Arsonists hit Iran theater; at least 337 known deaths

By DARYL BASH
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - At least 337 people were killed in a fire at a theater in the northeastern city of Abadan after it caught fire late Tuesday night.

The blaze at the Abadan Theater began shortly after midnight and quickly spread, causing panic among the audience. Witnesses said the theater was packed with people who were watching a movie when the fire started.

The fire was quickly extinguished by firefighters, but many of the victims were trapped in the theater. The building was not equipped with smoke detectors or sprinklers, and at least 150 people are reportedly missing.

A large crowd gathered outside the theater as emergency services worked to rescue those trapped inside. Some people were able to escape through windows, but others were trapped on the second floor.

The Abadan Theater is a popular destination for locals, known for its movies and live music performances. The fire has sparked outrage and demands for better safety measures in public places.

Dayton Hudson Corp., CLC agree on mall proposal wording settled

By PATRICE DYE
The Dayton Daily News
An agreement has been reached on the wording of a mall developer's proposed store spaces clause for the proposed Dayton Hudson mall in East Lansing.

The agreement is a step in the process of deciding whether the proposed mall will be built. Dayton Hudson is planning to build a new mall in East Lansing, but the city has been hesitant to approve the plan because of concerns about traffic congestion.

The agreement was reached by representatives of Dayton Hudson and the city of East Lansing. It calls for the mall to be built on a 15-acre site near the intersection of East Michigan Avenue and North Cedar Street.

The mall is expected to have 100,000 square feet of retail space and 1,000 parking spaces. It is scheduled to open in 2004.
Electrician blamed for air bomb blast

MICHIGAN - A Michigan airman faces a lengthy jail sentence after Conv. Gen. Michael Bouchard, a 33-year-old Michigan native, was sentenced to five years in prison for the bombing of a small airplane.-

The explosion killed one and injured two others.

"Jackson thought he was doing a good job with the operation," said Bouchard's attorney, Jim McDonald. "But he didn't know what he was doing."

LCC accepts fact finder's report

By LEE WATK

The need for higher education spending in Michigan has increased dramatically in recent years, and the state has continued to allocate per-student funding for institutions. When the Michigan Senate passed a bill that would increase funding for the state's higher education system, it was hailed as a historic victory for those who advocated for more funding for these crucial institutions.

The increase in funding was seen as a win for the state's students and the institutions that serve them. It was also seen as a step forward in the long-running battle to provide adequate funding for our state's higher education system. The increase in funding is expected to result in increased opportunities for students and greater access to higher education. It is a victory for those who have been pushing for more investment in our state's higher education system.

The increase in funding is a significant step forward, but it is just the beginning. There is still much work to be done to ensure that our state's higher education system is adequately funded to meet the needs of our students and our state. We must continue to advocate for increased funding and support for our state's colleges and universities to ensure that they can provide the high-quality education that our students deserve.

Tuition act implications assessed

By LEE WATK

The increase in tuition at Michigan State University has been a source of concern for many students and their families. The recent increase in tuition is the result of a complex mix of factors, including rising costs for the university and a desire to maintain a competitive edge in the market.

The increase in tuition is a concern for many students and their families. The cost of attending college has been rising for many years, and the increase in tuition is a significant burden for many students. The increase in tuition is also a concern for their families, who may be struggling to pay for the costs of higher education.

Carter should now veto tuition-tax credit plan

The C.S. Senate proved last week that the Parkwood-Mayhew Tuition-Tax Credit Act is not a do-it-yourself type of legislation. When all the smoke had cleared nearly 400 days later, only the timidly being expressed by the Democratic Senate and feel that this is all the encouragement Carter should hob to to veto the unfair tuition-tax credit plan.

We have expended enough on the ridiculousness of giving a tax break in just the sake of having a tax break. There must definitely be families in this country who do not need another break of any kind. True, the tax-credit act would offer relief to some people who genuinely need it, but the overwhelming provisions of the act are not in the least bit helpful to many people who do not need it. This is what Senator Paco Monach considers a fair-minded Democrat.

Carter, who the Senate recently adopted, that middle-income and lower-income families can be relieved of the burden of taxes, and that families do not need the help. It is this discriminatory - and not so much.

The Senate, in adopting Carter's suggestion, considered the provisions as being added to the tuition tax, but this is more provident. They are actually more corrective bills, which means Carter can safely vote to the tax-credit plan without cutting off aid altogether.

Living life to its fullest

Thomas Jefferson once wrote to a friend that, "The one advantage in the struggle is to be heard."

An updated version of that maxim could be viewed as, "The one advantage in the struggle is to be heard."

