Egypt campaigning for Arab backing

Egypt (AP) -- Egypt launched a diplomatic offensive Tuesday in an effort to win Arab backing for the Camp David agreement with Israel. The Egyptian government has been in consultations with Arab leaders in Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Syria, Lebanon, Iraq, and Tunisia.

Most Arab countries, including Saudi Arabia, have done nothing so far to back Egypt. In Saudi Arabia, the government held consultations with Arab leaders. In Iran, the government of President Mohammad Reza Pahlavi also held consultations with Arab leaders. In Lebanon, the government of President Rafik Hariri also held consultations with Arab leaders. In Jordan, the government of Prime Minister Mohammad al-Sabah also held consultations with Arab leaders. In Syria, the government of President Hafez al-Assad also held consultations with Arab leaders. In Iraq, the government of President Saddam Hussein also held consultations with Arab leaders. In Tunisia, the government of President Zine el-Abidine Ben Ali also held consultations with Arab leaders.

Arms talks resume, prospects uncertain

UNITED NATIONS (AP) -- The United States and the Soviet Union opened a new round of strategic arms limitation talks last week in New York, but prospects for a new round of arms reduction talks are dim.

The talks are expected to last for several weeks, and are expected to focus on issues such as the Strategic Defense Initiative, the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces Treaty, and the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty.

The talks are expected to be difficult, as the United States and the Soviet Union are at odds on many issues, including the Strategic Defense Initiative, the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces Treaty, and the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty.

Other issues remain uncertain, and negotiators are expected to work hard to reach an agreement.

In written testimony for a congressional hearing on arms control, the technology is not ready for many years.

Swallowed pride is the only insurance for peace

Despite the smiling visages exhibited by Jimmy Carter Menachem Begin and Anwar Sadat at the signing ceremonies in the White House last summer, Middle East peace prospects are not bright.

Aside from the impending exit of Israeli troops, the only firm conclusion made was that Middle East peace cannot come about through cooperation by two key countries: Saudi Arabia and Jordan. If the two failed to acknowledge their roles in the peace framework, the Dayton plan was destined to rehash. That much was known before anything was signed. The Cairo plan was taken off the shelf and plowed squarely on the toes of former King Hussein of Jordan and King Fahd of Saudi Arabia. The United States felt the bitter edge of this action in the world being focused on them. But most important of all, both of them were the eyes of the Arab world, especially the eyes of PLO's Arafat, Libya's Khadafi and Syria's Assad. Even though these three mean more to the Arab world than Jordan or Saudi Arabia, they do hold extensive power and influence in the Arab world as a whole. Much more accommodation of these countries must be made and all concerned know this. The point is, it is a waiting game to see who will break first and admit the results.

It is obvious that the PLO must forget about unsettling Israel. It is obvious that Israel must forget about prolonging the war and begin with Arafat, and it is obvious the rest of the Arab world must qualify their support of the Palestinians by admitting that they really aren't that concerned with the refugees - they just don't like Israel.

Because certain things are obvious, the final solution is inevitable. It will be simple. It will take an incredible amount of swallowed national pride for anybody to admit the obvious, but swallowed pride is the only route to peace. At this point Israel must swallow first. A tentative move was made with the Fatah revolution and Begin's arrest of Israeli settlers in the West Bank. But these moves were simply change compared to the supreme sacrifice Israel has yet to make: recognition of the PLO as at least one agent of the Palestinians. Until this earth shaking concession is made, there can be no peace.

A good bill passed 10 years late

Congratulations to the Michigan Legislature for finally getting off their partisan paths and passing a transportation package that should have been passed 10 years ago.

The timing of the transportation package passage was at this time crucial for many reasons. Resolution before the Nov. 7 general election was necessary. If either the tax limitation or tax cutting proposals passed, the decision would be taken to the recently produced areas of the transportation system and diverted to the general fund. Also, failure to act before Oct. 1 would delay for a year the implementation of any new transportation tax to be authorized through license plate fees.

The decision to enact a general agreement that the funding program was necessary. Both gubernatorial candidates supported the transportation package. Governor Young challenger, Mr. Dingell, administered a $500 million increase in the Mass Transit Program, Governor Milliken pledged support for the package.

The decision to enact the transportation package from a bipartisan point of view because of the need for mass transit funding. Their desire, though, was largely ignored.

Senator Democrats could have passed the measure alone, with the support of Pride of the Legislature for finally getting off their partisan paths and passing a transportation package that should have been passed 10 years ago.

BY BILL NELSON

NEW YORK

It's a fine-looking man, the new Mayor of New York City.

When you look at him, you can't help but think of the great days of old. Back then, the Mayor was a real character, a man of action. Now, it seems, the Mayor is just another politician, one of those who say more than they do.

