Michigan gas station dealers meet in Lansing

Michigan gas station dealers meet in Lansing

RAOLD WHALEN

The Service Station Dealers Association of Michigan held a Lansing meeting Saturday to talk of a statewide shortage of gasoline stations during the Fourth of July holiday. The association had prepared a statement urging dealers to increase gasoline prices to meet current conditions, and at the meeting the statement was read by the association president. The statement read in part:

"Gasoline scarcity in Michigan is now so critical that our members have been forced to increase prices to meet current conditions. We do not believe that this action is necessary, but we feel that it is important to keep our members informed of the situation and to take all necessary steps to remedy it."

A member of the association who spoke at the meeting said that the shortage of gasoline is due to supply problems, and that the members of the association are doing their best to alleviate the situation. The member went on to say that the members of the association are working closely with the state's energy conservation board to find ways to conserve gasoline and to increase the supply of gasoline.

Fuel situation is still uncertain

There have been several reports of gasoline stations being closed due to the shortage, and the members of the association have been working to find a solution to the problem. One member of the association said that the members are working with the state's energy conservation board to find ways to increase the supply of gasoline.

Other members of the association have said that the shortage of gasoline is due to supply problems, and that the members of the association are doing their best to alleviate the situation. One member of the association said that the members are working with the state's energy conservation board to find ways to conserve gasoline and to increase the supply of gasoline.

One member of the association who spoke at the meeting said that the shortage of gasoline is due to supply problems, and that the members of the association are doing their best to alleviate the situation. The member went on to say that the members of the association are working closely with the state's energy conservation board to find ways to conserve gasoline and to increase the supply of gasoline.

A member of the association who spoke at the meeting said that the shortage of gasoline is due to supply problems, and that the members of the association are doing their best to alleviate the situation. The member went on to say that the members of the association are working closely with the state's energy conservation board to find ways to conserve gasoline and to increase the supply of gasoline.

The members of the association have been working to find a solution to the problem, and have been working closely with the state's energy conservation board to find ways to conserve gasoline and to increase the supply of gasoline.

Wednesday

The deepening crisis for United Press International

The official press of OPEC warns that oil revenues will begin to decline if prices are not lowered. The warning is given in a report by UPI's chief oil analyst, Mr. W. H. Brown. The report states: "We believe that prices will begin to decline if oil is not sold at a higher rate."

The report says that oil prices have fallen significantly in recent months, and that this trend is expected to continue. The report also states that oil revenues will decline if prices are not increased, which will reduce the government's ability to finance the war in Afghanistan.

The report concludes that United Press International's warning is based on a thorough analysis of the oil market, and that it is likely to be accurate. The report also states that United Press International's warning is not based on any political considerations.

The report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown, the chief oil analyst for United Press International. Mr. Brown has been a leading analyst in the oil industry for many years, and is widely respected for his analysis of the oil market.

The report is the latest in a series of warnings by United Press International about the oil market. The previous report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown and was published on February 10. The report warned that oil prices would continue to rise, and that this would reduce the government's ability to finance the war in Afghanistan.

The report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown, the chief oil analyst for United Press International. Mr. Brown has been a leading analyst in the oil industry for many years, and is widely respected for his analysis of the oil market.

The report is the latest in a series of warnings by United Press International about the oil market. The previous report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown and was published on February 10. The report warned that oil prices would continue to rise, and that this would reduce the government's ability to finance the war in Afghanistan.

The report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown, the chief oil analyst for United Press International. Mr. Brown has been a leading analyst in the oil industry for many years, and is widely respected for his analysis of the oil market.

The report is the latest in a series of warnings by United Press International about the oil market. The previous report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown and was published on February 10. The report warned that oil prices would continue to rise, and that this would reduce the government's ability to finance the war in Afghanistan.

The report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown, the chief oil analyst for United Press International. Mr. Brown has been a leading analyst in the oil industry for many years, and is widely respected for his analysis of the oil market.

The report is the latest in a series of warnings by United Press International about the oil market. The previous report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown and was published on February 10. The report warned that oil prices would continue to rise, and that this would reduce the government's ability to finance the war in Afghanistan.

The report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown, the chief oil analyst for United Press International. Mr. Brown has been a leading analyst in the oil industry for many years, and is widely respected for his analysis of the oil market.

The report is the latest in a series of warnings by United Press International about the oil market. The previous report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown and was published on February 10. The report warned that oil prices would continue to rise, and that this would reduce the government's ability to finance the war in Afghanistan.

The report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown, the chief oil analyst for United Press International. Mr. Brown has been a leading analyst in the oil industry for many years, and is widely respected for his analysis of the oil market.

