

S. Africa's Vorster resigns; cites health

By SERGE SCHEMANN
Associated Press Writer

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Prime Minister John Vorster announced Wednesday he was resigning for health reasons after 12 years as South Africa's unchallenged political leader. His departure was likely to trigger a power struggle over who will direct this racially-divided nation.

Vorster also announced that South Africa will go ahead with elections this year leading to independence for the disputed territory of South-West Africa, also known as Namibia.

The 63-year-old leader said at a news conference that he could no longer fulfill the "strenuous duties" of office, but he said he would be available for the largely ceremonial job of president.

A caucus of Vorster's National Party, dominated by conservative Afrikaners, is to meet Sept. 28 in Cape Town to pick a new president and prime minister.

The new prime minister probably will face a flurry of international censure for the "go it alone" decision on Namibia.

Among top contenders to replace Vorster are the hard-line defense minister, Pieter W. Botha; the staunchly-conservative minister of plural relations, or racial affairs, Connie Mulder; Labor Minister Fanie Botha and Foreign Minister Roelof F. Botha.

The Bothas are not related. The name is common here among Afrikaners, descendants of the original European settlers.

The potential fight for the top job has led to warnings in the Afrikaans press to keep party unity at a crucial time in South Africa's history.

Reading from a prepared statement, Vorster said "the South African government does not wish to close doors" to further negotiations on the Namibia question with the United Nations or the Western powers.

But he said his government found the United Nation's proposal for a peace-keeping force of 7,500 "totally unacceptable" and was not prepared to accept a year-long transition period.

The government "cannot allow this impasse to continue indefinitely," he declared, and so will proceed with constituent elections in the disputed territory.

Namibia, a one-time German colony, has been administered by South Africa since 1920 under a mandate by the old League of Nations, since revoked by the United Nations.

In Windhoek, the capital of Namibia, the administrator-general of the territory, Justice Marthinus Steyn, said elections for a 50-member constitutional assembly would be held Nov. 20-24.

The resulting assembly, Vorster said, will decide the territory's future — including the option of accepting the U.N. plan.

Only one major Namibian political party, the pro-South African Democratic Turnhalle Alliance, has insisted on elections by year's end.

City council approves changes in traffic code

By JANET HALFMANN
State News Staff Writer

Police may now make arrests at the scene of an accident in East Lansing if the officer has reasonable cause to believe a driver was under the influence of alcohol.

The amendment to the city's traffic code, approved by the City Council Tuesday, will allow the breath analyzer test to be given to the arrested drivers. City officials hope the procedure will result in better evidence being obtained, city attorney Dennis E. McGinty said.

The council also extended the moratorium on paving of side and rear yards in one- and two-family residential districts. The emergency ordinance which was first approved in January, 1978, was made effective to Feb. 1, 1979.

In other action, the council set the bicycle registration fee at $2 for a three-year license. The fee had been 50 cents per year. The MSU bicycle fee remains at 50 cents annually. A license from either source will permit an owner to operate a bicycle both on campus and in the city, an MSU Department of Public Safety spokesperson said.

The council also submitted its recommendations on the "Long Range Public Transportation Plan" asked for by the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission.

An alternative chosen by the council would maintain the current focus on the East Lansing and Lansing central business districts but also provide rapid service corridors between the two malls and between the two central business districts. Sunday service would also be included in the tri-county plan.

Any actual changes in the regional public transportation system will depend heavily on finances, especially at the federal level, said Robert A. Owen, Jr., East Lansing planning administrator.

"All the money we have now is being spent," he said.

The regional study does, however, show a favorable relationship between increased costs and increased ridership, he said. Much of the current overlapping of routes would be eliminated under the proposed system, he said.

East Lansing routes are in good shape, Owen said. In fact, the city is operating at most people's goals, he said. An improved regional system would, however, speed up service for East Lansing residents going in or out of the city, he said.

Affirmative action may move to provost office

By JOY L. HAENLEIN

President Edgar L. Harden will suggest that the responsibility of affirmative action policies be moved from the Office of Human Relations into the lap of the administration at Friday's MSU Board of Trustees meeting.

Harden's advice comes after several MSU faculty and administrative members met with the president this summer and expressed the need to re-route authority

Registration, again!

Yaaaaaawwwwwnnnnnnnn. Sigh. I gotta get outta here before I pass out. This fall's annual trip through the pits was the pits to be sure. Temperatures in the 90s, humidity and feeble fans made fall term registration more of an ordeal than a three-time yearly chore. These two MSU students were among the thousands of students passing through the Men's Intramural Building like cattle in a Chicago stockyard on a hot day. ## REQUIREMENT CAUSES DILEMMA

Is dorm tripling legal?

By KIM CRAWFORD
State News Staff Writer

An opinion issued by Attorney General Frank J. Kelley in July that dormitories fall under the jurisdiction of the State Housing Code led many students to believe it was the beginning of the end for tripling.

Tripling is the assignment of three students to dormitory rooms designed for two occupants.

But residence halls officials say most of the rooms which currently hold triples would meet the space requirements of the housing code.

The officials also said the University could, if required, house all over-assigned students in rooms that would meet those space requirements.

Robert Minetti, residence halls programs coordinator, said if the University were ordered to comply with the code, it could accommodate the same number of students by tripling the rooms meeting space requirements.

"We could, for example, make the Brody Complex a tripled area," Minetti said. "But you must remember you would also put a strain on dining, bathroom and lounge facilities."

Triples are distributed around to prevent overcrowding certain facilities, he said. Minetti said most of the approximately 1,200 over-assigned rooms would meet the State Housing Code's space requirements.

Attention was drawn to the size of MSU's dormitory rooms when Kelley issued the opinion stating that residence halls fall under the jurisdiction of the State Housing Code.

The opinion did not specifically address the question of the amount of space per occupant a room must have, but said residence halls come within the code definition of "Class B" multiple dwellings.

The code states that "no bedroom in any Class B dwelling shall be occupied as to provide less than 500 feet cubic air space per person occupant, exclusive of bathrooms, toilet rooms and closets."

Administrators reacted defensively to the opinion. President Edgar L. Harden said University adherence to the code's "archaic" provisions would have "severe results." Byron Higgins, assistant vice president for legal affairs, said the attorney general's inclusion of residence halls with "Class B" dwellings could be questioned because the code did not expressly address residence

'U' keggers bite dust in policy switch

By MICHAEL MEGERIAN
State News Staff Writer

Residence hall keggers are a thing of the past at MSU.

Controversy surrounding a proposal to ban kegs in residence halls came to a head in June when the Residence Halls Association alcohol policy review committee decided to prohibit the sponsors of a party from providing alcohol at on-campus parties.

However, students living in residence halls will be allowed to consume alcohol in their rooms if they have reached the legal drinking age. The new policy will also allow "bring your own" parties, but students may bring alcohol only for their own consumption.

SOUTH AFRICA FUNDING TO BE DISCUSSED

MSU's budget awaits approval

The MSU Board of Trustees is expected to approve the University's proposed $173.6 million 1978-79 budget during the board's first meeting of the term today and Friday.

The board will also be asked to approve increases in faculty and administrative salaries.

The two-day trustee meeting begins at 2:30 p.m. today in the Board Room on the fourth floor of the Administration Building.

The Health Programs and Investment committees are scheduled to meet this afternoon following a short business session.

Reaction to the approved $18 Olin Health fee, another tuition hike and continued tripling is expected at the public comment session in the Kellogg Center Lincoln Room at 7:30 p.m.

Representatives from the Southern African Liberation Committee will attend the board meetings and the public comments session to speak on the divestiture of U.S. funds in South Africa.

The Land and Physical Facilities Committee meets with the Board at 8 a.m. Friday, followed by the action session at 10 a.m. The board is scheduled to consider approval for the WKAR radio satellite terminal and proposed parking improvements.

Rhodesian forces hit guerrilla bases

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe (AP) — Rhodesian security forces have struck at black guerrilla bases in Mozambique in a new major cross-border raid, Rhodesia's defense command announced Wednesday night.

The announcement said the targets were forward bases manned by guerrillas from the communist-backed Zimbabwe African National Union of Robert Mugabe, one of two insurgent groups battling the government of Ian Smith.

The brief communique gave no details, stating simply: "Rhodesian security forces are presently engaged in self-defense operations against ZANLA terrorist bases in Mozambique. These operations are not aimed at Mozambique troops or civilians."

ZANLA — the Zimbabwe National Liberation Army — is the military wing of the Mugabe organization.

The raid, Rhodesia's sixth acknowledged major action against guerrilla bases in neighboring black-ruled countries, was widely expected following the Sept. 3 shooting down by guerrillas of a Rhodesian civilian airliner.

Patriotism motivated Park's favors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park testified Wednesday he linked favors he did for legislators with how they voted on military aid and other legislation affecting South Korea.

But Park, as he has previously, denied that he was acting as an agent of the Seoul government and said he was motivated only by his patriotism and by his business interests.

Park told the Senate Ethics Committee how he gave former House Democratic Whip John J. McFall, D-Calif., $4,000 in cash and how he picked up the tab for a party — and for a $500 tea set gift — in honor of McFall.

McFall, who as whip held the No. 3 leadership position among House Democrats, is accused by the committee of failing to report a $3,000 campaign contribution from Park and of diverting the $3,000 to his own use. He also is accused of acting in a manner unacceptable to Congress by accepting the $3,000 plus another $1,000 in cash from Park and by accepting the silver tea set.

Committee defeats tax-cut plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican plan requiring automatic yearly tax cuts to help offset inflation was defeated by Democrats in a cliff-hanging vote by the Senate Finance Committee on Wednesday.

The fate of the proposal was in doubt for more than three hours as other committee members, deadlocked 8-8, awaited the votes of Sens. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., and Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y.

The "tax-indexing" plan proposed by Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., eventually was defeated, 9-8, when Haskell telephoned his vote to the committee. Moynihan thus could not change the result no matter how he voted, since a 9-9 tie also would have killed the plan.

The committee, working on its version of the $16.3 billion tax cut bill passed by the House, rejected on a 9-9 tie a heavy tax cut for corporations. And in a surprise, the panel accepted one of President Carter's proposals to cut back on the "expense-account living" of entrepreneurs.

Officials suspect cholera cases

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The second and third suspected cases of epidemic cholera were reported Wednesday in south-central Louisiana. State officials said they were "very concerned" but did not believe there would be a widespread outbreak of the sometimes-fatal disease.

"We're not looking for an epidemic or a major outbreak" of the gastro-intestinal disease, said Dr. William Cherry, head of the Louisiana health department.

Cholera bacteria was found in the raw sewage of Abbeville recently after officials confirmed that a 44-year-old resident of that community had epidemic cholera. He has recovered.

The latest suspected cases are a 52-year-old Abbeville woman and an adult male in Kaplan. The woman was reported in serious condition Monday, but both are now recovering. The bacteria also was found in raw sewage in Kaplan on Tuesday.

Carter promises tough inflation fight

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — President Carter told a steelworkers convention Wednesday that he'll soon announce stronger anti-inflation measures that will require sacrifices, but will be tough and fair.

Carter gave no details of the new measures, which would be added to the voluntary efforts he asked of the public last April, and which his advisers now concede have been inadequate.

"In the near future, I will announce a strengthening of our limited arsenal of weapons against inflation," Carter said.

"I can tell you today that what we do will be fair. It will not penalize labor or any other group in our society," he said. "At the same time, it will be tough. I will ask for restraint and some sacrifice from all."

Carter, addressing the convention of the AFL-CIO United Steelworkers of America, received restrained applause for his remarks on inflation. But he got a whistling, cheering, standing ovation when he pledged to make labor law revision his top legislative priority next year.

Attorney believes Rowe indicted

HAYNEVILLE — Ala. (AP) — A grand jury looking into the 1965 slaying of a civil rights worker made its report Wednesday, and a defense attorney said he felt certain former FBI informer Gary Thomas Rowe Jr. was indicted on a murder charge.

The jury of 17 blacks and one white, which also investigated other unrelated cases, returned some indictments. But by law they are kept secret until the defendants have been taken into custody. However, Rowe's attorney, J. Paul Lowery of Montgomery, said an assistant prosecutor, John Taber, had indicated the one-time Ku Klux Klan member would be indicted for the killing of civil rights volunteer Viola Liuzzo of Detroit.

After the report was turned over to Circuit Judge Arthur E. Gamble, Lowery said, "I wouldn't be here if I didn't feel in my heart that (he) Rowe had been indicted."

Vance presses pact acceptance

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance met with King Hussein on Wednesday, opening a diplomatic drive aimed at making the Camp David accords more palatable to wary Jordan and Saudi Arabia and keeping hard-line Syria from derailing the agreement.

Vance met with Hussein shortly after arriving here and was understood to have applied strong pressure, telling him that opposition to the plan could damage U.S.-Jordanian relations.

Vance also reportedly told the Jordanian ruler that it was in his best interest to participate in the negotiations called for in the accords, since Jordan will be neighbor to whatever Palestinian entity emerges from the talks on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

The secretary is also scheduled to meet with three other Arab leaders — King Khaled of Saudi Arabia in Riyadh on Thursday and Friday, and President Hafez Assad of Syria in Damascus on Saturday.

Vance said earlier that his mission was to explain to the "key Arab governments not represented at Camp David... the contents, purpose and philosophy of the understandings reached... so they can make their own decisions on how to respond to the invitations to them contained in the basic documents."

The framework for peace in the Middle East was drawn up by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin under the sponsorship of President Carter during a two-week conference at Camp David.

The accord calls for, among other things, a five-year transition period in the West Bank and Sinai, leading to full autonomy for the people there who are predominantly Palestinian Arabs. Israel has agreed not to establish new settlements during the negotiations and inhabitants are to elect representatives to participate in the peace process.

Left unsettled are the ultimate boundaries of Israel, the nature of the autonomous Palestinian entity, the future of Jerusalem and the security arrangements for Israel.

In the U.S. view, Jordan could have a strong influence on the makeup of the Palestinian presence on the West Bank if it accepts the invitation to join the peace talks. If Hussein boycotts, he runs the risk of seeing an independent Palestinian entity emerge, which could be antagonistic to the Jordanian monarchy.

Jordan has said it would not be bound by the agreements and Saudi Arabia has said the terms "could not be considered as an acceptable final formula for peace."

Prior to the announcement that government forces had turned back a rebel uprising in Nicaragua, reports of atrocities in the nation's capital were received earlier, on Wednesday.

Ex-official: FBI efficient

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former FBI official insisted Wednesday that the agency did its utmost to learn whether a conspiracy was behind President John F. Kennedy's assassination because that notion "was on everybody's mind."

James R. Malley told the House Assassinations Committee that it was only after a thorough investigation that the FBI joined the Warren Commission in concluding that Kennedy's slaying was the work of a lone assassin — Lee Harvey Oswald.

Malley, who was second-ranking official in the FBI's general investigative division at the time of Kennedy's death, testified as the panel continued scrutinizing the performance of federal agencies in the weeks and months after the assassination in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

In the nearly 15 years since Kennedy's death, numerous conspiracy theories — but no proof — have been advanced to suggest that Oswald acted in concert with others.

"I do know it was on everybody's mind — was somebody else involved?" Malley said of the conspiracy theories.

