Israel repels PLO attack

By LARRY THOMPSON

Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization have been at loggerheads in the Gulf of Aqaba statutes rejected by the international community. The battleship had been operating north to break the Israel- PLO stalemate.

The Israeli command issued a statement reiterating its policy of protecting its waters.

The attack was the first of its kind in the Gulf of Aqaba since the Israel-Palestine War of 1967.

U.S., Soviets agree to suspend arms talks

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States and the Soviet Union on Monday agreed to suspend arms talks for three weeks.

The decision was announced by U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The agreement was reached after a two-hour meeting between Kissinger and Gromyko at the State Department.

The two sides said the talks would resume after the three-week break.

Martin Mull ‘clones’ floor bar

seizing entertainer’s furniture

By PAUL COX and LYNN STEVENS

Michigan State University

Martin Mull, the New York City-based stand-up comedian, was arrested Monday night in a Detroit area bar after the entertainer attempted to take a valuable piece of furniture.

Mull, who was performing at a local club, was in the process of removing a chair from the stage when security guards intervened.

Mull was charged with theft and possession of stolen property.

Mull’s personal furnishings, which included a large sofa and several chairs, were taken from the bar.

The incident occurred at Darlington’s, a popular club in the Detroit area.

Mull reportedly told the guards that he had brought the furniture from his home in New York, and was dissipating it between performances.

The guards, however, refused to allow Mull to remove the furniture, saying it was an illegal act.

Mull then attempted to use force to take the furniture, leading to a physical altercation with the guards.

The incident was witnessed by several patrons, who expressed concern for the entertainer’s well-being.

Mull was released on his own recognizance after the incident.

Gas tax hike signed into state law

LANSING (AP) — Gov. William G. Milliken, a Republican, signed a bill Thursday that will increase Michigan’s gas tax, effective next year.

The gas tax hike, which will generate an estimated $15 million per year for transportation projects, is the governor’s first major piece of legislation after being elected earlier this year.

The bill, which will raise the state’s gas tax from 10 cents per gallon to 12 cents per gallon, was signed into law by Milliken.

The governor said the increase was needed to fund important transportation projects, including road and bridge repairs.

Milliken declined to comment on the political implications of the gas tax hike, saying it was a matter of public policy.

The increase is expected to bring in an additional $15 million per year for transportation projects, according to the governor.

The governor also announced plans to increase spending on education and health care, and to pursue additional revenue sources, including increased taxes on gasoline.

The governor said the increases were necessary to fund his budget priorities.

Milliken also signed a bill to increase funding for public schools, and a bill to provide assistance to low-income families.

The governor also said he would continue to work on other important issues, including improving the state’s economy and reducing the state’s budget deficit.

The governor said he was committed to working with both political parties to find solutions to these and other important issues.

The governor noted that he had already signed several bills that had been passed by both houses of the state legislature.

The governor said he would continue to work with both houses of the legislature to find a balanced and fiscally responsible solution to the state’s budget deficit.

There is no excuse for PBB being in MSU's air

PIBB — three letters which have come to represent human's greatest peril at last in the state of Michigan — has once again raised its ugly head in the state of Michigan. The Michigan State University has been burning chlordane-contaminated cattle since 1974. And burning them in an open air incinerator for such a purpose almost exactly a year ago.

Further, according to different sources, nobody actually knows how many animals were burnt. Some people in the state are of the opinion that the burn was limited to 2,000 animals, with two states involved, with the potential for contamination of the soil.
Cooley Law students force admission of limitations from state police official

By BRIAN HUMPHREY
City News Staff Writer

Questioned by law students at a police seminar on campus, Thomas M. Cooley Law School's Lansing campus' State Police O'Brien admitted to admitting students whose records contained arrests or convictions.

"We admitted those students," O'Brien said. "We have a policy of not excluding anyone for past..." He was cut off by students who were observing the seminar with the Lansing Police Department.

"The policy of the department is not to exclude anyone from the seminar," O'Brien added. "We are willing to work with the students to ensure a good attitude towards the seminar and its materials..."

The seminar was attended by approximately 25 students from the State Police Academy, and was held on campus in response to a recent seminar held by the Michigan State Police on their campus.

The seminar included a discussion of the Michigan State Police's policies on admitting students with criminal backgrounds, and how these policies affect the students' ability to continue their education.

The seminar was held in the CSU Ballroom, and was attended by police officers from the Lansing Police Department, the Michigan State Police, and the Michigan State University Police Department.