The report is the latest in a series of warnings by United Press International about the oil market. The previous report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown and was published on February 10. The report warned that oil prices would continue to rise, and that this would reduce the government's ability to finance the war in Afghanistan.

The report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown, the chief oil analyst for United Press International. Mr. Brown has been a leading analyst in the oil industry for many years, and is widely respected for his analysis of the oil market.

The report is the latest in a series of warnings by United Press International about the oil market. The previous report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown and was published on February 10. The report warned that oil prices would continue to rise, and that this would reduce the government's ability to finance the war in Afghanistan.

The report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown, the chief oil analyst for United Press International. Mr. Brown has been a leading analyst in the oil industry for many years, and is widely respected for his analysis of the oil market.

The report is the latest in a series of warnings by United Press International about the oil market. The previous report was written by Mr. W. H. Brown and was published on February 10. The report warned that oil prices would continue to rise, and that this would reduce the government's ability to finance the war in Afghanistan.
Fuel

WASHINGTON - A bill to deal with the energy crisis that would help finance energy programs in states that are thought to be at risk from price hikes was initially approved by the House last night. The Senate, however, is expected to vote against it today.

The bill, which is intended to strengthen state energy programs, was passed by the House on Wednesday. It would provide $10 billion in federal assistance to states that are thought to be at risk from price hikes. The Senate, however, is expected to vote against it today.

Condemned men get reprieve

STARKS, Pa. (AP) - Condemned killer Charles W. Profft was granted a new trial and a reprieve to a state's highest court on Wednesday as a result of the Supreme Court's reversal of the Pennsylvania death penalty.

The reprieve comes after the Supreme Court vacated the Pennsylvania death penalty and ordered a new trial for Profft, who was convicted of first-degree murder in the 1976 slaying of a police officer. The court ruled that the state's capital punishment statute was unconstitutional.

Great Lakes sewage OK'd

Despite legal objections, the Great Lakes sewage report was approved by the state's environmental agency on Wednesday. The report recommended the discharge of sewage into the Great Lakes.

Legal struggle comes to head

A Supreme Court judgment on Wednesday cleared the way for the discharge of sewage into the Great Lakes. The court ruled that the state's environmental agency had the authority to make the decision, despite legal objections.

Perfurmed sailors riot in Chicago

Numerous sailors were shot and wounded after a day of violence when a crowd of sailors attempted to take over the Great Lakes Naval Training Center. The sailors, who were frustrated with their working conditions and the treatment they were receiving, started the riot.

Perfurmed sailors riot in Chicago

Numerous sailors were shot and wounded after a day of violence when a crowd of sailors attempted to take over the Great Lakes Naval Training Center. The sailors, who were frustrated with their working conditions and the treatment they were receiving, started the riot.

Perfurmed sailors riot in Chicago

Numerous sailors were shot and wounded after a day of violence when a crowd of sailors attempted to take over the Great Lakes Naval Training Center. The sailors, who were frustrated with their working conditions and the treatment they were receiving, started the riot.

Perfurmed sailors riot in Chicago

Numerous sailors were shot and wounded after a day of violence when a crowd of sailors attempted to take over the Great Lakes Naval Training Center. The sailors, who were frustrated with their working conditions and the treatment they were receiving, started the riot.
Youth drinking problems unresolved by law—study

By United Press International

A survey of school principals was undertaken in Michigan's 27 urban school districts recently, and the results indicate that the law has not reduced underage drinking. People who illegally drink are on the increase, and those who try to prevent the sale of alcohol to minors believe that the state's law is not being enforced.

The law may be an improvement over the previous one, but it is still considered a failure by some educators and community leaders.

Even with a clear majority of Michigan voters approving the change to 21, and the increase in the drinking age question is still a very

New prexy might teach economics

G. E. C. 30's—recently appointed president, George Miller, has invited me to teach in his Economics Department. I was given the opportunity, and I am planning to teach the course in the fall.

Injjured boy is in critical condition

By United Press International

A 13-year-old boy was injured in a recent accident. He was taken to the hospital, where he is expected to recover.

Headless dead at police headquarters

The police department was shocked when the body of a police officer was found in the planning department. The officer was found dead, apparently by suicide.

In the same case, a detective was also found dead, apparently by suicide.

Clinical center explosion injures U. plant worker, cigarette cited as cause

A.proximity gas explosion at the U. of Michigan Clinical Center hospital has injured one person. The explosion occurred while the employee was working.

Senate chamber passes pot bill favoring medical use, to House

The Senate of Michigan has passed a bill favoring medical use of marijuana. The bill is expected to be sent to the House of Representatives for consideration.