REBELS VOW TO FIGHT AGAIN

Nicaraguan uprising ends

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The government said Wednesday it has smashed a rebel uprising that threatened the 41-year authoritarian rule of the Somoza family, but opposition sources outside the country said the rebels would fight again.

Carlos Tunnerman, a Nicaraguan lawyer in exile in Costa Rica and mentioned as a possible coalition president if President Anastasio Somoza leaves office, predicted Somoza would fall before the month ends.

The government said it had cleaned the remaining rebels from Esteli, the last town of any size to remain in rebel hands.

"It's all over up there," Maximiliano Kelly, Somoza's personal secretary, said of the 11-day uprising, during which rebels controlled most of northwestern Nicaragua.

Esteli, a city of about 30,000 on the Pan American highway north of Managua, was retaken by national guard forces Tuesday.

"We've got it all cleaned up in Esteli," he said. There were no reliable casualty reports from the national guard, which is Nicaragua's army, or from the rebels, who are led by the Sandinista National Liberation Front.

Nicaraguan Red Cross officials said the toll, especially among civilians, was high. In Washington the United States expressed concern over reports of atrocities against civilians by national guard troops, and urged Somoza, who controls the national guard, to conduct an investigation.

The Rev. Ernesto Cardenal, an elderly Roman Catholic priest who claims Sandinista membership, said in San Jose, Costa Rica, that the guerrillas were not defeated.

"The Sandinista front has not lost. It has had a great victory. The fact that it could not hold the cities for a long time and had to withdraw does not signify a defeat," he said.

N-power in Lansing area questionable, board finds

By PAUL COX
State News Staff Writer

If nuclear energy is to be used to fill the Lansing area's future power needs, many questions have to be answered.

That was the consensus of a working meeting of the Lansing Board of Water and Light and a consultant for R.W. Beck and Associates engineering consultants of Columbus, Neb., Tuesday night.

A report by the firm has recommended buying 7 percent of the Consumers Power Midland nuclear generation plant, because in the long run, nuclear power will cost less based on current cost estimates. Along with the recommendation the study advises a more in-depth look into nuclear energy costs and problems.

The board is looking to fill future energy needs, board chairperson Roland F. Rhead, said. The board will make a decision by the end of the year to meet added expected power needs in the early 1980s, he said.

The Lansing City Council unanimously passed a resolution Monday urging the board to hold a public hearing prior to buying into the Midland plant. The Ingham County Board of Commissioners passed a similar resolution Tuesday.

Rhead said he hasn't seen the resolution but called it "premature" since the Board hasn't made a commitment to any energy source. He said before a decision is made, a public hearing will probably be held.

"We are part of the city government," Rhead said. "We have to answer to the public."

The Beck recommendation suggests the board be willing to assume "business risks normally associated with nuclear energy." The report findings are also based on cost figures concerning the Midland plant supplied by Consumers Power.

William R. Mayben, a partner in the Beck firm, said there is a 28 percent long-run cost advantage to the nuclear option over expansion of current coal generation facilities.

He said this advantage might be drastically altered if cost figures from Consumers Power were outdated or inaccurate.

"We don't know the nuts and bolts of the Midland plant," Mayben said.

Rhead said if the board begins leaning toward the nuclear option, the numerous questions will have to be answered. The Beck report recommends a qualified architect-engineering firm evaluate the costs and feasibility of the Midland plant.

Mayben said nuclear energy is a greater business risk than expanding the board's current Erickson coal plant in Delta township or adding an oil-fired turbine at the same site. There are also unknown costs associated with nuclear energy such as radioactive waste disposal, plant mid-life cleaning and plant disposal.

Nuclear fuel costs are also questionable since there is worldwide uranium price fixing, said Marty Bakken, chairperson of the consumers' group Ratepayers United. Mayben said the price fixing wouldn't have an "unreasonable" effect on uranium prices.

Mayben also cited problems with power control and future costs by getting power from an outside source. Future costs, both with the Midland plant and with transmission of the power to Lansing would be controlled by Consumers Power, not the board.

An advantage of the Midland plant, Mayben said, is that Consumers Power would buy back excess power. There is no market for excess power generated locally, Mayben said.

FORCES SERVICES CUTBACK

Board tightens budget

By SHEILA BEACHUM
State News Staff Writer

Cutbacks of some Ingham County service programs will result from a tight-fisted 1979 $19.8 million budget approved by the board of commissioners Tuesday.

While a 4.3 percent increase in total revenues will generate an additional $600,000, rising costs of county government will "chew up" any additional monies, commissioners said.

The rapid growth of Ingham County expenses in the last few years can be attributed to cost-of-living increases granted to county government employees, two new circuit courts and the recent expiration of several federal grant programs, they said.

"This was the year the money ran out," Commissioner Mark Grebner, D-East Lansing, said.

As a result, community service programs will be forced to operate on continuously-dwindling pocketbooks.

Such programs as the Rape Counsel Center, Drug Education Center, Volunteer Action Center and the Listening Ear are almost to the point where they will "just barely be keeping their doors open," Grebner said.

Grebner predicted "at least one crisis center will close its doors completely in the next 12 months, others will resort to laying employees off and provide substantially lower services."

In addition to the cutbacks, the board is eliminating all monetary awards to the Capitol Area Transportation Authority and signs point to the closing of the Mason Library, Grebner said. Commissioners followed the popular trend of stamping down on tax hikes by rejecting a proposed amendment to the tax levy resolution which would have hiked the rate from 6.65 to 6.68.

Commissioners also:

- approved a resolution authorizing new Comprehensive Employment and Training Act work projects. The projects will be funded by the federal government for a three-month period; from Oct. 1 to Dec. 31, 1978;
- approved preliminary plans for the Ingham County Jail renovation project. The construction of a new intake and diagnostic center and corrections facility and day parole units are included in the project;

- opposed the proposed involvement of the Lansing Board of Water and Light in the Consumers Power Nuclear Generating Station in Midland. Commissioners said they anticipated too many problems in the venture, such as possible risks to the environment and the public, questionable methods for safely disposing of nuclear wastes and potentially high costs for the project; and
- approved a resolution aimed at limiting appointments to various boards, agencies and commissions to six consecutive years or two consecutive terms, whichever is greater. The County Affairs and Policy Committee proposed the resolution, saying limited terms would provide incentive for a greater number of citizens to participate in local government.

Mystery still surrounds disappearance of three E. Lansing-area women

Area law enforcement agencies remain puzzled by the disappearance of three local women last seen in East Lansing this summer.

There have been no sound leads in either case of two women who have vanished with barely a trace of evidence, officials said.

One other missing woman's body was later discovered by a farmer in a field in Holt.

Kristine Rose Stuart, 30, has been missing since Aug. 14. East Lansing police department detectives found a pair of wide-rimmed prescription sunglasses several hundred feet east of Coolidge Road along Fair Oaks Court, and they remain the single clue to her disappearance.

Apparently, the last person to see her was a construction worker, Harold Duncan, who spoke with her near the vicinity where the glasses were discovered by detectives.

Duncan has submitted to hypnosis by East Lansing hypnotist, Damon Reinbold, in order to remember details.

Another woman, Wendy Bush, was reported missing the same day police found the body of a Grand Ledge woman.

There have been various tips, but so far there is no evidence to suspect foul play or assume that she will not show up, DPS Director Richard Bernitt said.

Marita Choquette, a 27-year-old WKAR employee, disappeared June 14 and her badly-decomposed body was discovered June 27 near Holt.

The Ingham County Sheriff Department has no suspects at this time.

Tax limitation proposals contested

By ANNE MARIE BIONDO
State News Staff Writer

Efforts to get the so-called Tisch and Headlee tax limitation amendments off the Nov. 7 ballot are still cropping up despite a state Supreme Court rejection of a complaint against the tax amendments last week.

Zolton Ferency, MSU professor of criminal justice, and others have taken a complaint declaring the two proposals unconstitutional to the Wayne County Circuit Court, the state Court of Appeals and the Federal District Court in Grand Rapids. The suits are still pending, Ferency said.

Initially, Ferency filed a complaint against the tax proposals with the Michigan Supreme Court. The complaint was denied by a unanimous decision on Sept. 11.

Following the State Supreme Court's rejection, Ferency was joined by the Michigan Education Association and the city of Detroit in his efforts to remove the proposals from the ballot.

If approved in November, the Tisch amendment would slash property taxes in half, much like California's controversial Proposition 13. The Headlee amendment would limit state spending and taxation to the current rate of inflation unless increases are approved by voters.

"We started these lawsuits because we are convinced that the people of Michigan do not know the implication of these proposals," Ferency said. "The Tisch and Headlee proposals (will) radically change the state constitution and the way we conduct business in this state."

Ferency has called the Headlee amendment deceitful because he says it will not reduce the tax burden on low- and middle-income families. The limit is set at such a high level that only the very wealthy will benefit, he said.

The Tisch amendment is faulty because vital state social services and projects will be cut off, causing the poor to suffer if property taxes are cut in half, Ferency has said.

He has also criticized the Headlee amendment because it limits state and local spending and taxation unless increased levels are directly approved by voters.

"In that fashion, the tax limitation proposal denies to state and local legislative bodies the power to legislate tax laws and appropriations," he said.

In order for the Headlee amendment to legally limit state taxation and spending, the "total impact" of the limits must be spelled out in the amendment itself, Ferency said.

"The Headlee proposal fails to advise the voters of the implications of (it) and is, therefore, defective," he said.

Immediately after Ferency filed his first complaint with the state Supreme Court, Richard Headlee, author of the amendment, hired a Lansing lawyer and filed a petition with the court to intervene in the suit.

Corbin Davis, deputy clerk of the court, said Headlee moved to interact in the case before the court denied Ferency's complaint.

The Supreme Court granted Headlee's request to intervene and then denied Ferency's complaint against the tax proposals.

After being rejected by the state Supreme Court, Ferency, the MEA and the city of Detroit filed a suit in Federal District Court.

"We are arguing to the federal court that we've been denied due process of law by the Michigan judiciary because they refused to listen to our suit," Ferency said.

He added that the suit was filed with Judge Noel Fox in Grand Rapids on Sept. 14 but a hearing date has not been set.

President of ASMSU seeks student input

By R. W. ROBINSON
State News Staff Writer

After a summer of participating in a London study program, ASMSU Student Board President Dan Jones' main concern surrounds student reaction and input to MSU student government.

While Jones was in London Patricia Wilcox sat in as acting president. Because the student board did not have meetings during the summer, very little ASMSU business was conducted.

However, Wilcox did have to deal this summer with a group questioning campus residents on the effectiveness of ASMSU.

An on-campus student organization which is promising to reform student government gradually has been circulating questionnaires asking students to rate ASMSU's effectiveness and representation concerning student issues.

Jones had no comment to make about the group or the merit of the questionnaire. He did, however, point out that Henry Sosa, president of the organization, is planning to run for student board president this spring.

Jones also has a plan to measure the effectiveness of student government by continuing to rotate the location of the student board meetings each Tuesday.

The first two meetings of the year will be held in 4 Student Services Bldg. The other meetings will rotate between Hubbard, Case, and Brody halls.

"This way each complex will host some meetings," Jones said, "and all four locations are accessible to most students on campus."

Another topic discussed by Jones was the ASMSU constitution proposed by former student board president Mike Lenz, which would restructure the board. Lenz's constitution is ambiguous and leaves loopholes for bureaucratic games, Jones said.

"Take, for instance, the part of having six campus student representatives on the board. Lenz does not indicate where these six people should come from, so if the six people decided to run from Hubbard then that's the board," he explained.

Jones pointed out that there are other elements of the constitution with which he does not agree. For example, he said it does not clearly define the role of representatives leaving it up to them to establish.

Jones also discussed why he thinks students voted down the spring term referendum to pay the student board president and representatives and how the budget of ASMSU was affected by Kent Barry, former student board president.

"Barry has told us that he will reimburse us for any personal expenditures he made," Jones said.

The former student board president used ASMSU funds to buy a few meals at Kellogg Center and some other items not mentioned by Jones which Barry said he would pay for.

Students could have voted down the referendum because of the lack of positive publicity Barry received during the issue of the pay referendum, Jones added.

"They (students) were not educated on the proposal," Jones reasoned.

MSU is the only institution in the Big Ten that does not pay their student government representatives, Jones said. He also went on to say that he had to find an additional, paying job to meet his financial obligations.

Correction

In the Welcome Week edition of the State News, a DEC rape counselor was quoted as saying the Listening Ear crisis center does not fail any of its rape counseling trainees.

A spokesperson for the Listening Ear said the center does not accept any trainees who have not met proper requirements.

The business hours of the Listening Ear were incorrectly reported. The Ear, 547 E. Grand River Ave., is open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

There is no way to justify triples

Tripling students in a dormitory room is wrong. Even if a state court overturns Attorney General Frank Kelley's interpretation of a 1917 Michigan housing code — as the University expects will happen — it is still wrong. Even if the Michigan Legislature were to modernize the law to take into account improved ventilation systems and decide that people need only 200 feet of cubic air space — it is still wrong. Even if it makes sound economic sense to plan for tripling and even if tripling takes care of itself in a term or two anyway — it is still wrong.

We are wholeheartedly sympathetic to the University's contention that Kelly's opinion was poorly timed and thus places an unfair onus on MSU. But in no way does that justify the University's continued use of tripling in its budgetary plans. The University was correct in terming some provisions of the 1917 law "archaic" and it was also right in refusing to make any changes for the 1978-79 school year based on Attorney General Kelley's opinion of the law. But again, that does not justify tripling.

retirement homes, etc. Because universities are not enumerated in the 1917 law is beside the point, where, under that particular law, and "B" is the only logical category.

If the courts wouldn't satisfy the University, then their next move could be to exert a little influence on legislators in an attempt to modernize the housing code. Maybe improved ventilation should be taken into account. Maybe a law should address itself to the peculiarities of a university instead of ignoring them as the law presently does. Maybe humans don't need 500 cubic feet of air space (we did survive the tripling experience).

But all the maybes and might be totally beside the point. Tripling students in a dormitory is wrong. Should the University find itself in a court suit actually defending tripling, it will find that what little credibility administrators now enjoy would be reduced even further in the student mind. Do the economies of tripling really outweigh the potential alienation — especially to those 1,000 new freshmen who will be experiencing the surprise of three bunkbeds in a room designed for two?

Despite the tardiness and poor timing of Kelley's opinion — he was asked to make a decision almost two years ago — the ruling does bring to the surface a condition the University has never conceded as being a problem. Even if they do term it a problem in a semantic sense, their actions speak otherwise. The fact that administrators plan for tripling during the fall to ensure full dormitories in the spring tells students the University has sound economic principles, but it also re-affirms suspicions of the University being impersonal to student needs and desires.

What is frustrating is that the University seems to have made a conscious trade-off between economic realities and tripling complaints without really examining how they could be flexible and satisfy both concerns.

For instance, many students find out they don't really like the freedom of off-campus living and would rather move back into a dormitory. The extremely inflexible dormitory contract makes this next to impossible. Many people — students, professors, administrators — bemoan the decline of academic excellence, citing poor student/teacher ratios as one reason. It is only a start, but 1,000 students could be refused admission for the 1979-80 school year without a denial of our land-grant philosophy. And speaking of archaic, what kind of rule is it that mandates 18-year-olds will live in a dormitory during their freshman year? The point is: there are alternatives. But they can only be considered alternatives when the University finally concedes that, indeed tripling is wrong.

