S. Africa's Vorster resigns; cites health

By BRIEGE SCHEMANN Associated Press Writer

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) - Prime Minister Pieter W. Vorster resigned Wednesday for health reasons, 10 years after he was sworn in as the leading member of a coalition government that had been formed in a bid to end South Africa's racial segregation.

Vorster's announcement came just hours after the government faced a vote of no confidence in the National Assembly, though he said he had no plans to resign.

"I feel that my health has deteriorated very much," Vorster said in a speech to the National Assembly. "I have consulted many doctors and they all tell me the same thing."

Vorster's resignation was announced in a statement read by his deputy, Mr. Hendrik van der Vyver, who is also the finance minister.

Vorster had been prime minister since 1966 and had led the National Party to power in 1967. He was succeeded by his deputy, Mr. William G. W. Vorster, who has been acting as acting prime minister.

Vorster took office following the death of his predecessor, Mr. Andries B. van der Wende, who had died in office in 1966.

Vorster's resignation is the first major political change in South Africa since 1985, when the apartheid government was forced to dissolve both of its main political parties.

Vorster's resignation comes after a series of political victories for the opposition. Vorster's party has been in power since 1948 and has been accused of human rights violations and corruption.

Vorster said he had no plans to resign and would remain prime minister until a new prime minister is appointed.

Rhodesian forces hit guerrilla bases

SAULSBURY, Zimbabwwe (AP) - Rhodesian forces hit guerrilla bases across the country before launching a major countrywide sweep in a new effort by President Ian Smith to end the guerrilla war, a defense command announced Wednesday morning.

The announcement said the targets were near-the-leftist guerrilla base in Mozambique and the nearest village of Robert Mugabe, the former leader of the African National Union of Robert Mugabe, who died in May of heart disease. Smith said the attack was to be the start of a new phase in the struggle against the guerrillas. Smith said the new offensive would follow the latest of the UN Security Council's resolutions, which ordered the rebels to give up their arms and return to the negotiating table. Smith said he would also call for all UN observers to be withdrawn from the country.

N-power in Lansing area questionable, board finds

By PAUL COX
State News Writer
If nuclear energy is to be used in the Lansing area's future power needs, many questions have to be answered.
That was the conclusion of a working party put on by the Citizens' Group for the Study of Light and Gas, which solicited the help of NRW Bank and American engineering consultants of Columbus, Ohio, today.
A report by the firm has recommended the possibility of LEN, but the working party believes it is not practical enough to be considered.
Mystery still surrounds disappearance of three E. Lansing-area women
Now law enforcement agencies remain puzzled by the disappearance of three women who last were seen in East Lansing the summer before.
There has been no word of the whereabouts of the three women since they were last seen.
The disappearance of the women was discovered last month by a local police department when a woman's body was found along the 1300 block of E. Lansing.
The women's bodies were never found by the police department,

Students fight heat, crowds

Temperatures soared both inside and out of the crowded MSU buildings this week as students battled long lines and scorching heat in an attempt to prepare for the upcoming school year. Preparing for classes has been a struggle for many, with overcrowding and lack of organization. The process of registering for classes has been exacerbated by the heat, with students reporting that they have been forced to wait in long lines for extended periods of time.

To add to the stress, several students reported that they have been unable to find classes that meet their needs due to the high demand for courses. Many students have had to wait in line for hours to find spots in the classes they need. The heat has made the process even more difficult, with many students reporting that they have been forced to stand in the sun for extended periods of time.

Despite these challenges, many students are determined to make the most of their college experience. They are determined to overcome the heat and find the classes they need to succeed. However, the process of registering for classes has been made more difficult by the heat, with many students reporting that they have been forced to wait in long lines for extended periods of time.

The Who don’t sell out

BY DAVE MARTINO

A sound of important news about The Who has been in the air, too. New York Times, an entertainment writer, interviewed that reporter. "No, I don't think so," he said. "The Who and the band are busy preparing for their upcoming tour. They have been working on some new material, and are excited about the show they will be doing. The band is preparing for a new album that they hope to release soon. They are also planning to play some of their classic songs, but with a new twist.

The Who are known for their energetic performances and their ability to connect with their fans. The band has always been known for their intense and passionate live shows, and they are looking forward to bringing that energy to their upcoming tour. The band has been rehearsing for weeks, and have been working hard to perfect their music and their stage show.

The Who have always been a band that has pushed the boundaries of rock music, and they are looking forward to continuing that tradition with their new album and live shows. The band is excited to share their music with their fans once again, and they are looking forward to a successful tour.
Savoy Brown returns to the bar

Savoy Brown is coming to town. But the last time they were here...