New prexy might teach economics

G. E. C. 30's—recently appointed president, George Miller, has invited me to teach in his Economics Department. I was given the opportunity, and I am planning to teach the course in the fall.

Injjured boy is in critical condition

By United Press International

A 13-year-old boy was injured in a recent accident. He was taken to the hospital, where he is expected to recover.

Headless dead at police headquarters

The police department was shocked when the body of a police officer was found in the planning department. The officer was found dead, apparently by suicide.

In the same case, a detective was also found dead, apparently by suicide.

Clinical center explosion injures U. plant worker, cigarette cited as cause

A.proximity gas explosion at the U. of Michigan Clinical Center hospital has injured one person. The explosion occurred while the employee was working.

Senate chamber passes pot bill favoring medical use, to House

The Senate of Michigan has passed a bill favoring medical use of marijuana. The bill is expected to be sent to the House of Representatives for consideration.

New prexy might teach economics

G. E. C. 30's—recently appointed president, George Miller, has invited me to teach in his Economics Department. I was given the opportunity, and I am planning to teach the course in the fall.

Injjured boy is in critical condition

By United Press International

A 13-year-old boy was injured in a recent accident. He was taken to the hospital, where he is expected to recover.

Headless dead at police headquarters

The police department was shocked when the body of a police officer was found in the planning department. The officer was found dead, apparently by suicide.

In the same case, a detective was also found dead, apparently by suicide.

Clinical center explosion injures U. plant worker, cigarette cited as cause

A.proximity gas explosion at the U. of Michigan Clinical Center hospital has injured one person. The explosion occurred while the employee was working.

Senate chamber passes pot bill favoring medical use, to House

The Senate of Michigan has passed a bill favoring medical use of marijuana. The bill is expected to be sent to the House of Representatives for consideration.

New prexy might teach economics

G. E. C. 30's—recently appointed president, George Miller, has invited me to teach in his Economics Department. I was given the opportunity, and I am planning to teach the course in the fall.

Injjured boy is in critical condition

By United Press International

A 13-year-old boy was injured in a recent accident. He was taken to the hospital, where he is expected to recover.

Headless dead at police headquarters

The police department was shocked when the body of a police officer was found in the planning department. The officer was found dead, apparently by suicide.

In the same case, a detective was also found dead, apparently by suicide.

Clinical center explosion injures U. plant worker, cigarette cited as cause

A.proximity gas explosion at the U. of Michigan Clinical Center hospital has injured one person. The explosion occurred while the employee was working.

Senate chamber passes pot bill favoring medical use, to House

The Senate of Michigan has passed a bill favoring medical use of marijuana. The bill is expected to be sent to the House of Representatives for consideration.
Wilson's charges raise questions about payrolling

Christine Wilson has lodged some serious charges against the University. The former director of the Office of Supportive Services and provost for the swing-riding Assistant President in the Hamilton, is seeking damages from MSU to the tune of $1.5 million, claiming the University wronged her by denying her a post she felt she deserved.

The suit claims the University violated Wilson's right to freedom of speech. The latter charge stems from comments made by Wilson to the State Journal earlier this month. Wilson's claim that she was offered a "no nothing" job by the University is hereby denied, the suit further states, and it accuses her of unprofessional conduct.

Ms. Wilson's suit against the University would seem to indicate the University was unilaterally required to keep Ms. Wilson on the job. Shaming her to another post may have been the University's way of dividing herself, and it seems that her being forced to perform any duties for which she was not appointed was indeed the case.

The suit also claims the University caused Ms. Wilson to have experienced difficulties in her employment. The suit states, "The University's constant refusal to accommodate Ms. Wilson's legitimate requests for accommodation has placed her in a position of working under radically changed conditions, within an environment that is not conducive to her ability to work effectively in the University's best interests." The suit suggests the University attempted to place her in a lesser position than the one she had been appointed to.

The suit claims the University and its President, Dr. Martin, have engaged in a "pattern of discrimination" against Ms. Wilson, and it asks for a jury trial.

Wilson may be the victim of MSU's clumsy affirmative action program, but the damage claims she is seeking are overreaching, and her suit plan that has backfired. Wilson's suit against the University is as suspect as any other negative action the University has taken against her, and it is clear that she is not being treated fairly.

The suit includes a list of "questions for the University to answer," and it seems to be a rather lengthy list, but it is clear that the University is not treating Wilson fairly. It is also clear that she is not being treated fairly.

The suit includes a list of "questions for the University to answer," and it seems to be a rather lengthy list, but it is clear that the University is not treating Wilson fairly. It is also clear that she is not being treated fairly.