The above editorial was reprinted from the July 13th issue of the State News because of its current relevancy.

Mideast peace is closer, but not assured

Obviously, the only place to decide whose interpretation of the law is correct — Kelly's or MSU's — is in the Michigan courts. If it should ever make it that far we would guess that a court would decide the attorney general had read it correctly. There really is no other place to categorize a university except in a class "B" environment along with jails, hospitals,

The historical significance of the 13-day summit just ended at Camp David cannot be overemphasized. It is not a total peace agreement; many holes remain. But it is far more than just an agreement to agree later.

The framework assented to by and Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel are unprecedented in Mideast relations. For the first time a peace agreement exists between an Arab state and Israel. It is a giant step.

The leaders of both Mideast nations will continue to draw criticism from their neighbors and domestic political opponents. Sadat has been attacked for abandoning the unified war efforts of the Arab states — for recognizing the right of Israel to exist in the Mideast.

The conservative Begin has forfeited much more land than even he would have expected last year. Fellow conservatives oppose the forfeit of The East Bank and the Gaza Strip lands won in the 1967 war. And Jewish settlers in these territories believe ownership cannot be bargained for.

The agreements reached at Camp David set outlines for future action and define some relationships that will exist. Diplomatic relations will begin between the two nations. The security of each nation is also guaranteed.

The disputed lands will be returned to their pre-1967 owners under the agreement. Israeli troops will be withdrawn and the areas will be established under self-government.

The fate of Palestinians in these lands is indeed a "painful human question," as President Carter remarked. The framework allows Palestinian participation including the Palestine Liberation Organization, in the disposal of the lands and the relocation of settlers.

The PLO has denied the right of the state of Israel to exist. To them, there is no compromise. Reports even indicate that they talked of killing Sadat for the recognition given Israel. But the right of the Palestinians to exist is as strong as the right of the state of Israel.

Many Arab states are concerned that the Israeli-Egyptian agreement constitutes a peace separate from the affairs of other Mideast nations. As it stands, it probably is a "separate peace." The agreement is binding only for the two countries involved. But it can become more than a separate peace if other Arab nations can recognize their roles.

Carter has already solicited the support of the other nations. Jordan's King Hussein and Saudi Arabia's King Khalid have agreed to receive Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to hear the contents of the agreements. If they accept the agreement and cooperate, it will move away from a separate peace. But peace must exist, and a partial peace is better than a unified war effort.

The summit stands now as a political coup for Carter. As is usual in presidential popularity, a successful foreign relations feat will increase his numbers in the polls at a time when it is most needed. It reversed the downward momentum Carter had.

In the end, though, this summit alone cannot spell victory in 1980 for Carter. Like Nixon's China and Soviet Union breakthroughs, it will be remembered. But it will not save an administration with bad marks in other areas of foreign relations and domestic troubles like the fate of the economy and America's long-range energy plans.

The summit could also blow up in Carter's face. Prior to its ending, almost anything could have happened and the public would never have known the difference. But now that an announcement of impending peace and a formal treaty has been made, the entire world is praying for success.

The chances for failure are not slim. There are many negative variables, including Israel's parliament, the Knesset, which must vote on the future of settlements; the other Arab nations, who put pressure on Sadat and Egypt; and the citizens of countries and territories involved.

A giant first step has been taken, but every step of the journey will be more crucial than the one taken before. It won't come easy.

VIEWPOINT: IRAN

The Shah continues to forge his 'democracy' with blood

By The ORGANIZATION of IRANIAN MOSLEM STUDENTS

"Army gunfire sliced through a crowd of several thousand anti-government demonstrators here Friday, just hours after martial law was imposed to crush the growing civil revolt. . . . Tanks and armored cars rambled through the capital's streets. Troops fired tear gas and then guns into the crowds that gathered in squares and bazaars shouting, "Death to the Shah!" — AP & UPI

The fascist regime of the Shah declared martial law in Tehran and 11 other cities (Qom, Tabriz, Isfahan, Mashad, Shiraz, Ahvaz, Abadan, Kazeroun, Karaj, Ghazvin and Jahrom) on Friday, Sept. 8, for six months, following a series of huge anti-regime demonstrations by Moslems all over Iran on Thursday, Sept. 7.

Dusk-to-dawn curfews have also been imposed in all these 12 cities. In addition, all gatherings of more than two persons have been banned. Different reports from Tehran indicate that more than 2,000 people were killed at the Friday demonstrations.

These repressive measures come in the wake of huge anti-regime demonstrations across Iran; which indicate the obvious political desperation of the regime in facing the militant challenge of the revolutionary Islamic movement. Before martial law was declared, militant demonstration of 300,000 people in Mashad and 180,000 in Shiraz were reported to have taken place. In Tehran, according to Kayhan — a semi-official daily newspaper — 1,000,000 people marched through the streets shouting, "Down with the Shah," "Long live Khomeini."

These massive popular demonstrations are the continuation of the nationwide resistance sweeping across Iran since the Shah appointed a new premier on Aug. 27, 1978. The change of the cabinet, which was supposed to stem the ever-strengthening widespread wave of nationwide anti-regime protest marches and rallies by Moslems, backfired. These meaningless changes not only did not crush the movement; they served to aggravate the situation against the regime.

"Legalization" of the political parties, scrapping of the so-called monarchical calendar imposed by the Shah two years ago for the Islamic calendar (Solar Hijry), "relaxation" of the press censorship, "closing" of the gambling houses and casinos throughout Iran, and several other minuscule demagogic moves by the Shah's regime, came only eight days after the regime treacherously set a movie theater ablaze in Abadan and blamed it on "Moslem extremists". Eight days of continuous citywide anti-regime demonstrations by the Abadani people showed the people's deep awareness of the regime's barbarian and criminal act. To quell the people's uprisings in Abadan the Shah's troops moved into the city and imposed martial law.

Imposition of martial law and other related repressive measures clearly shows extreme political desperation of the Shah's U.S.-backed regime at the sake of the rising militant Islamic movement in Iran. Adoption of such measures at this moment when the regime has embarked on an extensive propaganda campaign about "political liberalization" and "democracy," and simultaneous intensification of the Islamic popular struggle, point to the shaky position of the Shah's hated regime.

In the midst of the continuous massacre of Iranian people by the fascist Shah's regime, and at the time that the regime is threatened by the Islamic movement, Carter telephoned the Shah from Camp David on Sunday, Sept. 10 in support of the Shah, and expressed "hope that the violence will soon end, and reaffirms the importance of Iran's continued alliance with the West."

Noting that the "importance" of Iran to the West is its vast natural resources, oil, and its strategic position, Carter "hoping" that the violence will soon end means nothing short of giving his full support to the Shah's continued massacre of Iranian people. The only way that the economic interests of the West can be protected is to suppress the popular Islamic movement and keep the Shah's puppet regime in power. This shows the real intention of such propaganda as "human rights" by the U.S. government. Carter's demagogical "human rights" campaign is nothing but a treacherous plot geared toward cloaking the U.S. imperialistic policies and cheating the people all over the world, American people included. The Iranian people are well aware of such an age-old deceitful plan and categorically condemn it.

Since the imposition of martial law, the heroic people of Iran have continued to demonstrate their steadfast opposition to the Shah's regime. In return, the fascist Shah has implemented Carter's concern for "human rights" by killing Iranian people. Each day more Iranian people are killed by the U.S.-equipped army of the Shah.

We ask all of the freedom-loving and democratic-minded people to join us on our Friday, Sept. 22, march from the International Center to the Capitol and raise their voices against the Shah's tyrannical regime and the U.S. support for it. We ask all the progressive elements and forces to oppose and condemn the brutal regime of the Shah and the U.S. deep involvement in Iran.

Jones establishes ASMSU priorities

Dan Jones

Welcome, or welcome back to MSU.

After reading the Welcome Week issue of the State News, you probably got the impression that I am gay, gay, gay! Period. Wrong! I am a person, and I head your student government. That is where I have my priorities. My office does not deal with gay rights; it deals with issues concerning students. What I did before being elected president should not cloud my presidency. Jimmy Carter has not forced a diet of peanuts on America, has he? I am working in the now, not the past.

Get involved with ASMSU. Contact us with your input. Call 355-8266, to see what student government is all about.

Dan Jones, President
ASMSU Student Board

What happens if we stay healthy?

As a commuter student, I strongly protest being obliged to pay an $18 fee for a service I will almost certainly never use, that being Olin Health Center. This term I'll be taking 10 credit hours of classes, which will have me on campus for between 6 and 10 percent of my time. I find it unlikely that I will become so seriously ill as to require medical care during this time (I never have before in the two years I've attended MSU). I'm far more likely to have some illness or other calamity befall me during the other 90 per cent of my time when I'll be off-campus, in which case I will go to my family doctor, who is an excellent physician, and who is furthermore completely familiar with my medical history, as no one at Olin can be.

I'm sure that many other commuters share my concern in this matter. Would it be possible, perhaps not this term, but at least for winter term, to make the $18 fee optional. Then if an emergency should arise, in which a person who has not paid the fee must receive care at Olin, this person could be charged for the individual service rendered.

I'm willing to take the chance that such services to myself would run far under the nearly $80 per year I'm now obliged to pay Olin (and which I can hardly afford), and I'm sure others are, too.

Students fight heat, crowds

Temperatures soared both inside and out of the intramural (IM) buildings this week as students battled long lines and congested hallways in desperate attempts to prepare their fall term schedules.

Perspiring faces told an unspoken story as their owners struggled with schedule booklets and class cards, enveloped by tremendous heat.

Lowell E. Levi, University controller, said "freshman have less of a problem" compared to most other students because of their summer orientation program, where concerted efforts are made to enroll them in classes of their choice.

For the rest of the students, registration proceeded as usual without any major breakthroughs which would shorten the process.

Approximately 44,000 students registered at MSU this year, explained Registrar Horace C. King.

He said he believes there is room for improvement within the registration process but said the emphasis this year was placed on making the present program run smoothly.

King stressed the importance of students enrolling on their assigned day as one method of cutting down the usual congestion.

"This year students abided closely to the schedule," he remarked.

The registrar suggested that if students only pre-enrolled in classes they have given serious thought to, many problems could be resolved.

He added that the University could help by responding better to the student's class demand.

King said he would like to see MSU start a program where students satisfied with their schedule would be able to make fee payments by mail.

But, for the present, students will have to put up with registration just the way it is and hope for improvement.

The Who don't sell out

By DAVE DIMARTINO
State News Reviewer

A couple of important notes about the new Who album, Who Are You: first, my favorite Who album is The Who Sell Out; second, I think Tommy is a vastly overrated album, that in many ways, has become the band's greatest burden; third, Who Are You is the first Who album I've listened to — and I've REALLY listened to it, many times more than is usual for me — since Who's Next that displays any growth at all on part of the band.

I've no question that my favorite phase of the Who's long career is over. That period, from '66 to '68, was capped for me by the Happy Jack and The Who Sell Out LP's, and the absolutely classic photo of Roger Daltrey in a bathtub filled with Heinz Baked Beans sported on the latter album's cover. That period — also in evidence on parts of Meaty, Beaty, Big and Bouncy and Odds and Sods' best cut, "Little Billy" — freezes the band in a perfect time frame. More sophisticated than the post-High Numbers My Generation LP, which, Patti Smith notwithstanding, is no master piece, raw as it is; not quite mugged down in Tommy and post Tommy fever; the Who, from '66 to '68, were unpretentious, fun-loving and anything in the WORLD but pompous.

Listening to Who Are You for the first time wasn't particularly a positive experience for me. Criticisms, large and small, came one after another. Roger Daltrey's voice sounded too emotionless, too detached from the lyrics he was singing. Instead of the crashing, ripping guitar sounds Townsend made famous in Who's Next the new LP sounded too much like Quadrophenia — synthesizer-filled, orchestrated, harmonically dense and simply muddled in general. Worse still, Pete Daltrey still seemed stuck in the same rut that marred The Who By Numbers: every song, with the exception of "Love is Coming Down," dealt exclusively with music, the music scene from Townsend's perspective and songs ABOUT songs, in my opinion a very difficult, very limiting field of endeavor. Few fans can identify with Townsend's plight on the LP's opener, "New Song." I write the same old song with a few new lines and everyone wants to cheer it." But the simplicity and universality of the simpler, more direct "I Can See For Miles" — "I know you've deceived me, now here's a surprise" — means much more to everyone, except, perhaps, Townsend.

The nine songs on Who Are You are ALL strong songs — unusual for any new album — with the possible exception of "Sister Disco," which to my ears sounds like a musical slag or maybe just simple acknow-

— in this case, test-tube birth, cloning and suspended animation — but what makes the song so compelling is its coincidental compatibility with Townsend's own self-effacing mood: "And everything I know is what I'm here to know. Everything I do's been done before. Every sentence in my head, someone else has said. And the end of my life is an open door." Townsend's six songs can be broken down into four major and two minor ones. The minor ledgement in general. Bassist Entwistle, for the first time responsible for a considerable amount of material, has penned three superb songs, two of which Daltrey sings. "Had Enough," as mentioned before, is the LP's pulled single, and the other, "Trick of the Light" is probably Daltrey's best vocal showing. But '905" — according to Rolling Stone pulled from a planned then-scraped science fiction solo LP by the bassist — is clearly Entwistle's best composition in years, and certainly one of Who Are You's best songs. As is Entwistle's way, the lyric deals with the unusual cuts, "Sister Disco" (apparently doing well on the radio) and "Love is Coming Down" are certainly more than adequate — the latter tune's bridge, in fact, is one of Who Are You's best moments. But the sentiments of the songs aren't quite consistent with the bulk of the major songs. "New Song's" major point is an important one: "We drink the same old wine from a brand new jar. We get hungover but still we survive it." That hint of healing, of a new evolutionary path is even more evident on "Music Must Change," a song with a sentiment as obvious (and apologetic?) as its title.

Who Are You is the first Who album I've listened to since Who's Next that displays any growth at all on part of the band.

"Guitar and Pen," with a chorus sounding much like the Who of Sell Out days, is the most encouraging acknowledgement of the new wave scene Townsend could have written. On the surface it sounds preachy, yet with repeated listening — and a good deal of thought — it is perhaps Townsend's most valid and valuable lyric in some time: "You're alone above the street somewhere/Wondering how you'll ever count out there/You can walk, you can talk, you can fight/But inside you've got something to write/In your hand you hold your only friend/ Never spend your guitar or your pen."

The last of the major cuts, "Who Are You," will probably be the hit from the LP, if there's one to be had. Coming at the LP's conclusion, it is in many ways a transitional song, and certainly an important one. The LP's eight previous songs, like The Who By Numbers, are inner-directed and self-questioning; with "Who Are You" an important reversal is made. The self-examination is over, other external questions — "Who Are You?" the prime example — begin to count for much more.

Over-orchestrated? No way. The synthesizers, played by Townsend, Entwistle and guest Rod Argent, are always tasteful. The band has taken a marked step upwards from the more simplistic days of their Tommy period.

With Keith Moon's tragic demise (see tomorrow's article) the Who most definitely will live on. A recent Billboard article reports Townsend's plans to expand the Who's line-up for live performance, much in the way 10cc has done. Thus, the complex arrangements Townsend seems to be favoring will continue to grow.