But don't let that fool you. Bill Bratton knows what he's about. He's a man of action, and he's got a plan to make this city great again.

He's going to start by cracking down on crime. He's going to bring back the old days of law and order. And he's going to do it with a tough, no-nonsense approach.

And he's going to start with the police. He's going to clean up the police force, get rid of the crooks, and put the law-abiding citizens back in charge.

He's also going to get rid of the welfare bums. He's going to make sure that the welfare money goes to the people who really need it.

And he's going to get rid of the politicians. He's going to make sure that the politicians stop playing politics and start doing what's right.

He's going to bring back the old days of New York City. He's going to make this city great again.
Genya Ravan’s street-tough return

BY BILL BOLDROP

Phil Spector, the celebrated producer behind the Beach Boys’ hits, has had his share of problems, including his reported bankruptcy. He is, however, the man who produced Genya Ravan’s latest album, which is currently being released. During his career, Spector has worked with many other artists, and his influence is evident in the music of Genya Ravan. Ravan is known for her powerful vocals and her ability to connect with audiences. Her music is often compared to that of Bruce Springsteen, who is also known for his powerful voice and his ability to connect with his listeners.

Rollins, Tyner, Carter embark on U.S. tour

NEW YORK—(Jan. 16)—Sonny Rollins, Joe Henderson, and Cecil Taylor are the stars of a concert at the Beacon Theater on Broadway. The concert is a part of the Jazz at Lincoln Center series, which is a program of the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs. The concert is being held in honor of the late John Coltrane, who was a significant figure in the jazz world and whose influence can be heard in the music of Rollins, Tyner, and Taylor.

A “Sunday With Style,” a benedict and fashion show featuring musical performances by Motown’s The Supremes and by the Rolling Stones, was held at the Meridian Hotel last Sunday night. An estimated 1,500 people paid $5 to attend the event, which was organized by the Lansing Symphony Orchestra’s most successful fund raisers in the past.

Idleness bothers MSU quarterback; Vaughn fills the void

By Joe Centers

For the past two seasons, Eddie Smith has been the MSU passing record holder. Last year, Smith was the Big Ten's second leading passer with 1,969 yards. This season, Smith has been replaced by a new face; the face of the Spartan quarterback will be Joe Vaughn.

With Smith out, Vaughn has been waiting for his opportunity to play. He has been working hard with the young players and the offense during this time. Vaughn is a senior and has been a part of the team for two years. He is looking forward to the upcoming season and is ready to play a significant role.

MSU's offensive lines have been working hard with Vaughn to improve their passing game. Vaughn has been working on his footwork, hand placement, and decision making to help the team.

Vaughn is a strong leader and has been working hard to improve his game. His experience and leadership will be a valuable asset to the team.

Michigan State, on the other hand, has been waiting for the return of a key player. The Spartans lost a significant player in the form of Eddie Smith. Vaughn's presence will be a welcome addition to the team.

The team is excited to see Vaughn on the field and will be looking forward to his contributions.

Mayer enthused with position

By CHERYL FRISH
State News Sports Writer

As the new academic director of the MSU Intramural Recreation Program, Randall "Murray" Mayer has returned to the campus of which he calls home, Michigan State University.

Mayer attained his master's degree here, where he learned most of the others. Prior to assuming his position, Mayer was an experienced director of 22 programs in Northern Michigan. He has been involved in the administration of just about every sport, from equipment to scheduling.

"I learned a lot of everything from that pool," Mayer said. "I taught many things. I learned a lot of things that I took away with me. I think I can bring those with me to MSU and add them into the program." Mayer plans to stay at MSU as long as he can and hopes to make a positive impact on the intramural program.

"I think it'll be an advantage," Mayer said. "We're doing a lot of program planning and development. We're trying to keep up with the latest trends and ideas."

Mayer was selected for the position because of his teaching experience and his knowledge of the intramural program. He has taught in various positions at MSU and other universities.

"I'm excited about this opportunity," Mayer said. "I'm looking forward to working with the students and helping them have a fun and enjoyable experience."

Wyatt leads MSU; Smith recovers

Last week against Iowa State, Wyatt played like a man who had experienced quarterbacks and led the Spartans to a 30-21 victory.

Students who were in the Spartan Sprits for the 1976 basketball season will have the first chance to join for the 1977 season. All former members interested in joining should contact the Student Union on Monday, July 5, at 4 p.m. at the Union, Podium B, or C.

Those who would like to join the Sprits on new subscriptions should stop by the Student Union on Monday, July 5, at 4 p.m. or call 337-1631. A deposit of $10 will cover the cost of the season.

Second Lion player walks off NFL club

PONTIAC, Mich. — Veteran receiver Mike Helton, the only receiver on the Cleveland Browns' practice squad, has been released from the team. The move follows the two other players who have been released in the past few weeks.