Opinion

Wilson's charges raise questions about payrolling

Christine Wilson has lodged some serious charges against the University. The former director of the Office of Supportive Services and provost for the swing-riding Assistant President in the Hamilton, is seeking damages from MSU to the tune of $1.5 million, claiming the University wronged her by denying her a post she felt she deserved.

The suit claims the University violated Wilson's right to freedom of speech. The latter charge stems from comments made by Wilson to the State Journal earlier this month. Wilson's claim that she was offered a "no nothing" job by the University is hereby denied, the suit further states, and it accuses her of unprofessional conduct.

Ms. Wilson's suit against the University would seem to indicate the University was unilaterally required to keep Ms. Wilson on the job. Shaming her to another post may have been the University's way of dividing herself, and it seems that her being forced to perform any duties for which she was not appointed was indeed the case.

The suit also claims the University caused Ms. Wilson to have experienced difficulties in her employment. The suit states, "The University's constant refusal to accommodate Ms. Wilson's legitimate requests for accommodation has placed her in a position of working under radically changed conditions, within an environment that is not conducive to her ability to work effectively in the University's best interests." The suit suggests the University attempted to place her in a lesser position than the one she had been appointed to.

The suit claims the University and its President, Dr. Martin, have engaged in a "pattern of discrimination" against Ms. Wilson, and it asks for a jury trial.

Wilson may be the victim of MSU's clumsy affirmative action program, but the damage claims she is seeking are overreaching, and her suit plan that has backfired. Wilson's suit against the University is as suspect as any other negative action the University has taken against her, and it is clear that she is not being treated fairly.

The suit includes a list of "questions for the University to answer," and it seems to be a rather lengthy list, but it is clear that the University is not treating Wilson fairly. It is also clear that she is not being treated fairly.

The suit includes a list of "questions for the University to answer," and it seems to be a rather lengthy list, but it is clear that the University is not treating Wilson fairly. It is also clear that she is not being treated fairly.

Opinion

Wilson's charges raise questions about payrolling

Christine Wilson has lodged some serious charges against the University. The former director of the Office of Supportive Services and provost for the swing-riding Assistant President in the Hamilton, is seeking damages from MSU to the tune of $1.5 million, claiming the University wronged her by denying her a post she felt she deserved.

The suit claims the University violated Wilson's right to freedom of speech. The latter charge stems from comments made by Wilson to the State Journal earlier this month. Wilson's claim that she was offered a "no nothing" job by the University is hereby denied, the suit further states, and it accuses her of unprofessional conduct.

Ms. Wilson's suit against the University would seem to indicate the University was unilaterally required to keep Ms. Wilson on the job. Shaming her to another post may have been the University's way of dividing herself, and it seems that her being forced to perform any duties for which she was not appointed was indeed the case.

The suit also claims the University caused Ms. Wilson to have experienced difficulties in her employment. The suit states, "The University's constant refusal to accommodate Ms. Wilson's legitimate requests for accommodation has placed her in a position of working under radically changed conditions, within an environment that is not conducive to her ability to work effectively in the University's best interests." The suit suggests the University attempted to place her in a lesser position than the one she had been appointed to.

The suit claims the University and its President, Dr. Martin, have engaged in a "pattern of discrimination" against Ms. Wilson, and it asks for a jury trial.

Wilson may be the victim of MSU's clumsy affirmative action program, but the damage claims she is seeking are overreaching, and her suit plan that has backfired. Wilson's suit against the University is as suspect as any other negative action the University has taken against her, and it is clear that she is not being treated fairly.

The suit includes a list of "questions for the University to answer," and it seems to be a rather lengthy list, but it is clear that the University is not treating Wilson fairly. It is also clear that she is not being treated fairly.

The suit includes a list of "questions for the University to answer," and it seems to be a rather lengthy list, but it is clear that the University is not treating Wilson fairly. It is also clear that she is not being treated fairly.

Opinion

Wilson's charges raise questions about payrolling

Christine Wilson has lodged some serious charges against the University. The former director of the Office of Supportive Services and provost for the swing-riding Assistant President in the Hamilton, is seeking damages from MSU to the tune of $1.5 million, claiming the University wronged her by denying her a post she felt she deserved.

The suit claims the University violated Wilson's right to freedom of speech. The latter charge stems from comments made by Wilson to the State Journal earlier this month. Wilson's claim that she was offered a "no nothing" job by the University is hereby denied, the suit further states, and it accuses her of unprofessional conduct.