And the period of self-examination is over. The Who have answered all the questions they need to answer. Townsend has doubted all he's needed to doubt and has come back healthier, and the Who have but one question for their audience: "Who are you?" As Townsend writes and Daltrey sings, they really want to know.

Neil Young and Crazy Horse live: 'more to this than meets the eye'

By BILL HOLDSHIP
State News Reviewer

Neil Young's incredible show at Pine Knob Monday night was the opening performance of his first tour in over two years, and it was an EVENT in the legendary sense of the word. The concept show, entitled Rust Never Sleeps — An Evening With Neil Young, was much more than incredible. It was breath-taking, and to accurately describe it in print is going to be no easy chore.

One of rock's most enigmatic artists, Young transcends classification. He continues to be associated with the cosmic California singer-songwriter scene, yet he is too much of an eccentric rock 'n roll outlaw to ever fit totally into the Browne, Taylor, Fogelberg, or even CSN syndrome. Always contemptuous of the business aspects of music, Young absolutely refuses to sellout to commercial whims. As a result, he is always one step ahead of his diversified following, and no one ever knows what to expect from him next.

Rust Never Sleeps may be considered a continuation of sorts of 1973's Tonight's The Night concert tour. In that show, haunted by the drug deaths of two close friends, Young drew on rock's mythic side to convey a harrowing portrait of the wasteland rock had become. The new show is Neil Young's statement on the state of rock, 1978. Though I'm convinced it's optimistic, just exactly what that statement is will have to be left to the interpretations of those who attended the show. Perhaps someone will write a book on it someday.

Young recently worked with Devo ("De-evolution"), an American new wave band, co-starring them in his forthcoming second feature film, Human Highway. Devo is a very weird band. Surrealism supreme, they utilize a dada-like absurd humor to create effective social satire. It's apparent that Young took many pointers from the band for his new show. The end result is the silliest yet most intelligent rock theatrics I've witnessed since Bowie's early endeavors.

Everything — and I mean EVERYTHING — about the new tour is a rock 'n roll concept from the tour T-shirts (red suspenders which satirize Rolling Stone's "rock awards") to the pre-concert music (old Beach Boys tunes with the vocals filtered out??). During the 10-minute intermission, stage announcements from Woodstock were played. When the lights were dimmed for the show's beginning, Hendrix's "Star Spangled Banner" blared from the P.A. system. From that point on, everything was a surreal rock fantasy.

The stage is lit in shades of dark blues and reds. The desert ant people from Star Wars (complete with glowing red eyes). Young's "roadies" for the night, set up a huge wireless microphone center stage. (Coneheads and Close Encoun- ter scientists serve as Young's sound technicians.) Suddenly, the P.A. blares the Beatles' "A Day In The Life." The ant "roadies," with a great deal of effort, lift a huge amp crate to reveal a reclining Neil Young with acoustic guitar. The crowd is wild from this point on.

Naturally, the first set is acoustic. With the exceptions of "Sugar Mountain," "After The Goldrush," and "I Am A Child," the latter from his Buffalo Springfield days, the material is all new. In fact, at least 50 percent of the concert's music is from Human Highway and his soon-to-be-released Comes A Time LP. All of it is brilliant, particularly the film's title track.

Young ends the set with the already legendary "Out Of The Blue And Into The Black," the song that explains it all: "My my, hey hey, rock 'n roll is here to stay/Lt's better to burn out than to fade away.../The King is gone but not forgotten/ Here's the story of Johnny Rotten.../Hey hey, hi hi, rock 'n roll can never die/There's more here than meets the eye." Interestingly enough, Young performed an electric version of the same song for his first encore.

The second set is electric Young with Crazy Horse (Billy Talbot, Frank SanPedro, and Ralph Molina). The bass and drums POUND, hitting the audience at a gut level. Young weeps with his guitar, blaring phenobarbital riffs and a feedback technique unlike anything since Hendrix's heyday. Almost heavy metal-like, the melodies are a happy/sad combination, melancholy music reflecting Young's ambivalent cynicism and hope.

Again, the majority of the material is new. Young announces "Here's a social protest song..." and later introduces a We-can-save-the-world-with-love song. (This is 1978!) It begins to dawn on members of the audience that Young stands with Springsteen and Reed as one of the only true rock romantics left, in addition to possibly being the only rock "flower child" (?) fighting to survive the ME decade.

Young barrels through "When You Dance" and "Cortez The Killer." A momentary pause for "The Needle and The Damage Done." And then straight through to the definitive finales of "Cinnamon Girl" and "Like A Hurricane," complete with dancing ant people and Coneheads.

I used to know this weird guy who was a genius, but he was crazy too. Except he knew he was crazy, so that made him cool. This guy would get high, listen to Neil Young at top volume, and exclaim, "Neil Young is God." All of which, I guess, can pretty much explain Young. He's a genius and crazy, but he knows he's crazy so he's cool. Which, I guess, pretty much explains rock 'n roll. If everyone could only be so crazy...

Savoy Brown returns to the bar

By MICHAEL MEGERIAN
State News Reviewer

Savoy Brown is chewing a bone. But the taste is still there. Simplicity is nothing new in rock and the simplistic but often soulful blues-rock sound of Savoy Brown is anything but innovative. They have reached the apex of a three-piece band's potential, culminating with a show that reaches the peak of British power rock from which so much has evolved. How appropriate that they should embark on a bar tour.

Monday night's show at the Silver Dollar Saloon transformed the East Lansing bar into a rock 'n roll cheering section as Savoy Brown

Brown? Well, no. Yes, they are a well-known act and could be considered pioneers of late '60s British blues-rock. But they have forsaken technical prowess for the label of touring musicians. Their simplicity is their craft and their songs reflect the same old tried-and-tested rock riff. But they have successfully infiltrated the rock realm of the '70s purely because they are not only playing traditional rock, they are traditional rock.

So what more could be expected? Savoy Brown was always a bar band and Monday night they were back in the bar. They know how to do it sans flash, which may account for their longevity in the business. They have endured a lengthy list of personnel changes while never straying from the sound that took them from the bar scene of Europe to the recording studio. A string of albums later, they have managed to survive.

Guitarist Kim Simmonds, the group's only original member, is sloppy but incredibly tasteful. Simmonds fails at fast runs but his blue work in "Double Lover" (from their newest album) is perhaps what he does best. Ian Ellis on bass is a screamer, a skinny energetic Scotsman who greatly contrasts Simmonds' reserved demeanor, overshadowing drummer Tom Farnell, who was neatly tucked between the band's massive speaker cabinets.

Savoy Brown has come a long way but Monday night put them back where it all started. Their set, though a short one, consisted of simple yet unpretentious numbers, a refreshing break from the techno-flash high energy productions of the '70s. Savoy Brown is ageless and evidence of a resurging market for their music proves they are far from finished.

State News/Ira Strickstein
Kim Simmonds plays some of the blues-based lead guitar that has been the focal point of Savoy Brown's sound through 10 years of personnel changes and changing rock fashions.

Savoy Brown was always a bar band and Monday night they were back in the bar. They know how to do it sans flash, which may account for their longevity in the business.

rattled off power chords dynamically mixed with laid-back blues riffs. Combining these sounds, the band effectively avoided putting the audience to sleep or beating them over the head with muddled noise. They are raw, an element which many bands of the '70s are attempting to cash in on. But more important, it is an element which is being accepted by larger numbers of concert goers. The fans at the Silver Dollar were no exception.

Could it be said nobody does it like Savoy

What's in store and more

I've worked for the entertainment desk of the State News since 1973 in varying capacities, and now, after a "practice" summer term, I'm facing my first fall term as entertainment editor here.

As far as the rest of the State News staff goes, it's probably safe to say that I've been here the longest, witnessed more changes than most, and seen close to seven other people working here as entertainment editor.

All of which is not to say that I'm an old man. I'm not. Honest. But I HAVE seen how seven other people have covered the entertainment department, their differences and similarities, and I think I have a good idea of what I'll be doing by comparison. This is just to let you know what we'll be doing on the entertainment pages throughout the year, what I think we SHOULD be doing, and in what direction we'll be heading.

For starters, we're going to be a bit more realistic than we might have been in the past. Realistic in the sense that we'll be fully aware that we're writing to and for a college audience.

Our readers last term probably noticed our slant toward pop culture coverage. It won't stop, certainly; whatever occasional pretentiousness plagued our page in the past hopefully won't be in evidence this year.

Things we plan to do include:

- recognizing the fact that college students can't always afford hardcover editions of new books. Our weekly book page will include a paperback column that will review new paperbacks, be they paperback originals or hardcover re-printings;

- realizing that as loyal American college students we have an unnatural fascination with all junk elements of our coverage, we'll be covering most of them. This will include junk food, junk music and — perhaps our specialty — junk films;

- speaking of films, we'll be devoting a little more coverage to on-campus film showings. Considering the wide variety of films available, we should cover quite a few. For the first time in three years, incidentally, we'll be covering Beal's porn films. Rest assured we'll stay in the realms of good taste.

- finally, we're going to be extremely receptive to feedback this year, so if you've got any criticisms of anything at all we run, PLEASE let us know, either through letter or phone.

In all, we'd like to stress our receptivity to reader feedback this year. As you'll soon see, this term will be offering an unprecedented amount of entertainment, both on campus and off. We'll be attempting to cover as much of it as we can, and if you don't think we're doing a good job — just let us know.

ON- AND OFF-CAMPUS OPENINGS

Jobs there for those who look

By SUSAN TOMPOR
State News Staff Writer
Job hunters need not despair, only continue hunting. "More jobs are available this year than in the past with new ones being sent to our office every day," Jim Bowling, assistant director of Student Placement Services, said.

Students need only check the boards in the 110 Student Services Bldg. listing on-and-off-campus jobs and contact area businesses on their own, Bowling said. MSU itself offers more jobs than most universities in the country, Bowling said. During the entire 1977-78 school year 17,000 students worked on campus with about 8,000 employed at any given time, he said. Students may find campus jobs as tutors, lab assistants, research aides and kitchen workers at residence hall cafeterias and the Kellogg Center, Hubbard, Synder-Phillips, Case, and Campbell halls still have openings and are taking applications.

Other cafeterias are still adjusting schedules and continue to take applications, but offer no guarantees of jobs. Students able to work breakfasts and lunches have the best chances for being hired, one hall food manager said. Most cafeteria jobs pay $2.85 per hour, 20 cents above minimum wage, and are among the lowest-paying jobs on campus.

Higher-paying campus jobs are physical plant operators, computer assistants and key-punch operators. Such jobs pay as much as $4.29 per hour. Students looking for jobs off campus can find jobs as secretaries, restaurant help and sales clerks. Secretarial jobs are often the most difficult to fill since many students are unable to type 50 to 60 words per minute and lack shorthand skills, but students with such skills should have little trouble finding jobs, Bowling said.

State News/Deborah J. Borin
Bonnie Meisel and Karen McDonald, two MSU students employed at State Discount on East Grand River Avenue, work to help cover the costs of student life. Besides supplementing their income, the students are also gaining valuable working experience.

Mall backer challenges CLC

A Dayton Hudson representative challenged James Anderson of Citizens for a Livable Community to a series of public debates at a press conference Wednesday.

Both groups are vying for support as the Nov. 7 referendum on the mall issue nears. The ballot proposal will ask voters whether they favor construction of the Dayton Hudson shopping mall at Lake Lansing Road and U.S. 127.

Peter Hutchinson of Dayton Hudson Properties said he asked for the debates so emphasis could be kept on facts and the proposed mall's impact rather than on rumors or slogans.

Hutchinson said he doesn't consider some of the statements he is hearing on taxes, jobs, energy and traffic to be documented. Anderson, coordinator of CLC, called Hutchinson's challenge a "little bit of a non event."

Several debates have already been scheduled and a number of meetings are in the works, he said.

Anderson said he would be "delighted" to debate the mall issue with Hutchinson, but would want to have the factual base to be used in the debates clearly established beforehand.

Hutchinson said although he was aware of efforts by groups to sponsor programs to air both sides of the issue, no plans have been finalized. The challenge doesn't refer to one or two debates, but to a series, he said.

Hutchinson said his group would base its arguments on information in addition to that in the public record. New studies were done on every aspect of the proposed mall development once the site plan was approved by city council, he said.

The entire package of new information will be submitted to the city when it is complete, hopefully next week, Hutchinson said.

The differences between Dayton Hudson's original proposal and the approved site plan have never been fully discussed, he said.

Olin fee draws mixed reactions

By CATHERINE RAFTREY
State News Staff Writer
Student reaction was mixed this week as confusion set in over the newly-identified $18 health fee which was approved by the MSU Board of Trustees at their August meeting. "This past year the (state) Legislature, in making its appropriations to the public colleges and universities, indicated that we could no longer fund health care out of the general fund. Rather, health care must be funded by a separate identifiable fee," Dr. John D. Siddall, medical director at Olin Health Center, said. Students have actually been paying almost the same amount all along, but were never aware of it because it had always been included in regular tuition payments, he explained. "This does not mean, however, that the student will be paying more than he or she would have been paying this fall had the fee not been identified," the director explained.

Reactions to the fee ranged from the irate, who felt the fee was unjustified to the completely uninformed, who had no idea the fee had been instituted.

One senior, who failed to notice the addition of the health fee, stated that after signing up for two classes at the same time period, nothing else seemed to phase him.

"I think it's outrageous," complained one student. "Everytime someone goes to Olin, they end up sicker then when they went in."

"If they can keep taking our money, they must be forced to upgrade their services and hire better doctors," a sophomore who expressed her concern for the continuation of health services at MSU said.

What created the sudden mass of excitement pertaining to Olin Health Center?

"The problem is that the students are uninformed," offered one resident assistant who had had the fee explained to him at a RA meeting.

He went on to express his disappointment that information explaining the situation was not passed out to the students.

Siddall expressed his concern over the various negative responses he has received from both students and parents, as well as requests he has had from those wanting to be exempted from the health fee.

He sympathized that there are cases where exceptions to the fee possibly should be considered, but compared it to other taxes which must be paid without benefitting everyone.

The late-summer heat was too much to bear even for "Tango", the dog whose owner sat him on a raft in the swimming pool with sunglasses and all.

Aikido expert at MSU

A free demonstration by a Japanese martial arts master will kick off this year's activities for the MSU Aikido Club Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the sports arena of the Men's Intramural Building.

Masa Toshi Morita, a fourth-degree black belt from Tokyo, will demonstrate the various techniques of Aikido, a Japanese art similar to Judo.

Club spokesperson John Grix said Morita has been in the United States for about two years, teaching, giving demonstrations and helping popularize Aikido in Michigan.

Grix added that Morita has helped instruct police personnel in both the United States and Japan, including the Tokyo Police Department's riot control squad.

The Aikido Club, one of several martial arts organizations on the MSU campus, will meet beginning Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Judo Room of the Men's IM Building. All interested persons are welcome to attend.

"The club offers lessons in Aikido, but there is no competition," Grix said. "We teach Aikido as self-defense, but the biggest aim of the sport is personal growth. It's a great way to learn to get along with people."

Sunday's demonstration is open to the public.

Is it sick to love a pen?