"We're just trying to keep our team strong," Browns coach Tom Timeline said. "We have a lot of young players here and we're trying to develop them." Helton, a 12-year NFL veteran, was at the Browns' training camp last week.

"He's a good receiver," Timeline said. "But we have a lot of other players who are doing well and we're trying to keep them in the lineup."
Pilots' radio frequency changes may be one cause of air crash

By JEFFREY WILSON

"Two-crew situations" might have contributed to the September 27 crash at Edwards Air Force Base, according to a report released by the National Transportation Safety Board.

The crash occurred on Tuesday, September 27, when a Cessna 172, being flown by a military instructor and a student, collided with a Boeing 747 almost simultaneously at the same altitude while flying in the same area.

The instructor, Capt. A. McCollum, was killed, along with the student, Capt. J. Miller. The Boeing 747 was the Federal Express jet, which was carrying mail.

A witness to the crash, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said he heard both pilots transmit on different radio frequencies, which could have contributed to the collision.

The witness said the instructor's Cessna was on a training flight, while the Boeing was on a scheduled route.

"The two pilots were flying in the same area, but on different radio frequencies," the witness said. "The instructor was on one frequency, while the Boeing was on another." The witness said the instruction flight was not held at Edwards, but was flown over the base to give the student an idea of what it would be like to fly over the facility.

The witness said the instructor was flying at a lower altitude than the Boeing, and that the student in the Cessna was flying at a higher altitude.

"The instructor was on the radio frequency used for training flights, while the Boeing was on the frequency used for scheduled flights," the witness said. The 1979 women’s conference at Michigan State University

As students prepared to leave the Detroit area, the 1979 Women’s Conference at MSU closed. It was the first of a three-year series of conferences to be held at MSU, in collaboration with the University of Chicago and the University of Wisconsin.

The conference, which was held over three days, drew more than 1,000 participants from across the United States. The theme of the conference was “Women in the Workplace,” and it featured keynote addresses, workshops, and panel discussions on a range of topics related to women’s issues and careers.

The conference was organized by the Conference Education Department of MSU, with support from the Department of Continuing Education and the College of Education. The conference was held in the Michigan Union, and the sessions were scheduled from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

The conference was well-received by the participants, who praised the speakers and the organization of the event. Many of the attendees expressed interest in attending future conferences in the series.

The next conference in the series is scheduled for 1980, with the location to be announced at a later date. For more information, contact the Conference Education Department at MSU.

Legislators raise liquor dealer profits, bill sent to Governor

By MARCIA BRADFORD

The Michigan Senate and House of Representatives have introduced legislation to increase the profits of liquor dealers. The bill, which was introduced by Senator John Smith and Representative Jane Doe, would raise the profits of liquor dealers by increasing the excise tax on beer, wine, and spirits.

The legislation was introduced in response to a recent survey that showed that the profits of liquor dealers were below the national average. The bill would raise the excise tax on beer to 8.5%, up from the current rate of 6.2%. The excise tax on wine and spirits would be increased to 12%, up from the current rate of 10%.

The legislation was introduced with the support of the Michigan Restaurant Association and the Michigan Liquor Dealers Association. The organizations have expressed support for the bill, saying that it would help to increase the profits of liquor dealers and provide more revenue for the state.

The bill was introduced on Tuesday, and it is expected to be heard in committee soon. If approved, the bill would be sent to Governor John Doe for signature.

Filmmakers form organization, hope to consolidate student movie creators

By CATHRYN MASTERS

Many News/Staff Writer

At an all-members meeting last week, members of the Michigan State University Film Society, directors, and producers, a group of students has formed The Michigan State University Film Society. The group, which is called The MSU Film Society, was formed to consolidate the efforts of student filmmakers and to promote the development of film as an art form.

The society was formed in response to a recent survey that showed that the student filmmakers at MSU were divided among various clubs and organizations. The survey found that there was a lack of communication and cooperation among the different groups, which prevented the development of film as an art form.

The society was formed with the support of the Michigan State University Film Society and the Department of Communication. The group has already begun to plan events, including film festivals and workshops, and it is expected to be active soon.

The new 10% car loan from your credit union.

No one in town can give you a better deal...except your rich grandmother!

While the cost of new cars and trucks may be going up, the cost of financing one at your credit union just went down. Down to an annual percentage rate of only 10%!

However, realize in town you will find such a low rate unless you're lucky enough to have a solid income—and generous—parent!

Demand, though, is down payment required with credit union financing and loan protection credit life insurance is available to cover up to 90% of the balance on the car. The 10% new car loan rate is available only to members who have been with the credit union for one year. The credit union also offers a very favorable rate on automobiles and the instalments of the loan can be financed before you actually become a member.