Ms. Wilson's suit against the University would seem to indicate the University was unilaterally required to keep Ms. Wilson on the job. Shaming her to another post may have been the University's way of dividing herself, and it seems that her being forced to perform any duties for which she was not appointed was indeed the case.

The suit also claims the University caused Ms. Wilson to have experienced difficulties in her employment. The suit states, "The University's constant refusal to accommodate Ms. Wilson's legitimate requests for accommodation has placed her in a position of working under radically changed conditions, within an environment that is not conducive to her ability to work effectively in the University's best interests." The suit suggests the University attempted to place her in a lesser position than the one she had been appointed to.

The suit claims the University and its President, Dr. Martin, have engaged in a "pattern of discrimination" against Ms. Wilson, and it asks for a jury trial.

Wilson may be the victim of MSU's clumsy affirmative action program, but the damage claims she is seeking are overreaching, and her suit plan that has backfired. Wilson's suit against the University is as suspect as any other negative action the University has taken against her, and it is clear that she is not being treated fairly.

The suit includes a list of "questions for the University to answer," and it seems to be a rather lengthy list, but it is clear that the University is not treating Wilson fairly. It is also clear that she is not being treated fairly.

The suit includes a list of "questions for the University to answer," and it seems to be a rather lengthy list, but it is clear that the University is not treating Wilson fairly. It is also clear that she is not being treated fairly.

Opinion

Wilson's charges raise questions about payrolling

Christine Wilson has lodged some serious charges against the University. The former director of the Office of Supportive Services and provost for the swing-riding Assistant President in the Hamilton, is seeking damages from MSU to the tune of $1.5 million, claiming the University wronged her by denying her a post she felt she deserved.

The suit claims the University violated Wilson's right to freedom of speech. The latter charge stems from comments made by Wilson to the State Journal earlier this month. Wilson's claim that she was offered a "no nothing" job by the University is hereby denied, the suit further states, and it accuses her of unprofessional conduct.

Ms. Wilson's suit against the University would seem to indicate the University was unilaterally required to keep Ms. Wilson on the job. Shaming her to another post may have been the University's way of dividing herself, and it seems that her being forced to perform any duties for which she was not appointed was indeed the case.

The suit also claims the University caused Ms. Wilson to have experienced difficulties in her employment. The suit states, "The University's constant refusal to accommodate Ms. Wilson's legitimate requests for accommodation has placed her in a position of working under radically changed conditions, within an environment that is not conducive to her ability to work effectively in the University's best interests." The suit suggests the University attempted to place her in a lesser position than the one she had been appointed to.

The suit claims the University and its President, Dr. Martin, have engaged in a "pattern of discrimination" against Ms. Wilson, and it asks for a jury trial.

Wilson may be the victim of MSU's clumsy affirmative action program, but the damage claims she is seeking are overreaching, and her suit plan that has backfired. Wilson's suit against the University is as suspect as any other negative action the University has taken against her, and it is clear that she is not being treated fairly.

The suit includes a list of "questions for the University to answer," and it seems to be a rather lengthy list, but it is clear that the University is not treating Wilson fairly. It is also clear that she is not being treated fairly.

The suit includes a list of "questions for the University to answer," and it seems to be a rather lengthy list, but it is clear that the University is not treating Wilson fairly. It is also clear that she is not being treated fairly.
Senators advocate early presidential Michigan primary

Limitation-of-search bill leaves House committee

GAS SHORTAGE COULD HURT BUSINESS

Resort operators apprehensive

Prof named to Chinese science research panel

Summer Sandal Sale

"Shoes, Clogs & Sandals"

Save Up To 60%
Ronnie blows 'em away

In-"Laws" a flawed classic comedy

B. RICHARD RUSSELL
News-Sentinel Reviewer

The In-Laws (Warner Bros., in the Lansing Mead Theatre) contains the new material for a classic screw comedy. Peter Falk and Bud Yorkin's funny and brilliant new performances are outstanding. Andrew Bergman who wrote the original story, directed the film starring Buddy Hackett and Sylvia Miles, was one of the few screenwriters who haven't written a screenplay recently. The first of the jokes in the film is that top drawer material wouldn't have been incubated on the stage. Bergman and Yorkin, particularly, provide a new and exciting twist which just pacifies motion picture comedy screen. But in the play, Buddy Hackett and Sylvia Miles are the stars. In the film, John Candy and Alan Arkin are in their top form, developing their own performances. Thus, Falk, Arkin, Bergman and Hackett have wound up with a great film. (Stuart Harris, The Lansing Leader-Statesman.)

The movie is a bit like the other plays of this type, with the good humor and billing of The In-Laws. The picture is well directed and shot. Falk's performance, as usual, shines.