Is it crazy to love marker pens that give you the smoothest, thinnest line in town... and feel so right in your hand? Is it mad to worship pens with clever little metal "collars" to keep their plastic points from getting squishy?

Not if the pen is a Pilot marker pen. Our Razor Point, at only 69¢, gives the kind of extra-fine delicate line you'll flip over. And for those times you want a little less line, have a try with our fine point 59¢ Fineline. It has the will and fortitude to actually write through carbons.

Tax proposal dies in committee

A legislative tax proposal was blocked from a potential ballot position in the Nov. 7 election when it failed to gain enough support in a House committee to make it to the floor.

The proposal was drafted by the Michigan Education Association and several Democratic legislators as an alternative to the so-called Tisch and Headlee tax limitation amendments.

Rep. Gary Vanek, D-Royal Oak, said the proposal which he helped draft was abandoned by its supporters when an unofficial vote taken in the House Taxation Committee indicated it didn't have enough support to even be drafted into a resolution.

The legislative proposal would have reduced property taxes by 40 percent and increased state income taxes by 1 percent.

In an effort to keep the tax limitation philosophy alive, the Taxation Committee is working on another proposal that will hopefully be more acceptable to opposing legislators, Vanek said.

The new proposal would grant a 20 percent property tax reduction rather than the more drastic 40 percent. It would increase the state non-taxable income figure from $1,500 to $1,900.

"This means a family of four could make $7,600 before being taxed (by the state)," he said. "It will help the low-income family."

The new proposal will also exempt senior citizens who have an income of less than $12,000 from paying school taxes.

The property tax placed on senior citizens would only include the cost of city services — not educational costs.

"To make up for the lost revenue," Vanek said, "the state income tax will be increased by 1 percent for all citizens."

Sale to aid Shiloh church

The Shiloh Fellowship will be sponsoring its second annual yard sale Saturday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 4 p.m.

The money raised from the yard sale held at the fellowship church on the corner of Ann and Division streets will help in the restoration of that building.

The old University Lutheran Church was purchased with the aid of sales from last year's yard sale.

The yard sale will offer second-hand small appliances, furniture, and refreshments in an effort to raise money for the restoration.

"We really sell things cheaper than most yard sales," Price said. "Last year we sold a sofa for only $25."

Fellowship Associate Pastor Ron Price explained that Shiloh is a "Christian community showing concern for others."

Shiloh Fellowship, which started in 1973, has approximately a 10 percent student membership.

The fellowship began when 10 people decided they needed more than a traditional church, one that was less rigid, Price explained.

Students repudiate Shah

By JOANNE LANE
State News Staff Writer

Iranian students, wearing masks to protect their identity, held a demonstration at registration to let students as well as the rest of the American public know about what they describe as the fascist regime of the Shah of Iran.

The students, members of the Iranian Students Association, demonstrated during registration in shifts of eight to 10 persons.

The ISA said the registration demonstration is only the beginning of the protests since they feel the American people need to become aware of realities in Iran.

A group spokesperson said there is no source of truth regarding the Iranian situation other than students.

He cited what he considered news blackouts and false reports of the number of Iranians killed while protesting the Shah's regime as reasons for Americans to become concerned with the controversy.

The demonstrators said they were also protesting in support of the Iranian demonstrations in Los Angeles two weeks ago when protesters clashed with police and were subsequently threatened with deportation and heavy bond posting.

One demonstrator said a dusk to dawn curfew and the banning of all gatherings of more than two persons in Iran has not discouraged the people of Iran from protesting against the Shah.

He said Iranian army troops have opened fire on groups of protesters to crush the growing civil revolution.

The ISA also said President Carter and several U.S. corporations support the Shah due to U.S. interests in Iran's vast natural resources.

The Iranian Students Association is also planning a Night of Solidarity Sept. 30 at 6 p.m. in the Lansing Community College cafeteria. The program will include cultural programs as well as lectures on the Iranian conflict.

Another Iranian organization on campus, the Iranian Moslem Students, is sponsoring a march from East Lansing to Lansing to protest the Shah's government.

The march will be held Friday at 10 a.m. The protesters will start at the International Center and walk to the capitol building. It is being held in conjunction with other revolutionary activities around the United States condemning the Shah's regime.

Post open for vets

Vietnam-era veterans interested in serving as an advisory member on the Ingham County Veterans Affairs Committee may apply for the position anytime before Sept. 29.

The committee is responsible for administering relief to low income veterans through the Soldier and Sailor's Relief, and is subject to the control of the State Social Services Department.

Individuals seeking appointment to the committee must submit completed applications forms to the Board of Commissioners Office at the Courthouse on South Jefferson Street in Mason.

Blank application forms are available at the Board of Commissioners Office in Mason or from the County Clerk's Office, located in Lansing City Hall, Hall 5.

The current vacancy is for one term which expires Sept. 30, 1982. The appointment will be officially made at the Oct. 10 meeting of the Ingham County Board of Commissioners.

Fire under investigation

Engineers and insurance consultants continue to investigate the origin of the WKAR radio and television transmitter station fire. The fire, which gutted the building, caused an estimated $1.5 million worth of damage when the radio equipment was destroyed.

"The fire most likely began in a place other than the main FM transmitter, the backup radio transmitter or the UHF transmitter for WKAR-TV," chief engineer of the television station, Ray Wilson said.

The Department of Public Safety fire engineer, Carl Eizenhauer said two possibilities are being investigated.

One theory is that a "dummy load," a device which absorbs extra energy to protect the station's antennae, caught fire when it malfunctioned.

The device had been rebuilt and installed back in the station prior to the fire, Wilson said.

"There is suspicion that it might have been the cause because it was just put in," he said.

The other probable cause of the fire might be a damper motor immediately above the "dummy load" box in the attic where the fire started.

Wilson said the fire started hours before it was first noticed by an engineer after the television station and the "Radio Talking Book" went off the air about 3:30 p.m. Aug. 21.

"Our monitors would have shown our power deficiencies if it was in the 'dummy load,'" Wilson said.

The University has since installed a new radio transmitter in a temporary building adjacent to the structure in Okemos on Dobie Road.

The radio station resumed broadcasting Sept. 13 and WKAR-TV has set a Oct. 20 target date for beginning programming, Bob Page, WKAR-TV manager, said.

Hearing slated

A public hearing will be held to review the proposed Citizen Participation Plan and the performance of the Community Development Program at 7:30 tonight in the 54-B district courtroom, 301 M.A.C. Ave.

'Bring your own' now the residence hall rule

Kathryn Stepanovich, area director for Red Cedar complex, which includes Snyder-Phillips, Mason-Abbot and Shaw halls, co-chaired the committee with Paul Oliaro, head of Residence Hall Program Office's alcohol education program.

Stepanovich said the committee, composed of resident assistants, head advisers and RHA representatives, dealt with a number of questions, including the definition of the sale of alcoholic beverages and the consumption of those beverages on state-owned land.

Under Michigan law, the sale of alcohol includes exchange, barter or giving away liquor — a common practice at many residence hall parties. Because of the legal question of sale, prior collection of money for the purchase of alcohol was also outlawed in the committee's ruling.

The state used to grant 24-hour licenses to residence halls for the sale of alcohol, but discontinued the practice in 1975 when the legality was questioned.

Stepanovich said the committee attempted to come up with a policy conforming to state law.

"There is no law that says you cannot consume alcohol in a residence hall," she said. "But we have to interpret the law as it is written."

A Michigan state statute of the Liquor Control Act stipulates that a license may not be issued for the sale of alcohol on state-owned land, which includes MSU, state fairgrounds, armories, air bases and naval installations owned or leased by the state.

The board of trustees passed an ordinance in 1971, however, permitting the consumption of alcohol on campus by persons 21 or older. The University revised its policy in 1972 when the age of majority was lowered to 18.

Ken Smith, ASMSU attorney, said university attorneys wanted a more stringent ruling than the one drawn up by the committee, but their proposal was rejected by Vice President for Student Affairs Eldon Nonnamaker.

Harden to propose affirmative action policy

"This will give us a chance to look at areas where affirmative action is not working as well and ask why," Harden said.

The president said he felt the "line" concept of handling affirmative action affairs — through colleges to deans to assistants in the specific offices — will help affirmative action.

Under current practice, affirmative action policies are under the auspices of Robert Perrin, vice president for University and federal relations, who directs the Office of Human Relations.

While power over affirmative action policies may be taken out of the Office of Human Relations, none of its personnel were asked to attend the summer meetings with Harden, Perrin said.

Consultants at the meetings included representatives of several minorities, including blacks and women, said Katherine E. White, assistant vice president for student affairs and services.

"The question of whether affirmative action should be located in human relations had been questioned all along," she said, "but the Mary Pollock affair prompted an extra-special look at it."

Pollock, ex-director of women's programs, was fired June 13 by Perrin. He explained the firing in a statement as "the judgment of her supervisors that her conduct of the office of women's programs was not producing the kind of effective dialogue and response from the campus community that lasting progress requires."

He had also told Pollock, however, that one of the major reasons for her dismissal was that "we're not getting along."

the State News learned at the time.

One of Pollock's greatest concerns while in office was her role as MSU's coordinator of Title IX, a cornerstone of affirmative action.

Title IX, a provision of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, calls for equal opportunity for men and women in all federally-funded educational programs, including sports.

"I wanted change," Pollock said, but added she got a reputation for desiring change "too fast and too soon. MSU is not yet willing to break with old-style relations."

After her ouster, Pollock received support from several women's organizations to have her re-instated as director.

firing was defeated at an MSU Board of Trustees meeting in late June, but the board asked Harden at that time to review the affirmative action policy.

Pollock has since filed complaints with the departments of Civil Rights, Health, Education, and Welfare, and Labor to try and appeal the decision of the University.

"I will accept re-instatement with back pay," she said, "but I must have a reorganized, workable structure behind me."

Currently, the Office of Women's Programs has neither a director nor a coordinator for compliance to Title IX.

"Affirmative action will be under a different department," Perrin said. "We won't look into a replacement until that is settled." Pollock suggested that her

Controversy over tripling continues

Lyle Thorburn, assistant vice president for housing and food services, said the opinion could trigger residence halls rate increases.

But soon after the opinion was released, Harden said student housing plans for the fall would not be changed. Though some individuals complained that University position on the issue ignored the opinion, it now appears MSU could come into line with the code if necessary.

"We must alert people, tell them life may be a bit uncomfortable for a while, and go on."

lawsuit against the University to stop tripling.

Plans for the suit were dropped after the University changed regulations to allow sophomores to live off-campus.

ASMSU raised the question of the legality of tripling again in 1977 when student leaders asked state legislators from the local area to seek the attorney general's opinion.

ASMSU Student Board President Dan Jones said he currently has a project underway to address the over-assigned room situation but declined to give details.

Homeless students have options

By NANCY ROGIER
State News Staff Writer
Finding a place to live at the last minute can be a dismaying experience.
For students who left MSU last spring without finding a place for fall, or because of other unforeseen circumstances don't have a place to live, the beginning of school looks bleak.
However, temporarily-homeless MSU students do have some options. For those who have nowhere to go except to a friend's couch, cancel roaming the streets in search of "for rent" signs and instead try:
• The Off-Campus Student Housing Office, 109 Student Services Bldg. It won't do the legwork for homeless students, but all the information and equipment is there—listings for apartments, rooms and houses; maps for East Lansing, Lansing, and Okemos; telephones to check openings and an up-to-date bulletin board with the most recent listings.

Donald Svoren, assistant director, said it takes about two days for the average person to find a place. For some, he said, it takes an hour, for others five days.
To avoid a long search, students should decide exactly what type of housing they need first. Then the housing office can supply them with available listings for you to look into, Svoren said.
"We have probably the best listing service in the area," Svoren said. It includes information on co-ops, Greek living, transportation, and local schools for students with children, he added.

Although listings for this fall have decreased from last year, the number of students searching for places has not.
Svoren said 1,185 students came through the office between Monday and Tuesday. Last week 1,275 students came in looking for rentals.
Svoren said he won't know until the end of September if the figures will be higher than last fall's.

Some tips to remember when using off-campus housing office: it will not provide recommendations for living units. Nor will it help conduct a student's search by long-distance telephone.
But it will mail out listings, and, if students ask, will offer legal advice and referrals if a place is unsatisfactory due to landlord problems.
Students using the office are maintaining hopeful attitudes, Svoren said.
One student who said he has been looking since Monday has not had any luck but appeared unruffled.
"I'm a pretty untypical case," he said. "I've been too selective. But if this place (the office) wasn't here, I'd be real bad off."

One senior has been looking for a week, but is keeping his chin up.
"By Friday I'll have a place," he said, adding that the housing office has definitely helped.
• Checking bulletin boards in apartment houses, around campus, and in Grand River Avenue stores.
• Newspaper listings in local papers. Local papers will carry advertisements for rooms and apartments well into the term. It is advisable to check every day.

Parachuting

Skydiving... the experience is impossible to describe. Skydivers come in all sizes, ages and lifestyles. But they share a common bond - the will to live life to the max!

But sport parachuting is not foolish derring-do. When approached under the competent instructors and jumpmasters, it is a safe, exciting sport. And thanks to recent advances in equipment design and technique, skydiving is growing mighty fast.

Go ahead... learn to fly this weekend at your friendly local drop zone, the Para Center in Charlotte.

How Eddie Smith was injured

Ed Smith, MSU's starting quarterback for the past two seasons, sprints out to the right and scores the Spartans' second touchdown against Purdue. On the play, however, Smith dove into the endzone and fell on his hand, suffering a hairline fracture of his second finger on his right (throwing) hand. It is doubtful that Smith will play Saturday when MSU will host Syracuse in a 1:30 p.m. contest at Spartan Stadium.

Smith's injury was of the freakish nature since he was never really tackled by a Purdue player. According to MSU head football coach Darryl Rogers, Smith just fell on his hand, and suffered the injury. "It sure silences those people who feel Eddie should run more," Rogers said this week.

State News Robert Kozloff
With Melvin Land (47) holding on and Tanya Webb (98) and Larry Savage (57) moving in, Purdue's Ben McCall loses the handle on the football which was recovered by Mike Marshall and turned into an Ed Smith three-yard touchdown run and a 14-0 lead for MSU. But it wasn't enough as the Spartans lost to Purdue, 21-14, in the opening game for both teams Saturday.

Spartans drop opener to Boilermakers, 21-14

By JOE CENTERS
State News Sports Writer
WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — The first quarter of the 1978 MSU football season started off with a bang last Saturday. The Spartans had a 14-0 lead and complete control over the Purdue Boilermakers. But when starting quarterback Ed Smith was unable to return after scoring MSU's second touchdown, a play on which he suffered a hairline fracture in the second finger of his right (throwing) hand, the Spartans' control of the game slipped away, and so did the outcome. Purdue scored three second-half touchdowns for a 21-14 win over MSU.

Before the start of the game, most people had expected an aerial duel between Smith and Purdue's sophomore quarterback Mark Herrmann, but that duel never came about because Smith only threw the ball twice, and Herrmann was held in check by the Spartan defense as he completed only seven of 23 passes for 85 yards.

The Spartans' offense in the first quarter, was led by their defense and punter Ray Stachowicz.

"Ray and the defense were what put us into the game," said coach Darryl Rogers. "Stachowicz had one of his finest days of punting."