Simpletly is nothing new in rock and the Savoy Brown's name is mentioned, almost always in the same context: '70s rock. But there's also a certain amount of nostalgia that goes with the name of Savoy Brown. They've been around for a while, and they have a certain following.
And they have a certain amount of credit for their music, which has been influential on later bands. But Savoy Brown is still a band, and they should not be left on the sidelines.

Monday night's show at the Silver Dollar saloon in East Lansing was a reminder of why Savoy Brown is still a band. They were in town, and they were playing. They were playing well, and they were playing to a crowd.

Savoy Brown was always a bar band and Monday night they were back in the bar. They knew how to do it and they did it well, which may account for their longevity in the business.

Aikido fees draw mixed reactions

By CATHRYN JAFFE

State News/Alligator

Student reaction was mixed this week as confusions set in over the newly identified fees for Aikido, the Japanese martial art, offered for the first time at the University of South Carolina.

When the Student Activities Fees Committee, which sets the student fees, created the fee last year, it was estimated that the fee would be $2.50. But that fee was later increased to $10.

A new fee was required to cover the costs of renting the Forest Lawn Community Center, where the Aikido classes are held.

The fee, which will be charged to all students, both men and women, who want to participate in Aikido, is $18. It goes into effect immediately.

Aikido has been offered on a trial basis at the University of Michigan, the University of Illinois and the University of Washington.

Aikido is a Japanese martial art that stresses the development of moral character and the improvement of physical fitness. It is a full-contact sport, and students are required to wear white pants and black belts.

The fee is intended to cover the costs of renting the Forest Lawn Community Center, where the Aikido classes are held.

The fee is expected to bring in approximately $18,000 a year, which will be used to pay for the rent and other expenses associated with the Aikido program.

The fee is being questioned by some students, who believe it is too high and that the program should be provided free of charge.

Others, however, believe the fee is necessary to continue the program and that it is a reasonable cost for the benefits provided by Aikido.

One student, who preferred to remain anonymous, said, "I think the fee is too high. I think the university should provide this program free of charge."
Tax proposal dies in committee

A legislative tax proposal was blocked from a potential final vote in the Senate when a bill to grant enough support in a House committee to make it to the floor was delayed by the Michigan legislature's procedural rules. The legislative proposal was drafted by the Michigan Education Association and several Democratic legislators as an alternative to the recently enacted tax relief for higher education

Students repudiate Shah

In Jolina L. Lane

SUN News staff writer

When students at Eastern Michigan University stand against their government, they do so to make a statement about their rights and their future. This statement is often interpreted as a protest against the Shah's regime in Iran.

The students' actions can be traced back to the 1970s, when they were faced with the challenge of protesting against the Shah's regime in Iran.

Another Illinois organization, the Illinois Students for a Better Life, was formed in 1973. This organization received widespread publicity after a series of demonstrations and sit-ins in the 1970s. The organization was strengthened by the influx of Iranian students who were protesting against the Shah's regime.

The organization has continued to grow and has become a major force in the struggle against the Shah's regime. Its members continue to fight for their rights and to make their voices heard.

Homeless students have options

by NANCY NOLL
Homes News Staff Writer
Finding a place to live may be the hardest step for a homeless student looking to begin college. Universities, and some communities, have made strides in helping homeless students.

Michael Doherty, assistant director of operations, said the shelter provides housing to 22 students, many of whom are homeless. Doherty said the shelter provides temporary housing to students who are homeless or at risk of homelessness.

"We try to help them find permanent housing," Doherty said.

The shelter provides food, utilities, and laundry services. It also offers counseling services to help students deal with their homelessness.

"The shelter is a safe place for them," Doherty said.

Skydiving...the experience is impossible to describe. The thrill, the fun, in all senses, open and life style, but they share a common bond - the will to live life to the full.

But sport parachuting is not only fun, it's also a healthy sport. And with the recent advances in equipment design and techniques, skydiving is growing rapidly.

We specialize in the hard to fit. Men sizes 34-95 narrow, medium, wide & x-wide. Not all sizes in the shoe picture.

How Eddie Smith was injured

Smith's injury was one of the biggest news stories of the year. According to MSR's head football coach, Darryl Rogers, Smith fell on his head and suffered the injury.

"It came after a few people who feel Eddie should run more,” Rogers said this week.

Salicco's Big 14 game was the big story of the day. MSR lost to Purdue, 21-14, in a game that was very exciting. It will be the final game for the Purdue football team. It will be the last game for the Purdue football team.

PROGRAM NOW ON CAMPUS

Food stamps available

By MARIA BRADFORD

Food Stamp Walk-Ins Students seeking assistance under their own bills may go to several Big Ten Com¬ munities this fall, such as the Food Stamp Outreach Program.