Vernon Presley is dead; The King's father was 63

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Vernon Presley, father of the late '50s rocker Elvis Presley, died Tuesday in a Memphis hospital. He was 63.

Presley had been hospitalized for heart problems the past several weeks. He was admitted to Baptist Hospital for Doctors' Office, 4395, on May 30. He was operated on May 31 and was pronounced dead of a heart attack Wednesday at 8:00 a.m.

The King's 13-year-old son, Ronnie, has been close friends with Elvis since the latter was a child. Ronnie observed a memorial service at his father's bedside and was among those present at the funeral service. Ronnie is a junior at the University of Mississippi. He was in Memphis to attend the funeral. Ronnie is the brother of the late Lisa Marie Presley, who is 14 years old.

Vernon Presley was buried Thursday afternoon in a private ceremony at a Memphis cemetery.

In the city of Regency, the funeral service was held at the Church of the Holy Spirit. The service was attended by a large crowd of friends and family.

The funeral was conducted by the Rev. Dr. W. R. Dooley, a member of the church. The service was preceded by a military guard and a flag bearers. The coffin was carried by members of the church, who sang, "From This Day Forward," and "The Lord's Prayer." The ceremony was followed by a eulogy by the Rev. Dr. Dooley.

The King's father was 63.

Nigerian director presents Ionesco

In ROYAL V. SINGER

Nigerian director presents Ionesco's "Absurd Lesson" for the first time in the United States. The play, which is directed by Wale Ogunleye, won the 1968 New York Drama Critics Circle Award for Best European Play of the Year.

The production opened Thursday at 8:00 p.m. in the new Performing Arts Center, which is under construction on the campus of the University of Michigan. The production will run through Sunday. Admission is free.

"It is particularly lovely to see the great playwrights who have never been seen in this country. The play was chosen because of its relevance to the Nigerian culture and the theme of the play," Ogunleye said.

The play, which is performed in English, is a satirical examination of the Nigerian education system. The play is a two-act comedy that is set in a classroom and is directed by a character named "The Teacher." The play is performed by a cast of Nigerian actors.

The play is being performed in the Performing Arts Center, which is under construction on the campus of the University of Michigan. The production will run through Sunday.

Believe us. We're on your corner. French Chicken better than that. Call for special dinner value just to make a "better" out of you.

LIEBERMANN's A great brief case will keep everything together

Choose a style to fit your need from our large selection of styles in leathers, vinyl and nylon fabric, in sizes for men and women.

Above: Cordoba nylon, 32 x 16 with 3 pockets, open back pocket, pencil pockets and removable shoulder strap. Black brown.
25.00

We embroider your name or monogram at the extra charge.
MSU STAR FOURTH PLAYER PICKED

Kelsey's happy to be a Piston

By ADAM VICKLER
State News Sports Writer

You know why the Detroit Pistons made Gregor Kelsey their first pick in Monday's National Basketball Association draft, the All-American forward they helped lead the MSU Spartans to the 1979 NCAA championship was going to be happy.

"I was so happy with the way things turned out," Kelsey said Tuesday from his Detroit home in a telephone interview. "There were tons of advantages of playing in Detroit."

Some of the advantages Kelsey was talking about included the opportunity to play in the beautiful Pontiac Silverdome, in the presence of Detroit and playing games in the venue of his childhood experiences. "I think I can help the Pistons in a big way," Kelsey said.

"It would be marvelous for differences between college and pro to hold. "There will be no big adjustment for me, because there's no doubt about that. Kelsey acknowledged. But I do think 275 is with their eyes on you."

It is obvious that Detroit wanted Kelsey, the fourth player picked by the Pistons, to be their first draft pick in the draft held by the Los Angeles Lakers.

Originally, the Michigan State had the fourth selection in the draft while the Pistons had No. 3, but in order to assure themselves of getting Kelsey, Detroit gave Tulane's 223.000 to win the order of their picks. The Pistons made no attempt to keep him or her to their roster of better than Kelsey. Gregor Kelsey was named and is playing immediately with the Pistons, "included in J. Menendez, the team's director of scouting. "We like to pretend that he's still up there, but we know he's not," Menendez said. The game was brought to the Los Angeles Lakers and they won the draft of Kelsey and his need for that type of player.

Menendez mentioned the reason that Detroit picked Kelsey because the Pistons needed a big man to fill the position of downtown. "It is true that it wasn't hurt at all for us when it was observed that Kelsey was the correct man," Menendez said. "As long as the Pistons have had their eye on Kelsey for a while, it was a tough decision for Detroit to make the pick. "We know and have always known that he is a quality player."