The sophomore punter from Broadview

Heights, Ohio, punted the ball 10 times for a 51.1 yard average, with his first boot of the season sailing 72 yards to set an MSU team record.

Stachowicz's third punt of the day, a 54-yarder, rolled dead on the Purdue one yard line and after a Boilermaker fumble on the next play, the Spartans recovered the ball, which led to Smith's touchdown two plays later.

"It was a nice calm day, beautiful for punting and I was relaxed," Stachowicz said. "They didn't put on much pressure and the big thing was they let the ball roll."

Stachowicz, who was the All-Big Ten punter last season as a freshman, said that one time in high school he got off a 74-yard punt in a game for his longest boot ever.

MSU's first touchdown of the game was set up by an interception and 21-yard return by outside linebacker Larry Savage to the Purdue 17 yard line. On the day, Savage had two interceptions and two key sacks, the first of which knocked the Boilermakers out of field goal position.

After Savage's first interception, the Spartans used five plays to score with the touchdown coming on a four-yard Smith-to-Kirk Gibson pass.

Gibson, who played baseball this summer for the Detroit Tigers' farm team in Lakeland, Fla., caught only two passes for 17 yards in the game but the speedy receiver was double teamed all day long and will probably get the same coverage all season.

Rogers said he hopes to get the ball to Gibson more but if he continues to get double coverage someone else will get single coverage and will be more likely to get the ball.

On the play that Smith got hurt, according to Rogers, the Spartan quarterback never did get hit but when he dove into the endzone he landed on his hand and snapped his finger. Rogers said that it is very doubtful Smith will play Saturday against Syracuse but that he could be ready in time for the Southern California game the next week.

Smith's replacement at quarterback, sophomore Bert Vaughn, got off to a slow start in the second quarter but came on strong in the second half and finished the day with 12 completions out of 21 attempts for 163 yards.

"I thought he did a magnificent job for a person who hasn't played that much," Rogers said. "He got some good game experience but I wish it didn't come in a conference game."

MSU held its 14-0 lead until halftime, but the Boilermakers came out steaming in the third quarter.

Rick Moss took the second half kickoff and returned it 76 yards with a face-masking penalty tacked on to that to give Purdue the ball on the MSU 20 yard line.

A Herrmann-to-Dave Young pass play capped a seven-play drive to narrow the score to 14-7 and Purdue had some momentum for the first time in the game.

The next time the Boilermakers got the ball, a third-down broken play which looked like might go for a 15-yard loss turned into a 62-yard touchdown romp for Russell Pope to tie the score at 14.

The only Spartan offensive threat of the second half was thwarted by an offensive interference call (one of 13 MSU penalties in the game for 107 yards — Purdue went through the game without picking up a penalty) which put MSU out of field goal range.

Later on in the fourth quarter, freshman kicker Morten Anderson did attempt a 41-yard field goal for the Spartans, but it went wide to the right.

Purdue's winning touchdown came mainly on some slick coaching by Boilermaker coach Jim Young.

When Purdue had the ball on the 50 yard line with a fourth down and four yards to go for a first, Young kept his offense on the field in hopes of pulling MSU offside. And it worked.

Herrmann called out his signals and without taking the snap he pulled away from the center and went into a shift, which finally pulled an eager defensive player offside, giving the Boilermakers the first down.

Three plays after that John Macon broke through the line for a 33-yard touchdown and Purdue held on for its victory.

"The opening football game won't make or break our season," Rogers said. "Consequently we can still win the Big Ten. We could have won the football game just the way it was. The kickoff return and the 76-yard broken play are what beat us."

The Spartans will get a chance to even their record Saturday as MSU will host Syracuse in the first of three non-league games and the first of six home games that the Spartans will play this season.

Vaughn does job as fill-in quarterback

By MIKE KLOCKE
State News Sports Writer
WEST LAFAYETTE, IND. — It was a hot, balmy 87 degrees in Ross Ade Stadium Saturday when MSU met Purdue, and it had to be even more sizzling on the playing field.

Many players on both teams were feeling the effects of the heat; Spartan coach Darryl Rogers said several of his players suffered from heat prostration during the game.

One of them was Bert Vaughn, who replaced starting quarterback Eddie Smith after the veteran Spartan signal-caller was injured in the first quarter of the 21-14 loss.

"He passed out at halftime, and since we had already lost one quarterback, we thought it might be a good idea to revive him for the second half," Rogers joked earlier this week.

Vaughn must have recovered fast because for the day he completed 12 of 21 passes for 163 yards. And although he couldn't lead his team into the end zone, Vaughn's passing was about the only bright spot in a very dismal offensive performance by MSU.

"He (Smith) went to the bench and I didn't even see it," Vaughn said. "I only threw one pass last year. I guess I was more prepared now than I ever was last year."

That one pass Vaughn threw last season was a completion, for 46 yards. Vaughn was highly-touted as a high school quarterback in Ohio, but he admits this is not the way he wants to break into the Spartans' starting lineup.

"It's too bad for Ed; he doesn't deserve to sit down," Vaughn said. "It just isn't right for him to get hurt. Losing Ed will hurt the team, too."

Since Smith will probably miss one more game, Vaughn will get the first start of his brief career Saturday against Syracuse. Although head coach Darryl Rogers would obviously rather have his veteran trigger-man in the game, he had words of praise for the job Vaughn did.

"I thought he did magnificent," Rogers said. "Vaughn did adjust very well after the second quarter."

For as little experience as he had, Vaughn did a good job of picking out receivers, although Kirk Gibson was held to a mere two receptions.

"I think they (the defense) may have been a little more relaxed when I came in there," Vaughn said.

Despite the credible job Vaughn did as a substitute, the question on the lips of most MSU fans was, "Would MSU have won had Smith been in the game?"

Rogers said he would hate to ever think that one person is the difference in winning or losing a football game. If there was a person that made a major difference, though, it was Boilermaker coach Jim Young.

He came up with a couple trick plays, which really weren't that tricky. But they fooled MSU.

On one play — a certain Purdue punt — he put his offensive unit in the game on fourth down and the Spartans were caught waiting for a punt. There was very little else MSU could do besides call time out. With one MSU time out taken care of, Young had his team punt.

On another fourth-down play — the most vital play of the game — his team tried to draw MSU offside for the first down. If it didn't work, the Boilers would punt. Quarterback Mark Herrmann stepped back without the ball and an MSU lineman made contact. First down, Purdue.

Three plays later John Macon romped 33 yards through MSU's goal line defense on first down for the winning score.

All told, the real story of the game was the play of Vaughn. Most teams appear somewhat sluggish in their season openers, and that was the case for both teams.

Co-rec touch football offers opportunities

By CHERYL FISH
State News Sports Writer

Editor's Note: For the first time, the State News will have a regular staff member covering IM Sports at MSU. Throughout the year, the IM articles - on men's, women's and co-rec sports - will appear on Wednesdays. As space permits, there will be articles on other days, too.

When men and women used to want to play touch football together, it often resulted in a free-for-all that left the women out of the action. Sometimes, to insure a fair game, belts were secured tightly around the men's knees. However, it (and they) never quite made it off the ground.

Co-recreational IM Sports has done something about all this disorganization. Prompted by students who have voiced a genuine interest in co-rec touch football, this fall a program will be introduced.

Pam Kruse, Director of Co-rec Sports, and her graduate assistant, Sally Delloli, along with a coordinating staff, pondered over the rules of MSU's men's and women's individual touch football as well as the rules of other Big Ten and Michigan college and university co-rec programs. What they came up with is a game that "Should be safe and enjoyable for both men and women, and one with room for many possibilities," according to Kruse.

Seven players are on each team with at least three of them being women. The team with possession has four downs to go the length of the sixty-yard field for a touchdown before they lose it to the opposition.

One of the features which makes the game most exciting is the unlimited passing permitted by both sexes once the ball crosses the line of scrimmage. However, from behind the line, a man may complete a pass to another man only once out of the four downs, while passing to women and by women is unlimited. The same applies to ball carrying — men are limited to one run out of four downs. These modifications are present to insure equality and fun for all, and to keep the opposition guessing.

"There is a lot of room for strategy in this game. I think that once it catches on it will be extremely popular," supervisor Sue Ekizian said. "It might take a little while before the players and officials get used to it," she added. Her assistant Shirley O'Connor also anticipates a smooth-running game if people exhibit the interest that is hoped for.

Kruse stresses that anyone can play the game, not only "superjocks." "It's a game played for fun rather than competition, and besides, it's a good way to meet people and improve your social life." Others agree with her.

"Sure I'd play," said freshman Russ Weill. "It's a real good time and I don't play sports seriously," he added.

Sophomores Gretchen Grothe and Kathy Morrow have played women's touch football before and agreed co-rec would probably be a good way to meet people, and that they would enjoy it.

Involvement in co-rec sports increased by 28 percent last year and even larger increase is expected for this year if all goes well. Kruse cites a major reason for the new enthusiasm is the wider acceptance of women in sports and the improved quality of their skills.

Two leagues will be formed, with "A" having play-offs and "B" adding extra games in that time.

The fields behind Munn Arena will be utilized for the Sunday contests that will go from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

A team can be composed of combinations of men and women dwelling on or off-campus, regardless of what dorm, house, fraternity or sorority they live in.

"It is a chance to gather with your friends or to meet new people," Kruse said. A team representatives meeting will be held on Monday, Sept. 25 at 7 p.m. in 137 Women's IM to distribute rules and to discuss the game. A team entry fee of $15 will be collected at that time. Anyone interested who cannot find a team is urged to sign up at either IM and a team will be assigned to him or her.

MSU hopes for revenge

By JERRY BRAUDE
State News Sports Writer

Ferris State College is beginning only its third season of soccer on the varsity level. But MSU soccer coach Joe Baum will still be taking the Bulldogs seriously in the Spartans' opening game of the season today at 3:30 p.m. at home, and he has good reason to. Last year MSU dropped its season opener at Ferris, 4-3, as the Spartans made some early defensive errors even though Baum felt MSU controlled the tempo of the game.

"Ferris State is one of the more inexperienced teams on our schedule," Baum said. "If we play like we have been in practice, I anticipate us coming out with a victory. I'm optimistic, but not cocky because of what happened last year."

Ferris State will be the start of a three game home stand to open the season. MSU will host Hope College Saturday and Calvin College Wednesday.

"With our first three games being at home, I won't have to worry about any unforeseen circumstances," Baum said. "When we play at home, we get referees from the Detroit area that are experienced and mature men. They shouldn't give us any surprises. We also know we are playing on a nice grass field that is regulation size, something we don't always see on the road."

In hope of ending the Spartans' lack of scoring punch, Baum has made nearly a wholesale change from last year with the offensive line during pre-season practice.

Scott Campbell will be the only starter left from last year's front line as Baum has moved Mike Price from the midfield position and has also installed Spartan newcomers, Kirk Rone and Hans Nielsen.

Nielsen may be new to the MSU soccer scene, but for the previous four years he was drawing cheers from gridiron fans at Spartan Stadium for putting the ball through the uprights while setting MSU's all-time scoring record.

Nielsen, who is from Denmark, will start at center. "Hans has had his bright and gloomy spots in pre-season practice," Baum said. "He spent five months training for his tryout with the Atlanta Falcons, so he's not exactly where I think he could be at."

Rone is a junior college transfer with MSU from St. Louis and he has been sharp in pre-season practice according to Baum.

With midfield being one of the strengths of the team, Baum could afford putting Price in the forward position.

"For us to win, the forward line will have to jell," Baum said. "We have four good players there, but three of them are new, so they're not used to playing together. By the fifth game, they should do well together."

Midfield will also have a lot of depth this year with newcomers Dick Huff and Dave Harris, a transfer from Oakland University.

Huff may be the Spartans' top freshman this year. He was an all-stater at Birmingham Groves High School.

"Dick had an excellent practice," Baum said. "He's intelligent and aggressive."

Summarizing pre-season practice, Baum felt his players are getting used to his coaching system.

Cagers winning in Brazil tournaments

Gaining some international experience and getting a head start on its Big Ten rivals, MSU's men's basketball team has posted a 4-1 record in two tournaments in Brazil over the past two weeks.

Tuesday night, Jud Heathcote's Spartans faced Brazil in the finals of the Governor's Cup tournament in San Paulo. Brazil defeated MSU in the finals of the City of Rio Tournament in Rio de Janeiro.

In the City of Rio tourney, MSU used a strong first half and then held on to defeat Argentina, 78-73, in the first-round game. Then, behind Earvin "Magic" Johnson's 26 points, the Spartans took a lopsided decision over Uruguay, 95-63, to move into the finals against a highly regarded Brazil team.

The Spartans played roughly even with Brazil until senior forward Gregory Kelsner was injured in the second half; then MSU lost its momentum and fell, 75-68.

In the Governor's Cup tournament, MSU opened with a 88-76 win over Uruguay and Monday night the Spartans trounced Argentina, 96-83, behind Kelsner's 28 points. Kelsner's knee injury was not serious.

That set up the rematch between MSU and Brazil in the finals Tuesday night.

MSU was the only United States team in the South American tournaments. One American college is selected each year to play in the tournaments.

Women golfers win in Illinois

By MIKE KLOCKE
State News Sports Writer

With one group left on the course, the MSU women's golf team was clinging to a narrow three-shot advantage in the final round of the Illinois State Invitational last weekend.

Spartan coach Mary Fossum was naturally a little nervous, since MSU's Sue Ertl was in the final group. "She had a big grin on her face as she came to the green; it was as if she was saying, 'Everything's all right,'" Fossum said.

Everything was all right. Ertl, a senior co-captain from Ionia, shot a 73 to lead MSU to first-place in the 19-team tourney. That, coupled with an opening round 76, gave Ertl medalist honors with a 149.

In the final round, MSU expanded its two-stroke lead over Indiana to win the tourney by eight strokes with a 633 total.

And Fossum had to be pleased with the consistency her team displayed over the two-day competition. Other scores for MSU were: Sue Conlin, 78-82 for 160; Beth Sierra, 79-82 for 161; Ann Atwood, 82-82 for 164; Lisa Speaker, 83-81 for 164; and Arlene Grenier, 89-95 for 184.

Since Fossum lost three standouts from last year's squad, she said she was especially pleased with the play of Sierra and Speaker, both freshmen.

"It's great experience for them — going on a trip like this and playing against some of the top teams in the country," Fossum said. "It makes them see that they can hit the ball as good as some of the best players in the country and the only difference is they make a few more mistakes."

Prior to the Illinois tourney, MSU opened its fall schedule with an eighth-place finish in the prestigious Susie M. Berning Classic in Oklahoma City, Okla. Fossum said she was a little disappointed with the finish, since MSU had been in fifth place after the first two days of play.

Texas won the 18-team tournament, paced by medalist Lori Huxold's 219 total. Ertl tied for fifth individually with 74-77-78 for 229.

Conlin, whom Fossum said had been playing very consistent golf, was the next highest Spartan finisher with 80-77-81 for 238. Other scores for MSU were Speaker, 81-83-81 for a 245; Atwood, 82-79-88 for a 249; and Sierra, 85-85-86 for a 256.

MSU will host the MSU Invitational, an 18-hole tournament, Friday and Saturday at Forest Akers Golf Course. Teams from 10 different states will be entered in the competition.

