

1/2 PRICE Special on EVERYTHING!

All night long! With a love 50cover. So whether you're looking for a cold refreshing drink or a mixed drink RAINBOW RANCH is the place to be. OPEN ALL NIGHT!

3874 E. Grand Blvd. East Lansing

Live at

DOOLEY'S

RAMONES APPEARING WITH DESTROY ALL MONSTERS

Monday, July 17 - 9:00

Tickets $10 in advance

Or at the door on the day of the show

Tickets available at Dooley's and at both

M crawled and MERIDIAN MALLS

---

TRANSMISSION MAINTENANCE SPECIAL

$895 plus fluid

6026 S. Cedar 393-7540

(Cat Miller)

Summer Students - Study This!

50% Off Any Purchase of $2.00 or More.

Get the summer term blues? Chop up and take a summer study break, and you'll get a break at Olga's Kitchen. Present this coupon to the cashier, and you'll get 50% off any purchase of $2.00 or more. Try any of our delicious Oleas or our tasty sandwiches, a group of fresh fruit drinks or any of our delicious things to eat at Olga's.

Limited one coupon per customer

Other good thru 7/27/79

The most exciting idea in eating since the sandwich!

---

The most exciting idea in eating since the sandwich!
Monday, July 17, 1978
The stage will be 'heating' men... be aware of the tall blonde woman!

HAGAR the Horrible
by Dick Browne

FIRST--WE GOT TO GET ORGANIZED...

PEANUTS
by Schulz

I HEARD A CRICKET SING AT THE END OF THE DAY...THEY SAID..."HE'S GOING TO COUNT..."..."

FRANK & ERNEST
by Bob Thaves

A WORD OF ADVICE ABOUT THIS PLACE...DON'T EAT ANYTHING YOU CAN'T COUP...Sunday's Special

THE DROPOUTS
by Feist

I'VE CONNECTED TO THE BROAD MAJORITY--HOW DO YOU LIKE THIS?THE CRUSH BUM IS GOING TO BE LIGHT HEAT...THROUGH IT?

B.C.
by Johnny Hart

YOU DON'T WANT TO BE MADE TO LOOK LIKE A FEW TROGS...YOU DON'T WANT TO BE MADE TO LOOK LIKE A FEW TROGS...

SAM and SILO
by Jerry Silo

YOU SAY YOU DON'T WANT ANY RECONSTRUCTION AND WHEN I GIVE YOU SOMETHING GOOD...YOU SAY YOU DON'T WANT ANY RECONSTRUCTION AND WHEN I GIVE YOU SOMETHING GOOD...

BEETLE BAILEY
by Mort Walker

You say you don’t want any reconstruction and when I give you something good...you say you don’t want any reconstruction and when I give you something good...
DETROIT FREE PRESS ALLEGES INFLUENCE

FBI accused of manipulating activists

FBI accused of manipulating activists

Economic summit conference opens

continued from page 1

Egypt offers new ideas

continued from page 1

Records and Prerecorded Tapes

40% off on

All items in the Potting Shed

Discontinued Paperback Books

.35¢ ea or 4 for a dollar

Limited quantities available

Monday, July 17, 1978