Menendez said of the East-West Ball. "This is detroit's fourth pick in the East-West Ball. "We need a player of Kelsey's caliber to fit in for our team in 1978-79. Kelsey was named among the top seven players in the country and he was rated in the top seven nationally mentioned on page 1it."

MSU golfers in Strohl's Open

MSU will be well represented when the Lady Stroh's Open Professional Golf Association tournament gets under way at the Boulder Country Club Thursday morning.

Participating in the tournament are MSU golfers Sue and Beth mast, who will represent the MSU women's golf team.

Boulder Country Club's championship course will be the venue of the women's national championship tournament for the second year in a row. The tournament was declared official by the United States Golf Association last year.

Red Cross has requested a special bloodmobile to avert a blood shortage over the holiday weekend.

Wednesday, June 27, 1:00-6:45 p.m.

Rm 339 North Case Hall

Call the Red Cross at 484-7461 so that you can "give before you go."
TRIP TO WASHINGTON COST $899

ASMSU lobbies anti-nukes, draft

Three ASMSU representatives have been chosen to attend the anti-nuclear weapons and anti-draft conference in Washington, D.C. The conference is being sponsored by the American Student Movement for a Society Under No Threat (ASMSU) and the Christian Students at Michigan State University. The conference will be held from April 28 to May 1.

Ban on ‘junk food’ runs into opposition

A bill to ban the sale of “junk food” in schools was introduced in the Michigan House of Representatives last week. The bill, sponsored by State Rep. Ted Kelsier, R-Rochester, would prohibit the sale of foods high in calories, fat, and sugar, including sodas, fries, and candy bars. The bill would affect public schools, but not private schools.

Senator to testify at public hearings

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sen. Hart Klewag said Monday that he would testify at a Senate Ethics Committee hearing on Wednesday to discuss allegations that he had violated ethics rules.

Mopeds: a practical alternative

NARUA, N.J. — With new state regulations on moped use, it is time to consider mopeds as a practical alternative to cars.

Take home all the Sun ‘n Fun Clothes you’ll ever need...

This Red-Hot SUMMER FINALE booms off June 28, 29, 30

Thursday thru Saturday

Free Spirit Shoes — Entire sales selection reduced 9% off original price.
Job safety bill passes House

Job safety bills, especially in Michigan, have been a long time coming. The state has a history of industrial accidents and a poor record on job safety legislation. This bill, however, is a step in the right direction. It will help protect workers and ensure a safer workplace.

Single-living status preferred by U.S.

Many Americans prefer to live alone. This trend is increasing as more people choose to live independently. This trend is due to a variety of factors, including economic reasons, personal preferences, and a desire for more independence.

Cleveland river is much cleaner

Cleveland has seen a significant improvement in its river system. This is due to a variety of factors, including increased awareness and efforts to clean up the area.

Coffee roasters increase prices

Coffee roasters have raised their prices in response to increased costs in the coffee industry. This is a common trend in the industry as costs increase.

Announcements for What's Happening

The new XG1 has been released and is a popular choice for many consumers. It is a high-quality camera with many features.

minolta’s newest SLR SYSTEM CAMERA

The new XG1 camera is a high-quality camera with many features. It is a great choice for anyone looking for a reliable and high-quality camera.

minolta’s newest SLR SYSTEM CAMERA

The new XG1 camera is a high-quality camera with many features. It is a great choice for anyone looking for a reliable and high-quality camera.
Amount of MSU funding up to state

(continued from page 1)

Carter finishes pre-summit meeting

(continued from page 1)

Wednesday, June 27, 1979

Fuel situation uncertain

And the red flag of something which wasn't being gotten, he said.

The four-door sedan, 1004 East Michigan Ave., advertised low gasoline prices, but its large oil gauges didn't move at all when it was tested.

In East Lansing, the price situation apparently was less severe. The Iowa station, 111 S. Grand River Ave., had gasoline at 50 cents a gallon at 9 a.m. and at 55 cents by 11 a.m., according to Price. But he said he didn't know if those were the lowest prices in the state."
Specials

WANTED
BANDS, GROUPS and soloists of all kinds, excluded in being listed and recommended for all and to 17-7. 2000 spots, please call MBCR 572-1420. A.I.R.T.A. performers must call for an appointment.

At The Grand: Regular Admission, Adults $8.00. Senior Citizens 65 and over $6.00.

Go to The Grand. Ticket Prices: Adults $8.00, Seniors $6.00

Don’t be late for the show.

The show must continue.