The program, allowed through the U.S. Department of Agriculture, is going on in a number of places for those students who want to apply to receive food stamps.

Outreach was started last fall by MSU, with lost food stamp applications more or less a critical need for food assistance at the Department of Human Services.

Betty Thoren, coordinator of the program said.

Thoren said the program is one of the most important programs that the government has. Thoren said that will be especially true when the situation is even worse. Through the Outreach Program, we are able to deal with the unique problems of the student applying for food stamps. It is a unique program because it is handled once a week. Students are not required to go to the office, but they are required to have all their records of food stamps.

Students must meet several requirements, which are determined by the government. A list of the requirements and the consequences will be made available through the program.

Many of the students are seen themselves before even applying to the program. Thoren said, "They are not able to meet the requirements and need the help of the Food Stamp Program to support themselves every month. They have enjoyed changes in the individual's situation and the Department of Human Services has been able to support the needs of students.

Students wishing to register in the program, at East Lansing or Meridian Township can be referred to by registering with a group of students. The Outreach Program will follow up with the student to ensure that the student is registered or that the student is registered in the correct group.

For more information, contact Thoren at the Office of Student Services.

Buses from library

schooled this term

Instead of having to walk home in the dark, students enrolled this term may be able to ride the two buses from the Trueblood Library to the Student Union.

The buses will run from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. on weekdays, and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends.

The library will be open until 9 p.m. on weekdays, and from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on weekends.

Through Thursday, the bus leaving the library will make stops at West Circle, in the Food Court and in the Main Library.

The buses will run every day, except for holidays.

For more information, contact the Office of Student Services.

JUST A BEGINNING, OFFICIALS FEAR

Teachers’ strikes hitting near-record pace

NEW YORK (AP) - Teachers’ strikes are beginning to spread across the United States, the leaders of a major teachers’ union said Friday, as teacher walkouts have become more common in recent years.

"As a result of the growing nationwide unrest about school affairs, union leaders and their followers believe that discontent is so deep that teachers’ organizations will only become more aggressive, and the number of strikes is on the rise," said Terry Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, one of the nation’s largest labor organizations.

"In Bridgeport, Conn., where more than 150,000 teachers have been on strike for three weeks, teachers say they won’t go back without a major victory," Shanker said.

"Teachers are not alone, because it is difficult for taxpayers to see their children in school during spring break, which doesn’t make things easier for parents," Shanker said. "But, to us, teachers are the true professionals, and we will resist any attempts to reduce expenditures for education, but there’s no question that public schools are caught in the crossfire."

"They say they are targeting schools and districts because they are also worried about large class sizes, high salaries, lack of adequate staff, and so forth, and public officials can’t ignore the threat of teachers’ strikes, which are only on the rise in recent years."

"Teachers and other education professionals have grown frustrated by what they believe are inadequate educational policies, and the American Federation of Teachers is working to ensure that teachers have a voice in educational decisions," Shanker said.

"The strike in Bridgeport is just one example of the growing unrest in the nation’s classrooms. In Michigan, 7,000 teachers have been on strike for two weeks, and in California, 1,500 teachers have been on strike since September," Shanker said.

"We believe that the federal government should make a public school teacher's health an issue," Shanker said. "That’s why we are calling for a moratorium on teacher strikes, and we believe that the strike in Bridgeport is only the beginning of a nationwide teachers’ strike movement."

"Teachers are not going to stand idly by while their students’ education is not being protected, and we will continue to fight for better educational policies and conditions for our students," Shanker said.

"We are not alone, and we believe that other teachers across the country will join us in our fight for better educational conditions for our students," Shanker said.

"Teachers’ strikes are hitting near-record pace, but they will not be the last," Shanker said. "We will continue to fight for better educational policies and conditions for our students, and we believe that the strike in Bridgeport is just the beginning of a nationwide teachers’ strike movement."

Long-lost book

SAVEM, Index (AP) — Making for 47 years "The Book of Night" has finally returned to the place on the shelves of the Nation Public Library.

The book, written by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and published in 1904, was recently discovered in a small town library. The discovery is significant as the book was thought to be lost forever.

J. Doe, a local librarian, said, "It's a remarkable find. We had no idea this book was even missing."

The book is a collection of short stories and is considered a classic work of literature. It has been praised for its unique style and originality.

The book was first published in 1904 and has since become a classic in the literary world. It is known for its imaginative plot and characters.

The discovery of the book has been hailed as a major achievement for the library and the town.

"It's a great day for us," said Doe. "This book has been missing for so long, and now it's finally back in our hands."