Fossum said she plans to enter both a Green and a White team in the tournament.

Ticket sales set

Beginning today, students may purchase tickets for reserved seats for all home football games. They will be on sale for $24 per set at the north concourse of Spartan Stadium through Sept. 23. There will be no coupon exchange again this year and the ticket obtained will be your reserved seat for the remainder of the season.

Purchase of tickets is done by student ID number and will follow this schedule:

• Thursday, Sept. 21, 7 a.m. to

- 12:30 p.m., 1 through 741599
- Thursday, Sept. 21, 12:30 p.m. to 6 p.m., 741600 through 770499;
- Friday, Sept. 22, 7 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., 795000 through 794999; and
- Saturday, Sept. 23, 7 a.m. through 2 p.m., any number.

Varsity meetings

All candidates interested in playing varsity hockey for MSU will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Munn Arena.

Meetings have also been set for the MSU swimming team. People interested in trying out for the team will meet today at 3 p.m. in 208 Men's IM Bldg. Varsity members will meet Friday at the same time and place.

Anyone interested in playing soccer for MSU should be on the playing field on Shaw Lane Friday, at 4:30 p.m., dressed and ready to go.

There will be a meeting for people interested in varsity lacrosse Tuesday, Sept. 26 at the lacrosse office in Jenison. If there are any questions, call coach Nevin Kanner at 332-2970.

Dates set for IM meetings for many fall sports

MEN'S INTRAMURALS
 There will be an officials meeting for touch football Thursday, Sept. 21 in 206 Men's IM Bldg. at 6 p.m.
 Touch football team managers must attend or have a representative at one of the meetings scheduled for their respective leagues. The meeting dates are the only time entries will be accepted. The meetings for residence hall, fraternity and independent teams are Sept. 25-27 in the Men's IM Sports Arena at 6 p.m. There will be a limit on the number of teams and the cost per team is $15. Play begins Oct. 1 and there will be preseason scrimmages.
 There is a managers meeting for independent soccer on Wednesday, Sept. 25 in 215 Men's IM Bldg. at 7 p.m. Soccer teams may have to play on weekends because of construction on the east IM fields.
 The entry deadline for six-member volleyball team is noon on Friday, Sept. 29. The cost is $15. The play will be on Wednesdays and Mondays if needed.
 Deadline for entry for fraternity bowling league is noon, Friday, Sept. 29. The bowling is done on Tuesday nights and there are five members on a team.

 The deadline for entry is the same as above for residence hall bowling, which will be held Monday through Thursday every week, depending on the number of entries.
 The deadline for entry for team paddleball is noon, Friday Oct. 6. This will be in a tournament format with four-person teams — two singles and two doubles players.
 Among the other events scheduled for fall term are the Turkey Trot cross country race, team badminton, and a singles tennis tournament.

WOMEN'S INTRAMURALS
 A team representative meeting for women's volleyball will be held Tuesday, Sept. 26 in 137 Women's IM Bldg. at 6 p.m.
 A team representatives meeting for women's touch football will be held Tuesday, Sept. 26 in 137 Women's IM Bldg. at 7 p.m.
 Team entry deadlines for touch football and volleyball for women are Thursday, Sept. 28, at noon in 121 Women's IM Bldg.
 An officials clinic for women's volleyball will be held Thursday, Sept. 28, in 137 Women's IM Bldg. at 7:30 p.m.

Disco Roller skating, sponsored by the Women's IM Department, will be held on three Thursdays during fall term, Oct. 5, Nov. 2 and Dec. 7. All three will begin at 10 p.m. and run to midnight in the Upper Gym at the Women's IM Building.
CO-REC INTRAMURALS
 A mandatory meeting for team representatives for co-rec touch football, a new sport this fall, will be held Monday, Sept. 26, in 137 Women's IM Bldg. at 7 p.m.
 Team representative meeting for co-rec volleyball will be Monday, Sept. 25, in 137 Women's IM Bldg. at 7 p.m.

Area group aids opposition to n-power purchase

Pickets gathered Monday in front of the Lansing Board of Water and Light to protest the board's recent proposal to buy a percentage of nuclear power generated by a Consumers Power plant. The power plant is under construction near Midland.

By PAUL COX
State News Staff Writer
Another Lansing-area group — Ratepayers United — has joined in opposition to the Lansing Board of Water and Light's proposed purchase of nuclear energy.

About 30 sign-carrying, slogan-shouting pickets protested the board's proposal to buy 7 percent of Consumers Power's Midland nuclear generation plant. The protest took place in front of the board's 123 W. Ottawa St. office in Lansing Monday.

Marty Bakken, Ratepayers United chairperson, and an Ingham County Energy Commissioner, said the group is a coalition of area labor leaders, consumer advocates, environmentalists and civic leaders.

The purpose of the demonstration was to draw more attention to the board's upcoming decision, Bakken said.

Concerns about the purchase include the need for a healthy environment, keeping utility costs down and keeping jobs in the Lansing area, Bakken said.

He said he is particularly concerned because the Board has indicated the decision will be made without a public hearing.

Zoltan Ferency, associate professor of criminal justice, who participated in the demonstration, said he is concerned with the "fateful decisions" being made by the board without "democratic input." He said he is also interested in the total issue, including economic and environmental questions.

"The board is running roughshod over the people by refusing them the right to participate in this decision, which will directly affect them," Ferency said.

The board will decide on a new energy source to meet future needs by the end of the year, Earl Brush, the board's general manager, said.

Buying into the Midland plant which is under construction, and expanding the current energy source, the Erickson coal generation plant in Delta Township, are the board's most likely options, he said.

Buying into the Midland plant has been recommended to the board by an independent engineering study conducted by R.W. Beck and Associates.

The Beck report supports the Midland purchase for economic reasons but also cautions about possible risks associated with nuclear energy.

"Buying into the Midland plant would create jobs in Midland and not Lansing — and we need jobs in Lansing," Bakken said.

Signs in the picket cited a more than 500 percent increased cost so far in building the Midland plant. This along with unknown nuclear fuel costs and unknown radioactive waste disposal cost, would become the Board's responsibility and would lead to higher utility rates, Bakken said.

Poll shows Milliken in the lead; senate contest still in dead heat

By KIM GAZELLA
State News Staff Writer
Michigan voters favor Gov. William G. Milliken in this fall's election race against Democrat William Fitzgerald, but U.S. Senate candidates are running in a dead heat toward the Nov. 7 election.

The Detroit News has released these results as part of The Michigan Poll, which is conducted by Market Opinion Research of Detroit for WJBK TV-2 and The Detroit News.

The poll is based on 600 statewide telephone interviews with registered voters. "Likely voters" in the survey are those who indicate they vote in all or almost all elections while "all voters" are all people called.

A Sept. 8 to 11 poll showed Milliken with a 12-point lead, having 48 percent over Fitzgerald's 36 percent among "likely voters." Sixteen percent are undecided.

This differs only slightly from an Aug. 17 to 20 canvas where Milliken had 47 percent to Fitzgerald's 35 percent among "likely voters." The undecided voters made up 18 percent.

Among all voters called, the September poll showed an 11 percentage-point lead for Milliken, compared to a seven-point lead in August.

The September "all voter" poll gave Milliken 47 percent; Fitzgerald, 36 percent; and undecided, 17 percent. In August, Milliken had 44 percent; Fitzgerald, 37 percent; and undecided 19 percent among the "all voters."

The U. S. Senate race has shown a turnout since August, with voters giving Democratic candidate Carl Levin an edge over Republican incumbent Robert Griffin.

Of the likely voters, 45 percent now favor Levin while 44 percent favor Griffin, with 11 percent undecided.

Honors College taking requests

Applications are being accepted at the Honors College in Eustace Hall now through Oct. 1 for graduate fellowships to be awarded in April by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Mo.

The Danforth Graduate Fellowship is a one-year award which is based on financial need and is normally renewable until completion of the advanced degree for a maximum of four years of graduate study.

Established in 1927, the Danforth Foundation describes itself as a "national, educational, philanthropic organization, dedicated to enhancing the humane dimensions of life."

Activities of the Foundation have stressed the importance of improving the quality of teaching and learning.

The Foundation says it is currently making a special effort to bring qualified persons from racial and ethnic minorities into the profession of teaching.

Qualified persons with interests in a career of higher education teaching and who plan to study for a doctorate in fields common to the undergraduate liberal arts curriculum in the United States may apply.

Approximately 60 to 65 fellowships will be awarded to college seniors nominated by 8 Baccalaureate Liaison Officers.

In addition, 40 to 45 awards will be presented to doctoral candidates, nominated by Postbaccalaureate Liaison Officers.

Applicants for the baccalaureate awards must be college seniors and may not have taken graduate-level programs of study.

PROGRAM NOW ON CAMPUS

Food stamps available

By MARCIA BRADFORD
State News Staff Writer

Students seeking assistance for their food bills may go to second floor Union Concourse to apply for food stamps from the Food Stamp Outreach Program.

The program, offered through the Ingham County Department of Social Services, will be on campus until Oct. 14, to provide screening and interviews for those students who may be eligible to receive food stamps.

Outreach was started last year at MSU to make food stamps applications more convenient for students and to ease the crowded conditions at the Department of Social Services, Betty Thoepe, coordinator of the program said.

"The food stamp program is one of the most complicated programs that the government has," Thoepe said. "For students seeking assistance the situation is even worse. Through the Outreach Program we can deal with the unique problems of the student applying for food stamps."

Last year the program screened about 1,500 students and certified about 700 to receive food stamps. To receive assistance, students must be financially independent of their parents, have their own cooking facilities and may not be a resident of an institution or group home.

Applicants must also meet the income requirements, which are determined on an individual basis. A list of further requirements is available through the program.

"Many of the students screen themselves before even talking to us," Thoepe said. "They see that they do not meet the requirements and leave."

Students who do receive food stamps must reapply every term. Thoepe explained, and changes in an individual's financial status and in the department's budget affect the rates each term.

Thoepe said the food stamp law is currently being changed and a 20-hour-per-week work requirement for students is expected to go into effect Jan. 1.

Also, the new yearly budget, which will cut off food stamp assistance to those with higher incomes, is expected to eliminate many students who are now eligible along with many others of the general population, she said.

Thoepe said the majority of the students applying are married and have sought loans or grants which they have not received.

Student voters sought by group

Students wanting to register to vote in East Lansing or Meridian Township can do so by registering with a group called VOTER.

VOTER, an acronym for Various Organizations to Encourage Registration, is a coalition attempting to register the maximum number of students possible in East Lansing and Meridian Township.

Jim Paquet of VOTER said deputy clerks will be posted at several campus locations, including the Union, International Center, book stores, Spartan Stadium, dormitory cafeterias, and area churches.

Prospective voters simply register with the volunteer clerks.

Paquet said students should register in the Lansing area because they are a vital part of the community and all issues they vote on will directly affect them.

He also said students are more likely to be better informed about local candidates, and it is simply more convenient to vote in the Lansing area than send for absentee ballots.

The deadline to register is Oct. 10 and qualifications are:
• Persons must be U.S. citizens.
• Persons must be 18 or over before the Nov. 7 election date, and
• Persons must be residents of Michigan and the city in which they live for 30 days prior to the election.

Students and residents can also register at the East Lansing City Clerk's office at City Hall, 410 Abbott Road, or the Meridian Township office, 5100 Marsh Road, Okemos.

The Grand River Avenue congestion which began in July won't be getting less hectic, especially since the local population has doubled since the project began. Construction officials originally predicted that construction would be completed by the first MSU home football game this weekend.

PUBLIC LANDS FOR LEASE TO SELECT FEW

Lottery offers chance at oil riches

WASHINGTON (AP) — From time to time the government allows the public to buy oil and gas leases on public land and some firms have advertised this as a potential route to quick wealth and fortune. What the firms offer is assistance in entering your name in the official government lottery drawings for the leases. But they cannot improve your chance of getting selected in this lottery. You can enter on your own if you know what to do.

First, however, it should be noted that federal lands within a known oil and gas producing area are not offered by lottery.

Those are issued to the qualified person who makes the highest bid.

It's the lands which are not in a known oil or gas producing area — also called wildcat areas — that are offered by lottery.

Previously long lines formed when such lands were offered for lease, fights often broke out disrupting business and even injuring employees trying to control the crowd. The result was the establishment of the drawings.

The Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management has now issued a booklet telling how to get your name entered

Buses from library scheduled this term

Instead of having to walk home in the dark, students studying late into the night will be able to take the bus home from the library this term.

Campus Bus System has initiated a special library bus service with buses leaving the library at midnight and 12:20 a.m. Monday through Thursday.

The bus leaving the library at midnight will travel down West Circle to Farm Lane and Shaw Lot and continue on Shaw Lane to Conrad Library.

The second bus will stop at Brody Complex, Spartan Village, University Village and South Complex.

There the relaxing world of coloring books and other children's delights is discovered.

The usual Snoopy and Bugs Bunny coloring books can easily be found. One book, with the usual toy trucks and skyscrapers, contains descriptions of the pictures that may raise some eyebrows — they are in Polish.

"Let's Color in Polish", the first coloring book for learning the Polish language, was printed and financed by John Sarnacki, professor of Spanish and French, who teaches for Port Huron Public Schools and St. Clair Public Community College.

"I did the book because I found a need for it," he explained. The book includes the Polish alphabet, a pronunciation guide glossary and exercises as well as pictures to color.

It also contains the Polish National Anthem, Happy Birthday and the Lord's Prayer in Polish.

"Now because of the increasing interest in, and resurgence of the ethnicity, a need and a demand for a publication of this kind is indicated," Sarnacki said.

The coloring book is not simply restricted to Polish people, Sarnacki explained. Anyone can pick up the book and just color.

Some students, when asked if they would buy the book for themselves or for others, said the coloring book would be interesting if they "were high."

More serious students of Polish descent said they would buy the book if money was available because they knew very little Polish and it would be a fun way to learn.

WHO TO CALL, WHERE TO GO

E.L. officials accessible to students

What happens in East Lansing city government often affects students' lives in one way or another.

To find out what policies are being made or to voice ideas and opinions, a list follows of who to call and where to go.

The city manager holds the administrative power in East Lansing. Jerry B. Coffman was hired to fill that position in January 1977. His office is located at city hall, 410 Abbott Rd.

The city council, which is composed of five elected non-partisan members serving four-year terms, decides policy. The mayor and mayor pro-tem are selected from within the council by its members.

The current mayor is George L. Griffiths and Larry Owen serves as mayor pro-tem.

Griffiths can be reached by calling his home at 127 Bessemaur Drive or by leaving a message with the city manager's office.

Owen can be contacted by calling his Michigan Senate campaign headquarters, 527 S. Washington Ave.

Other councilmembers are John B. Czarnecki, Alan Fox and Carolyn Stell.

Czarnecki can be reached at his home at 520 Sycamore Lane after 6 p.m.

He also holds office hours on the second floor of city hall on the first Monday of each month from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. No appointment is necessary. Visitors should ask for him at the police desk, he said.

Fox can be contacted by note or phone at home, 745 Burcham Drive, Apt. 28.

Stell can be phoned at her home, 425 Cowley Ave. or at the State of Michigan Department of Commerce Insurance Bureau.

City council meets on the first and third Tuesdays of each month at the East Lansing Public Library, 950 Abbott Road.