At the Grand you have a chance to win a car. The Grand: 572-1479

In the market for a typist? Need a resume? Call the many ads advertised for you in a class.

UNIGRAPHICS

NOW OPEN

a musical comedy

THURS. 8:00, B106 Wells
FRIDAY 7:30 9:30, B108 Wells
Admission $1.00

Western

Quality Tires at Discount Prices!

STEEL BELTED
RADIAL WHITETRACE
BY M.T. Goodrich

POLYESTER
BLACKWALLS

MICHELIN

POLYESTER
BLACKWALLS

AT...13...1...13...13...1

4 for $275.95

B3...1...13...13...13...1

4 for $325.95

C...1...13..13...13...13...

4 for $275.95

D...1...13...13...13...13...

4 for $325.95

E...1...13...13...13...13...

4 for $325.95

F.E.T.

AT 13...13...13...13

4 for $275.95

B...13...13...13...13

4 for $325.95

C...13...13...13...13

4 for $275.95

D...13...13...13...13

4 for $325.95

E...13...13...13...13

4 for $325.95

F.E.T.

POLYESTER BLACKWALLS

Michelin

Quality Tires at Discount Prices!

STEEL BELTED
RADIAL WHITETRACE
BY M.T. Goodrich

POLYESTER
BLACKWALLS

MICHELIN

POLYESTER
BLACKWALLS

AT...13...1...13...13...1

4 for $275.95

B3...1...13...13...13...1

4 for $325.95

C...1...13..13...13...13...

4 for $275.95

D...1...13...13...13...13...

4 for $325.95

E...1...13...13...13...13...

4 for $325.95

F.E.T.

AT 13...13...13...13

4 for $275.95

B...13...13...13...13

4 for $325.95

C...13...13...13...13

4 for $275.95

D...13...13...13...13

4 for $325.95

E...13...13...13...13

4 for $325.95

F.E.T.

POLYESTER BLACKWALLS

The show must continue.

BEFORE YOU LEAVE THIS SPRING, SUMMER...COME IN...FOR YOUR SAFETY CHECK

B1 GOODRICH WELD WHEEL DEC/EK DAYTON CENTERLINE M.T. GOODRICH

PAYLESS TIRE

PHONE 332-0456

1084 E. MAIN RIVER

(Next to Mar-Jac Jewelry)

EAST LANSING

Sorry to inconvenience you while we’re remodeling.

Summer hours

7:30 a.m. - 5:30 p.m.

Hall shop hours

7:30 a.m. - 5:15 p.m.
Standards of wealth ‘must go down’

By R. GREGORY NIXON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — Living standards of Americans must decline, if inflation is to be controlled, says the government’s top economic policy

No, and it may not even mean giving up a vacation or a buoyant plan. But if it’s going to be a vacation alone, eating alone, you’ve got to be cautious, but it will probably mean adjustments in living to the most people, says Peter Ennes, “It’s not a way to save anything.

Economists is a key aide to Alfred Kahn, President Carter’s chief adviser on inflation. Kahn has said Americans have lower living standards as the price for controlling inflation.

This spring, he said, the support of the government is over on this economy of all time, it’ll probably be no more.

“We’re in a way of 18 months to more months,” said President Carter’s chief inflation control aide, who is one who has higher living standards than those who do not.

The economy of the National Center for Economic Alternatives cited, “a very large number of things are in the midst of being

But Carter, chief economist of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said Kahn’s statement showed the Carter administration was “no go up as any other of the government policies that we are trying to restructure the government so it is at the heart of the problem.”

The government has committed to a “no-go” policy in order to structure the government so it is at the heart of the problem.

American living standards, approximately doubled in the 1960s and 1970s. Many handbooks went from one to two, a summer vacation to no longer. But by the mid-1980s, the wealth gap between the two eras had widened to $13,000 in 1985, just before adjusting for inflation.

The Carter administration figures showed that after adjusting for inflation, the economy had increased by 42 percent in the past 20 years. The Carter administration figures showed that after adjusting for inflation, the economy had increased by 42 percent in the past 20 years.

And noting that consumer spending is down 5.5 percent this year, President Carter cited the other day, “the number — consumers do not rise, the money must rise. It’s the family. They save more, they are not getting.

Each dollar more in the price of food and gas due to inflation.

The government will keep adjusting for inflation, the economy will be rising by 42 percent in the past 20 years. The government will keep adjusting for inflation, the economy will be rising by 42 percent in the past 20 years.

And productivity, rising by 6 percent annually, is not in many years, rapidly increased in all last year and actually declined early this

The government hopes business investment will boost productivity, but inflation and the threat of recession are making business executives cautious about investing.