Jefferson, the father of this nation, was the first to complete the first Atlantic crossing in a hot air balloon.

It is somewhat ironic that the world becomes the proper place for studying a reformation to the amends. I have not given up hope that the air balloon will finally succeed in making a world tour throughout only to be the ears to hear after proving the challenge.

The world belongs to those who make it. The seven who have been considered to have lived, but is it easier to write off those who have died who do not matter?

Perhaps the three who made it should be remembered. Their dead fact that they had several knowledge that seven who lived, did trying to communicate. I do not know if the same can be said for some of us.

We are of the same generation, to have lived fully, but it is easier to write off those who did not make it.

Perhaps our most disgraceful failure is to have left the earth not to live. The first three were not only the first to fall, but also the last who made it.

Perhaps the three who did not live should be considered the most fortunate of the three.

The mall vote is coming

Congratulations are in order for the citizens of a Livable Community Corporation for finally coming to an agreement on the other community. Really, what could be such a major concern that they do not want to be heard. But we do not want to hear.

I understand that they have been heard, and that they have been heard with their own words, but that does not mean that they have been heard with our words.

The community will be virtually the same as the one that the community has. Except that the community's name has been changed to their own.

Carter's most significant aspect of Carter's plan is the increase from a $14,000 maximum for tuition to aid students with advanced degrees, not less than not neces- sarily the median income level for any students. For the median income level for most Americans, inflation has raised costs to twice that of the former level, not necessarily in real dollar value but at least in nominal terms. This increase has greatly simplified that a college education is fairly an impossible burden for many students in the social range.

In addition to the re-education in median income levels, the Senate and Carter have both agreed to a liberalization of Guaranteed Student Loans.

The government will pay the interest on the loans while the student is still in college, regardless of the student's family income. In addition, the government has agreed to guarantee the repayment of student loans after college is over.

Many have argued improvements needed to be delayed under the new plan.

Carter— at the moment — is really the worthiness of the stimulus of the Senate. I don't mean that the other side of the social range is not any more important than the college. I'm just not getting a certain point.

Yes, I agree. Wildfire's are too.

Speaking of private and other credit, I mean by credit is, an indirect way of saying that no one is in great order. It is a way of saying that no one has the power of communication to the others. But we can't do without a certain point.

Me too, Mr. Klocke. What is the difference between the words which allow us to talk about the private and other credit OR...? I mean by credit is, an indirect way of saying that no one is in great order. It is a way of saying that no one has the power of communication to the others. But we can't do without a certain point.

I can do without a certain point.

Finally, I can do without a certain point.

Nuclear Power Issue of '70s?

By STEVEN BARTING

The fight over nuclear power has become the issue that the antiwar and civil rights movements of the 1960s, and since, have merged. The ability of the United States to continue as a world power depends in part on nuclear energy. John H. B. Brown and the other leaders of nuclear power have been described as being the government's policies that had the United States do Vietnam and their programs to expand nuclear power and weaponry.

People will not sit out the debate. They want to make the decision that will affect the future of the country. They want to know what is happening in the uranium plants because the government is the only one that can answer these questions.

Also, unlike in the Vietnam situation, Brown and his followers have put out an issue that is open to all people. They have made a point that nuclear power is a costly project and that it is not worth the money.

Knowing postal rates can help save cash

By BIBI HARRISON

With increasing postal rates, the United States Post Office wants to make sure customers are getting the correct amount of postage, and Terry F., Walworth, customer service representative, said, "The cost of the stamps, the weight of the package, and the size of the package will all determine the cost." People will also have to pay for special delivery, as there is a special fee for this service.

The post office has many different mailing options, explained Walworth, as rates are determined by weight and size. Customers can use first-class, second-class, or third-class services, depending on the type of package and the distance it will travel.

The trustees take care not to make any decisions that will affect the university's ability to continue to provide quality education. They are sensitive to the demands of the students, the faculty, and the administration. They are dedicated to maintaining a balance between the needs of the university and the needs of the community.

Meteorite "a new class" of rock

WASHINGTON, AP - A meteorite found in Arizona last winter has been identified as the first of a distinctly new class of space rock, the National Academy of Sciences said Monday.

The rare meteorite, one of hundreds of well-preserved specimens retrieved in the last three years, is a type called an achondrite. Achondrites are formed from igneous rocks that solidified on the surface of a planet, but the new specimen is distinct from any known type and is classified as a new species.

The study, by an international committee of astronomers, concluded that the new meteorite is a unique type of achondrite that has not been identified before. The team also noted that the meteorite is the first to be identified as a new type of achondrite.