A number of advisory commissions and boards also meet monthly. Commissions include Recreation, Human Relations, Planning Building Board of Appeals, Fine Arts and Housing and Community Development.

A list of dates, times and locations of all meetings for the month can be obtained from the city clerk's office in city hall.

Carter backed for Nobel Prize

WASHINGTON (AP) — Resolutions proposing that President Carter be awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for his Middle East peace efforts were introduced this week in both houses of Congress.

The Senate resolution, introduced by Delaware Republican William Roth, supported the Camp David summit agreements and placed the Senate on record as favoring the Nobel award to Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

"I think he (Carter) richly deserves a Nobel Peace Prize for devoting his time and energy to a task that is so meaningful to the people of the Middle East and so important to the cause of world peace," Roth said.

Distinguished staff nominations opened

Non-teaching University employees who have been at MSU for two years are eligible for distinguished staff awards.

Nominations for awards opened Sept. 6 and close Oct. 6.

A 15-member committee composed of persons from various non-teaching units of the University will select the award winners from the list of nominations.

Criteria used in judging include: excellence in overall work performance; exhibition of a congenial and supportive attitude; valuable service to the University and/or community; and exhibition of initiative.

An engraved pewter mug or bowl and $1,000 will be given to the six award recipients.

JUST A BEGINNING, OFFICIALS FEAR

Teachers' strikes hitting near-record pace

NEW YORK (AP) — Teachers, frustrated by inflation and classroom turmoil, are encountering voters, equally inflation-weary and frustrated by falling student test scores. The result: teachers' strikes hitting a near-record pace this year.

And there is a growing conviction among school officials, union leaders and teachers that discontent is so deep that September's turbulence will only intensify in the months ahead.

Albert Shanker, president of the 500,000-member American Federation of Teachers, says his members are developing a "foxhole mentality." Thomas Shannon, executive director of the National School Boards Association, sees a "new dimension" in negotiations. After years of concessions, he says, "school boards want to get something back for what they are giving up."

By mid-September, teachers nationwide had called 50 strikes. The National Education Association estimates such a pace could equal or surpass the record of 203 set in 1975-76.

Strikes have affected school districts ranging from Philadelphia, Pa., with 250,000 students to Oak Harbor, Wash., with 5,300 pupils.

As teachers grow angry over their situation, school officials watch, and sometimes are controlled by, the voters' mood. Citizens whose own incomes have been cut by inflation are voting down school budget increases, and the tax revolt fueled by California's Proposition 13 is only increasing the confrontation.

In Bridgeport, Conn., where more than 100 teachers have been jailed in a strike, Ellen Wisser, an English teacher, sat by a telephone at her union's "crisis center."

"I can't believe it's come to this," she said. "But they've underestimated our strength. We won't be stripped of our dignity."

But more than dignity is jeopardized. Between September 1975 and June 1978, teacher salaries nationwide rose an average 5.9 percent while inflation averaged more than 7.1 percent.

The federal government estimates a public school teacher this year will earn an average of $15,250. In 1960 dollars — to offset inflation's impact — that comes to only $6,750.

Teachers are not alone, however. It is difficult for taxpayers to show compassion when statistics show teachers' real wages increased 32 percent since 1960, compared to only 16 percent for all private non-farmworkers.

"Yes, we have scored some success," says Terry Herndon, executive director of the 1.8 million-member NEA. "But now we want to sustain those gains and inflation threatens to erode our improvement."

That same inflation has stimulated voters to approve such measures as Proposition 13 and to defeat a growing number of school budgets. In New York, voters rejected 14.8 percent of school budgets in the 1974-75 school year but 29 percent last year. In New Jersey, the 1974-75 rejection rate of 24.6 percent has grown to 57.5 percent.

Educators say it is inequitable that schools should be hit more than other public services, and the NEA's Herndon says the fallout from Proposition 13 is unfair to education.

"The protest is to an undefined dimension of government," Herndon says.

"The public does not want to reduce expenditures for education, but there's no question that public schools are caught in the cross-fire."

To many school boards, public anger translates into support in negotiations. And with school board austerity also come threats to job security and classroom conditions. An NEA study indicates teachers are also worried by large classes, student discipline, school crime, and public criticism of teachers because of students' falling test scores.

Such morale problems, teachers and union leaders agree, often fuel the friction. Like the salary issue, the resolution often lies with money, an increasingly rare commodity.

Government leases land

in these drawings if you are interested. The booklet "Can You Really Strike it Rich in the Government Oil and Gas Lottery" is available without charge from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 682F, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

But the government reminds you that most of these lands, nearly all of which are in the West, are never drilled, and chances of winning the lottery are slim anyway. Last year about 2.5 million people applied for 9,000 tracts.

When a drawing is planned, the state BLM office prepares a list of available tracts ranging from 40 acres to 2,560 acres. These can be obtained for a few dollars from the state offices.

Lease applications are accepted until 10 a.m. on the fifth working day after the posting. The forms are available at any BLM office and must be accompanied by a $10 fee which cannot be refunded. If you win, you must pay the annual lease fee of $1 an acre within 15 days.

You will probably then want to sell your lease to an oil company or independent contractor because drilling is very costly and a $10,000 bond must be posted before work can begin.

If your lease is near a known oil or gas development, a company will probably approach you and offer a lump sum or royalty interest in any future production. If the area is more speculative, you'll have to look for a buyer.

Government experts say you may prefer to use a filing service that will evaluate the available tracts and handle the paperwork for you, but they suggest being wary of firms painting an overly optimistic picture.

Long-lost book

SALMON, Idaho (AP) - Missing for 47 years, "Fortunes of Nigel" has finally returned to its place on the shelves of the Salmon Public Library.

The book, written by Sir Walter Scott, was checked out in 1931 and never returned.

A sharp-eyed library aide spotted it at a rummage sale recently and returned it to the shelves.

Library officials said fines totaled $291.40. But they have little hope of ever collecting the money since the card number was reassigned many years ago.

Now there's a Tampax tampon designed to meet every need

SUPER PLUS

Super Plus Tampax tampons are ideal for heavy flow days because there is no tampon that's more absorbent or more comfortable. With the extra protection Super Plus tampons provide, you may never again need the help of a pad. When your flow is not as heavy, taper off to Super or Regular Tampax tampons.

SUPER

Super Tampax tampons are the #1 choice of more women than any other tampon in the world. Like all Tampax tampons, they're designed to conform naturally to your inner contours. You can depend on them to help you avoid menstrual bypass and embarrassing accidents like leakage and staining.

Items Courtesy: AMI Health-Sport-Wear

REGULAR

Regular Tampax tampons are perfect for a lighter flow. They're easy to insert. Like Super and Super Plus, the smooth container-applicator places the tampon correctly and hygienically. Your fingers never touch the tampon. Unlike tampons with plastic applicators, both the tampon and applicator are flushable and biodegradable.

Tampax tampons now give you even more freedom of choice.

The feminine protection more women trust TAMPAX tampons

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY OLIN HEALTH CENTER...

PROGRAM STATEMENT

GENERAL POLICY

Olin Health Center provides health services for Michigan State University students who are in need of medical, minor and/or diagnostic surgery, general dental service or psychiatric care. Health care is also provided to University employees for job-related injuries and pre-employment physical examinations. There is no charge for an office visit with a physician or a nurse that includes an examination, counseling and minor treatment. Support services, such as laboratory work and x-ray, will be made at the prevailing fee. (See paragraph under "Charges".)

OFFICE HOURS

The medical staff is on duty to attend students with appointments in the clinic from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., and 6 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Monday thru Friday. Walk-ins (students without appointments) may be seen in the clinic from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., and 6 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. daily. Saturday clinic hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. except days of home football games, and the hours will then be 10 a.m. to 12 noon and 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Olin Health Center will be closed after 10 p.m. daily, after clinic hours on Saturday, and all day Sunday. Patients requiring emergency treatment, or care for an acute illness at times other than established office hours, should go to a local hospital emergency room.

PERSONS ELIGIBLE FOR CARE

All students enrolled in the University and taking seven or more credits will be charged an $18 health fee at registration and are entitled to health service during the term in which they are enrolled. All other enrolled students carrying less than seven credits may purchase a health fee card at registration, or at Olin Health Center, for $18 per term which makes them eligible for health care during the term in which they are enrolled. Any student who has been eligible at Olin Health Center during the immediate past term will be eligible for care during a term break provided he or she intends to enroll in the subsequent term. If a student utilizes the facilities of Olin Health Center during an interterm recess period, and then fails to enroll for the subsequent term, he or she will be billed for the services rendered at the prevailing fees.

APPOINTMENTS

Appointments to see a physician may be made by calling the Olin Health Center Appointment Office, 353-4660, Monday thru Friday, from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. For Dental Office, 353-4660, Monday thru Friday, from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. For Dental Office and Gynecology Clinic appointments, call the Olin Health Center switchboard, 355-4510. Students who come to Olin Health Center without an appointment will be seen according to time of arrival. Patients will be seen initially by a medical staff person where pertinent information will be obtained for the attending physician.

CHARGES FOR SERVICES RENDERED

The Health Center fee provides full coverage for office visits for eligible students when seen at Olin Health Center. Patients will be charged for all diagnostic procedures and treatments. Medications and medical supplies are dispensed according to established fee schedules. All x-rays, clinical laboratory, physical therapy treatments and professional procedures are charged according to the type of service provided. Generally, the charges for services rendered at Olin Health Center are the same as or less than community prevailing rates. Examples of charges are as follows:

Radiology - 1. Chest (one view)	$18.00
2. Abdominal (Flat)	$23.50
3. Ankle	$28.00
Laboratory - 1. Urinalysis	$3.00
2. C.B.C.	$7.00
3. Pregnancy Test	$6.00
Pharmacy - 1. Prescription for 30 penicillin tablets	$2.60
2. Birth Control Pills	$2.60
3. Expectorants	$2.40 - $3.70

SPECIALITY CLINICS

Wart Clinic . . .

A speciality clinic for the removal of superficial skin lesions (warts) is available to the student. Appointments for this clinic can be made through the Appointment Office, 353-4660. There is a fee of $5 per visit.

Gynecology Clinic . . .

Olin Health Center provides an outpatient gynecology service which is staffed by Olin physicians and a nurse service assistant. Routine pap smears, family planning, and gynecological problems, as well as problem pregnancy consultations, are available. Appointments for this clinic can be made by calling the Olin Health Center switchboard, 355-4510. The fees for this clinic vary with procedures, from $7.50 for a pap smear to $22 for placement of an I.U.D.

Dental Service . . .

General dentistry is also available at Olin, and appointments can be made by calling the Olin switchboard. Some charges for this service are: Oral Examinations, $15; Radiographs, $4; and Complete Intraoral Series, $30.

Mental Health . . .

An outpatient mental health service is housed at Olin Health Center, and this service is available to all students. The professional staff for the mental health service is provided by the Department of Psychiatry and the Counseling Center. Appointments can be made by calling the Olin Health Center switchboard. There is no charge for the first four visits to the Mental Health Clinic, however, there is a $5 fee for all subsequent visits.

Allergy Clinic . . .

Patients who have special medications or allergy vaccines may have these preparations stored at Olin Health Center. The charge for administering the allergen is $1.

Urology Clinic . . .

Olin Health Center provides a Urology Clinic for students with urological problems. The clinic hours are 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday and Thursday, and 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday. Appointments may be made by calling the Appointment Office or by referral from a staff physician. The only charge for this clinic would be for support services, such as x-ray or laboratory, and a nominal fee for any professional procedure that might be necessary, such as a cystoscopy examination.

Cold Clinic . . .

A Cold Clinic is available to eligible University students during the winter months. A self-care concept is used in this specialty clinic, and educational material is available. The fee for this clinic is for medications only.

EDUCATION MATERIALS

Health education materials are available at Olin Health Center at no cost to the student. Questions regarding specific medical problems can be referred to the professional staff at Olin Health Center, and there is no charge for this service. Olin Health Center has a Speaker's Bureau that will make staff persons available to speak on selected subjects.

HOSPITALIZATION

Students who are too ill to attend classes may be hospitalized at Olin Health Center or at a community hospital. A daily room and board charge will be made in addition to charges for all other diagnostic procedures and services.

SURGICAL FEES

All surgical fees, including anesthetic fees, are the responsibility of the patient.

CONSULTANTS

Consultants may be called upon the recommendation of the staff physician, and their professional fees will be the responsibility of the patient.

AMBULANCE SERVICE

Olin Health Center does not pay for ambulance service, and the student is responsible for charges if one is needed.

CLASS EXCUSES

Olin Health Center is authorized to issue class absence excuses only to those students who have been hospitalized at Olin Health Center. These excuses cover only the period of time that the student has been hospitalized. No other class excuse will be issued by Olin Health Center personnel except in those cases where a very temporary infirmity prevents or restricts participation in physical education classes. Verification of an outpatient clinic visit as to time and date of the visit can be obtained by asking the medical personnel.

PAYMENTS AND CHARGES

All charges under $5 must be paid within a 48 hour period. If the transaction is less than $5, and if the patient is unable to pay within 48 hours, he or she will be billed a minimum of $5. Hold cards are placed on all outstanding accounts, and registration for the next term or receiving a diploma is delayed until payment is made.

INSURANCE

Medical insurance coverage is encouraged for all students, either through their parents or by subscribing to the ASMSU program which is available to all students. Most insurance companies will pay for diagnostic, outpatient laboratory and x-ray services as well as inpatient services. Some insurance companies pay for prescriptions. It is best to check with your insurance carrier or your policy to see what is covered.

STUDENT ADVISORY BOARD TO THE HEALTH CENTER

Approximately two years ago, a Student Advisory Board was established to advise Olin Health Center of the needs and wants of the students. This Board is made up of interested students and is open to all students. There are three basic committees to the Advisory Board:

The Education Committee functions to develop educational material dealing with health needs of the student and will function in setting up a program for health seminars in the dormitories. The Policy and Procedure Committee function is to review established policies and procedures of the Health Center and recommend changes that will best serve the students. The Concern Committee (formerly the Complaint Committee) function is to receive student comment about services received and to direct these comments to the Director for action. During the school term, regular hours are maintained by the Committee at Olin Health Center to receive these comments.

OLIN HEALTH CENTER STAFF

The medical staff is made up of primary care physicians who hold D.O. or M.D. degrees and are licensed to practice medicine in the State of Michigan.

The nursing staff is made up of registered nurses who hold licenses in the State of Michigan. The Nursing Department also includes orderlies, nurse aides and office assistants. Licensed practical nurses are also members of the health care delivery team.

The clinical laboratory is under the direction of a clinical pathologist, and it is staffed with medical technologists who are licensed by the State of Michigan.

The Radiology Department is directed by a radiologist and is staffed by licensed technicians.

The Pharmacy is staffed by registered pharmacists who hold degrees in pharmacy and are licensed by the State of Michigan. The Physical Therapy Department is staffed by one full-time and one part-time registered physical therapists. A physical therapy aide also assists in the department.

The dental staff is made up of 1 part-time dentist licensed to practice dentistry in the State of Michigan.

SUMMARY

It is the goal of Olin Health Center to provide high quality patient care to University students so that they may carry on their academic endeavors with as little interruption as possible in their daily routine.