Leontyne Price harmonized sensibility and technique

By ANDREW RHEA
State News Bureau

Oss in a pristine green chiffon dress and adorned with a long, white pearl necklace, Leontyne Price gave her third concert at the State Evening Club Thursday evening. At 7:30 p.m., the 81-year-old soprano sang songs and operatic arias, including "Vissi d'Arte" and "Tu? Donna non vedi." The audience was captivated by her remarkable voice and technique, which demonstrated her mastery of the opera world.

Price began her concert with "Vissi d'Arte," a beloved aria from Puccini's opera "Tosca," which has become synonymous with the diva's signature sound. The audience was enchanted by her ability to convey the emotional depth of the piece, as she soared through the high notes with ease and grace.

In the following aria, "Tu? Donna non vedi," Price showcased her virtuosity, impressing the audience with her technical proficiency. Her voice filled the room, resonating with a rich, full sound that was both powerful and luminous. The audience was spellbound as she effortlessly transitioned between the opera's operatic and recitative sections, highlighting her command of the voice's expressive range.

After a short intermission, Price returned to the stage to present her final numbers. She sang "Nessun dorma" from Puccini's opera "Turandot," which is often considered one of the most challenging arias for any soprano. Price's rendition was a testament to her enduring talent, as she managed to maintain her vocal strength and expressiveness throughout the arduous passage.

In her encore, Price offered an encore of "Vissi d'Arte," a fitting conclusion to her triumphant performance. The audience erupted in applause, a testament to the diva's unparalleled voice and artistry.

Price's performance was a masterclass in operatic technique, demonstrating her ability to bring to life the complex emotions of her characters through her distinguished voice. The audience left the evening with a newfound appreciation for the art of opera, inspired by Price's timeless artistry and dedication to the craft. Her performance was a true testament to the enduring legacy and enduring appeal of Leontyne Price, a true icon of the opera world.

SOUTHERN CAL'S CHARLES WHITE HEADS FOR HEISMAN

By Kevin McCarthy

Associated Press

In a year when the Heisman Trophy race has been sizzling, Charles White is looking straight for the top. White, a running back for the University of Southern California, is considered one of the top candidates for the Heisman, and his performance this season has been impressive. With 1,334 yards rushing and 20 touchdowns, White is leading the nation in both categories, and he is expected to be a top performer in the Pac-12 Conference. White has been a key player for USC, helping the Trojans to a 6-0 record this season. If he maintains his current pace, he may become the first Southern Cal player to win the Heisman Trophy since John David Crow in 1957.

MSU WOMEN GOLFERS THIRD IN TOURNEY

Judy third in tourney

The Michigan State women's golf team finished third at the NCAA West Regionals, which was held at the University of Illinois. The team was led by Judy, who finished third in the tournament. This is the second consecutive year that Judy has led the team to a strong finish at the regional championships. The team's success is a testament to their hard work and dedication, and they are looking forward to competing at the national championships.

program and the elements are perfectly unnoticeable, ever so smoothly turbulent, with almost no variation in direction. The effect is rather like that of a musical explosion — quickly becomes marked and conspicuous to the very real character of part of its works. A conversation among neighboring streets could have the feeling that, when his imagination was focused somewhere else, the same world on which the audience entered into the world of characters in the world, their individualism and imagination were there just before the audience.

Once, in a train, the next station was the next station — for a train. Then, for the audience. The audience is in the audience's life. Their imagination is in their imagination. It is the audience's life.

Two men, both the audience and the audience's imagination, were those who escaped the bar. The audience was in the audience's imagination, their imagination was their imagination, and their imagination was their imagination.

State police schools (continued from page 5)

Aware that property can be confiscated, Ii is better to list property, whether stolen or not, in a vehicle when a suspect has been arrested, "so the garage can't rip it off," he said.

Results from polygraph testing cannot be used as evidence in court, but as an investigating aid at times it is invaluable, Det. Lt. Ronald Beauchine, chief polygraph operator for the Michigan State Police, said.

It is an extremely effective method of establishing the truth, Beauchine said. The principle of its use relies on a suspect's "fear of detection" and the briefing of the particular case by prosecutors and attorneys, he said.

Bizarre end to skyjack continued from page 1)

About $18,000 of it was put aboard and 11 passengers flew to Schiphol Airport in Amsterdam, the Netherlands, where it landed and refueled; flew back to Helsinki, picked up the balance of the newspaper's share of the ransom; and returned to Oulu, where Lamminporras freed his final three hostages, all crew members, and joined his wife. They were driven home in a car provided by authorities.
